But it was the visages of the men on the stretchers that riveted my attention. I never saw so many men so completely exhausted. Not one pair of lips relaxed into a smile and not an eye lit up with the glad recognition of familiar surroundings. It was not, however, the lines of suffering in those faces that impressed me so much as that uncanny sameness of expression, an expression of hopeless gloom so deep that it made me forget that the sun was shining from an unclouded sky. The dejection of the police, of the soldier onlookers, of the walking wounded, and those upturned faces on the white pillows told as plainly as words could ever tell that the Guard had at last met a force superior to themselves and their war machine. They knew well that they were the idol of their Fatherland and that they had fought with every ounce of their great physical strength, backed by their long traditions. They had been vanquished by an army of mere sportsmen.

GRIM TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN.

My thoughts went back to Berlin and the uninformed scoffings at the British army and its futile efforts to push back the troops of Rupprecht on the Somme. Yet here on the actual outskirts of the German capital was a grim tribute to the machine that Great Britain had built up under the protection of her navy.

In Berlin at that moment the afternoon editions were fluttering their daily headings of victory to the crowds on the Linden and the Friedrichstrasse, but here the mammoth vans were moving slowly through the streets of Potsdam.

To the women who stood in the long lines waiting with the potato and butter tickets for food on the other side of the old stone bridge that spans the Havel they were merely ordinary cumbersome furniture waggons.

How were they to know that these tumbrils contained the bloody story of Contalmaison?

FIRE DESTROYS A HOSPITAL AT FARNHAM

Five Persons Known to be Dead and Fifteen Others Missing—Startling Revelations Promised

FIGHT FOR EXITS

FARNHAM Oct. 26.—Five persons are known to be dead and fifteen others are missing as the result of a fire which destroyed St. Elizabeth hospital and laundry here during the night. The twenty-five or more children who were injured flung themselves from third storey windows to the pavement below. Nearly all inmates of the building were asleep on the third floor.

The fire is believed to have started from defective chimneys. It spread so swiftly that the three hundred and fifty inmates were unable to reach safety before many of them were isolated by the flames. Patients and employees fought in wild attempts to gain the exits from the building. Startling revelations are promised when an investigation is begun, for the fire escapes are said to have always proved defective in emergencies.

Eye-Witness' Story Of the Battle On The Western Front

Fort Douaumont Was Captured in Less Than Three Hours—Attack Was Made in the Rain

WATCHED THE ATTACK

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Oct. 26. — VERDUN, via Chantilly (delayed):—Battling in the rain, mists and clouds of smoke, the French recaptured Fort Douaumont in less than three hours in a brilliant offensive that swept the Crown Prince back from Verdun. The entire operation was witnessed by General Joffre, Commander in Chief of the French armies.

From an observation post in one of the Verdun forts the correspondent watched the French infantry launch the attack at 11.40 Tuesday morning, after three days of unprecedented artillery preparation. The rain, the fog and the constant explosion of shells hid men from sight. But it was possible to follow the French advance by the shifting of the barrage fires, especially that of the Germans, which came from Froide Terre and then was forced to shorten upon Thiamont and then Douaumont as the French swept all before them. Telephone calls from other forts kept us informed of the French advance. First at 12.30 Helly ravine was captured, the voice over the telephone said. Then the Haudremont quarries the village of Douaumont, the forst of Chapitre, Fumin, Chenois, Laufee and Caillette in quick succession. There was a short pause and the telephone brought word of the capture of the Vaux Pond. It was 3 o'clock when Fort Souville telephoned that the French had reached Fort Douaumont and were fighting about its entrance. French officers waited with cool confidence for the next word. "We have surrendered Fort Douaumont," came the message at five o'clock. For an hour we peered out over the distant battlefield on the alert at the same time for some news from the telephone. Suddenly sharp gusts of wind lifted the mists and the smoke clouds revealing the tri-colour of France floating at the summit of Douaumont. At the same moment Fort Souville flashed the word that Douaumont had been captured. It was then six o'clock."

Wheat Dropped At The Close of The Market

Yesterday's Markets Were of the Wildest Character—The Cattle Market—Hogs Ten Cents Higher

Wheat markets yesterday were of the wildest character, option prices at Chicago fluctuating over a range of 12c between Tuesday's low and the high yesterday on December, but strong between 5c and 7c at the close. The other options were equally erratic. Manitoba cash was 1-2c easier last night, Ontario steady. Cash corn is up to $1.16 and going strong.

Ontario oats—No. 2, white, 60c to 62c; No. 3, white, 59c to 61c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lot, new, $1.68 to $1.70; old crop, No. 1 commercial $1.65 to $1.65; No. 2 commercial, $1.53 to $1.56; No. 3, $1.63 to $1.65.

Peas, No. 2, nominal; car lots, $2.30 to $2.35.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal, shorts, $32; bran, $30; good feed flour, per bag, $2.50; middlings, $34.

Hay—Baled, No. 1, track, Toronto, best grade new hay, car lots, $12 to $13; No. 2, $10 to $11; straw, $9 to $10.

Toronto Union Stock Yards — Receipts 129 cars, with 1,283 cattle, 185 calves, 2,566 hogs, and 3,423 sheep and lambs.

Market continues strong and active at the former prices established this week. The demand for choice butcher cattle is keen, and anything of quality sells firm.

Hogs, firm and 10c higher.

THE LITTLE FORTUNE

BY ARNOLD FREDERICKS

Somewhat alarmed at the turn of affairs, she hurriedly retraced her steps with the intention of returning to the hall and continuing the pursuit. She realized that she had done a very reckless and a very foolish thing in entering the house. It would have been far more sensible to have waited outside until she could have summoned someone to her assistance.

It was too late to think of that now, however. She hurried to the first door, and was about to enter the hall when it was quietly closed in her face, and the clicking of the key told her that it also had been locked. She was a prisoner.

She immediately turned on the light. The room was long and somewhat bare, divided in the middle by means of a pair of old and faded velvet curtains.

The rear room contained a bed and other bedroom furniture. The front room was fitted up as a sitting room. The second door to the hall led from the bedroom. Grace concluded that the room had once been two smaller rooms, each with its door to the hall.

There was a third door, however, which she had not tried. It was situated at the end of the bedroom, and doubtless, Grace thought, gave entrance to a closet. She tried it and found that it, too, was locked.

Some sounds from the other side caused her to kneel down and look through the keyhole.

The sight that met her eyes was one that she remembered for a long time to come.

A fat woman, dressed in a dirty, pink satin dress, was seated on a divan, her eyes fixed on the door behind which Grace knelt. The woman with the satchel stood beside her. The fat woman was just handing her a roll of bills.

A number of things became startlingly clear to the girl as she saw the evil look in the woman's face. She had wondered how it happened that the keys in the two doors were so conveniently placed on the outside; that the woman who had decoyed her within could lock them at a moment's notice. She rose, her heart beating rapidly and a lump rising in her throat. She knew she would now have to escape, not indeed to pursue this woman she had so foolishly followed, but to save herself.

With characteristic energy she cast about her to see how her escape might be accomplished.

The windows afforded no possible chance. They were, she soon discovered, fastened in such a way that they could be lowered from the top only, and that, too, but a few inches, for the purpose of ventilation. Even had she been able to open them she knew that she could not hope to jump the intervening distance to the street without the risk of a broken leg—if nothing worse.

She at once turned her attention to the doors leading to the hall. They were both alike, of wood, painted white, and apparently quite strong and firm. This she determined by pressing against them with her shoulders, but though she exerted all her strength they did not yield the smallest fraction.

Once more she went softly to the rear of the room and gazed through the keyhole of the door. The light in the rear room was gone. Its two occupants had vanished. Evidently the captors proposed to wait, with the idea that she would presently become tired out and sleep.

She took out her purse and felt in it aimlessly in the hope that one of the keys she carried in it might by some chance fit one of the doors, but the hope proved to be a futile one. They were far too small and merely turned in the locks.

She put them back in her purse in despair. As she did so her fingers touched a small, gold-handled penknife which Richard had given her on one occasion on her birthday.

She took out her knife wondering what use she could make of it to secure her freedom.

Then an idea came to her. The panels of the doors she knew were not over a quarter of an inch thick. If they were of soft wood, such as white pine, she might possibly hope to cut through one of them, if the knife did not break in the operation. If of hard wood, she knew the attempt would be useless.

She went to the door by which she had entered and cautiously pressed the point of the blade into one of the panels at a point about six inches above the lock.

At first the paint, hardened by age, resisted the knife point. Once through it, however, she realized joyfully that the panel was composed of soft wood.

Very carefully she began to twirl the knife about, boring a tiny hole as it went. Her progress was painfully slow. She was afraid to press hard upon the knife blade for fear that it might break. In the course of half an hour she managed to bore a tiny hole, perhaps an eighth of an inch in diameter, completely through the panel.

She then began to enlarge this, using the utmost care lest she break her fragile tool. The knife luckily was of excellent steel and very sharp, and after a long time she found she had enlarged the opening to the size of a half dollar.

And then as though to prove the crowning touch to her misfortunes the tiny blade of the knife wedged in a split in the grain of the wood, and broke short off.

The girl almost wept, so great was her despair. In another hour she felt that she could have enlarged the opening sufficiently for her to put her hand through it and thus turn the key in the lock on the other side.

Now, it seemed, all her labor had been in vain. She sat down and a great fear entered her heart. Suppose she could not get away at all?

For a long time she sat helpless. She was just beginning to lose hope when an object on the other side of the room caught her eye. It was a long iron poker, with a heavy brass handle, which stood at one side of the old fashioned fireplace in the further wall. There was a grate in the fireplace—a relic no doubt of the former grandeur of what had once been a handsome private residence.

It occurred to her that if she could insert the brass end of the poker in the hole she had made in the door, and press down with all her weight upon the other end, she could readily split out a section of the panel.

In doing so she knew she would be obliged to make considerable noise. But it seemed probable that before any one in the house could be aroused and get to her, she would have time to reach through the opening, unlock the door and descend the stairs.

It was clearly the only way of escape that lay open. She decided to take the chance.

The brass head of the poker, varying in size from the end up, she wedged into the opening without difficulty. It fitted tightly. She began to bear down upon the other end, exerting all her strength. At first the implement slipped—she was forced to wedge it again in the opening as the soft wood compressed beneath it. And then with a splintering crash the panel gave way, and a section of it as large as her hand bent slowly outward.

She droped the poker to the floor, and thrust her arm through the jagged hole, then, reaching down, her fingers closed upon the key. Even as she turned it she heard sounds coming from the hall at the rear—the opening of a door, then rapid footsteps.

She flung the door wide and tore at breakneck speed down the stairs.

The front door, too, was locked but she managed to turn the key without difficulty. A bolt which she had not anticipated, blocked her progress. As she struggled to unfasten it she heard some one descending the stairs behind her and a man's rough voice cursing violently.

At last the bolt yielded. She sprang into the vestibule, opened the outer door, stumbled panic-stricken to the sidewalk, then ran at full speed toward the corner.

It was broad daylight. She had not realised the length of time she had been in the house. She looked hastily at her watch. It was six o'clock.

Quick Way to End Coughs, Colds and Croup

An Excellent, Inexpensive Home-Made Remedy that is Prompt and Safe.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, just try this pleasant tasting home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Thus prepared, you have 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy—one that can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief at all times.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is noted for its speed in overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. Its millions of enthusiastic users have made it famous the world over.

There are many worthless imitations of this noted mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

A Physician's Advice.

"If dyspeptic sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

The birthplace of the British fishing industry was undoubtedly the English Channel. But no better men ply the trade by net or line than those which hail from the Western and Northern Isles, and from the ports of Northern Scotland. These places are, indeed, natural nurseries for the Royal and merchant fleets, though it is interesting to note that by Act of Parliament whale fishermen were exempted during the Napoleonic Wars from the activities of the Press Gang.

The coming of great ships of war and a standing navy ended to a great extent the country's early dependence on the larger fisher craft in sea battles. In pre-Armada days the fishing ports of the Channel provided the largest number of craft and seamen (London, even, was less important to the navy than a combination of West Country ports with unfamiliar names), and when a British expedition was to be sent to France the fisher craft were requisitioned as transports. Light, fast, and seaworthy were the fishing boats of the Channel—they were used as "scouts" and patrols, just as their successors are being used to-day.

When war was declared in August, 1914, thousands of naval reservists travelled from the fishing ports and islands to rejoin, and though round the depots one heard many dialects, from Newquay to Scalloway, from Stornoway to Dover, there was only one argot of the sea. Donald might ejaculate in Gaelic, and his Cornish neighbor in a dialect akin to the lost British language; but they had command ground in the speech of their calling, as a few days later they had a common dress in the uniform of the Royal navy. It was astonishing how smartly these fishermen leaped back into the drill and duties of Jack Tar, and how a uniformity of appearance was gained. Bushy beards were trimmed close, matted locks sacrificed, and the razor's steady labor produced a man little different, on the surface, from a thousand of his fellows. Such were the fishermen warriors.

UGLY BUT SAVES LIVES

British Helmets Superior in Many Details—Strange Wounds

At the beginning of the war, as the London correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association points out, there were many cases of soldier found dead without a mark on their bodies. It was explained that they had died from shock or from the concussion produced by the explosion of great shells. As the helmets were introduced it was found that soldiers wearing them did not die without visible wounds, while deaths supposedly from shock continued among the troops not yet equipped. This set on foot an investigation, and it was learned that the men who were found dead without a mark on their bodies had been killed by minute fragments of shell, some of them no thicker than a layer of paper, which had penetrated the brain, leaving not an outward trace to mark their course.

Many of these wounds were found in the base of the skull, and for this reason the British when devising their helmet gave it a wide, downward sloping brim, which protects not only the head, but the back and sides of the neck. The French helmet does not offer this protection lower down; and it is held to be inferior also from the fact that it has a ridged crown, while the British helmet is severely plain. It is true that the French helmet looks better, and that through the ridge there is a ventilating channel, but the ridge might also attract and deflect downward a bullet or shell fragment that the smooth top of the British helmet would miss. The British helmet does not fit so closely to the head as the French helmet, but is wide enough to permit the introduction of a number of rubber buffers between the leather band and the helmet proper. These buffers prevent shock, and are said to be quite sufficient to diffuse and neutralise the force of a blow that otherwise might prove fatal.

ACTOR'S WAR RECORD

From France-Prussian to Present is Glasgow Man's Career

C. Stewart Robertson, an actor, formerly of the Glasgow Repertory Theatre, has a wonderful record. His full title is Quartermaster-Sergeant (Warrant Officer, Class II.). He is just fifty-eight years of age. He joined the 6th Cameron Highlanders in October, 1914, and was wounded at Hill 70 in September, 1915, and invalided home, but returned to the Front. He was previously in the Army, and left in 1899, when he had attained the rank of sergeant-major. He enlisted this time as an ordinary recruit, but was promoted quartermaster-sergeant from date of re-enlistment, and has since been recommended for a commission. At the time of the Siege of Paris in 1870 he was living in Paris, and as a boy of thirteen he assisted in the defence of the city. Quartermaster-Sergeant Robertson holds the following decorations: Jubilee Decoration (1887-97), Zulu War Medal (1879), Afghan War Medal (1880), Egyptian Medal (1882), and Indian Frontier (Burma). The foregoing is a truly marvellous record, and one that his fellow-artists are justly proud of.

The artistic character of the posters is sued by the 178th (French-Canadian) Battalion is exciting more than a local interest. William J. Craig, a manufacturers' agent in Toronto, asked for a copy of these posters and wrote to the battalion as follows: "Pleased to acknowledge receipt of your two interesting posters which I admired in Montreal and have put these up in a prominent place in the city to show that the French-Canadians are trying to do their part in Quebec. I thank you for same, and trust it will help to prove a United Canada." The object of the posters was to stimulate recruiting in the province of Quebec.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

MR. BATTEN AND HIS MOTOR CAR

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 23.—Mr Wm. Batten the well-known Massey-Harris agent of Dummer had the misfortune to slightly damage his new Chevrolet car while driving through the village on Monday evening.

Proceeding along Queen street, north, Mr. Batten turned sharply to avoid running down three small children who were playing on the road. As a result the car slid into the ditch and collided with a telephone pole. A team was procured and the auto pulled onto the road again. At the time it was thought that the car and escaped uninjured but evidently the front wheels had been twisted for about a hundred yards up the road the car swerved suddenly to the left colliding with Mr. Joseph Payne's fence. Although the front wheels were further damaged by this mishap, Mr. Batten proceeded on his way home.

Mr. D. Fitzgerald spent Saturday in Peterborough.

A meeting of the pupils of the Lakefield Continuation School was held on Monday for the purpose of re-organizing the literary-debating society. The following were elected to the various offices:

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A HAPPY MEETING

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

The case of the people against Jacob Severance, or Edward Todd, or a number of other names which might be applied to the prisoner, was called. The prosecuting attorney expected to prove that he was the notorious Jake Severance who had committeed any number of confidence games and was the slickest operator in that line in America. The trial was to come off in the county seat, where he had been captured working as a farmhand to escape those who were after him. It was at the height of the haying season, and the farmers were all endeavoring to get in their crops before the next rain. Consequently there was difficulty in making up a jury, for whenever a man had a valid excuse for not serving he availed himself of it. Finally the panel stuck at the twelfth juryman.

A farmer entered the courtroom and looked about him with that wild glance common among countrymen who find themselves in an unfamiliar position.

"Is this yere a real estate office?" he asked.

"No, it's a courtroom," replied the sheriff.

"Oh! I thort it was a real estate office. I want to buy a farm."

"Do you belong about here?"

"No. I come from Canada. I got tired livin' under the British flag, and I want to git property yere."

"I say, my friend, how would you like to help us out as a juryman? You will get a dollar a day for sitting still and doing nothing."

"I don't know nothin' about juries; I never sot on one."

The farmer was persuaded, and the jury was complete. When the prisoner was brought forth for trial he cast a sweeping glance over the twelve anxiously.

The man from Canada seemed uneasy in finding himself in a jury box and kept looking about him here and there as if he feared something awful was about to be sprung upon him.

"Jacob Severance, you are accused of"—

"I ain't Jacob Severance; I'm Tom Barker."

"Where do you hail from?"

"Ontario, Canada."

"Is you the Tom Barker that run away with my darter?"

"Mathildy Barker?"

"Yes, my wife's name's Mathildy."

"What's my darter?" asked the old man pathetically.

"She's to hum with the kids, while I am tryin' to make enough as farm help to keep 'em alive."

"Tell me what I kin find her. I done her a big wrong when I told her she shouldn't marry a man I had never seen. Her mother has been most heartbroken since she went away and pinin' for her all the time."

The court business stood still while this dialogue was in progress. When it had come to this point the prosecuting attorney said:

"Your honor, I have no objection to this man taking the witness stand to clear up what has evidently been a mistake. But since he is a juryman he must be excused as such."

A new juryman was found, and the stranger took the witness stand. He told a pathetic story of how his only daughter, who was a schoolteacher across the international line, had written that she was going to marry one Tom Barker, a young farmer who was trying to pay for a farm he had bought mostly on credit. Her father objected to the match on the ground of poverty and tried to stop her by telling her that if she persisted in the matter she would never again be welcomed home. From that day he had never seen or heard from her. Then he broke down and wept.

Handkerchiefs appeared all over the courtroom.

"Your honor," said the lawyer who had the prisoner's case in charge, "this is evidently a case of mistaken identity. The man the police is looking for is a very different person from the prisoner. I move that the case be dismissed."

The judge, who noticed that the sympathies of all were with the poor farmer and his son-in-law, consented, and the case was taken off the docket. Then the farmer went up to his son-in-law, put out his hand and told him how sorry he was that he had taken such harsh measures with his daughter. "But," he added, "I've sold the farm for a good price, and I've come down yere to buy another. We'll settle among these good people, work the farm together, and when I'm gone Mahuldy shall have it. Meanwhile there's plenty for all of us."

Half a dozen persons gathered around the speaker, all having farms they would sell—just to have him settle among them—but he said the first thing he would do was to go to his daughter. Then he would come back and look at the properties for sale. He left with his son-in-law, and neither of them returned. The son-in-law was the crook the police were after, and the father-in-law was another, the two having long worked their games together.

CIVILIZATION ASSISTS WAR.

Isn't it not a bit of a paradox after all that such a war as is now raging would be impossible but for our advanced civilization asks a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine. The material things which have most contributed to the world's advance and developed the remote places, turning deserts into farms and prehistorical marshes into towns, have in turn made possible the conflict of millions. Without modern vehicles of transportation, including railways and motors, for the movement of men, munitions and supplies, such vast armies would advance only to exhaust their ammunition and starve. The short sword and spear needed only the arm to wield them but machine guns and cannon have fearful appetites. Take away the telegraph and the telephone and the machinery of the war department would instantly clog, and become one gigantic chaos: the stronger it had been the weaker it would become.

Except in the hospital service science and invention have apparently been employed chiefly to make war as vast and deadly as to leave little of awfulness to the imagination.

Telephone Courtesy is Growing in Favor.

Newspapers and periodicals, which reflect so well the trend of public opinion, are continually urging the practice of telephone courtesy.

Progressive merchants are studying its relation to their sales. Employees are being trained to treat telephone callers with the same degree of courtesy and consideration that obtains in a face-to-face conversation.

And the result for those who practice telephone courtesy faithfully is a constantly growing volume of telephone trade and good-will.

The encouragement you give to your employees in developing pleasing telephone manners will bear fruit in the promotion of good-will amongst your customers.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

FLOUR PRICES

Hogs, wheat, sugar, flour, eggs, butter, and other food stuffs all show advances this week over the quotations of a week ago. In fact there is scarcely an article in the whole list that is not more or less in a stronger position than at this time last week. The consumer is paying the piper, and with the exception of a trifling complaint here and there no one has yet shown much objection to the steady trend of prices.

Last week a deputation of mayors went to Ottawa to ask the Cabinet to take some steps to prevent the increasing cost of living, but in the words of the Toronto Telegram, these representatives of the "common people" received a lovely wet blanket reception that left no hope that the Government would undertake any effort to mitigate the evil of high prices.

The man on the street growches against various affecting influences including the cold storage system. If the cold storage people, as it is said, have bought up supplies for which they can receive a higher price in Europe than in Canada, why not come out in full confidence and inform the people of the fact. The alternative idea is that which rumbles in the contemplative mind of the consumer, although contemplation may not be his long suit. He ascribes the advancing prices to the situation of the cold storage house holding supplies, dribbling them on to the market in thin supply, or holding them until top prices have been reached later on.

WHEAT PRICES.

Old cereal wheat is 1c higher this week at $1.69 to $1.69 per bush., on the street at Toronto. New wheat is selling at 12c above last week, at $1.70, and goose 15c higher, at $1.70.

Ontario commercial wheat sold at an advance of from 13c to 14c above last week at Toronto, with old crop No. 1, $1.61 to $1.62; No. 2, $1.61 to $1.54; and No. 3, 2c down, at $1.42 to $1.46, according to freights, and new No. 2 wheat is 2c higher this week at $1.44 to $1.48 per bushel.

At Winnipeg No. 1 Northern sold on the Exchange at a 1½c advance all round on last week's price, at $1.61½; No. 2, down 1c, $1.70½, and No. 3, also down, at $1.73½.

On the track at bay ports Manitoba wheat was 1½c higher than last week, with No. 1 selling at $1.69; No. 2, $1.67, and No. 3, $1.62. Old crop is 3c higher.

WHEAT AT LOCAL POINTS.

Wheat sold on the farmers' markets at local points throughout Ontario on Saturday, as follows: Belleville, $1.50 per bushel, Brantford, $1.55; Cobourg, $1.46; Guelph, $1.60; Hamilton, $1.46 to $1.55; Kitchener, $1.59; Kingston, $1.50 to $1.56; Owen Sound, $1.60; Peterboro, $1.50; Port Hope, $1.55; and Woodstock, $1.56.

COARSE GRAINS AT TORONTO.

New oats were 3c still firmer, selling on Saturday at 44c per bushel on the street at Toronto, while the old crop was up 4c more and sold at 43c. Ontario oats at outside points are 3c up at 37c to 40c per bushel for No. 2 white, and 36c to 39c for No. 3. Manitoba oats on the track at bay ports are down 2½c to 3c, being quoted at 44¾c for No. 2 C.W., and 43c for No. 3 C.W.

Rye is 5c higher this week on the street at Toronto, according to sample, at $1.20, at outside points it is 2c to 3c up at $1.21 to $1.22 per bushel.

Malting barley is quoted up 10c at $1.05 to $1.10 on the street at Toronto, and at outside points at $1.05 to $1.09, while feed is 6c higher than last week, at 90c to 92c per bushel.

FLOUR PRICES.

Local retail flour prices are as follows per cwt.:

Pastry flour, $3.60.
Royal Household, $3.10.
Five Roses, $3.10.
Reindeer, $3.15.
Cream of the West, $3.15.

SUGAR.

Best granulated sugar is now $8.20 per cwt., and brown sugar $7.90 per cwt.

Live hogs are $10.45 this week.

CREAM AT TORONTO.

The Toronto Creamery reports its quotation of 40c per pound of butter fat to shipper for churning cream for the last half of October, with any advance on this that the market warants. The run of cream is falling off sharply and one creamery reports that this trend is so marked that they are putting away a wagon load of cream cans every day to wait for the next busy season. This is in spite of the good prices being realized and reflects the feed shortages that exists in the country.

Sweet cream sells with a range of from 40c up to 44c per pound of butter fat. This will be worth still more as the season advances, but is also subjected to the same conditions that affect the market for churning cream.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

Butter has passed the 40c mark and no one knows when it will recross it. The price has been as high as 45c in local stores during the week.

Eggs locally sell slightly under 40c.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' AND SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Paris has made up its fashion mind that the peplum will return to favor for the fall and winter, and in the illustration we show a model featuring the peplum. [illegible] on lines that will give it value [illegible] more than one season. The occasions [illegible] it is suited are [illegible]

The blouse is cut with the [illegible] neck, [illegible] with contrasting material and [illegible] with large buttons and loops to show that the closing is in front. [illegible] is a well shaped sleeve finished with a straight cuff. [illegible] is [illegible] trimmed at the sleeve joining and the lower edge. A smart ripple peplum comes well down over the hips. An outside belt of material which draws the blouse in slightly is braid outlined and the lower edge of the peplum is similarly favored.

Tweeds, English checks, serges and similar weaves will develop splendidly.

The pattern, No. 7948, is cut in sizes 14 to 20. To make in size 16 will require 6 yards of 36 inch material with ¼ yard of 36 inch goods for the collar and 3½ yards of braid.

You may obtain the pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

SOLDIERS ARE NEEDING

more Zam-Buk. They are asking for it in their letters home. They say that nothing takes the place of Zam-Buk for cuts, burns, blisters, sores, etc.

Pte. J. R. Smith of the "Princess Pats" writes: "Tell my friends, if they want to help me, to send some Zam-Buk. We find it very useful indeed, and we can't get too much of it."

Pte. Johnson, writing home, says: "Mrs. —— has offered to send me a rug. Ask her to send some Zam-Buk instead. It will be of more use here than all the rugs in creation."

Nothing ends pain and heals so quickly as Zam-Buk, and being germicidal, if applied to a wound as soon as sustained, prevents all danger of blood-poisoning. The soldier who carries a box of Zam-Buk in his pocket will be saved much needless suffering. Don't let your friends go without.

MUD HUTS OF KUT

An Unlovely Jumble For The Besieged British Force

Mr. David Forbes, jun., who speaking from first-hand knowledge, described the conditions confronting the Mesopotamia expedition, said that if the British had any gunboats on the Tigris the floods could, and doubtless would, have been turned to advantage. Regarding Kut, Mr. Forbes said: "People must not run away with the idea that Kut is a picturesque Eastern town with mosques and minarets. It is simply an Arab village—a collection of mud huts thrown together with winding alleys and narrow passages all open to the winds and rains and burning heat. These huts are the only shade available, for although tamarinds and liquorice grow by the river, all these had been cut down for defensive purposes.

In Berlin there is over the whole population an indescribable expression of war-weariness.—Professor Hagelund.

In every man's life there is one supreme hour towards which all earlier experience moves and from which all future results may be recokoned. For every individual Briton, as well as for our national existence, that solemn hour is now striking.—Lord Kitchener.

NIGHT ON WARSHIP AWAITING GERMANS

No Chances Taken by Resolute, Watchful Crews of Britain—How They Treat Blinking Craft

Part of a night with the fleet in the North Sea is thus described: "Hands to stations for night defences!" The words, clear and sharp, echo through the ship. There is the sound of bare feet moving swiftly across the wooden decks, the sudden, secondary glimmer of night sights being tested at the guns, the hasty rigging of miles of snake-like, flexible tubing for the [illegible] voice piping, and then—silence. At the guns and searchlights groups of men stand and chat in low tones; on the bridges, aloft in the control tops, and on every high point in the ship, look-outs, armed with binoculars, peer into the darkness, guarding the great battleship from attack by surprise at the hands of the wolves of the sea—the torpedo craft.

There is no smoking, no shouting of orders, not a glimmer of light showing anywhere; for on a dark night even a match—the momentary glare of a cigarette end—can be seen miles away and will act as a guide to any prowling destroyer who may be searching for prey. In the rear of each group of guns stands a man with a telephone headpiece strapped in place. He is in communication with the control positions, where the various officers who regulate the firing of the guns during action have their several stations. Suddenly down the voice pipe comes the first order of the night: "Groups, stand by!"

Ready, Aye Ready

The man repeats the words, and the sailors leap to their positions at the guns, wrenching the breeches open, standing with shells and cartridges ready to enter on the instant; while the searchlight operators grip the switches, and stand ready to send the dazzling arms of light out into the darkness to show up any foe that may be lurking there, so that the guns may have a fair target to aim at—and smash.

"Range, eight thousand, five right!" The order is passed to the sight-setters, each of whom also wears a telephone headpiece. There is the faint est glimmer of infinitesimal candle-power electric torches as the sight dials are set to the ranges stipulated, and the shells thud home into the guns, the cartridges follow, and the breeches click in a business like manner. The guns are ready. The next order is for the angle of fire.

"Train on Green one two oh!" says that far-off voice at the other end of the pipe. "Port guns train on Red six oh!" The gun muzzles flicker round until they bear on the named angle; the great, blank glass faces of the searchlights follow them. For perhaps five minutes there is a deep tenseness over the ship; fingers itch to press triggers and to slam over switches; eyes ache as they strain through telescopic sights, searching vainly in the darkness for the glimmer of shadow upon the black background of the night sky that shall tell of something moving.

Fire First, Then Ask

"Any thing that moves at night in war time shall be fired on first; questions will be asked afterwards." It is a golden rule of the North Sea service; whilst a battleship was making sure that the moving boat was not of her own navy that boat could dash off four of her deadly torpedoes, and the battleship might get her answer in the wrong way. And then down the voice pipe come the words which relieve once more the tension—which tell that this is only a "dummy run," a necessary testing of the means of communication between tops and guns.

"Range for the night, one thousand! Train on fighting bearing!" The breech-blocks snick open, the cartridges and projectiles are extracted and placed carefully in some position where they may be immediately snapped up and used, and then the crews, leaving lookouts as before, lounge round near their weapons and resume the interrupted yarn.

LONDON WHEAT MARKET IS ALL IN A FLURRY

Prices Still Soaring—James Carruthers British Buyer Here.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Although no official statement can be obtained, it is reported that the British Government has asked James Carruthers, of Montreal, to undertake the purchase of Canadian wheat now under contract in Winnipeg and New York.

The main market in London continues to be excited, with prices still soaring. The market correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes: "It is going quite as bad as being after exchange in the old days. You ask the price of a commodity, get your answer, walk away about five yards, decide you'll do a deal and turn back again, and the price has gone up a shilling in the meantime."

Mills in England have succeeded in making twine and yarn from flax straw, generally considered a waste product.

EXPLODING VEINS KILL SECOND POWDER MAKER.

New York, October 24.—William F. White, twenty-three years old, of Jamesburg, N. J., died in New Brunswick, N.J., of a mysterious disease, that has attacked many of the powder workers employed at the Du Pont powder plant at Parlin. This is the second case to result fatally.

White had been ill only one week. As in the other case, his smaller blood vessels exploded, causing exhaustion and death.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Certainly knows good tobacco when he smokes it—that's why he has adopted Master-Mason the tobacco which smokes easier, lasts longer, tastes better and gives more satisfaction than other tobaccos ready cut and sold in tins or paper packets.

SMOKE Master Mason

it is made of selected, fully matured tobaccos, pressed into a solid plug so as to seal in, as-it-were, the natural moisture and fragrance of the tobacco and ensures that mellowness and smoothness so much appreciated by smokers.

Equal by test to the very best, Much better than all the rest.

WHOLE MOLDAVIAN FRONTIER HAS BEEN CLEARED OF ENEMY FORCES

Bucharest Announces That Practically All the Carpathian Passes Are Now Dominated By Roumanian Forces---Mackensen's Attacks Slacken and Russo-Roumanians Are Preparing Counter Attack---German Counter Attacks on New French Positions at Verdun Have Been Given Up.

SERBS AND FRENCH SCORE NEAR MONASTIR

LONDON, October 26.—Through Tolyges, Bicas, Gyimes and Oitus Passe, the invaders of Roumania have been driven back into Transylvania. Bucharest officially announces that the whole frontier of Moldavia (the Province of Roumania which projects northwards) has been cleared of the enemy. This means that practically all Carpathian passes are dominated by Roumanian troops, the enemy invasion being now confined to troops which penetrated southwards from Transylvania through the passes of the Transylvanian Alps and are thrusting at Bucharest via Kimpolung and Predeal, and at the Buzeu and Czernowitz Railway via Bodza pass.

PARIS (French Official), October 26.—Artillery bombardment continued throughout last night at the Vaux sector northeast of Verdun, but the Germans made no new counter attacks.

Mackensen's Sweep Has Been Checked

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 26.—The victorious sweep of Mackensen's armies into Dobrudja has been checked at least temporarily, official despatches from Berlin, Sofia, Petrograd and Bucharest indicated this afternoon. The Roumanians have blown up the fourteen-mile Danube bridge at Cernavoda, the greatest bridge in Europe ,thus blocking an immediate invasion of old Roumania.

The German statement claimed further progress in Dobrudja operations but mentioned no fresh captures. It apparently corroborated the Petrograd statement that Mackensen's offensive is slackening. In the House of Commons this afternoon Premier Asquith gave further assurance that the Allies were directing their anxious attention to the Roumanian situation. He said that concerted action is being arranged, and that France, Russia and Italy, as well as England, taking every possible step to relieve the Roumanians. The last twenty-four hours of fighting on the Somme and Verdun fronts have left the Verdun situation virtually unchanged. In Macedonia, French and Serbian troops drove northward in fresh victory Tuesday, capturing two villages and other German-Bulgarian positions.

CRITICAL RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND NORWAY OVER SUBS.

LONDON, October 26. — Repeated torpedoings of Norwegian ships while the submarine crisis between Norway and Germany is in a serious stage, led British papers to declare to-day that relations between these two countries is becoming very critical.

Referring to war prospects between Germany and Norway, the Daily Chronicle says to-day: "The risk of war does exist, and if it broke out, it would be Great Britain and not any other of the major allies on whom the opportunity and responsibility would wall. Norway is perhaps the most pro-British country on the continent, and we are bound to her by many ties of sentiment, commerce and common interest. We ought to assure her in the event of war, of prompt and effective protection. She would need it in naval matters and would probably also require some supplies for her artillery and air services. These succors ought to be forthcoming without any delay if the case arose and the British navy, which could then make very effective use of Norwegian ports and territorial waters, would have to throw an effective mantle over the Norwegian coast and shipping.

BRITISH TRENCHES ARE AGAIN HEAVILY SHELLED

LONDON, October 26.—Germans heavily shelled British trenches north of the Somme last night between Eaucourt L'Abbaye and Les Boeufs, and also in neighbourhood of Stuff and Hohenzollern redoubts, General Haig reported this afternoon. British detachments successfully raided enemy trenches near Monchy and also northeast of Arras, doing considerable damage and taking more prisoners.

BRITISH RED CROSS SUBSCRIBE NOW!

TO THE PEOPLE OF PETERBOROUGH:—

Human liberty is in the balance and suffering mankind makes the call. The needs are great and the demand insistent. The Red Cross needs neither commendation nor explanation. Its daily deeds speak louder than many trumpets. Other communities are doing wonderfully well. Will Peterborough do its share. The answer is for you.

The City Council has made a grant as a nucleus, for our assistance and encouragement. A large sum is expected from our splendid city and its generous people.

Contributions may be made up to 30th instant and left at the Post Office, at any of the local banks or newspaper offices, or sent direct to the Treasurer. Let every one give something, and "he gives twice who gives quickly."

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT GIVES LIFE FOR EMPIRE

Pte. Ormand Weir Formerly of Staff at Toronto Savings and Loan Co. and a Well-known Keene Boy is Killed in Action

ENLISTED IN VANCOUVER

Word was received in Peterborough this afternoon of the death in action of a well known Keene boy, and a former resident of Peterborough, in the person of Pte. Ormond Weir. Pte. Weir was a son of the late Jas. Weir, of Keene and received part of his education here, afterwards being employed for three years on the staff of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company during which time he made many friends in Peterborough. Leaving here he went to Vancouver, where he was employed when war broke out. He enlisted in the 62nd Battalion and was afterwards transferred to the 54th Battalion, with whom he was fighting when he was killed on Oct. 14th. Pte. Weir's sister, Mrs. Vincent McCarthy, two uncles, Messrs. Marshal and Archibald Weir and an aunt, Miss Belle Weir, reside in Keene. He was a second cousin of Ald. A. Weir, of Peterborough.

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.— It is stated here that the price of a small loaf of bread will be increased to nine cents on Monday in Toronto.

Mr. N. W. Rowell Will Deliver Address Here on Nov. 2nd

The 57th Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire have secured Mr. N. W. Rowell, M.P.P., to give an address here on Thursday, Nov. 2nd. His subject is "A Message of Cheer from the Front," and is a recita of his experiences on his recent trip to France, where he visited the Canadian lines. Mr. Rowell's address has made a deep impression in the Ontario cities he has visited and the Daughters of the Empire expect that he will be greeted by a large crowd on his local appearance.

A Mysterious Fire Burns Block of Stores

Special to Examiner:

BRANTFORD, Oct. 26.—A mysterious fire broke out in Alice block at Waterford at 3.30 this morning, practically wiping out the block before it burned itself out and doing $60,000 damage to block and contents of stores therein, very little being saved. Little insurance was carried.

Two men were seen hanging around the building at midnight and investigation showed that some of the stores were robbed. It is thought that the robbers had accidentally, or otherwise, started the fire.

Eleven Lives Lost

Examiner Special:

FARNHAM, Que., Oct. 26.—Eleven persons, including five children, are now believed to have lost their lives in the fire here.

TWO OFFENSIVES TO CRUSH FOE'S FRONT

PARIS, October 26.—(By Henry Wood)—The French Verdun offensive is backed with more organization and preparation than preceded the Somme offensive. Both offensives progressing simultaneously are expected to crumble the entire German front. On Sunday evening the Germans fearing an immediate attack, launched a terrific barrage, using 300 guns. On Monday the French resumed their preparation. At the height of the bombardment a 400 millimetre calibre shell struck in the centre of Douaumont. The explosion was visible on the entire front, and flames burst forth from three sides of the fort. On Monday night, French officers reported, more than 100 Germans and three officers deserted and surrendered to the French rather than face the impending attack.

Lieut. Crawford Rush And Sergt. W. H. Curtis Are Killed In Action

Pte. Fred. Rogers, of Peterboro' Also Gives His Life For the Empire---Pte. Wm. Little a Norwood Member of the 93rd Battalion is Wounded--Peterboro' Casualties to Date Number 387---To-day's General Military News

KILLED IN ACTION.

Lieut. Crawford Rush, Canadian Infantry, Stewart street.

Pte. Fred Rogers, Canadian Infantry, formerly 93rd Battalion, 413 London street.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Wm. Little, late 93rd Battalion, Norwood.

Lieut. Crawford T. O. Rush.

This morning's list of casualties include the name of Lieut. Crawford, O. Rush, 350 Stewart Street, who was killed in action October 21st. Lieut. Rush enlisted in Vancouver as a private in the 11th Mounted Rifles, and was subsequently promoted to a lieutenant. He was transferred to the 102nd Battalion and was with that unit at the time of his death. Two other brothers are in France with the Canadian forces. They are Private Herbert Rush, with the 1st Canadian Divisional Supply Column, and Private Fred Rush, who went overseas as a Corporal in the Engineers, and was later transferred to the artillery. This morning Mrs. Rush received letters from both Crawford and Herbert Rush. The letter from Crawford Rush was written on October 6th. The writer spoke of meeting his brother Herbert on the day previous and the pleasant visit they had together. Lieut. Rush was killed in action on October 21st. Another brother, Sidney Rush, resides in Toronto. Four sisters also survive: They are, namely, Mrs. Dickson Hall, Lillian and Helen, all of this city, and Gertrude of Clifton Springs, New York.

The news of Lieutenant Rush's death will be received with widespread regret, as he was well known in this community and was a general favourite with all whom he came in contact with. He was born in this city twenty-eight years ago and received his education in the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute Commencing his business career the late Lieut. Rush entered the Ontario Bank activities to the Bank of Montreal. About eight years ago he removed to British Columbia and at the time of his enlistment was accountant in one of the bank's branches in British Columbia. He enlisted one year ago last April and went overseas in June of this year.

It is about three years since Lieut Rush was home on a visit to his parents in this city. Prior to leaving Peterborough the late Lieut. Rush was a valued member of All Saints Church.

PTE. ROGERS KILLED

Pte. Fred Rogers who enlisted in Peterborough in June of last year going to Barriefield to join the 59th Battalion with a draft from the 57th Regiment has been killed in action, his wife in Toronto having received word. Pte. Rogers was twenty-three years of age when he enlisted and was living at 413 London street. Last winter he was married here and his wife is now residing in Toronto. Speaking of his death the Toronto Telegram says:

Mrs. Violet Rogers, 144 Jarvis street, is in receipt of the sad news that her husband, Pte. Fred Rogers of the 59th Battalion, has been killed in action. Pte. Rogers enlisted in Peterborough where, prior to his enlistment, he was employed as an electrician. He was married in that city last Christmas Day. Pte. Rogers was born in England, but had been in Canada about three years. He was a well-known Marathon runner and took an active interest in other branches of athletics, and was a member of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

Lance Sergt. W. Howard Curtis.

Mr. Geo. Curtis, of Curtis Brothers, brick manufacturers, received an official message from Ottawa this morning that his son, Lance Sergt. W. Howard Curtis, 2nd Canadian Battalion, is officially reported killed in action on Oct. 8th. The news will come as a shock to a very large circle of friends. Sergt. Curtis was born here twenty-four years ago and lived all his life here until a couple of years before the war when he went to the west. He enlisted in Edmonton with the 9th Battalion at the beginning of the war, but at Salisbury Plain transferred to the 2nd Battalion, where he was in Major Chas. Ackerman's company. Later he was in the machine gun section of the 2nd Battalion. Pte. Curtis had been wounded and in hospital no less than three times, returning each time to the front. He had many narrow escapes on other occasions, and in June last was buried by a shell. He had been a member of the 57th Regiment for a number of years. The family will have the sympathy of the community.

Pte. W. S. Little.

Mrs. Little of Norwood, received official word last evening that Pte. William S. Little, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, is officially reported wounded in the knee and admitted to hospital. Pte. Little has lived in and around Norwood all his life and enlisted in that village last winter, coming to Peterborough with the Norwood detachment at the first of May. He was a member of D company, 93rd, and went to France in one of the recent drafts. He is the fifteenth 93rd man to be reported wounded.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Lieut.-Col. H. W. Arnold of the Royal Canadian Dragoon Reserve, has been authorized by the Minister of Militia to recruit for the Canadian Cavalry Depot in England throughout Canada. It is understood there are a large number of men yet in Canada who would be willing to join cavalry units instead of infantry battalions, and it is to reach this class of men that Colonel Arnold will undertake his recruiting tour. He expects to raise at least 5,000 men. These men will be sent to England at once and trained in the Canadian Cavalry Depot there for service at the front. It is expected that when there

CANADIANS WIN AT BAYONET'S POINT

Ontario Battalion Co-operated With Montreal and Western Canada Troops in Capture of Famous Regina Trench—Highly Successful Operation.

LANCE SERG. W. HOWARD CURTIS, Peterborough boy who has been killed in action after having been wounded on three different occasions. Sergt. Curtis went overseas with the 1st Canadian Division and was a member of the 2nd Battalion.

THE OFFICIAL STORY

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Lieut.-General Sir Sam Hughes has received the following report from the Canadian War Records Office:

Canadian Corps Headquarters in France, Oct. 22, via London, Oct. 25. —The mystery of the Regina trench is solved. The resistance of the Germans at this point has been finally broken and the British are now in possession of a line to which the enemy attached considerable tactical importance. Three times the Canadians had attacked this position. Each time they had successfully broken into the trenches and had inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy, but each time strong hostile counter-attacks had driven them out again.

The German defences had indeed been so organized that almost an air of mystery and a sinister hidden danger had come to be attached to the Regina trench. It was known to be strongly-built, with many deep dugouts, and to be protected by heavy wire entanglements, but the line ran for the greater part below the crest of the intervening ground, and could be reconnoitred only by night.

Wounded men who returned claimed that the enemy rifle and machine-gun fire came from behind the trench and that in counter-attacking the Germans appeared to spring from a concealed position immediately in the rear.

HAD IMPORTANT TASK.

In the big advance of October 21st, which carried the British line forward on a frontage of 5,000 yards and to an average depth of 500 yards, the Canadians, with other troops, advanced to the attack on Regina trench. They were successful. Profiting by the former experiences, their artillery maintained a continuous bombardment of their objectives until the wire entanglements were all completely blown away and no longer presented an obstruction to the infantry advance.

In the general assault the task of the Canadians was a minor but a very important one. Their actual objective was only a length of 600 yards of the Regina trench, immediately to the north of the village of Courcelette. But this formed the right flank of the attack, and the Canadian troops were obliged not only to secure their proper objective, but also to connect the right of the captured position with their original line in such a manner as to make a defensive flank to the east.

For this purpose troops from Western Canada and Montreal were employed. An Ontario battalion was also to advance in close support.

During the night of Oct. 20-21, the assaulting troops took up their position. The night was clear and frosty. The trenches, dug in heavy soil, were half filled with mud and water, for there had been much rain during the previous days. The ground about was in a difficult condition, churned and beaten into a sticky pulp by the long bombardments. The morning sun could do little to dry the water-soaked earth.

ENEMY OPENED FIRE.

Shortly before noon the enemy, suspecting perhaps the imminence of an attack, began a heavy artillery fire upon our front lines. About noon our own guns opened with the full fury of their massed batteries. The concentration was terrific, and the hail of heavy shells and shrapnel descended with deadly force and accuracy.

RECRUITING BAND LEAVES PETERBORO' FOR SMITH'S FALLS

Officers of 247th Battalion and Citizens Generally Will Share in the Hope That Absence of Sergt. Hinchey's Organization Will Be Only Temporary

Went East This Morning

Peterborough has lost its new band, temporarily at least. This morning, acting under orders from Major Campbell, the chief recruiting officer for No. 3 district, Sergt. Hinchey and his men left on the noon C. P. R. train for Smith's Falls, where they will play at a series of meetings in the interests of the 240th Battalion. Whether they will return to Peterborough or not is not definitely known, but the officers of the 247th are hopeful that they will come back, and this hope is shared by citizens generally and incidentally by the members of the band who have been pleased with Peterborough. The band is of course, for recruiting purposes and therefore is likely to be shifted from centre to centre as the chief recruiting officer may see fit.

The band will be sure of a warm welcome if they return to Peterborough. During their week's stay in the city they have won many friends by their delightful playing and gentlemanly behaviour, and the latch key will always be out for Sergt Hinchey's organization.

Lieut. T. W. Quinn of the 247th Battalion left to-day for Havelock where he will carry on recruiting duties. The people of Havelock are very enthusiastic about the prospects and the railway village is setting the pace for the whole county in the matter of enlistments for the new battalion.

Capt. Cherburn of the 247th Battalion is on recruiting duty in Apsley. He will remain in the south for the balance of the month. Apsley did magnificently for the 93rd Battalion and promise to make a good showing in the new battalion as well.

To-night--Overseas Tobacco Club

A meeting of the Overseas Tobacco Club will be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers to-night at 8 o'clock.

SORROW AND COMFORT.

It is a fortunate condition that we are able to forget our losses; our sad times and our struggles in the hard arena of life. Some of us forget our sorrows, the loss of dear ones, and time never forgets or very slowly, while, to many, the most poignant sorrows go over them like a passing cloud, and the courses of life take their usual way. It is well that we can let oblivion cover these things, especially in times and days when the blows of affliction fall with such appalling frequency; and appeal comes to the higher side of our nature, and we are helped to forget our griefs in our sympathy with others. Though the fact that others are smitten, cannot directly assuage our own sorrow, yet the whole family of the community, being brought into the same zone of bereavement, tends to distribute the blow and feel sympathy with our fellow-sufferers. Helps us forget, or if not that, helps distract attention from our own private grief. There is no greater assuagement of sorrow than the sympathetic and unselfish recognition of community of soul and life interest with our fellow men. It is the divine order that the world was made for the living, and it is the divine order, that puts comfort in the truth—"Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal." While we can be comforted with the divine sympathy and the sympathy of human friends, we who are bereaved by this dreadful war can take added comfort in the thought that those who have died, have died nobly, doing a supreme duty; have laid down their lives in a righteous cause; have made sacrifice in reverent emulation of the great Sacrifice, which involves all human hopes, and affords the only comfort that can truly solace human sorrow

PULP WOOD AND PRINTING.

A Peterborough citizen who has returned from a visit to New York city and is interested in the printing business, reports that there are scores of working printers in that city every day "losing their jobs". This is due to the derangement of the printing business, caused by the scarcity of paper. It constitutes a lesson to us Canadians. We don't want our printers going jobless on account of scarcity of paper making the printing business difficult. And we needn't have such conditions arise to us unless it is our own fault if we do. We have the situation in our own hands. The United States by reckless and unthinking waste of their forest resources, have to depend very largely, upon foreign resources for their supply of pulp and paper. The country itself cannot supply the demand. We in Canada are quite differently situated. We have sufficient pulp and paper resources, not only for our own use, but for supplying a good deal of the needs of the United States. We need have no shortage of paper in Canada, except through our own folly and lack of patriotism. If we look after the interests of Canada first. We export to the United States five-sixths of the pulp made in Canada. Of our daily output of paper of 1,600 tons, 1,000 tons go to the United States. He would be in sorry head of a family who supplied his neighbors with food needed for his own family. We shall be sorry Canadians if we supply paper and pulp to the United States, that is needed at home to keep our own journalistic and publishing interests in edifiable working condition and to protect working printers from being put out of employment, and prevent the social economic and industrial disadvantages that would ensue upon a paper famine. It is none too soon for the government, which has the control of exportation, to take steps, if necessary, and prevent any exportation of pulp or paper that will threaten paper famine in Canada. We must protect our resources for Canada first. There is good agricultural as well as economic and patriotic warrant for such demand—"But if any provide not for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel". There may be no immediate danger of shortage of paper in Canada, but, considering how slow governments are to move, it is none to soon to demand their attention to the consideration of an important matter.

THE TAX REPAYMENT MATTER.

If Mayor Duffus has his industry and interest on behalf of the city ratepayer rewarded by getting the Ontario Government to take more than the promised "sympathetic interest" in the restoration of some $7,000 of lost taxation on the properties of the Seymour Power Company, he will add to the debts of the people due to him for his public services. He and the City Council were more fore-seeing than the authorities of other municipalities, for the former saw the loss that loomed up and provided for it in striking the rate; but the loss remains. The Government, as agents of the Hydro-Electric Commission, recognize the justice of the claim that this year's taxes at least should be paid to the municipalities. It would also seem that the question of the permanent loss of civic revenue should be settled in some definite and equitable way. If Peterborough, loses $7,000 a year in taxation from the change of ownership of the Seymour properties and the other municipalities concerned, a proportionate amount, it is evident, without much calculation, that that amount of loss and similar amounts will offset the gain from reduced lighting and other rates the Hydro-Electric will bring. It is understood that the Hydro-Electric Commission has under consideration the making of "substantial reductions in lighting rates to all Hydro municipalities in the Trent district," this reduction to be effective in January. It is probable that the Commission had in mind the loss of revenue, suffered by these municipalities in considering the reduction of rates. The reduction, to place Peterborough on a compensatory basis, would require to be equivalent to meeting an addition to the tax-rate of six-tenths of a mill, the figure that represents the increased rate necessary to meet $7,000 loss of revenue. It seems too, desirable that some arrangement should be made that will give justice all round. A reduction of lighting rates that would only meet the loss of revenue would not be any net advantage, and would not benefit non-users of electric light, who have to pay additional taxation without receiving any direct benefit; and the same applies to those municipalities, in this district, if any, not in the Hydro-Electric Union of Municipalities. It seems evident that some plan should be adopted that will give relief and justice all round. It is to be hoped, that Sir Adam Beck, who has done so much to promote public interests through his handling of the Hydro-Electric enterprise, will find a solution of the difficulty.

CONSCRIPTION IN AUSTRALIA.

Australia will take a referendum vote on Oct. 28, next Saturday, on conscription, or no conscription; and both men and women voters will be allowed "to compete." The enlistment situation in Australia at present shows that 103,000 reinforcements have been voluntarily enrolled, additional reinforcements up to July 1, of next year are 100,000, and 125,000 men are available, according to the war census, who are "fit, single and without dependents." According to the proposal of the government, which is to be voted upon, voluntary enlistment is to be continued and the deficiency in the required number, if any, is to be supplied by a form of conscription. The question so be voted upon, requiring a simple "yes" or "no," is as follows:

"Are you in favour of the government having in this grave emergency the same compulsory powers over citizens in regard to requiring their military service for the term of this war outside the Commonwealth as it now has in regard to military service within the Commonwealth?"

"Can any one doubt if Germany wins she will lay her predatory hands on this country of ours? If the Allies are defeated a free Australia as we knew it would exist no more."

This question is pertinent to every Canadian of military age and fitness. If our young men, of military age and thereto, looked at the situation in the right light; in the light in which Premier Hughes of Australia presents it, and in the light of the facts, there would be a great deal brisker enlistment in Canada. Canadian soldiers at the front are as really fighting for the rights and liberties, the homes and families of Canadians, as of the fighting men wraped on the battlefields of the Dominion. If Germany wins, Canada's liberty to govern Canada being included in the territorial spoil of her conquest.

IMMENSE PROFITS OF CANADIAN PAPER MAKERS

Owing to conditions prevailing in the United States, and in the United States alone, the Canadian manufacturers of news print paper have announced their intention of exacting from Canadian publishers commencing on January 1 next a rate which is 60 per cent. in advance of present contract prices.

That advance, it has been carefully calculated, means $2,800,000 to Canadian newspaper publishers. To the six Toronto dailies alone it would mean an increase of $300,000 a year, to the three Ottawa dailies it would mean probably $90,000 a year. The establishment of the price named by the manufacturers would wipe out profits on all but one or two papers in Canada, and would force many newspapers into bankruptcy.

The Canadian paper manufacturers propose to bankrupt Canadian newspapers in order that they may grow rich out of the wartime prosperity of United States newspapers.

That is the situation which the Canadian publishers have appealed to the Dominion government for protection against.

In the meantime, there is a big boom in the shares of Canadia paper manufacturers on the stock exchanges. The common stock, largely watered, of Canadian paper companies has been going up in bounds.

The Riordan company has just declared a quarterly bonus of 1 per cent. in addition to regular dividend, and it is expected that this will be repeated, or even exceeded, every quarter during 1917. The price of the stock has jumped from 50 to 110.

The stock of Price Brothers has gone up from 60 to 110.

Another Canadian company, the Wayagamack, is expected to show earnings this year at the rate of 15 to 18 per cent, against less than 4 per cent. last year, and a financial publication states that "1917 earnings are being estimated in trade circles at all the way up to 60 per cent.; only some unforeseen and unlikely change in trade conditions can stand in the way of their realization."

Taking the low prices of the year and the high of yesterday, paper company shares of an aggregate par value of $45,750,100 shows an appreciation of 25 per cent. Pulp and paper shares monopolize Canadian stock market attention almost to the same degree as munitions shares did a year ago.

Owing to the war, Canadian newspapers would not be able to increase advertising and subscription rates anything like sufficient to meet the increased cost of white paper.

It is owing to the war and the tremendous prosperity and volume of advertising resulting therefrom in the United States that the demand for newsprint in the United States has exceeded the supply and caused the paper manufacturers to raise their prices. There is no shortage of paper in Canada. Of the 1,400 tons per day produced; 1,000 are exported.

The publishers have pointed out to the government that the Canadian newspapers occupy a quasi-public position, and Sir Thomas White for the government has recognized this fact. There is scarcely a Canadian paper mill that has not at sometime or other received benefit from power and other concessions in connection with pulpwood limits; and the Canadian paper makers have also been given the benefit of an embargo on the ground of pulpwood.—Ottawa Free Press.

is more fighting in open country there will be a great opportunity for the Canadian cavalry, and it is for this purpose when the greater opportunity comes, that Canadian cavalry will now be recruited. This will give an opportunity to many Canadian horsemen who have not yet felt the desire to go into an infantry unit to enlist at once. The headquarters of Colonel Arnold will be at Winnipeg, but arrangements will be made later for an assembling point in the different provinces of the East.

Letters received in Peterborough yesterday show that the fourth draft from the 93rd Battalion, which left England on Oct. 5 went to rejoin the 52nd Battalion which is a northern Ontario unit. Previous drafts went to the 5th C.M.R., 3rd Canadian Division, and to different battalions in the Ontario brigade, 2nd Canadian Division. Judging by the number of casualties reported, the first draft which went to the 5th C.M.R. arrived at the front in time to take part in some of the operations in the drive on Bapaume. Up to last night there had been fourteen casualties reported among the 93rd men, ten of those being among the draft when went to the Mounted Rifles.

Peterborough's share in the price that is being paid for the British advances north of the Somme is indicated by the casualty lists. Since the first of this month up to last night 80 Peterborough casualties have been reported, divided as follows:

Killed in action	13
Died of wounds	10
Missing	3
	80

The total Peterborough casualties since the beginning of the war up to last night were as follows

Killed in action	80
Died of wounds	21
Died of sickness or accident	15
Total deaths	116
Missing	14
Prisoners of war	29
Total casualties	385

The Lindsay Warder says: A letter was received by one of the Warder staff this morning from Major F. J. Carew of the 109th battalion, now in England, which states that he is in the best of health and spirits. He says that every one of the boys of the 109th are fine and fit. "I have lost 200 men," he writes, "who went in a draft to France on the 6th of October. The 109th are helping to fill up the ranks of the fallen heroes and are going rapidly to the front. I suppose I will not know the old town, which I understand is to be the city of Lindsay before very long from the glowing reports I get concerning its development." Before she boys left they were lined up and Major McCrea distributed amongst them his share of the profits from the canteen.

A number of the lieutenants of the 109th have applied for positions with the aviation corps, and have been accepted.

The Lindsay Warder has received the following letter from Pte. Large, a member of the 109th Battalion:

London, Eng., Oct. 6, 1916.

Dear Editor—Would you kindly let me have a small space in your very valuable paper to publish this letter? Every week I see letters in The Warder from some of the boys in the 109th Battalion but I think those who are from boys who live in Lindsay, and as the 109th Battalion was raised from the County of Victoria and Haliburton, I think I should attempt to represent D Company. As they are doing their part and giving a good account of themselves at the present time. "Somewhere in France." They left the Battalion yesterday for France, and C Company from Fenelon Falls also went. Some of them joined the 20th Battalion and others the 21st. All the boys left in the best of spirits, and seemed to be happy. They were all ready the night before, and when the bugle sounded they fell in to eat their breakfast, and after breakfast, at 8.30, the bugle sounded again, and all the boys fell in line with full pack. I went up along the line and shook hands with them, and I shall never forget the hearty grip they gave me. When I came to the end of the line I had to leave them, and go to my class at the A.D.M.S. I cannot express how I felt when I saw them going away. I am still living in the best of hopes to rejoin them again in France when I complete my stretcher-bearers' course. And I trust every one of them will have a safe return.

The Lindsay Warder says: Lieut.-Col. J. J. Glass returned from Ottawa this morning. He announces that he has secured the assistance desired in recruiting the 252nd Battalion, but apart from this the Colonel was noncommittal.

Important developments are expected to take place in militia circles, which will be made known later on. They are of a nature that will please the people of town and materially aid in recruiting.

Col. Glass expresses profound confidence in his ability, through hard work and the united efforts of his officers, to raise a battalion inside of four months.

The canteen will be established on the opening up of the armouries and arrival of the recruits.

A committee will be appointed to arrange how the place will be run and appoint a man to take charge.

Col. Glass will not billet any of his men this year, all will be kept at the armouries, where they will be accommodated with board and lodging. "I can look after a whole battalion in the Armouries," the Colonel informed The Warder to-day.

Lieut.-Col. Johnston of the 247th Battalion, returned from Madoc this morning. He met a representative gathering of the clergy, business, and professional men last night, and the question of recruiting was gone into at some length. A civilian committee to assist in the work will be formed at Madoc, it is likely. There are a number of available men in the Madoc district whom Lieut.-Col. Johnston hopes to get into his battalion.

Pte. Francis Vincent Kelly, of Deseronto, a nephew of Mr. Jos. Kelly of this city, has been killed in action. Pte. Kelly enlisted over a year ago in a western battalion, and went to the front with them after spending a few weeks in England. The deceased was born in Kingston nineteen years ago, and for several years the family resided in that city. After wards they came to Peterborough, where his father, James D. Kelly, met death from an electric shock. Later Bomber Kelly resided with his grandmother, Mrs. Catharine Kelly at Railton, going west a couple of years ago. He was a clever athlete and a splendid type of manhood.

Mrs. J. Peel, 97 Hunter street east, has received a card from her husband, Pte. Jack Peel, reported wounded on October 5th, to the effect that he was in hospital, but expected to be discharged soon. The card was written two days after he was wounded.

Report on Canadian Army Medical Service a Frank Indictment—Medical and Nursing Staffs Are Absolved From All Blame But D. M. S. is Held Responsible.

SEGREGATION SUGGESTED

A report on the Canadian Army Medical Service which has just been presented to the Minister of Militia by Col. Herbert A. Bruce, of Toronto, whose official title is Special Inspector General Medical Services, Canadian Expeditionary Force, is, it is safe to say, one of the frankest indictments of a Government service ever received by the responsible Minister. The report is dated Sept. 20th, 1916, and is the result of investigations carried on subsequent to July 31st, 1916, so that it is distinctly up to date.

The report is divided under 23 headings. Each one of them is an indictment, and judging from the headings, as printed in an adjoining column, is intended to be such.

In introducing his report, Dr. Bruce announces that all of its criticisms and recommendations are not merely his alone, but have been endorsed by each member of the committee appointed by the Minister at Dr. Bruce's request to assist in the work.

The committee consisted of Col. F. A. Reid, Director of Recruiting, and Organization; Colonel Wallace Scott, Lt.-Col. Walter McKeown, Lt.-Col. F. W. E. Wilson, Capt. Charles Hunter.

Dr. Bruce absolved the medical and nursing staffs from blame, as he found doctors and nurses discharging their duties in a most self-sacrificing and exemplary manner. Many of the medical staff are, however, placed in positions where their special training is not being used to the best advantage. The responsibility for this waste must be laid at the door of the D.M.S., who, says Dr. Bruce, in many cases appears to have ignored special qualifications altogether and distributed the personnel in a most haphazard way.

Strongly Favors Segregation.

The question of segregation of Canadian wounded which has recently been receiving notoriety largely through the activity of Canadian ladies in England in writing to the papers there, is very fully dealt with by Dr. Bruce. Dr. Bruce is emphatically in favour of segregation. How the Canadian wounded and ill are at present scattered about is evident from the following statement of facts:

"On August 18th of this year we had in England 12,018 cases of whom 6,747 were overseas sick and wounded, requiring active treatment. Of these, 5,135 were being taken care of in British hospitals. The balance of these cases had arisen locally or were convalescents. The 5,135 Canadian patients were located in 100 British hospitals, widely scattered over England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland."

Dr. Bruce sees no difficulty in segregating Canadians. The British service is able to send casualties from the Royal Flying Corps to a Royal Flying Corps hospital, and even go so far as to send wounded Somersetshires to Bristol, so as to be near their friends. There should, therefore, be no difficulty in keeping Canadians together.

He reports that he found both in England and France Canadian soldiers begging to be taken to Canadian hospitals. He found also Canadian medical officers constantly complaining that although they had sacrificed their practices at home with the object of helping to take care of our soldiers overseas, yet they rarely had an opportunity of treating a Canadian patient. A map accompanying the report shows how the 100 hospitals in which Canadians are located, are scattered all over the British Isles. The cost of transport in itself is considerable. If the 5,135 Canadian patients in hospital on August 10th had been taken care of by a concentration of hospitals in the Shorncliffe area there would have been a saving in transport alone of $11,348.35

Treatment Not Always Satisfactory.

In addition Dr. Bruce found some instances when the treatment received by Canadians in British hospitals has not always been as satisfactory as it might be, and further that nobody in those hospitals seems interested in the discharge of patients when they are fit to be sent to a convalescent home.

Special reports are given to show how this works out. In seven British hospitals in the London area and in Aberdeen, Scotland, special inspectors found 248 Canadian patients. It was found that 116 of these should have been sent to convalescent hospitals, 58 others should have been discharged as permanently unfit for further service, and 13 sufferers from contagious diseases should have been elsewhere, that is to say out of 248 Canadian patients, 171 should not have been in these hospitals at all. This illustration is thought to be typical.

Dr. Bruce says that his experiences with sick people leads him to the conclusion that when they are ill they prefer to be among relatives and friends. Further he says: "I take the position very strongly that as it is our duty to see that our boys who go to the front are cared for in the best possible manner when they are wounded or sick, and as we shall ultimately be responsible for their pensions, it is imperative that we should ensure that they are under the immediate supervision of our own medical service."

The Imperial Agreement.

As to how the present policy of distributing Canadian soldiers arose Dr. Bruce gives the following particulars:

On June 16, 1915, Colonel Hodgetts wrote to Surgeon General Carlton Jones, suggesting that as special arrangements had been made for sending wounded Canadians to the Queen's Canadian Hospital, Beechborough, could not similar arrangements be made in regard to the Duchess of Connaught's Hospital at Cliveden. Accordingly on June 18, the D.M.S. wrote to the War Office, requesting that the Cliveden Hospital should "as far as possible be reserved for sick and wounded Canadians from overseas." The War Office acceded to this request, and gave instructions that Canadian soldiers (other than officers) should be sent to one or other of the two hospitals mentioned above. Later representations appear to have been made to the D.M.S. that for Imperial considerations it was advisable to spread the Canadians throughout the British Isles. On December 17 the D.M.S replied, expressing the opinion that "it is conducive to the patients' well-being and comfort to be under our own administrative control."

"As a consequence of this arrangement many more Canadians found their way to these two hospitals, yet in spite of this we find that the D.M.S. on February 2, 1916, wrote to the War Office to ask that these instructions be amended, and in a further communication dated March 25, 1916, stated "that it is not now considered necessary from a Canadian point of view to make any special arrangement at Southampton for the collection of Canadian patients." No reason is assigned for this complete change of attitude."

In this connection Dr. Bruce points out that Canada has maintained at Saloniki, where there is not a single Canadian soldier 3 hospital units, with a total bed capacity of 380 patients. And in France we have on an average 2,000 beds in excess of the number of Canadian patients.

Hospitals Scattered All Over.

Dr. Bruce also strongly complains about the lack of policy which has allowed even the Canadian hospitals to be scattered all over the country, instead of being concentrated in special localities. As a result, efficient control and inspection have been rendered exceedingly difficult and needless expense has been involved. He recalls that when the Ontario Government started to provide its splendid hospital, with a capacity of 1,040 beds, it offered to locate it at any place desired, thus affording a splendid opportunity to secure the concentration of hospitals in a definite area, with this most valuable primary hospital as a nucleus. The opportunity was let slip.

A map illustrates how Canadian hospitals have been scattered over England. Buxton is no less than 236 miles from Folkestone. Dr. Bruce recommends a concentration scheme and illustrates it also by a map. He says, however, it is impossible to make this ideal now because of the fear that present conditions do not justify the abolition of certain hospitals upon which large sums of money have been spent.

Thousands of Unfits.

That there has been woeful laxity in weeding out medically unfits during the process of enlistment and training in Canada is demonstrated by ample evidence in Dr. Bruce's report. A Canadian pioneer draft arriving in England on June 29, 1916, was found to have 97 unfits out of 254 of all ranks. Of 2,670 soldiers coming before medical Boards from July 2 to August 2, 1916, as only fit for permanent base duty, 1,340 ought never to have been at the front. Out of 1,462 discharges from the army during the same period, 816 had never got beyond England, that is 56 per cent. of the discharges had never been at the front.

Unfits in England are a great bother. They take the places on base duty of men who have been at the front and have a prior claim on any soft jobs available. Others clog up the hospitals, increasing the strain on the already overtaxed medical services. And further, Dr. Bruce points out, the question of pension arises. "Men who are discharged for a disability present on enlistment are not entitled to pension for that disability, but where pre-existing disability has been increased at least temporarily by active service, corresponding pension or gratuity must be allowed.

"In the last four months we have had over 1,000 recommended for permanent base duty from over age, with an average age of 49 to 50 years for each man. It is a common occurrence for the men, when questioned as to their given age when enlisted, to make a statement that they gave their true age as 54 or 55 years, as the case may be, and the medical officer said they would call him 41 or 42 years. In one case he was informed by the soldier that, on enlistment, the recruit on giving his present age, was told to run around the block, think over his age, and come back again.

"And again, during the last month alone (this from a report dated August 22) 120 boys were found in the ranks and put on permanent base duty. Their ages run as low as 14 years."

Fifteen Pages of Details.

Several pages are devoted to special cases of men who should never have enlisted. Among those four cases from the 92nd Battalion are mentioned by name, two of them being discharged as permanently unfit and two to be put on base duty. "We have been informed, says the report, that these four men were paraded before a standing Medical board in Canada by Capt. Maynard, and that they were recommended for discharge but no action was taken, and they were brought to England."

Another Toronto man could not carry pack, suffers from vertigo, weight 105 pounds, chest when fully expanded 30 1-2 inches; medical examiner Capt. ....., Toronto.

A photograph shows a boy enlisted at Pembroke, Ont., stripped, standing opposite a normal man. This boy was 16 years of age, weight 80 pounds, had infantile paralysis, which left his legs in bad shape. He says he passed two medical boards in Canada, having been stripped on both occasions. He has never done any military duty, and has been in the hospital most of the 4 1-2 months he has been in England.

Another man was found to have been taken out of a tuberculosis sanitarium previous to embarkation.

Some units had as many as 25 per cent. unfits on arriving in England.

These are samples. The report contains fifteen pages of particulars of this kind, giving the names of the men, the names of the medical examiners and full details.

Dr. Bruce recommends stringent changes in the methods of medical examination, in order that the great loss consequent upon the present system may be avoided.

Looking For Business Site

LINDSAY, Oct. 26.—A well-known Peterborough merchant was in town on Monday looking over the ground with a view to establishing a branch store here. He consulted several Kent Street property holders, but it is not known whether he secured a store or not. His specialty is ladies' wear.

HAVE DONE THEIR WORST

TEUTONS CANNOT INCREASE THEIR SUCCESS AGAINST ROUMANIA.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Roumanian authorities here express what in some quarters is regarded as astonishing confidence in later developments of the campaign. They take the stoical military attitude that the capture of the Constanza-Cernavoda line is the utmost success the central powers can effect against Roumania in this theatre of operations. On the other hand, the fall of Silistria and Tutrakan produced a demand for the recall of troops from Transylvania to defend, Dodrudja, and General Averescu fell between two stools, his army being so divided that it had to retreat in Transylvania, and was yet unable to reinforce Dodrudja in time to parry Mackensen's thrusts.

It is believed here in well informed circles that Germany's ability to put heavy effectives in the field against Roumania is chiefly due to her present opportunity of withdrawing a certain portion of men and guns from her eastern front.

SPAR MARKS SPOT WHERE MERIDA SANK

Steel Steamer Went Down Ten Miles From Lightship.

DETROIT, Oct. 26.—The discovery of a spar projecting six feet above the surface of Lake Erie ten miles southeast of east from the southeast shoal lightship, was reported by the United States coastguard steamer Morrill, which has been searching for bodies of drowned sailors since Monday.

LAVAL STUDENTS FINED.

Four Who Figured in Recent Rioting Must Pay For Their Fun.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—Emile Tasse and Arthur Grenier, Laval students, arrested by the police during the riot of Oct. 4, when recruiting paraphernalia was destroyed in Phillips square, were found guilty of disorderly conduct and ordered to pay half the costs of the prosecution or go to jail for ten days. Albert Boussard, student, was released on suspended sentence, while Romeo Laporte, student, charged with throwing stones at the police during the fight on the steps of St. James' Cathedral, subsequent to the Phillips Square fracas, was fined $25 with the alternative of two months in jail.

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure For Chronic Eczema

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments.

By actual curing itchiness, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put.

Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering from eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and for ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Bowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was not able to do anything. I could not use a needle to sew. Though I had [illegible] from doctors, I received much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands began to heal, and after two boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to others to get them using it, for I know that it will cure."

In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness, for by relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Tears in Eyes of 93rd Men as They Parted From Lt. Col. Johnston

Pte. R. E. Wegg, of Peterboro' Describes Departure of Draft From Camp and Gives Some of His Experiences of the Trip and in France.

PTE. R. E. WEGG.

TRAINING IS ADVANCED

Writing to his wife, Mrs. R. E. Wegg, 223 Antrim Street, Pte. R. E. Wegg, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and is now in France with another Canadian battalion, gives an interesting account of the departure of his draft from the 93rd Battalion to the front. His letter is as follows:

Somewhere in France, Oct. 2, 1916.

My Dear Wife,—I have written two or three letters since coming to France, but all of a personal nature. So now I will give you a few details of our trip from the time we left camp in England up till now.

We were up at 4.30 on Wednesday, Oct. 5th, and were on parade for the Brigadier's inspection at 5.40, and after the inspection and a few unkind remarks by the Brigadier, we marched away, cheered by the small remnant of the 93rd. There was quite a draft from the 93th left along with us, and their band marched to the station and our band as far as the Royal Oak "Pub."

Colonel Johnston rode ahead, and Mr. Might and Sergt.-Major Miller marched to the station with us. At the station the Colonel gave us a farewell address, and shook hands with every one of the eighty men. The Colonel said that although the Brigadier did not appear to have a great opinion of the 93rd draft, that he was proud of us, and he knew that the people of Peterborough were proud of us. He said he was sorry he could not come with us, but would try to get over to see us all before he went back to Canada. He wants us to write to him and tell him how we get on, and if we ever need anything just to let him know, and he will do all in his power to see that we get what we want. The men were just as sorry at parting as he was, and I saw tears in a good many eyes as they shook hands and got his hearty "Good luck to you boys." Wherever the boys of the 93rd go they won't find a better C.O. than Col. Johnston. He has been a friend to every one of us.

We pulled out of the station at 8.10 and arrived at our shipping place (I guess I can't give the name) at about one o'clock. We didn't sail till 7, and it was certainly a rough passage. I was one of the few that escaped the sickness. I stayed on deck all night, sometimes lying down and sometimes standing, clinging to a railing to keep my feet. But no matter where I went I got wet. Between the rain and the spray it was sure a wet night. I lay on the deck for a while, and there was one wave went right over me and sopped my great-coat, and I got some of it down my neck and up my sleeves. I didn't take cold though from it, but found my great-coat a heavy load in my pack on our eight-mile, march to camp, where we arrived in time for dinner. In the afternoon we had a medical examination, and were paraded to the Quartermaster's stores, where we were issued with rifle, bayonet, sling, oil bottle, pull-through, and gas helmet, and we were all supplied in about five minutes. That was our first experience of the system of doing things on the double in France. Everything works quietly and with less red tape than in England and Canada, which is much better to the men's taste. You should see the lines of men that pass through the cook-house at meal times. You'd wonder how they could feed them all in such a short time, and where the grub all comes from.

In the matter of drill too things have advanced some over here. We learn as much in a day as we would in a week before, and with less trouble. The instructors are all men that have been in the trenches and know whereof they speak. It is not given in the form of drill, but in the form of games, and the men all take an interest in it and enjoy it. One fellow I asked said it was the first sensible thing he had seen since he joined the army. He said that he wanted to know the game now. Before it was just groping in the dark, but now you could see the reason for each move.

I expect it will be some time before we see the firing line, so don't let the papers scare you. I don't think there are any of the 93rd in the thick of things yet.

The French money seems a little strange to us yet, but they say it is as simple as Canadian when you are used to it.

It is terribly muddy here just now, but our camp is on high ground and our tents are floored, so we don't suffer any as regards sleeping, but it is a job to keep the tents clean, as we can't help carrying in a certain amount of mud. It is very slippery too.

I think from appearances and chance remarks that some of the lads, if not most of them, would appreciate some home-knit socks, as the ones that are issued are machine-made and don't last long. I put on a pair the morning I left England, and they were new too, and when I undressed for doctor's examination I had to put on a fresh pair, as the toes were out of them.

Well I guess I had better draw this to a close, as I expect to hear "Come to the cook-house door" blow any time now. Hoping this will find you and the kiddies in as good health as it leaves me. I remain your loving husband,

Ernie Wegg.

THE WHITE ENSIGN

A flag strange to many Canadian eyes has in the last few weeks appeared in several of our cities and towns—the White Ensign of the Royal Navy. The Honourable Rupert Guinness is seeking in Canada recruits for naval service and as the accredited representative of the Admiralty he is entitled to bear with him this most jealously guarded emblem of that force which is the epitome of Britain's might. It is without doubt in itself the most beautiful of flags and about it clusters memories which surely ought to make those of British blood burn with desire to take service under it. The broad flaming cross of Saint George on the white ground dates back to the time of the Crusades when an ensign of this pattern was adopted as the distinctive badge of the English troops and was borne in glory in the Eastern campaigns. For very many years its use in this simple form continued but after the union of the three kingdoms the Union Jack was added in the upper canton and the flag attained its present richer symbolism. Under it Nelson fought and since his day it has flown on many a sea if not always victoriously at least always with honour. On land, too, the men of the Naval Brigade have upheld the noble traditions of their ensign and it has been seen on more than one hard fought field beside the battle flags of the proudest of Britain's regiments. It is the flag of Trafalgar, the flag of Sebastapool, of Delhi and of Lucknow, and now, still wet with the blood of the heroes of Jutland, with silent eloquence it calls Canadians to service for King and Country.

BETTER BE AN OLD MAID, THAN MARRY THE WRONG MAN, BILLY SUNDAY TELLS GIRLS

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 24.—Speaking in the three-fold role of minister of the gospel, husband of "a wife whom I love with all my heart" and father of four children, Billy Sunday told scores of Detroit women some plain truths when he preached the sermon, "Is it Well With Thee?" at both services. From the text in II. Kings, i., 26, "Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband?" Mr. Sunday admonished the mothers, married women and girls impartially.

"It's the whisky crowd that says I'm offensive," he shouted. "All those lies wriggled out of the brewer; that's where it all comes from; but I have defied them for twenty years, and I'll defy them until God puts me in a coffin and even after that. I come before you as a minister, a husband, and a father. And I want to urge you to be satisfied to fill your sphere as wife or mother. You know there are homes in which the advent of children is considered a curse, instead of a blessing. God in his providence has denied the honor of maternity to some women, but there are married women who shrink from maternity because they love ease, fine garments, and ability to flit like a butterfly at some social function. Crimes have been and are being committed, and that very crime has made France the charnel-house of the world.

CURSE OF DIVORCE.

Divorce is the curse of this country. I think the time is coming when ministers will not unite those who have been divorced. But, girls, don't worry if you don't marry; there are worse things in the world than being an old maid, and one of them is marrying the wrong man. Some of the noblest women in the world have been old maids.

"But I tell you, girls, I would rather be an old maid, with dogs, cats, furniture and bric-a-brac, than to be yoked to a profane, cigarette-smoking, cursing, whisky-soaked jughand'e for a husband. And, girls, don't simper and look silly when you speak about it. Love is the noblest gift to man and woman-hood. Don't let your actions advertise 'Man wanted.' That is the surest way not to get a real man. You might get something with pantaloons on, but that is not a man. Don't get excited and try to hurry things along. If the man wants you he'll come around in good time, and don't try to do half the courting. If you aren't married, you're just a single, unappropriated parcel of benediction and blessing. Clara Barton and Frances Williard were not married. You're in good company. Be worthy of it.

"Too many girls marry for causes other than love. I think ambition, laziness, avarice and indifference lead more girls to the altar than love. Just because a fool can wriggle his carcass through a tango he won't make a good husband. Have the nerve to face shabbiness if your husband is a Christian and decent. We put woman up on a pedestal, we admire her virtue, and we love her—just because we can't help it. Christ and a woman can save the world. The devil and a woman can damn the world."

Almost No Disease In the British Army

Dr. Welch of Johns Hopkins Gives Great Praise to the English Medical Service

MEN WHO "FUNK" TREATED

Hospital Established for Those Who Were Called Cowards in Former Wars.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Dr. Wm. H. Welch, head of the Johns Hopkins Medical School and head of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, who has just returned from England and France, where he visited the leading medical men engaged in the care of the civil population, as well as those directing hospitals, has learned many important things about all phases of the war. He talked with members of Parliament, members of the Cabinet, army officers, heads of hospitals, and directors of research work.

After referring to many old friends he met, including Lord Bryce and Sir William Osler, Dr. Welch chuckled and said:

"I met another old friend. He bears my name because I discovered him. I mean the gaseous bacillus. This bacillus, which I isolated in my work at Hopkins, makes many jagged wounds more dangerous than they would otherwise be. It is carried in the soil, and breeds only when deeply imbedded in flesh. The evidence of it is swelling that crackles when touched. A gas is formed in the tissues, and it is of course very painful, and at times fatal.

"A distinct new disease is trench fever. This is as distinct as typhoid and somewhat resembles dengue or bonebreak fever. It has many victims. Many die of it, and others are laid up for long periods."

Men Who "Funk" Treated.

Men who won't fight, who shiver, get cold, scream, become hysterical when they hear the shots fired, are not branded in this war as cowards, at least not in the British Army. Many of them are men who volunteered, who went into the army because they wanted to do their bit, and because they thought they could do a bit. The first crash of big guns proves that they cannot do anything but shiver with terror. Just as the heroes from the front are nursed back to health for further service, so these men who funked are handled tenderly.

A John Hopkins nurse, a woman who dealt with all forms of insanity due to fear while in the Phippe Clinic, at Hopkins, has charge of this Shock Hospital. Dr. Welch met many women in many places in England and France who are doing remarkable work, but nothing impressed him more than the work of this nurse. The men get treatment, some time for a year in this hospital in London, and then are sent back to the front and fight like other soldiers.

"In past wars disease has killed more men than bullets," said Dr. Welch, "but now a man has a chance to die of his injuries. Sir Alfred Keogh, Surgeon-General of the Army, said it was not so hard to get sanitary conditions in camp, but to get everything right and then keep every thing right even into the trenches, was the problem. This is being done. I visited the experiment station and saw the incinerators and the apparatus for sterilizing the water and other devices. The English are an inventive people. This incinerator, which disposes of everything, shows that. Every soldier is vaccinated against typhoid, para typhoid a, para typhoid b, and those who go to the Eastern field are vaccinated against cholera. The four vaccines are given in one injection. These measures of prevention are successful. There is, of course, a case here or there of typhoid, but practically none.

"I looked into the tuberculosis in the army and found there is a great deal of it.

"I found the United States is popular in France, but I am sorry I cannot say the same about England. There is no open hostility, but dissatisfaction. They do not give us any credit for our negotiations in connection with the submarines.

114 Submarines Captured.

"I met a policeman at Dover and asked him why the boat was late. He said:

"Submarines got a few boats out there; but we will get the submarines. Two out there. We'll get both."

"I was informed by better authority—in fact, by persons in a position to know the exact facts—that nets have captured 114; another authority told me 160 submarines. No rescue is made. I heard of a net 100 miles long, but it seems inconceivable to me.

"The anti-aircraft guns do not seem to be effective. The Zeppelins only come on certain kinds of nights and are always reported on the coast. The aeroplanes now go up very high to be above them by the time they reach London. This plan of meeting them is growing more and more effective all the time."

Dr. Welch, as head of a scientific organization, is one of the men engaged in the problem of studying ways and means of making this country better able to defend itself in time of war by looking over the gaps in the national organization in times of peace. The British, he said, allowed themselves to overlook many things. One thing he mentioned was the making of lenses. Another was the compounding of drugs, the synthetic compounds that are secrets known only to Germans. Enormous strides, he declared, are being made by the scientific men of England now under the pressure of necessity. The lesson which England has learned so promptly, he thinks, America will heed. He expects to see greater organizatin and co-ordination here, not only in defence, but in lines of peaceful endeavour.

While in London, Dr. Welch received a letter from President Wilson, which helped him to get in touch with men he might not otherwise have seen; although, of course, the American Ambassador had opened many doors to him already, and on every side he received courtesies, and had extended to him extraordinary privileges. No one, he said, is welcome in England now who has not a serious reason for being there.

Regarding Public Health.

Dr. Welch's primary reason for being in England was to study the methods of training for public health service. What he found out along this line is interesting. Before the war broke out prominent medical men worked out plans for a School of Hygiene and Public Health, and were about to ask for funds for its establishment in connection with the University of London.

Dr. Welch was given access to these plans. The nearest thing to such a school is the required course of nine months for the degree of Doctor of Public Health. In all parts of England, even in villages, Dr. Welch found that the public health officer is a man who has taken this course and who devotes all his time to the public health and sanitation. In his survey of public health administration he found that even such a small matter as the ventilation of a bedroom in a small town was not overlooked. The inspectors and those above them would insist upon a window being cut for a room that required it. In handling refuse and everything else he was surprised to note efficiency that is absolutely unknown in America.

"The English are more efficient in the enforcement of public health measures than the Germans," he said "although it is true that it was the Germans who have made the important discoveries with regard to preventive medicine."

"England," said Dr. Welch, "will not neglect science after the war as she did before it came. Her people have realized their mistake, and it will not be continued when peace comes. The movement to correct it has begun. A council has been organized as a part of the Privy Council of the Kingdom, and the most eminent scientific men of England are working with it. This is true not only of the industries that bear on the conduct of the war, but upon all industries bearing on the good of the nation in war and in peace.

TRAINMEN TO BE PAID FOR PREPARATORY TIME

Basis of Mileage for Fixing Salaries, Will be 2,800 Miles.

STRIKE SETTLEMENT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—James Murdock, one of the men's representatives at the conference, announced this afternoon that messages had been sent to all local chairmen that an agreement had been reached with the C. P. R. and a strike would be avoided.

"It would not be right to say," he added, "that the C. P. R. made all the concessions, but we were able to state truthfully in our messages that an agreement had been reached which would be satisfactory to the men."

The original committee for the men dealing with the differences has been called to meet in Winnipeg at an early date for a complete understanding of the terms of settlement. While the terms of the settlement were not announced, it was learned that train crews will be paid for preparatory time, prior to the departure of trains, and that a compromise of 2,800 miles was reached as the basis of mileage for fixing salaries.

The company desired that the basis be 3,200 and the men 2,400 miles.

YOUTH MAKES BEST SOLDIER

HAIG WANTS MEN UNDER 25.

AFTER THAT AGE FIGHTING VALUE SHOWS A DECLINE—STRENUOUS ATHLETIC TYPE OF MAN IS PREFERRED.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The war threatens soon to become a struggle between mere boys. The pace is said to be entirely too fast for the older men long to endure. It is asserted here that next year the Entente allies will be facing boys of 17 in the German army.

General Sir Douglas Haig, commanding the British Expeditionary forces, is said to have objected to the sending out of men of middle age. He wants men from 18 to 25 years old. After the latter year it is said the fighting value of the human unit shows a rapid and steady decline.

ATHLETES WANTED

The good soldier of to-day, it seems, must be of the age which excels in the more strenuous athletic games—the football player type. The older men have their place, but, generally speaking, it is said now to be in "the army behind the army"—the men back of the line, in the supply and transport divisions, where the strain is not so great. These older men are too susceptible to trench diseases to be of great use on the firing line.

England already is registering boys born in 1899 preparatory to calling them up when they attain their eighteenth year.

The intense heat developed by high power incandescent lamps has led to the invention of a socket which is claimed to be proof against any temperature.

LISTER ESCAPED DOUBLE PENALTY

LINDSAY, Oct. 26.—Last January Chief Short arrested a farm hand for drunkeness, and $10.00 of the man's money was retained as a guarantee that he would appear in court to answer for his conduct. He failed to show up, however. Tuesday the Chief spotted the man on the street and arrested him. When brought before the Magistrate a fine of $12.70 was imposed.

It seems that the man was an Indian Lister, and License Inspector Thornbury also had a charge hanging over his head. The law governing Indian listers, whoever, has passed out of existence, so the man escaped a double penalty.

Bride and Groom United, Although 1,200 Miles Apart

Telegraph Operators in Texas and Missouri Are Proxies.

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 26.—Separated by 1,200 miles of telegraph wires, and represented by proxies in the presence of two telegraph operators, Byron J. Linhart of this city, and Miss Ruby Swartz of Butler, Mo., were married to-night according to the rites of the Episcopal church.

The bride and groom, each accompanied by a clergyman, stood beside the telegraph instruments in their respective cities as the full marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church was ticked off, and in signifying their willingness to accept each other as life partners, were pronounced man and wife.

OPERATE UPON JAWS RIGID FOR 20 YEARS

Notable Feat of Surgery Performed at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—A patient whose jaws had been rigid for 20 years, who had never learned to talk, and who had been obliged to obtain all his nourishment through a tube, was the subject of one of the numerous operations performed at the various clinics Tuesday as part of the activities of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of the United States and Canada.

The joints of the patient's jaws had hardened following an attack of scarlet fever when he was only one year old. Tuesday Dr. W. Wayne Babcock laid open the stiffened joints, scraped away found covering them, and inserted a cushion of fat taken from another part of the man's body. Similar operations on other joints have been performed successfully, but according to eminent surgeons in attendance it was the first case in which the jaw bone was involved.

Many other notable feats of surgery were performed at the numerous clinics.

WHEN DREAMS COME TRUE"

"When Dreams Come True," a sparkling musical comedy, which is announced as the attraction at the Grand Opera House next Saturday, Oct. 28th, Matinee and Night, can truthfully be claimed a delightful concoction. It abounds in bright sayings, while the musical end of it is made up of a number of very tuneful songs with the lulling "When Dreams Come True," predominating. The air of this one number is so catchy that after it is once heard it is seldom forgotten. Unlike the average musical comedy, there is a plot to this one, in which there are many tangled situations to be worked out, so that the story will end like all good stories should, and in this particular case, furnishes all sorts of trouble to the principals and all sorts of amusement for the onlookers.

There are no stars in "When Dreams Come True," but there is an evenly-balanced cast of clever young people in the leading parts, and a good-looking and hard-working singing and dancing chorus, which make for a smooth and snappy performance.

Good Programme Will Be Given

The Parents' Circle of the Queen Mary school will hold a social evening to-morrow (Friday) night at 8 o'clock, in the school. The following programme will be rendered:

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. WM. CARVETH

Hall's Glen Community Say Farewell on Eve of Their Departure For Lakefield Where They Will Reside in Future.

AN ADDRESS READ

HALL'S GLEN, Oct. 24. — On Wednesday, October 18, a reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Carveth by the friends and neighbours of the surrounding community, in honour of their removal from Hall's Glen to Lakefield. Mr. and Mrs. Carveth have been life-long residents of Dummer, and their departure is deeply regretted by all.

Two leather chairs and a hall rack were presented by Messrs. Hy Little, Garfield Crowe and Wm. Hy. Moore, and the following address was read by Mrs. M. E. Crowe:

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Carveth:—

Dear Friends,—The sad necessity of saying good-bye to you as neighbours is now before us. We feel we could not let this opportunity pass without giving expression to some of the regret that we feel at losing you from our midst.

All your lives you have spent in this neighbourhood and have been so closely associated with us in all our joys and sorrows that we feel it is hard, indeed, to break up that close association. We have ever regarded you as the kindest of neighbours and dearest of friends. In all those years we have always found you arranging yourselves on the side of right. You have stood for all that is noble and worthy in life. You and your family have generously given of your time and talents to help on every good cause and anything that tends to the uplift of the life of the community and to the advancement of the Kingdom of God. There is no means of measuring how much the church and neighbourhood really owe to you for the examples of true Christian character and of sterling integrity you have at all times set.

While we deeply regret your departure we are glad that "having borne the burden and heat of the day" you will have the eventide of rest. Having passed the noon-tide of life and with faces turned "towards the setting sun," and can say with Paul, "We have fought a good fight; we have kept the faith"; and while you may feel that your work at Zion is finished, yet it is not as your influences will live on in the lives of those around you and though absent in body, your examples will still continue to be a benediction and a blessing.

In times such as these words fail us, and what we would say we cannot, so we feel that we want you to have some tangible evidence of our esteem and friendship, and ask you to accept those chairs, and also this hall rack. May they serve to remind you of the many happy associations with friends in Dummer, and while separated as neighbours there will be no separation in friendship, as we trust in the future we may very, very often have the glad opportunity of a pleasant word and familiar smile from our one-time neighbours and dear friends.

Signed in behalf of your neighbours and friends—

MRS. DAVE BROWN,
MRS. M. E. CROWE,
MRS. DAVID LITTLE,
MRS. HENRY LITTLE,
MISS BESSIE CROWE.

After this a short programme was rendered which consisted of:

An Instrumental—Mr. and Mrs. A. Darling, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Hunter.

The remainder of the evening was spent in contests and the serving of refreshments.

Present Arc Lights Will Be Dispensed With

The Peterborough Utilities Commission have under preparation a report dealing with a number of prospective changes in connection with the street lighting system of the city. The report will eventually find its way to the City Council and if approved, will result in a number of radical changes. The new system will mean the total elimination of the old flaming arc lights that adorn the street corners. This type of light is not only antiquated but is more expensive to operate.

The wood chopping and sawing plant of R. Hicks and Company on Murray street, was badly damaged this morning at five o'clock by a blaze which is thought to have originated from crossed electric wires. The damage will amount to about $1,000 is estimated, the machinery, motors, etc., in the building being practically destroyed. There was a high wind blowing which carried burning shingles and sparks from the fire to the Metheral terrace on Aylmer street, setting fire to the roof, and the hose had to be turned on to this second blaze. The only damage here would be caused by water.

MAYOR DUFFUS' ADDRESS AT THE TORONTO MEETING

In discussing the matter of taxes on the property taken over by the government, His Worship Mayor Duffus, in speaking to the Prime Minister, and the members of the Cabinet at Toronto yesterday, stated that he desired to make it clear that he fully appreciated the benefits which have been and would be derived by the Hydro Electric scheme in Eastern Ontario and as one who had worked extremely hard in endeavoring to get this proposition for the municipalities of Eastern Ontario, he could not overlook the opportunity of deeply expressing his appreciation. He also wished to thank the members of the Cabinet for giving the municipalities of Eastern Ontario an opportunity of presenting their case to them, and as Vice-President of the Midland Municipal Association, which consisted of some sixty municipalities, he was firmly convinced that the inauguration of the Hydro-Electric scheme in Central Ontario, would be an incalculable benefit to the residents of the section.

He also desired to point out very clearly that the matter of the taxes was simply a mathematical proposition, and that in view of the fact of the government taking over the property of the different municipalities and the officials of the municipalities having struck a rate, it would be a very serious handicap to the majority of the people in that part of the province.

This is a very undesirable feature in the eyes of the public, and the blame would naturally be placed upon the government. He did not expect the government to adopt any general policy in regard to payment of taxes on government-owned property, as this involved a large question, but he did think that in view of all the circumstances and the municipalities not having had an opportunity to make arrangements for the non-payment of taxes this year, that the government should take care of the matter. He further stated and pointed out various hardships would be imposed on a portion of the community by reason of the fact that all the ratepayers were not consumers of electric energy, and if the government forced the municipalities as a whole to pay the taxes on the property taken over from the Seymour Power Company these ratepayers would be compelled to pay their share whether they used Hyro-Electrie energy or not, and this would be a double injustice to this portion of the community, which would to a considerable extent be largely made up of the poorer classes.

He felt sure that now as the question was put before the honorable gentlemen that they would see it in the same light as the officials representing the different municipalities, and there was no doubt in his mind but that the government would deal fairly with them and that arrangements would be made which would be entirely satisfactory to the Municipalities.

Says Band of 93rd Is To Be Broken Up

Six of Them Going into the 39th Band, the Remainder to Go into the Ranks to Be Sent to France, Writes Sergt. Christmas of Kingston.

"SPLENDID BAND" HE SAYS

Sergt. W. J. Christmas of Kingston, who is in England with the 39th Battalion band, writes a very interesting letter to his wife in that city, which reads, in part, as follows:

"It is very rainy and damp. I don't think we will be moving from here (West Sandling) now as the 93rd came in here to-day (October 8th), and a draft from the 139th and one from the 136th are coming in this evening. They are from Cobourg and Port Hope. The 93rd has a splendid band of thirty-eight players. You have heard them in Kingston. They are to be broken up, and we are taking about six of them into our band. The rest I heard were to go in the ranks to be sent to France. It does not matter how grand any band is, they have to suffer the same fate as a poor band, broken up and sent in the ranks if they cannot get a place in any other band. It is too bad that bands are broken up in this way after being together so long, and having spent so much money on instruments.

"We expect 1,700 men here in this camp. We have put up about seventy tents in order to accommodate the number coming in, as there are not enough huts.

OLD SOLDIER OF LORD ROBERTS' ARMY WILL WINTER IN JAIL

Fred Rawlings, 75 Years Old, Preferred the Hill to House of Refuge—Was With Bobs to Kandahar—One Eye is Gone and His Legs Are Failing Him.

Fred Rawlings, an old soldier, in his seventy-fifth year, one of the men Lord Roberts led to Kandahar and through other victories, will spend the winter in the county jail in preference to the House of Refuge at Lakefield, where the drudgery of the laundry was more than his spirit could endure. Rawlings spent his best days in the open and it has always been his natural element. Recently from Omemee, where he had been the summer with some homespun farmer who had probably never been further than a day's walk from the family acres, he appeared before Magistrate Dumble as a vagrant in his seventy-five years leaving him rich in experience and in memory of empire builders with whom he had cast his lot when his years were full of promise, but those years had evaporated him with the unmistakable signs of penury, and chill penury at that.

Rawlings' father gave the navy thirty-six years of service. He was provost on the "Victory," and his son, now the little old one-eyed man with three-quarters of a century behind him, spent his first weeks and years on Nelson's flagship.

"My legs are giving out on me," said the old soldier, who had doubtless trudged with the best of them in the palmy days when "Bobs" was pushing back the boundaries of the Empire in the East. Rawlings received a sympathetic hearing from the Magistrate, Chief Thompson and Sergeant Brown. In spite of his lack of means he appeared neat and clean. His accent lost its sharpness but it revealed his English tongue.

"Can you cook?" inquired Magistrate Dumble.

"I can do plain cooking sir."

Rawlings does not excite pity, be it understood. The old chap is cheery and bright, something of that indomitable optimism the English Tommy is showing. If you chance to meet him ask him of his best days, for he lives largely in the past, back with "Bobs," and is eager to share his wealth of experience with the interested listener. They probably have a visitors' day at the jail. Why not pay Rawlings a visit some day this winter, those of you who may be actuated by that impulse.

THE MANUFACTURERS COMMITTEE MEETS

Recommend That Certain Concessions be Granted to the Company Represented by F. C. Paul of East City.

The Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council met last evening to consider the matter of granting certain concessions to F. C. Paul, manufacturer of ladies' wear. The latter is at present located in a portion of the East City town hall, and owing to his rapidly expanding business finds it necessary to secure larger quarters. The old West Ward school is looked upon as a favourable location.

After some discussion the Committee decided to recommend that the assistance which Mr. F. C. Paul requested be informed that the committee adopts the following [illegible]

First—The city to give the [illegible] and the Company

Second. That the city loan the Company three thousand dollars to purchase land and buildings, to be valued at $500.

Third. The city purchase the property and rent it to the company at $150 a year, for ten years, the Company to have the option to purchase at any time within ten years at three thousand dollars, any one of these offers to include exemption from taxation for ten years except for school and local improvement rates. The loan to be repaid in ten years, no terms to be arranged, [illegible] to bear interest at five and one-half per cent. in any unpaid portion of the money.

BULGAR STOLE $4,000,000.

Amsterdam, Oct. 25. —A telegram from Sofia announces that Dr. N. Ohenadieff, [illegible] Minister, has been appointed to [illegible] for ten years for stealing $4,000,000 of public money. The charge of [illegible] was dropped.

Inspected The Dustless Sweeper

Mayor Kylie of Lindsay Was in the City To-day

Mayor Kylie, of Lindsay, was in the city to-day for the purpose of inspecting the dustless street sweeper which is operating on the paved streets of the city. Mayor Kylie was more than pleased with the performance of the sweeper, and said he would have no hesitation in recommending that the Lindsay Council purchase one.

UNABLE TO GRANT REQUEST ASKED

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—In Commons to-day Premier Asquith said the Government was unable to grant the request that as an aid to the reconciliation of Ireland, the authorities would permit the remains of those executed following the recent rebellion to be taken from prison yards and deposited in consecrated ground.

Better Wages For C. P. R. Men

Special to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26.—C. P. R. trainmen at 11 o'clock to-day went into conference with Grant Hall at the C.P.R. offices to sign an agreement, which gives increased wages and better working conditions to 8,000 conductors, brakemen and yardmen. The men received much more than was given by the 1915 board of arbitration. That did not concede any increase in wages. The company will now pay preparatory time in yards before trains commence to move, and will also pay for the time spent in switching in junction points and will pay for a minimum of mileage of 2,600.

COUNTY BRIDGES WERE INSPECTED

Warden Darling, Reeve Walsh of Douro, and Reeve Anderson of Otonabee inspected four bridges in Belmont and Asphodel yesterday. Mare's bridge in Asphodel is all but completed. The abutments are of concrete with an iron span and concrete floor. In Belmont the bridges examined were Taylor's, Dafoe's and Mathison's, all three of which require more or less repairing.

Another Grocer Fined

Another grocer was fined $25 and costs in the police court yesterday afternoon for selling a maple syrup mixture for maple syrup. A few weeks ago a similar conviction was made, but the grocer in that case, with the retail grocers supporting him, recovered the amount of his fine from the manufacturer of the product which he had sold. In yesterday's case the Government inspector stated that he had asked for maple syrup, and had received an adulterated article. The grocer, in his testimony, stated that he had handed out a bottle labelled "old-time syrup," saying that it was a maple flavored article. Magistrate Dumble imposed the minimum fine of $25.

LARGELY ATTENDED RECRUITING MEETING HELD AT APSLEY

Mr. R. R. Hall Gave a Stirring Address Reeve of Burleigh Pointed Out the Necessity of Sending More Men to the Firing Line.

The chairman spoke briefly concerning the necessity of Canada sending over to the front the necessary recruits to assist our Canadian boys who are fighting in the trenches.

The Rev. Mr. Gardiner stated that about 65 soldiers had gone from Apsley and some of them were at present in the trenches. These soldiers were playing a heroic part; that if the Allies are to win this war it will be necessary for every available man to come forward and offer his services, that the soldiers who have gone to the front deserve our support and assistance, and shows, above all, they should have further soldiers to come forward to fill up the gaps that are made. Now that a new recruiting campaign was being inaugurated in this district he sincerely trusted that the Recruiting Officer, Capt. Cleghorn, would receive every assistance by every man, woman, boy and girl in this district.

Apathy Manifest.

Mr. R. R. Hall said that he regretted that the weather was so unfavourable, that there was not a better attendance of available young men present at the meeting, but he was pleased to see such a large number of people present who could no doubt report the result of the meeting.

There seems to be, he said, a singular amount of apathy among a large body of the people throughout the Dominion of Canada toward recruiting. A large number thought that because they were prosperous and because they could get work at such high wages at home that there was no necessity of their inconveniencing themselves and submitting to the hardships of taking an active part in the war. It may possibly be that the majority of people of the Dominion of Canada, said the speaker, are prosperous, but if the Central Powers were ever able to over run either Russia or France then our period of prosperity in Canada would be exceedingly brief, because if Germany and Austria Hungary were able to over run either France or Russia they would then have an enormous number of troops and munitions of war to turn upon the other remaining Ally with every prospect of success.

Vital Interest.

This war is not yet won by the Allies. Germany is still in possession of practically the whole of Belgium, and is still in possession of the whole of Russian Poland. Serbia has been over run and so has Montenegro. These countries comprise about fifty million of a population, and Germany still holds this vast number of people under her control. If, therefore, peace were declared to-morrow it would be a complete triumph for Germany with every prospect that in five years more Great Britain and her colonies would have to meet Germany in a deadly conflict much more handicapped than we are at the present time. It is, therefore, of vital interest, said the speaker, that every available man should be sent forward to the front to make sure that the cause of the Allies triumph, and to make sure that the liberty and freedom that the British people enjoy will be handed down to the coming generation unsullied, untarnished and unrestrained. Apsley District has done nobly in the past said Mr. Hall, and he said: "I am sure that Capt. Cleghorn will receive the "hearty assistance and co-operation of every one in this district and that the available young men will also give their hearty support by joining the great Canadian Overseas forces."

Captain Belton.

Captain Belton was next called upon. He said that already 380,000 Canadian soldiers had joined the Overseas forces. He felt satisfied that that number would be increased to upwards of one-half a million. No doubt some of these young men that have gone to the front will not return; some of them, perhaps, wounded, but he felt that when they did return to this country after this war is over, and after the cause of the Allies has triumphed, that those soldiers would be the guiding force in the affairs of Canada. That they would have something to say as to who should fill the offices and who should receive Canadian appointments to office, whether these appointments be made by the Dominion Government or by any of the Provincial Governments, or even by any of the municipal corporations. There is one thing certain that these soldiers who have risked their lives will never stand for the appointment of slackers to office who have remained at home and who have earned the highest wages while the soldiers were fighting in the trenches in order that any such slackers might live in ease and comfort at home.

Mr. R. J. Soden also spoke briefly.

At the conclusion of the meeting a committee, consisting of the Chairman, Reeve Lane, Messrs. Duncan, Brown, Tanner, Rev. Gardiner and [illegible] was formed, with power to add to their number to assist Capt. Cleghorn in recruiting.

Textiles Must Not Be Used

Important Warning in Regard to Parcels For War Prisoners

Through a typographical error the Examiner, in publishing an announcement from Ottawa in regard to parcels for war prisoners, yesterday, totally destroyed the meaning of the instructions. The all important little word "not" was omitted from the following paragraph: "The British authorities advise that parcels for prisoners of war in Germany must not be wrapped in linen, calico, canvas or any other textile material."

The omission of the word not in the Examiner's item yesterday gave a diametrically opposite meaning to the instructions.

LONDON HAS A BAD FIRE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 26.—Fanned by a forty-mile gale a fire which broke out early to-day, swept away $50,000 worth of buildings on Talbot street, west, in the heart of the business district at Aylmer. The blaze started in Howse's big implement warehouse and spread both ways. Help was asked from St. Thomas, and the motor apparatus rushed over fifteen miles and did great work. Incendiarism is suspected as there have been four serious fires lately and including one once before in Howse's shop. A full investigation will be made. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars Will Have To Be Raised For Peterboro' Patriotic Fund

At a meeting of the Peterborough Patriotic Fund Committee, held last evening, Mr. D. O'Connell, convenor of the committee, presented the appended report:

Your committee appointed to consider the raising of funds for the ensuing year beg to report:

Upon the estimates furnished by the Executive Officer, it appears that the sum of $100,000 will require to be raised by the city and county of Peterborough to meet the expenditures for the year 1916, after crediting the proper proportion to the city and county of Peterborough of the Provincial grant.

After carefully considering the whole situation, we are of the opinion that it would be almost impossible to raise this sum in the city and county of Peterborough by voluntary subscription, and therefore, recommend that the same be raised by assessment. In fact, this is the most equitable and less burdensome way in which to meet this obligation.

A Fair Division.

The assessment for the city of Peterborough amounts to about $13,000,000 and for the county of Peterborough we are informed about $9,000,000. A fair division of the sum, therefore, would be $40,000 to be raised by the county of Peterborough and $60,000 to be raised by the city of Peterborough. We most respectfully suggest that both the city and county of Peterborough should raise these respective sums by issuing twenty-year debentures, chargeable against the real property in the city and county respectively. If this suggestion should be followed, it would necessitate an assessment of about forty cents upon each $1,000 of assessment or two-fifths of a mill on the dollar. The burden thus would be extremely light at the present time, and would leave a fair proportion of the debt to be discharged by posterity, a most important consideration in view of the numerous demands that are at present being made upon the citizens for various patriotic purposes.

The mode of assessment to be adopted, of course, would be to place the tax upon income as well as upon the real property, and thus the burden would be fairly distributed over the whole of the community.

The Assessment.

The question of dividing the assessment between the landlord and tenant was fully considered by your committee, but having regard to the almost insurmountable difficulties that would arise in the procedure of assessing and collecting the amount so assessed, we think such a scheme entirely impracticable. We are fully of the opinion that by assessing the amount to be raised upon the real property and income that the tax will, in course of time, be fairly adjusted between the landlord and tenant, and that all classes in the community will be practically called upon to contribute.

Your committee therefore recommend that the said sum of $100,000 be raised by the city and county of Peterborough in the manner herein suggested, and that a committee of this branch be appointed to confer with the members of the City Council and that they be requested to appoint a committee to meet a similar committee of the County Council, and that the recommendations contained in this report be placed before a joint committee and that both committees be requested to recommend their respective amounts to raise the money required, in the manner herein suggested, and that a petition be presented to the City Council to that effect. All of which is respectfully submitted.

BERLIN'S WIDE CLAIMS IN REGARD TO SUB.

MANY PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY STARS HAVE JOINED THE COLORS

228th Battalion Northern Fusiliers, Will Have a Great Team in the National Hockey Association --Several Well Known Stars, Including Allan Davidson and Frank McGee Have Been Killed in Action.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—The entrance of the 228th Battalion team in the N. H.A., will be a big factor in making the coming season perhaps the best in several years. It should also stimulate recruiting, not only in the 228th, but in other units as well. The soldiers will be formidable with Leneur in goal, Lieut. Art Duncan, the Vancouver star; Lietts. Howard and George McNamara for the defence, and Goldie Prodgers, Gordon Meekins, Frank Foyston, "Roxy" Beaudreau of Kenora fame, Amos Arbour, Merchant, and a host of others from whom to select a forward line. The N. H.A. realized the value of the 228th as its ninth club and facilitated its admission, Toronto and Canadiens making the requisite concessions.

Torontos will be strong, too. They will have their last year's forward line, conceded to be the best in the league at the close of the season, while Randal and Cameron are among those available for the defence. In the nets the Blue Shirts will measure up to the other clubs, though losing Leneur, who is in grand shape and due for a most effective season with the soldier team. Claude Wilson showed enough class last winter to give the management every confidence in him, and Sammy Herbert of Ottawa may be secured in exchange for Harry Meeking, as present stationed in Ottawa with the Divisional Signal Corps. This will give the Blue Shirts two good goalers. It is hoped to have Briden, the big auburn-haired speed marvel, to reinforce the defence and left wing. The boy is a star and a north country product. He was tried out by the Torontos in their series of games in Cleveland at the end of the season, and more than made good. Another sterling defence man is being secured, together with two forwards, top-notch amateurs.

Several of this year's Toronto team, including Briden, are or soon will be wearing the khaki, emphasizes the fact that in professional as well as in amateur hockey the players have made a splendid showing. The large percentage now enlisted is a matter of record. A few of them are: McCulloch, Victoria; Captain Howard McNamara, Sergt. Prodgers, Capt. Nick Bawlf, Pte. Arbour, Canadiens; Allan Davidson (killed in action), Harry Meeking, Lieut. Geo. McNamara, Corp. Gordon Keats, Sergt. Jack Brown, Sergt. Leneur, Frank Foyston, Archie Briden, Lieut. Teddy Oke, Torontos; Allan Wilson, Angus Dufour, Frank McGee, "Punch" Broadbent, Gordon Meeking, Ottawas; Donald Smith, Wanderers; "Roxy" Beaudreau, Kenora Thistles; Horace Gaul, Steve Vair, Nicholson, Tecumsehs, Joe Powers, "Rocket" Powers, Quebec, Jack Marshall, Haroki McNamara, Harold McNamara, Harry Cameron, several Quebec players, and a number belonging to other teams are engaged in munition work.

The report that "Cy" Denneny will not be playing here is not quite correct. He has been notified that he must report to Toronto or suffer suspension. An alternative is if Ottawa are willing to trade Nighbor for the leading scorer of the locals. Denneny was aware when he went to Ottawa to play lacrosse that he would be required by Torontos this winter, and it was understood that he was to arrange for leave of absence before taking the position in the Capital City. The only chance of a concession would have been if Denneny had enlisted.

Ottawas, Wanderers, Quebec, and Canadiens, are all in good shape. Ottawas have only lost one man, Angus Dufour, and in his place will step Harry Meeking, who should turn out a much-improved article, thanks to last winter's experience and the beneficial effects of army training. Boucher, the youthful find, will be a tower of strength to the Senators at left wing, leaving Eddie Gerard free to drop back to the defence, where he will be of more value to his team. Ross and Merrill are again pulling the Fatty stuff, and if they fail to catch a place on this season's score-card it will not likely be of their own choice.

Wanderers will be minus Gordon Roberts and Donald Smith. They will miss Roberts, who is not a doctor practising in Vancouver, and who will figure in Frank Patriot's line-up. Smith will not leave a hole in the team, as for several winters his weak side robbed him of effectiveness. On the other hand Sprague, Cleghorn's return to the ice will make the Red Rands plenty strong enough to give the other clubs all the tussle they can handle. In addition, there is no telling just who Sammy and Frank Patrick have agreed shall go to Wanderers in exchange for Roberts. Both Cleghorns will again be on hand. As in baseball, it would be necessary for waivers to be obtained from the rest of the clubs before Sammy could let Sprague go to another league.

The champion Canadiens will feel the absence of Prodgers, Howard McNamara and Arbour to a certain extent, but they can afford the loss better probably than the other teams in consequence of the overplus of players they carried last year. Then they have Debeau to fill the gap on the defence, and quite a lot of promising new material as well. Debeau it will be remembered, was suspended by the Toronto Club as a result of his failure to report. Ronan, at the moment the property of the Blue Shirts, may go to the champions, with whom he played good hockey, better than he did with Torontos, the speed of whose forward line constitutes the explanation.

Quebec possess all their regular players, but contemplate several changes with a view to rejuvenation and the strengthening of one or two weak places. They have a number of crack youngsters ready and waiting for practises to commence. They will be harder to beat than last season.

Canadian Football Has Developed In Past Ten Years

Ten years have witnessed a wonderful change in Canadian football. One can harken back no farther than 1910 and find four men covering the back field when in possession or on defence. The Intercollegiate was the first to discover three men could easily cover a backfield, and Shag Shaughnessy showed that two men were quite sufficient to handle all booted balls down the field. Now a two-man back line is the proper wrinkle. Cutting down the back division means more men on the line of scrimmage, and, if anything makes it more difficult to successfully execute an end run or pierce the line on a straight play. Yet, smart teams are gaining twice the distance, and accomplishing it twice as often as in the days when the halves played back and the wing lines were less formidable. As a matter of fact, the game has developed. Team work has had as much to do with this development as anything else. Coaches to-day demand everyone of fourteen men to perform his function, and, while special dependency rests with the work of a punter or quarterback, the teams are not built around one man as formerly. Six or seven years ago a line plunge was in the nature of a British tank tractor climbing over a German trench. It usually netted a couple of yards by sheer weight. Nine times out of ten the team in possession had to kick on a third won. Eighty per cent. of the games were won on the other team's mistakes. Teams marching the ball half the length of the field without losing possession has occurred in every game of the past two seasons. An injury to the star kicker does not blow the game. Some other fellow takes his place, and the contest proceeds. The old headwork counts nowadays as it never did before. Derricking the 200-pound wing man, whose dome muscles are ossified for the 180-pound youngster who has pep and grey matter, is an everyday occurrence.

At Canton, Ohio, Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete and ball player, has been signed to play with a professional football team, and it is said his contract calls for $1000 a game. That he is attraction enough to warrant it was shown by the opening game of his team, on Sunday, when over 4,000 people paid to see the contest, which was with a professional team from Buffalo.

With the world's series ending only last Thursday week, the scenes in Boston and Brooklyn already are being re-enacted in moving pictures in more than two score cities throughout the United States, the first pictures being shown Monday. The National Commission sold the rights to take the moving pictures to a concern which used fourteen cameras in getting all the angles of play.

WILLARD READY TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

NO OPPONENT IN SIGHT.

Levinsky Treats Josh Dillon to a Fine Surprise.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Willard has bobbed up with the statement that he will in person defend his world's title against all comers after he winds up his circus engagement next month. But who will be a suitable opponent for him? The champion seems to prefer a bout with Fulton a second-rater who has done nothing so far to warrant a match for the title. A Willard-Dillon bout would be ridiculed because of the latter's elevated weight. Another clash between the Kansas champion and Morar would in Willard's estimation be purely [illegible]. The other [illegible] they would [illegible] Willard, [illegible] the retention [illegible] commission, will not permit [illegible] in this State.

IN "NO MAN'S LAND" LIES FAMOUS FRENCH RUGBY INTERNATIONAL PLAYER

The famous French International Rugby player, F. Burgun, of the Racing Club de France, has just been killed under dramatic circumstances. An airman of great repute—he had already destroyed four German machines—Burgun some days ago took part in an air fight in the region of Verdun. During the duel his motor suddenly stopped and he found himself compelled to abandon the struggle. The German aviator did not appear at all disappointed and quickly flew away. Burgun was planing towards his aerodrome when a "Fokker" machine darted out of the clouds and soared down on him from behind. Burgun, taken by surprise fell an easy prey to the German and crashed down between the French and German lines. The German followed, and from a height of a few yards riddled Burgun with his machine gun. Poor Burgun . . . his body still lies in "no man's land." Successively four gallant "poilus" attempted to regain the brave airman's body, but each in turn was either killed or wounded.

Burgun was a lieutenant. He had been awarded the Legion of Honour and Croix de Guerre. In an artillery regiment at the outbreak of hostilities he volunteered for the Flying Corps last year, "passing the military brevet" in the short space of three weeks.

Burgun played in the following ter International games: v. England, 1911-13-14; v. Scotland, 1911-12-13; v. Ireland, 1909-10-12; v. Wales, 1910

Jimmy Wilde's Record In Knockouts Above Average

England, which has not developed a first class heavy weight champion since the days of Jem Mace, has been prolific in sensational performers in the lighter classes, notably the bantams.

But even the achievements of ring heroes like Plimmer, Palmer and Bowker have now been thrown into the shade by the brilliant work of a fly-weight named Jimmy Wilde. This little chap, who was born in Tylorstown, Wales, in May, 1892, weighs in fighting trim only 98 pounds. He gives away from ten to twelve pounds to his opponents and usually puts them to sleep.

Wilde has engaged in 187 battles in the six years he has been in the ring, and was victor in all excepting one. This defeat was handed him by Tancy Lee, a Scotch flyweight, and the title changed hands on the result. Wilde had little to say about his defeat beyond that his health was poor at the time. He upset the theory that a beaten champion never comes back, knocking out Lee in 11 rounds in their second meeting and regaining the championship.

Among recent victims of his skill and hitting powers are Alf Mansfield, knocked out in 10 rounds; Young Symonds, in 12; Young Rosner in 11; and Johnny Hughes in 10.

LONG KNOCKOUT RECORD.

Wilde has scored more than one hundred knockouts in the 187 times he has been in the ring. It seems to have been a matter of good fortune for those who remained standing to the finish.

Although Wilde is small and apparently frail he is well constructed and is provided with the long pliable muscles that are so essential for speed and hitting in the pugilist.

Those who have seen him box declare that he is a marvellous ring general and those who have felt his blows declare he hits with the force of a middleweight.

As he was rejected by the English military authorities owing to his small size there is nothing to prevent him coming to America excepting the cash demanded by his manager. Wilde is earning $2,000 a week in England in exhibition work.

PLIMMER MADE RECORD.

Among other notable little men was Billy Plimmer, one of the greatest bantams ever produced in England and until he bumped up against the masterful Pedlar Palmer regarded as invincible.

Plimmer, who stood 5 feet 3 1-2 in. tall and scaled well under 116, was born in Birmingham, February 8th, 1869. He began his career as a boxer in 1890 and developed so rapidly that he captured a title bout at the National Sporting Club in the following year, beating the champion, Jack Stevens, in 15 rounds.

In 1892 Plimmer, having heard that America was a Queensbery Golconda, hastened here, arriving in New York early in January. In order to try him out Plimmer was put in the ring with Kid Hogan, a shifty Brooklyn boy, who held the Englishman to a draw in an eight round bout.

Plimmer may not have extended himself in the trial bout, as subsequently he made short work of a number who decided to take him on.

and in long lines dashed forward close under the barrage, advancing as rapidly as the state of the ground would permit. In ten minutes the 600 yards of open ground had been crossed, and Regina trench was ours.

On the right a tragic incident for a moment threatened the success of the assault. Lieut. Scott, son of Canon Scott, of Quebec, was advancing at the head of his men and was directing their progress in accordance with the artillery barrage. As the men threw themselves down to await the momentary lift of the guns, Lieut. Scott was shot and instantly killed. His death was not at first remarked, and his men still waited for the signal to advance. Not until the barrage had passed beyond the German trenche did the men realize the situation. Then with a fierce, impetuous rush which nothing could arrest, they dashed for the German trench eager to avenge the death of their gallant young officer.

HUNS ROUTED BY BAYONET

In the meantime, however, the enemy had been able to man his parapet and had opened a rapid fire at this point. We therefore suffered some casualties, but the result was the same. Our men went in with the bayonet and there was short shrift for the Germans.

At some points, the enemy, consisting of Prussians brought recently from the Ypres salient, were eager to surrender. They jumped out of their trenches and advanced to meet our men, holding their hands above their heads. Altogether 168 prisoners were taken, and between 75 and 100 dead Germans were counted in the trench. Among those who surrendered were two or three machine gun crews, who abandoned their guns.

One of the prisoners, a sergeant taken by a Montreal battalion was a German who was actually living in Montreal at the time the war broke out. He had been there for a year and a half employed as a moulder. He stated that in June, 1914, he had applied for a passport to the United States, but it had been refused to him on the ground that a war was imminent and that he would have to hold himself in readiness to return to Germany at a moment's notice.

Not only was the whole of our immediate objective secured and the flank protected in the manner intended, but strong parties pushed well out beyond the established posts in certain tactical positions. The operation was entirely successful. Consolidation was proceeded with and during the following night communication trenches were rapidly constructed, linking up the old line with the new.

COUNTER-ATTACKS FAILED

Attempts by the enemy to counter-attack were promptly dispersed by our artillery. At 1.40 p.m. several hundred Germans came out from the village of Pys and, deploying in the open, advanced with the evident intention of attacking. This wave was blotted out by a heavy burst of shrapnel fire. Only about 60 were seen to reach a forward trench, which was under our direct observation. Here high explosive shells were fired and the trench severely damaged. Several Germans were seen to be hurled into the air.

Again at 2.30 the enemy came out of a trench in considerable numbers and attempted to make their way down the communication trenches. Our guns were brought to bear with great effect and the Germans were seen to fall literally in groups.

During the afternoon reinforcements in small parties continued to press forward to man certain support trenches. As these were all now visible targets our bursts of fire caused them severe casualties. Every effort of the enemy to organize a counter-attack was thus frustrated and our men remained in undisputed possession.

Hostile aeroplanes attempted to come over the lines after the assault, but they were driven back.

Another German gun, a 5.9 howitzer, has been added to the list of our captures in Courcelette. This gun had been cleverly concealed in the ruins of the village by folding doors which hid the emplacement. Recently it was discovered quite by accident and the gun found to be practically intact only one of its wheels being injured.

Sir Joseph Beecham Advertised His Pills To Fortune

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Sir Joseph Beecham, the pill manufacturer whose face and name are familiar to the readers of more than 3,000 newspapers in all parts of the world, was found dead in bed in his home in Hampstead. He was in his sixty-ninth year.

By the sale of his pills the manufacturer rose from a farmer's boy to become a knight and a baronet and the third richest man in England with a fortune estimated at more than $140,000,000. He accomplished this by advertising, having been for a generation or more considered the greatest buyer of newspapers, billboard, and general space in the world. He advertised on every continent, including Greenland. His own picture, a strong reliable face with side whiskers, usually accompanied the text recommending the pills.

Beecham's methods of advertising were often original and audacious. He delighted in the commotion when his advertisements shocked communities and were denounced as vulgar. The exploitation of his pills through the medium of a hymn book has become historic. He circulated at low prices a number of hymn books just before Christmas so that when a number of congregations got up to sing on Christmas they found the following words before them:

Hark! the herald angels sing,
Beecham's pills are just the thing.
Peace on earth and mercy mild,
Two for man and one for child.

Beecham was at work in the fields at the age of eight years. He might have been an agriculturalist to the end of his days except that, as a small boy, he took a deep interest in the ailments of farm animals and the compounds with which their cure was attempted. He grew to be an amateur veterinarian and, in treating live stock for a few years, acquired the experience and knowledge of medicine which he later applied to the human race. He quit the farm at about twenty years, and began to travel, peddling pills of his own manufacture. He soon learned the power of advertising and after that let paint and printers' ink do his work.

He soon had praise of Beecham's pills in most of the periodical reading matter of the civilized world, and a few years later it became impossible in any part of the British Empire or the United States to travel on country roads or on the railways without seeing Beecham's advertisements on rail fences. A few of the high-priced periodicals did not receive the advertisements because the best customers were drawn, as he explained on a visit to this country in 1902, from the poorer middle classes and the working people, who did not want to pay a doctor for treating slight ailments.

"But," added Mr. Beecham, "my pills are taken by Dukes and Lords who conceal the fact from their family doctors. I have positive evidence of this. Medical men take them on the quiet, too."

After he had become one of the richest and probably the most widely known Englishman living, the pill manufacturer made liberal use of his money, contributing to large philanthropies, backing popular causes, and buying the Aldwych Theatre and other large amusement properties. He was thrice Mayor of St. Helens between 1900 and 1912. He has been used again and again by novelists, notable by Locke in "Simple Septimus." He was knighted by the king in 1911 and made a baronet in 1914.

MILITARY NEWS

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 26.—A cable received here states that Capt. the Rev. W. E. Kidd has been awarded the Military Cross. He brought in four wounded men under heavy fire, and with Captain the Rev. Mr. Thompson dug the graves and buried 150 men. All the help they had were the shells dropping around them, making holes in the earth. Captain Kidd went overseas as Chaplain with the 21st Battalion.

A Belleville despatch says: It has been stated to-day on good authority that Belleville is to be the mobilization centre for a new battalion to be recruited in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. More definite announcements may be expected in a day or two. How this plan, of carried out, will affect the 235th remains to be seen. It has been freely stated that this battalion will be ordered in the course of two or three days to move to some other mobilization centre.

The Kingston Whig says:—

Since the war broke out in August, 1914, Kingston has had a military history that is in keeping with its military reputation of many years. With the closing of Barriefield camp another chapter will be added, and a winter's campaign for recruits to its next battalion is already being planned.

Since the war started there have been all branches of the service raised here and sent overseas. The first, of course, was out contribution to the battalions and artillery brigade at Valcartier, and in this way Kingston is still represented in the 2nd Battalion. The next was the 21st, which spent a memorable winter here. Then followed the 59th, which was at Barriefield camp with the 38th and 80th infantry units. The 8th C.M.R. was trained here with the 7th Artillery Brigade. The artillery was followed by three batteries, 32nd, 33rd and 34th, which gradually grew into the establishment of the 45th and 46th 50th, 51st, 52nd, 53rd, and again the 72nd, 73rd, 74th, and 75th—a long list.

The 59th went overseas, and then in the district there was authorized the 98rd, 109th, 130th, 136th, 139th 146th, 154th, 155th, and 156th and now a Queen's University Battalion besides these large units there have been Army Service Corps, Army Medical Corps, Engineering, Signaling and other branches supplied with trained men.

The Kingston Whig says:

Major McLean, Lieut. Crosier (formerly 136th) and Lieut. Mullin (formerly 146th) left on Thursday for Milleroches with the fifty men for the St. Lawrence Canal Patrol, which was selected from a special service company on Wednesday. The men will go on duty with the guard to receive eligible men to enlist or lose their positions.

The decision to make all eligible men of the Canal Guard either enlist or "get out" was made some time ago by headquarters here. Because of the fact that other men were not obtainable the decision was left in abeyance until now, when men can be secured by transfers from the Special Service Company.

Lieut.-Col Morgan, and Capt. Wotherspoon, respectively commanding officer and paymaster of the guard, were at headquarters on Thursday on that and other military business.

AUSTRIA'S ARMY DWINDLING.

MILAN, Oct. 25.—The Corriere della Sera publishes startling information obtained from the Rome War Office relative to the critical state of the Austro-Hungarian military reserves. Up to the end of April last Austria had called under arms 7,400,000 men. Only 3,000,000, including 300,000 in training, are still available.

During the war twenty-three "Mersch formations," each of which averages 215,000 men, making a total of nearly 5,000,000 marching reserve troops, have been drawn upon to fill gaps left in the armies in the field. About 600,000 of these are men who returned to the ranks after a period of convalescence, so that the enormous difference of 4,400,000 men represents the Austro-Hungarian wastage in killed, permanently disabled, prisoners and missing.

Austria-Hungary has already incorporated in the fighting army all men able to bear arms between the ages of 18 and 50 and also those mobilized for auxiliary services all men between 51 and 56; thus to-day the Dual Monarchy can only use to make good her losses the small leavings of repeated medical revisions, after which resource will have to be made either to boys of 17 or to men over 56.

WHAT THE CANADIAN NAVAL SERVICE HAS DONE

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, October 26.—The report of the Canadian Department of Naval Service just issued gives some account of the work of naval defence being carried on under the Naval Service Act. H.M.C.S. Niobe has been dismantled and is now being utilized as a depot ship alongside the Halifax Naval Dockyard. The Rainbow, two submarines, and the British gunboat Shearwater, have been employed in connection with defence work of the Pacific coast. A large number of other vessels, both government and private, have been utilized for examination service, mine sweeping and patrol. The report states that the naval dockyards have worked to full capacity on repairs. Thirty graduates of the Halifax Naval College are now with the fleet on the North Sea, and two with British submarines. No less than 400 Canadian naval volunteers have been employed on the Rainbow and other ships. For the Royal Naval Air Service 250 Canadian volunteers had been accepted by the end of last year.

HOTEL SERVICE TO FARMER MUST PAY ITS WAY IN FUTURE

A farmer threw his big coon coat over the desk in a local hotel last Saturday, and went out around town to meet his friends and avoid expense. Noon came and he was either dining with en famille around town, or was skating over the thin ice of a restaurant a la carte, with fifteen cents as the limit. Four o'clock came, and returning to the hotel he asked for his coon coat. "Five cents," said the clerk who was wise to the dinner list.

"What for?" inquired the farmer.

"That's the checking charge. We have to keep your coat as safely as it would be at home."

The farmer dug for the "jitney" and as the story is related, declared that was the last nickel he'd spend around the place.

"Likewise the first," the clerk retorted.

Such is the changing attitude and the changing times since Sept. 16. The bar covered a multitude of expenses and the drinker paid the shot for those who had been raised on the idea that the hotel was their's except the kitchen, and they got all they could carry comfortably away from the cook.

But with the passing of the bar, there has come a new sense of values. The Hotelkeeper provides a certain accommodation. The same or probably better accommodation than before, but it must thrive or fail on the revenue it produces. There is no other alternative, not yet at any rate, and the temperance people hope that the alternative will never be called up. And under the new conditions the farmer is being brought to a realization that he has long enjoyed certain privileges without costing him anything, and that now he must pay for whatever service he receives. At that it is only a small matter, but it looms larger, in some cases, against accustomed gratuity.

The tenderness people always objected to the idea of the bar reflecting the cost of meals, shade and that sort of accommodation. To them it was not good business, and now with the readjustment that was necessitated, the farmer must pay for services he had been led to accept as a matter of course.

THAW TAKES STUMP AGAINST JUDGE JENKS

New York, Oct. 26.—Harry K. Thaw made his bow as a campaign orator before several thousand persons at Pitkin and Stone avenues, Brownsville, last night.

Thaw declared he was on the stump against Judge Almet F. Jenks, Democratic candidate for the Court of Appeals. "I am with Wilson, Seabury and Hiscock," he said. "Jenks gave me three unjust decisions and kept me in jail unlawfully for seven years. I want to keep him off the bench for that length of time."

CONSTABLE MOORE'S PARTY BEAT DUMMER BUSH IN MAN HUNT

County Constable Moore, the General Joffre of the present manoeuvres in the Dummer cattle stealing case, has had his own time feeling out for Clarence Sampson. The country side was combed by a party of fifteen who divided into pairs and bushwhacked for miles through rough, broken country. At night they hid in the woods, and waited while it rained for signs of Clarence around his home. This wet vigil and the other strenuous work provided some of the realism of county policing. To-day, Detectives Newhall and Meagher are following up a particular clue, while Mr. Moore is home for a breathing spell. While the main Sampson "drive" proved fruitless, the chase has not been abandoned, although the authorities realize that the finding of the proverbial needle is a light task compared with locating Sampson in the Dummer country.

WEDDING BELLS

SANDERSON—ELLIOTT.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Elliott of Smith Township was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, October 25th. The youngest daughter of the household—Ruby Ethel, was the bride and Mr. J. Stewart Sanderson was the groom. The guests were the immediate friends and relatives of the family.

The bride entered the drawing room with her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Ada Sanderson. The bride wore a pretty gown of white net over white silk and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss L. Northey and Mr. C. Elliott, brother of the bride were the attendants. The bridesmaid looked very pretty in a pink gown of silk crepe and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful jewellers set with peridots and pearls and to the bridesmaid and pianist each a cameo brooch, and to the groomsmen, a scarf pin set with pearls.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, which was conducted by Rev. J. C. McKee, B.A., of Bridgenorth, a dainty supper was served.

ONLY THE BAIT.

Two recently converted neophytes to the gentle art of angling, on the way to the stream where they proposed to try their luck, paused in astonishment at the sight of a small urchin staggering under the burden of a huge fish, almost as large as himself. Approaching him, the stout member said: "Good gracious, boy! That's a good catch!" the youngster slowly sized him up from his conspicuously new shoes to the latest style of "Alpine" hat which adorned his head, spat disgustedly and said: "Aw, this ain't the catch; this is the bait!"

German Authorities Know That War Is Already Lost

But Hope to Hold Out For a Year and Smash Roumania in the Meantime —Germans Are Seeking a Peace Which Will Not Brand Them as Defeated—Enemy Has Estimated Their Limit of Endurance on the Western Front.

OFFICIAL GERMAN ATTITUDE

"The facts with regard to the official German attitude on the present position of the war, together with an outline of the course to be pursued, have been told to me by a distinguished neutral who is a resident in Berlin, and who for a few days has been visiting in Sweden. My informant speaks with the knowledge that he is not a casual foreigner in Berlin, but one whose business brings him in touch with public life and public men there, and who has special facilities for knowing the minds of political leaders. I present his narrative as nearly as I can in his own words.

"I left Berlin about a week ago. It may be taken as quite definite that the authorities realize the war is lost. Two facts stand out clearly to Germans on the spot. The first is that while Germany still retains the power to manufacture munitions at a large and formidable rate, the output of the allies is now in advance of the German output, and the significance of this is realized. The second point is even more important. It is recognised that the reserves of man power are not sufficient to allow Germany to conduct the war to a victorious issue. The offensive on the Somme is a crucial thing.

"They have no illusions about this. They believe they can impede the Allies, hold them back for a long time, but they realize they cannot do it indefinitely. It is privately acknowledged that sooner or later the Allies must break through. More than this, the Germans have calculated the limit of time they can effectively withstand attacks on the western front at twelve months. They know, however, the Allies may get through before that time.

"With these facts in mind, they have framed their future course of action. They are seeking for a peace which shall not brand them as defeated, and to get it they will make considerable sacrifices. The whole of their new plans will be co-ordinated toward that end. Whatever may be their fears of the future, they have still at their command vast fighting forces of various kinds. They are going to use them to bring about this peace which they want so badly.

"First of all they have made up their minds to smash Rumania completely, not only for the sake of the material advantages, but also for the moral effect on them. Then they are going to throw discretion to the winds with reference to submarines. They are going to use undersea vessels to annoy and hurt Great Britain as much as possible. They will be quite careless of the feelings of neutrals. The visit of Ambassador Gerrard to America is undoubtedly connected with this coming submarine campaign.

"The general idea is not to conquer but by annoyances, losses, and perils to increase the desire for peace which they are sure exists among some sections of the population already. The more hateful the war is made for Great Britain the more easily will she come into line with regard to peace proposals, and Germany must have peace by a year from now.

"The latter is not stated in so many words, but that is what the position comes to."

Last Two Shots Of Dozen Finally Wounded Soldier

CAPETOWN, Oct. 25.—Astonishing experiences of South Africans in the big push in France are described in soldiers' letters which make novels of romance read like Blue-books, says the Daily Express, London.

Pte. Gordon Smith, for example, who was in the Somme advance, thus cheerfully describes a few close shaves in a letter to a Port Elizabeth friend:

A bullet struck one of Dick's cartridge pouches, and exploded three rounds. He wasn't injured. The next day a shell bowled him over like a ninepin, but didn't damage him. Two days later, on the Sunday, we charged at 10 a.m., and just as Dick jumped into a German trench he was shot in the head and left shoulder. He may have had a lot of other accidents that I don't know of. He had not much time to tell me anything. The only way of communication with each other was by writing what you wanted on a slip of paper. The din was so terrific we couldn't speak to each other.

Before Saturday I had a good few narrow shaves, but at long intervals. On Saturday and Sunday they all seemed to come at once. In one hour on Saturday I was buried twice by great shells. The second time my pal had to dig me out. Again on Sunday I was buried almost at the same spot. From 10 a.m., when the fun started, I had a good many close calls.

My rifle was badly damaged—hit in four places. First, the bayonet was smashed by a bullet; second, a bullet went clean through the butt about eight inches from my shoulder; third, a bullet smashed the woodwork about the centre. The rifle was still good then, but the last shot damaged it altogether. It struck the bolt just above the magazine and split the steel so much that I couldn't work the bolt. I threw it away then and took one from a dead man lying near.

One bullet made a hole right through the top of my steel helmet, taking a little hair with it. Another struck the top cartridge pouch of my equipment just below the heart and exploded seven cartridges. Another took the front of the pouch clean away. Another severed the strap attached to my water bottle. Another went clean through my waterproof sheet which was rolled and strapped on the back of my belt, and a whizbang shell nose-cap knocked a small roll of sandbags clean off my shoulder, to the strap of which it was fastened with a piece of string.

How is that for a narrow shave? All in one morning too. At last they got me, one in the wrist and one in the right thigh. Went to hospital and had the bullet extracted. Am feeling O.K. again and ready for another go.

"The White Flour Pinch"—have you felt it? With the advancing price of wheat "the seven-cent loaf is doomed," say the bakers. In its place we have the eight-cent loaf—in many cities only the sixteen-cent loaf. A loaf of white flour bread is not a complete ration. However wholesome and pure, it does not supply all the proteids the human body needs. In Shredded Wheat Biscuit you have all the body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain prepared in a digestible form. It is always the same price, always the same high quality. Eat it for breakfast with milk or cream or with fruits.

ROUMANIANS SAID TO BE RETREATING

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, Oct. 27.— Fleeing Russo-Roumanian forces are evacuating practically all Dobrudja, said an official statement from the Bulgarian war office to-day. "On the whole front, the enemy is retreating precipitately toward Tulcea, Braila, and Harsova, pursued by our forces," said the statement issued at Sofia. "Wednesday's captures included fifteen officers, 771 men and 15 machine guns."

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Elms, Sandhurst, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

Great Air Raid On Krupps' Gun Plant Daring Exploit

Details of the Attack of September 23 By Two French Airmen is Officially Related—An Adventure in Rare Courage—Bombs Hit the Mark—Flying Across the Rhine.

WORKSHOPS CAUGHT FIRE

PARIS, Oct 27.—Essen, the home of the great Krupp works, where the fabric of the Prussian military machine has been forged, was bombarded on September 23 by the French aviators, Captain de Beauchamps and Lieutenant Dancourt, as reported in the French official communique at the time.

The story of this magnificent exploit is now told officially as follows:

Having decided that the right moment had come to make a first attempt on this important objective, the French command took all necessary measures to insure its success. The two aviators selected were furnished with carefully chosen machines, and experience proved that no mistake was made either as regards the quality of the machines or the value of the pilots.

The start was delayed for a week by the rain. On September 22 there seemed to be a promise of fine weather, and the two officers decided to start the following day. The night was passed in preparing for the journey. At a quarter past eleven a.m. Captain de Beauchamps set his motor going and took the air. No one except Lieutenant Dancourt knew where he was going. Even the workmen who constructed the machines must have been surprised when they read the communique announcing the raid on Essen, for they thought they were preparing an expedition on Ludwigshafen.

The two machines, which left at several minutes' interval, rejoined each other, devoted an hour getting their altitude, and crossed the lines in a northerly direction at a quarter past twelve.

The weather was admirable; a fine haze softened and half veiled the colour of the country below, but the rivers glistened like mirrors, and the principal landmarks of the country were marked out as clearly as on a map.

ACROSS THE RHINE.

The aviators followed the Moselle, arrived over Treves, left Coblentz on the right and avoided the large towns, where their passage might have been signalled. The Rhine was crossed a little north of Remagen. What a magnificent spectacle! With its great breadth, its long rows of boats, its double line of railways, this great river, which the aviators crossed at midday, made them marvel, and gripped them. One day, they thought, the Rhine will once more be part of France. Onward their flew toward their goal.

The itinerary provided for a change of direction here. It had been decided that, if at this point, the essential objective seemed impossible of attainment the pilots were to drop their bombs on Cologne station. However, everything turned out successful. Already the bend of the Buhr could be discerned. There was Essen, the great war workshop. It was two o'clock in the afternoon. In an hour and thirty-five minutes the pilots had covered 350 kilometres.

The two aviators had decided that in case of a thick haze they would sweep down close to their objective to reconnoitre—at a distance of a hundred metres if necessary —and rise again to drop their bombs from a suitable height. The atmosphere, however, was absolutely clear. At 4,000 metres' altitude, still keeping company, they followed from east to west the principal street of the town, clearly defined as on a map. Captain de Beauchamps went ahead, and first entered the Krupp heavens. On all hands rose a forest of chimney stacks, sheds, workshops and furnaces. No error was possible. There was the spot!

BOMBS HIT THE MARK.

One by one the six bombs were dropped by the captain, and he could see the sharp, short flames and the sparks of the explosions. Without any hurry he circled for a moment, while his comrade in turn dropped his projectiles. From one of the workshops a great cloud of blue smoke arose. Not a single shot had been fired at our aeroplanes.

It was now that such an exploit called for courage and nerve. The aviators felt they had reached the limits of their endurance. Their task, however, was only half accomplished. They had to find the energy for the return journey. Flying at a speed of 200 kilometres an hour at such altitudes; deafened by the noise of the motor, the experience was enough to try the strongest constitution. It was too much of an effort even to read their map, and the pilots set out with the sun for their guide. Where were they? All at once a shining river was discerned, and a town sprang up below them. Liege! Saved! They were on the right route.

Such a magnificent performance as the attack on Essen is full of promise. We know now that we can, in broad daylight, reach Germany with an air fleet at any given point. Essen is no longer invulnerable. We know the way to do it, and we will not forget it.

"And," added Captain de Beauchamps, "I had another two hours' petrol supply when I arrived and could have gone further."

THE LITTLE FORTUNE

There was a certain element of determination about Grace that caused her to succeed where most people would have failed. Her first impulse was to return at once to the hotel, rejoin her husband, and tell him of her experience.

Then this stubborn quality which made her refuse to admit defeat asserted itself. She fully believed that the woman that she had been following was in the house that she had just left. She had Hartmann's satchel. Grace felt morally certain that Hartmann, if he had escaped the police, would either rejoin the woman here or the woman would presently leave the house and go to him.

Grace made up her mind to find out which of these two things would happen. If Hartmann joined her here she could summon the police and secure his arrest. If the woman went to him his hiding place would be discovered. In either event the man would be apprehended.

And she felt certain that neither Richard nor M. Lefevre knew of his whereabouts, else they would, one or both of them, have been on his trail the night before. It seemed to her that the burden of the whole affair lay upon her shoulders, and she determined to assume it.

She rounded the corner as rapidly as possible so that if any one were watching her from the house they might think that she had fled, then retraced her steps for a point from whence she had come without herself being seen. There was no one about.

She would have been glad could she have telephoned to Richard; but none of the stores on the avenue were yet open, and she dared not leave her post long enough to seek a hotel for fear that the woman might escape during her absence.

She was hungry, tired and faint from loss of sleep, but she determined to wait where she was until the woman she sought left the house.

It was slow work. The early morning pedestrians who now began to appear looked at her curiously, and one or two of them ventured to speak to her. She paid no attention to them, but kept her eyes fixed on the doorway, two hundred feet to the west waiting for the woman with the satchel.

It was fully an hour before she appeared. To Grace it seemed six. The woman stood for several moments on the steps, cautiously watching to see whether or not she was observed, then walked to Sixth avenue, and stood waiting for a southbound car.

Grace realized instantly that she could not follow her. Hidden as she was in the doorway of a store, she knew the woman, who had crossed to the far corner, could not see her, but should she attempt to board the same car detection would be inevitable. She looked about for a taxi but there was none in sight.

Suddenly she observed that the woman carried, in addition to the satchel the man had left with her a large bundle secured in a shawl strap. And the cover of the bundle of a bright yellow and green plaid, was unmistakably a steamer rug. She immediately remembered the word Richelieu, which Hartmann has used so vigorously at the moment when she had passed him and the woman on the corner the night before. The Richelieu—a steamer rug—a southbound car, which she knew would transfer to the dock. And the vessel sailed that morning.

She watched the woman board the car and then hailed a taxi which she saw coming down from Twenty-eighth Street. "Take me to the Trans-atlantic Line pier," she said, and threw herself wearily back against the cushions.

When she got to the pier Grace took up an inconspicuous position among the crowd which had already begun to gather to see their friends off, and waited for the woman with the satchel to appear. She hoped that Hartmann would be with her. Then it was her intention to at once notify Captain Bonnot of the Richelieu and have them both placed under arrest before the vessel left the dock.

The woman was a long time in putting in an appearance. Grace began to fear that her deductions had been at fault. Or possibly the woman had stopped on the way to meet her companion.

At last Grace saw her coming down the pier, her baggage carried by a porter. She was alone.

Grace was greatly disappointed. Yet the woman had Hartmann's baggage it seemed certain that the latter must appear, even though at the last moment.

And then a sudden resolution caused Grace to send for a telegraph blank and scribble the brief message to Richard. She dared not leave her post even for a moment. Hartmann might appear at any time. He might even now, she reasoned, be already on board. She prayed that Richard might appear at any time. He might her for she had made up her mind to sail with the steamer rather than lose track of the two she had so persistently.

CHAPTER XII.

THE RESURRECTION OF GEO. VERNON.

The gang plank was just about to be cast off when M. Lefevre rushed across it and reached the Richelieu's deck.

He had been delayed for a moment on the pier by some question as to his ticket, and whilst he was waiting a tall and very distinguished looking Frenchman tapped him on the shoulder.

"As—my dear Lefevre," he said "Is it possible that you are sailing today? I did not know that you were even in this country. I wish that I might have had the pleasure of welcoming you at the embassy in Washington. I have just been seeing my daughter off. You will I trust meet her on board. She will be overjoyed, as I am to meet a fellow countryman."

Lefevre did not turn his head. "Merci, M. l'Ambassadeur," he replied. "I greet you and take the liberty to suggest that you employ a new chauffeur. That Italian, Morelli, you have in Washington is robbing you frightfully." He ran for the gangplank, leaving the astonished ambassador gazing after him open mouthed. "An amazing man, that Lefevre," he said as he watched the latter reach the deck. "He seems to know everything."

Grace, her eyes strained toward the pier for a sight of her husband, saw the prefect come on board and at once started toward him. He made an almost imperceptible move with one hand which caused her to pass on without recognizing him. The anxious look upon her face, however, had completely disappeared.

Lefevre at once sought Captain Bonnot and had a short interview with him in the latter's cabin. "I require a stateroom," he said, "and for a young woman who is acting for the time being as one of my assistants, I wish to have one adjoining."

"It will be necessary for us to consequently unknown to any one on board. In public, you will understand, we appear not to know each other."

Bonnot nodded. "And why all this secrecy?" he asked.

"Because, monsieur, the mystery connected with the death of the purser, George Vernon, is by no means solved, and unless I am very much mistaken the solution of it will be found on board your ship."

He refused to commit himself further and repaired at once to the stateroom assigned to him. A few moments later, hearing sounds in the adjoining room, he knocked at the door. Grace opened it and looked in.

She had no sooner assured herself of the identity of the passenger in the room next to hers than she burst out laughing, and, throwing her arms about his neck, kissed him over and over. "Yes dear!" she cried, her head against his breast. "You look enough like the prefect to be his twin brother."

Richard Duvall calmly began to remove his gray wig and pointed gray mustache. "Grace! I am so glad that you are safe. Wait until I get this make-up off and I'll give you a real kiss."

Ten minutes later they were sitting on the sofa and Grace was telling him of her frightful experience the preceding night.

Duvall's face grew very grave. "That woman is a highly dangerous character," he said. "We will put her behind the bars at any rate. She very nearly did for me, and Mlle. Mercier as well, last night." he told her of his experience in Vernon's apartment, when as Damas he had so nearly succumbed to death by the gas.

The girl shuddered. "You see, Richard," she said, "how dangerous all this is. I could not live if anything were to happen to you." You must promise me that this is positively the last case you will ever undertake." She took his hand and pressed it to her breast.

Duvall smoothed the hair tenderly back from her forehead. "Before we talk about the next case, little girl, suppose we finish this one. So far as I can see we are just about where we started. What I should like to know is where is Hartmann?"

A look of disappointment swept over Grace's face. "I thought that he would surely come on board," she said. "I feel positive the police did not get him last night."

"No—I fancy not, from what you tell me. But why did you feel so certain that he would join the woman on board?"

"My reason was perhaps a foolish one, but you see she has his satchel and I can't see why she should be carrying that unless he intended to join her."

"His satchel!" Duvall's face lighted up with a sudden look of joy. "A large black kit bag, rather shabby and worn?"

"Yes. The same one that Hartmann had when he first came to the Hotel Rochambeau."

"Then the cigars are in it," announced Duvall.

"The cigars? Richard, what on the earth are you talking about?"

"Never mind for a moment," he said. "But whether we get this fellow Hartmann or not, we are going to get Mlle Mercier's one franc piece back for her unless I am very much mistaken. That's quite as important as to find out who killed George Vernon."

Grace suddenly thought of the locket which she had been given by the undertaker the night before. She got it out and gave it to her husband. "This was found on Mr. Vernon's body," she explained; "I was asked to deliver it to his brother."

WONDERFUL BILIOUS REMEDY ACTUALLY PREVENTS ATTACK

There are two great causes of biliousness—they are constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they are not only to correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well.

Quite unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are affected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c box to-day.

Fishermen Tell of Brutality In German Prison Camp

Among British prisoners of war recently exchanged by the Germans because of ill health were members of the crew of a British trawler captured by the Germans in the first days of the war. Five of these seamen have made affadivits for the British Government concerning the treatment to which they were subjected while in German prison or prison camps. The summary of their stories, as received by The Times from official sources in London, is a follows:

"The horrors of the prisoners' camp at Wittenberg, which have recently been confirmed by the evidence of Belgian doctors, and the more cruelties of Ruhleben find a striking parallel in the more open acts to violence which are now known to have been committed at Sennelager (the prisoners' camp near Paderborn) on a number of unfortunate fishermen who were captured by the Germans in the North Sea in August 1914, and who were subsequently taken to Sennelager by way of Wilhelmshaven and Emden.

"The sword testimony of five of these prisoners who have recently been exchanged or liberated on account of ill health will enable the public to form some idea of the way in which the Germans translate their bitter hatred of this country into acts of violence directed against defenseless men.

SAYS CROWD JEERED THEM

We were marched through the streets of the town through a hostile crowd which jeered and spat at us, taken to a naval prison and put into a cell without blankets and without straw sack to lie on. We received two slices of black bread and a drink of unsweetened coffee. Two days after that we were had up for inquiry. A naval officer pointed a revolver at my head and asked me what warships were in the Humber. He said: "If you speak the truth you will go out that door," pointing to one of the doors in the room. "If you lie you will go out of that door to be shot," covering me all the time with the revolver. I told him I had seen no warships. I was cook and my occupation kept me below.

Another account of this incident is as follows:

At Wilhelmshaven the crews were at once disembarked and put under a guard of soldiers. The civilians crowded round the prisoners—164 in all—in the belief that half the British fleet had been brought in. The civilians broke through the ranks of the soldiers with their connivance and spat in our faces and threw sticks and lumps of coal at us. Before we got to the prison the mate of the Seti was kicked in the back by one of the soldiers for not walking fast enough; then I was also kicked and called a "black pig of a mine-layer.

We were then taken to the naval prison and interrogated individually by a naval officer, who sat with a loaded revolver in front of him, and said he would shoot anyone who did not speak the truth. He charged us with being sent out by the British Government to lay mines. The skipper of the Seti declared that he had never seen a mine in his life. The officer refused to believe him, and said: "You fish by night and lay mines by day," and again threatened to shoot him." All the prisoners gave the same answer, that they had not been mine laying.

We were then put in a cell without beds or blankets; there was one plank in the corner of the cells. We were kept here for two days.

"As the interrogation of prisoners at Wilhelmshaven did not apparently lead to the desired result, methods of corruption were tried when the prisoners reached Emden.

"A coloured man who was one of the trawlers was approached with this end in view. The narrative continues in the negro's word:

Next morning we had a cup of coffee and a roll, and were inspected by an army doctor, who inquired if anyone was ailing. No one answered. Then he inqured if anyone among us could speak foreign languages. Someone replied that I could speak Spanish, and the doctor then questioned me in Spanish and asked me to pick out one of the skippers who had been mine-laying, saying that he would have him shot, and would give me my liberty and a position in the German service. I replied that none of us had been mine-laying. The doctor then turned to an army officer and said to him in French that he could get nothing out of the nigger I then interrupted him and told him I understood French.

"A few days were spent at Emden in conditions of great discomfort. The town seems to have been en fete. Excursions were run from the neighborhood and the prisoners exhibited.

"Before the journey to Sennelager another medical inspection took place, but it was obviously a mere formality, as no notice was taken of any complaints.

On September 2nd there was another inspection by the same doctor. Some of the prisoners reported sick; evidently they were suffering from lack of nourishment. The doctor replied: "I can't bother with you; you will be leaving here at 4 p.m."

The journey to Sennelager lasted sixteen hours. Cattle trucks were used for the conveyance of the prisoners who received as their sole food a little bread at Osnabruck. Crowds gathered at the stations to jeer and gibe at the victims. The presence of the Burgermeister at the stations seems to point to some prearrangement on the part of the authorities.

REPORT GUARDS BEAT THEM.

At Sennelager we were drawn up in the camp, as well as some French and Algerian military prisoners. The camp commandant then addressed us in the following terms: "You English pigs, I will feed you out of the swine tub," and shook his fist at us.

He then allowed our guards to maltreat us by kicking and striking at us to their hearts' content, and looked on laughing. We all were struck. This lasted for about two hours.

"In order to prevent the prisoners escaping, or as a mark of degradation their hair, mustaches and beard were shaved off one side of the head each prisoner being kicked into position before the operation was performed.

"For a fortnight these unfortunate men were made to sleep out in the open fields, and no blankets were provided. Subsequently tents were erected, but the wants of the English civilians were always attended to last. 'Nix (nichts) for the English' was the common cry.

The staple diet usually consisted of a pint of coffee for breakfast. This was made of burnt corn and served without sugar and milk. Dinner consisted of a ladle full of some kind of soup. Two ounces of sausage and a pint of coffee were given for supper. The allowance of bread consisted of 200 grammes a day.

"A number of cases of sickness occurred, some doubtless brought on by exposure, others from the brutality of the jailers. The hospital arrangements were very defective. Fortunately English doctors and French and English stretcher-bearers did what they could to alleviate the lot of the sufferers. The condition of the prisoners generally became so verminous owing to the lack of decent arrangements for washing and of proper clothing that the authorities appointed a 'louse doctor' to try and remedy matters.

LABOURED WITHOUT PAY.

"The Germans showed themselves as hard taskmasters, and forced labour was exacted.

The labour of our camp, though supposed to be voluntary and paid for, was incessant, and we were forced out without food in the morning to hard abour on roads and light railways at the point of the bayonet. We did not receive any pay. Whenever one of us refused to go out, immediately we were held, we had bricks put upon our backs and were made to run round the camp.

Punishments for any breaches of discipline (whether real or imaginary) reached the limit of brutality, while complaints on the part of the prisoners failed to effect substantial redress.

When we were lining up in fours for our coffee I was bitten by a wolfhound belonging to a sentry who always treated us with great hostility. He deliberately set his dog at me, and it bit me badly in the left leg above the ankle.

I reported this incident to the commandant at once. No effort was made to dress my wound, which was bleeding, but I was arrested very shortly afterward and taken to prison.

One of the most common punishments inflicted for trivial reasons (such as being a minute or two late for morning parade) was what our guards termed "the ring-drill." The victim had a canvas bag attached to his back with seven or eight bricks placed in it. He was then forced to run round a flagstaff erected in the camp for varying periods up to two hours. I have seen many cases where the victim fell from sheer exhaustion and the guards kicked him until he rose, or until he was carried into the hospital on a stretcher by his fellow prisoners. In the latter case the whole camp was paraded, and the victim was carried round, so that they could all see the result of German camp discipline.

Another punishment took the form of binding prisoners to trees in such an attitude that the maximum suffering was bound to follow:

On the following day, about 11 a.m., I witnessed the punishment of a coloured man named Savory. I do not know what he was accused of, but I saw five or six sentries seize him. One hit him with his fist, another with the butt end of his rifle, and knocked him on to his knees. Savory asked his captors to shoot him, but they stood him up and lashed him to a tree with his toes just touching the ground. He was so tightly lashed that his circulation would have stopped, and he cried out: "God have mercy on my wife and children! shoot me!" Then an officer who seemed to have some influence loosened the ropes somewhat. Savory was placed in such a position that he could be seen by all the prisoners and by the crowd outside the camp. They kept him in this part of the camp for four hours and then took him elsewhere and tied him up again. He was finally released at 3 a.m. the next morning.

"One further act of shameless brutality, which was allowed to pass unpunished, may be recorded:

There was a young Grimsby fisherman, very quiet and well-behaved, who had never been punished for any offense. I saw him one day standing and talking to his friends, four or five yards from the wire boundary of the camp. Without warning, one of the guards struck him on the head with his rifle. The prisoner fell unconscious, blood streaming from his head. He was carried away to the hospital, where he remained three or four months, and after his return to the camp he was subject to very violent fits. He had never suffered from fits before. I was not punished myself, but owing to my half-starved condition I have often crept out in the middle of the night to the dustbins of the camp kitchens and eaten the raw potato peelings. Luckily I was not discovered. It was heartbreaking to see the brutality and cruelty of our guards to us, who were only poor fishermen.

"In August, 1915, a representative of the American Embassy visited Sennelager, and after making an investigation told the prisoners that he would try and get them brought to Ruchleben.

"This plan was actually carried out in the case of certain old prisoners. Though food was very insufficient at Ruchleben, the conditions there, had as they were, were considerable as compared with Sennelager, and there was at least no direct brutality.

"The names of the officers responsible for the outrages of Sennelager are not known to the returned prisoners, but they can be ascertained, and these inhuman monsters will assuredly share with the malefactor of Wittenberg the contempt and loathing of the civilized world."

Japan Growing Rich On Profits Made From War

LONDON.—Japan's plans of expansion in China and in the Pacific ocean war before the war cut to the measure, to a material degree, of Japan's finances.

Before the war it was only with a struggle that Japan could participate in great foreign loans and developments in China. The imperial government had always to help private enterprise, while Chinese bonds purchased by the Japanese group of an international syndicate found their way to London, sale in Japan being impossible.

Marked as Japan's expansion in China has been, it would have been infinitely greater had Nippon a surplus of cash. Every yen there was to spare has been poured into China, but not enough to come even close to establishing the position of commercial domination to which Japan aspires.

LENDS CASH TO RUSSIA.

The war has wrought a great change. Japan is rich. Japan is lending money to Russia the Russia which is financially famous for its enormous gold reserve.

Japan's wealth comes from the war. Her expenditures in a little campaign which led to the capture of Tsingtau and in the activity of her fleet in the Pacific, where it was engaged in chasing Von pee, were small. Once those operations were finished, Japan's outlay ceased and money began to return to the country.

War contracts brought the most but Japan has prospered in many other ways. Her ordinary commerce has vastly expanded, as Japan reached out and grabbed markets that were once German, or even British, French Russian, and American.

The Tokio correspondent of the Morning Post of London has written a digest of Japan's position that is most striking. He shows what has transpired and discusses the plans which Japan is making for the future.

SPECIE NEARLY DOUBLES

"Financially," the correspondent says "the war has placed Japan in a position beyond her dreams. Her specie holdings that before the war stood at $176,500,000 have to-day reached more than $900,000,000.

"Her financiers seem to be somewhat inconvenienced by this sudden and abnormal increase in gold and are evidently at a loss how to utilise it. So far Japan has devoted most of her immense increase in gold to the purchase of 4 1-2 per cent. bonds of her own issue on the London and Paris markets and $50,000,000 in the purchase of British exchequer bonds in America, to accommodate the Bank of England.

"This sudden transformation of Japan from a borrowing into a lending country is a phenomenal experience illustrating the wonderful prosperity accruing from the war.

TRADE STRUGGLE HAS BEGUN.

"When the war is over Germany will find in Japan a formidable competitor in this competition will have to be faced by British and American manufacturers as well. It is a competition that has begun already in the shipping business.

"The principal Japanese shipping companies are now accumulating immense reserves as well as expanding their fleets, the result being an enormous expansion of the ship building industry, which is subsidised heavily by the government. The profits of the shipping companies are being utilised for the most parts to increase capital, the government subsidies being used to insure alluring dividends.

"Similar prosperity is evident in the cotton industry where output and exports have witnessed unprecedented expansion, with record prices, while wages have remained stationary, although already the lowest in the world, with efficiency increasing.

"In the chemical industry, too, Japan has experienced remarkable growth since the beginning of the war, more especially in such lines as dyestuffs, subnitrate of bismuth, salicylic acid, anti-pyrin, acetate of calcium, and formalin, while in glassware, celluloid, paper, pulp, phosphorus and potassium chloride there has been an output almost sufficient to meet the demand.

"It should be mentioned in this connection that a substantial amount of war profits will be used for naval expansion, the programme of which (eight battleships and four battle cruisers to a squadron) has already been announced, though the ultimate aim is said to be eight battle cruisers as well as the eight battleships—i. e., two squadrons of sixteen fighting monsters each."

The tips of a new German aeroplane propeller trend forward when stationary but are straightened by centrifugal force when revolving, which the inventor claims lessens the danger of them being broken by the strain.

PETER O'REILLY, CHAMPION PLOUGHMAN OF ENNISMORE

At Ennismore's second annual ploughing match on T. T. Crouch's farm Thursday afternoon, Peter O'Reilly wrested the township championship for the best ploughing in sod from W. D. Cavanaugh, last year's winner, and with it the silver trophy presented by Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, former pastor of St. Martin's church and now of Calgary.

It was a regular October day, gray and chilling, entirely satisfactory to the ploughmen, but rather uncomfortable to the spectators, fifty or sixty of whom witnessed the competition. Both the sod and stubble fields were above the average for ordinary work, but scarcely met all the requirements for fancy ploughing. The former was rather heavy and compact, in that respect the extreme of the match sod on the Manicee farm, in Otonabee. The stubble field more closely approached the ideal, but it, too, lacked certain qualifications that present good ploughing to the best advantage.

The Winners.

In Sod—

4th, Patrick Cadigan, $6.

In Stubble—

1st, Cornelius O'Reilly, Jr., presented by Jas. Killen.

3rd, Frank Cavanaugh, $7.

Three Horse Plough—

Boys Under 18, in Stubble—

Special Prize.

The committee decided to award a special prize to Dan Crough for the reason that he had used a special plough in the sod whereas the other competitors used ordinary or regular ploughs. Consequently it was felt that Mr. Crough should be placed in a separate class and to provide a prize for him.

The Council's Interest.

Ennismore adopted an unique and direct plan of forming a ploughing association when its municipal council decided two years ago to hold an annual match under the auspices of the entire township, and under the direction of the council. Thus, Reeve W. N. Crough may be termed the president for this year and the councillors constitute the committee. The prizes that are not covered by donations from ratepayers and other gentlemen are provided within a certain limit from the township funds. And this expeditious and evidently completely satisfactory scheme works smoothly and effectively.

Mr. Smithson, Judge.

Mr. Joshua Smithson of Otonabee, judged the work. Mr. Smithson is one of the most ardent advocates of better ploughing in the County of Peterborough. Forty years ago, in the hey-day of the ploughing match, he turned as straight a furrow as the best of them in the country. With regret he witnessed the declining interest in these competitions until they had become almost extinct. To-day he is doing a splendid work for agriculture in this county by assuming a large share of the work of the county organization of which he is the president, and by trying to further every movement for better ploughing that appears in the townships. His great hope is that each township will form a local association. Thus far Asphodel, Otonabee and Smith have been sending the most competitors to the county competitions, but the interest is spreading. Ennismore is in a class by itself in so far as local contests are concerned, but the other townships are expected to gradually fall in line with the movement.

Makes Better Farmers.

It is Mr. Smithson's conviction that the farmer who endeavours to become a good ploughman, will become a better farmer. There is a psychological reason for this influence which supports Mr. Smithson's experience. Yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the match he congratulated Ennismore upon the quality of the work exhibited at its second ploughing match and he predicted that in time marked beneficial results would accrue to all those who determine to do better ploughing. The practice of steady, careful ploughing was bound to show its results in all the work of the farmer and eventually it would bring Ennismore plough men into prominence in the county matches.

Mr. Smithson spoke of the ideal labour farming offered. It required man's best efforts and would repay them with material and personal results. Especially to-day the farmer must get the most out of his land and in a large measure this depended upon the work he put into it, and upon the quality of that work. Mr. Smithson mentioned the personal qualities that produced the best ploughing, application, attention to detail, steadfastness, patience and a love of farm work. The very exercise of these qualities would produce a reflex influence upon them, strengthening them and ultimately making better characters, better men and better farmers. In conclusion, Mr. Smithson expressed the hope that Ennismore would continue its ploughing matches which, he said, had already afforded him a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. He complimented the men on their work, and looked for a large entry list next year, especially of the boys under eighteen.

Other Speakers.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. stated that he had attended the match to show that he was interested in better farming, in Ennismore as in the whole county. He congratulated the winners and also complimented all the contestants upon the good work they had performed. He heartily endorsed all that Mr. Smithson had said regarding the influences of good ploughing upon general farm work, and upon agriculture as a whole, and referred to the fine expression of ideals Mr. Smithson had voiced.

Three cheers were given for Mr. Smithson and the champion, Mr. O'Reilly.

Reeve Crough and County Clerk Elliott also complimented and encouraged the plough men. Previously, Mr. Elliott had given a noteworthy, if not a notable, exhibition of ploughing for County Clerks conceive good ploughing. If Mr. Elliott could plough as efficiently as he can "county clerk," a bee line would look like a snake fence beside his furrows.

Best Nerve Specialist in England Was Consulted

But Nervous System Failed to Respond to Treatment Prescribed

Nervous disorders frequently result from injury to the nerves in accident or because of the shock to the system.

The writer of this letter was injured in a mix-up with some colts. Remained unconscious for three weeks, and in spite of continued treatment in hospital could not obtain restoration of the internal nerves which control the action of the digestive and other vital organs. So travelled to Europe and consulted England's greatest nerve specialist. Relief was only temporary, in spite of many treatments used.

This letter gives the facts briefly and tells how he was finally cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Can you imagine any more severe test of this great nerve restorative?

Mr. Henry F. Vass, Oak Ranch, Chilliwack, B. C., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has restored my nervous system and given me new health. Having met with a severe accident seven years ago, from which I was unconscious and which left me in a very sore plight. I was treated by doctors galore and consulted one of the greatest nerve specialists in England, but nothing seemed to do me much good. Hypophosphites and, in fact, all and every kind of nerve mixture in almost every form was used, but never with more than temporary benefit.

"But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has acted very differently, for it has built up my nervous system until I feel like my old self again. If this medicine will do for others what it has done for me, I shall not regret having written this letter. I have recommended the Nerve Food personally to many, and shall always endorse its great restorative value."

STATE OF THE CHURCH

We now come to the state of the church at the time that St. John wrote the epistles and therevelation he was in the isle of Patmos, where he was banished by the Roman Emperor Domitan—for the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus Christ. Patmos was a place peculiarly situated for the visions which God gave him by the angel. This Book belongs to those who are under the cross, it was given to a banished man. Patmos was an unhabitated island in the Aegean Sea, a barren rock inhabited by wild beasts. The Roman tribunal expected that the apostle would be devoured by the wild beasts, but the angel shut the mouths of the lions den, in which Daniel was cast shut the mouths of the wild beasts of Patmos lonely island. I have seen a painting of the aged apostle, standing on the rock shore with his hand raised to his eyes and his long beard and hair streaming in the wind as he stands gazing over the stormy sea, alone, but not alone for God's angels were his companions and he had audience with Heaven. He saw at a small distance Asia and the seven churches over which he was Bishop; eastward Jerusalem and the land of Canaan and beyond this antioch the whole continent of Asia, to the west he had Rome Italy and all Europe, to the south Alexandria and the Nile, Egypt and all Africa and to the north what was afterwards called Constantinople—he had all the then known world before his eyes, but banished the thither for preaching the word of God and for the testimony of Jesus. While the apostles looked out at that set a great Panorama was passing before him his mind was on sublime things; it was the Lord's Day and he was in the spirit on the Lord's Day—that is, in a trance or prophetic vision so overwhelmed with the light and power of the Holy Spirit as to be insensible of outward things and wholly taken up with spiritual. It is understood that St. John saw that vision in one day; spiritual things are not measured by material, neither is time. It was on the Lord's Day that Christ rose from the dead and ancient writers said that he would come again on that day—the time of writing the revelation is placed A. D. 96 or 97 after Saint John returned to Ephesus. This Book is the revelation of Jesus Christ and so is all scripture, the events it records is past, present and future, it connects with the prophecies of the old testament and fills in the gap between the old and new testament, dispensation and links on to the prophecies of Daniel without which it would be incomplete. The principle subject is to reveal to us the purpose of God, connecting the church and the world for the present and future. To all who hear the words of this prophecy a blessing is given: it is a blessed privilege to hear or to read the scriptures, Jesus said: search the scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life and they are they which testify of me, so let us read and hear that we may keep the things that are written therein. The blessing pronounced on the seven churches of Asia are grace and peace holiness and comfort, where grace goes before, peace will follow. The apostle heard behind him a great voice as of a trumpet saying, I am Alpha and Omega the first and the last and what thou seest write in a book and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia, unto Ephesus and unto Smyrna and unto Pergamos and unto Thyatira and unto Sardis and unto Philadelphia and unto Laodica, and I turned to see the voice that spoke with me and being turned I saw seven golden candlesticks and in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks, one like unto the Son of Man and when I saw him I fell at his feet as dead and he laid his right hand upon me saying I am the first and the last write the things which thou hast seen and the things which are and the things which shall be hereafter. The message to the church of Ephesus I know thy works and thy labours and thy patience ,and for my names sake hast laboured and not fainted, yet I have somewhat against the thou hast left thy first love—repent and do thy first works. He that hath an ear let him hear to the angel of the church in Smyrna. I know thy works and tribulation and poverty, but thou art rich; fear none of these things which thou shalt suffer, be thou faithful unto death. and I will give thee a crown of life to the angel of the church in Pergamos. I know thy works and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is and thou holdest fast my name and hast not disphed my faith. But I have a few things against you, because thou hast them they that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who caused Israel to eat things sacrificed to idols and to commit fornication—thou hast also them that hold the doctrine of the nicolatines—repent else will come unto the quickly; unto the angel of the church at Thyatira write I know thy works of charity and service and faith and they patience and they works and the last to be more than the first notwithstanding I have a few things against thee because thou sufferest that woman Jezebel to teach and seduce my servants to commit fornication and eat things sacrificed to idols, unto the angel of the church in Sardis write I know thy works that thou hast a name, that thou livest and are dead. I have not found thy works perfect before God and to the angel of the church in Philadelphia; write I know thy works, thou hast a little strength and hast kept my word and hast not denied my name for I have loved three and unto the church of the Loadicean write, I know thy works that thou art neither cold nor hot therefore. I will spue out of my mouth. The above quotations are from sacred scripture far above any description mortal man could make of the spiritual standing of the church at that time, the message come from Jesus Christ by the angel to St. John to be delivered to and read in the seven churches in Asia by each angel or minister and to be applied to all churches, to all peoples for all times till the end of time and amongst the last words or His message he said. Behold I come quickly. In the next letter we will try to show the spiritual state of the church at the next stage.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Voyage. Acts 27.1-38.

Golden Text: Commit thy way unto Jehovah. Trust also in Him, and He will bring it to pass. Psalm 37:5.

1. Verses 1-8. The writer of this narrative appears to be an eye witness and a companion of Paul; who was he?

2. How much does God have to do with the journies his people take on sea or land, either at their own option or forced by circumstances?

3. What kind of results may we expect to follow when a man of God is in the company of criminals for a long period of time?

4. What class of men ought to be the guards of prisoners and of lunatics, and why?

5. Verses 1-6. Why may we make just as much progress in the performance of our duty, when the wind is contrary as when it is in our favour?

6. Why would you say that is the duty of a guard of prisoners to make a distinction, according to the character of the prisoners, in the way He treats them?

7. If Paul had made his escape, seeing he was innocent, when Julius gave him liberty at Sidon to visit his friends in that city, what would you have thought of him, and why?

8. Verses 9-11. What difference need it make to a godly man whether he has fair sailing, or is becalmed for lack of wind, or is in a driving storm through too much wind?

9. Paul advised them not to proceed on their journey, but to winter at Crete, but they disregarded his advice, to their sorrow. Why is the advice of a man of God to be taken in preference to that of a worldly man?

10. To what extent may we depend on prayer to God to direct us when we are in great peril?

11. Verses 12, 13. When, if ever, is the voice of God in our souls to be depended upon, rather than the seeming evidence of our outward senses?

12. What special danger are we in "when the south wind blows softly," and we are inclined to go with it, and against our inward religious convictions?

13. When the wrong road is strewn with roses and the birds sing enchantingly, and when the path of duty is stony and lonesome, what must we do so as never to be led astray?

14. Verses 14-17: As a rule, when on the wrong road, how long does the "South wind blow softly" before the tempestuous wind, called Euroleydon" strikes us?

15. When our ship, on which we sail the ocean of life is in a dangerous storm, what is the thing to do to be saved from shipwreck?

16. Verses 18-20. When in danger through our sin, how many things must we throw overboard to save our ship from sinking?

17. Verses 21-38. What benefit, if any, is abstinence from food, where we need some direction from God in a great emergency?

18. When in our folly we refuse God's best plan, has He always got a good plan left for us? Give your reasons.

19. God sent an angel to Paul with a most gracious message. May we ever hope for such an experience in these days, and why?

20. Paul the prisoner became the chief guide, comforter and main-stay of the centurian and all on board his ship. How do you account for it?

Ample provision is made for attending to the wounded aboard British warships. In the later ships there is a special hatchway for lowering wounded men to the surgeons. The men are carried up on stretchers and then placed in the new kind of stretcher shown in this illustration, which enables the wounded to be lowered feet first without adding to their suffering.

THE LAST LOAD OF THE SEASON. SILO FILLING AT ENGLEBURN FARM.
Perhaps it should not be called silo filling this season for, as in many other silos in Ontario, there is considerable space unfilled. The corn went in in good condition, however.

AN AFTERNOON AT ENGLEBURN FARM

By R. D. Colquette, B. S. A.

It was one of those perfect autumn afternoons that I visited Engleburn Farm, the home of Mr. M. S. Burnham, Peterboro Co., Ont. The sky was cloudless and not a breeze was stirring. There was an October coolness about the atmosphere but it was tempered by the sun just enough to make an overcoat unnecessary even while driving. It was an ideal day for silo filling and silo filling I found the men folks busily engaged with when I arrived. Rather a busy time for learning about the farm operations, one might think. But there were only a few more loads of corn to be brought in and I employed part of the time in securing snapshots of some of the many interesting features of the farm. Some of these appear on this page and others will appear later in Farm and Dairy. When the film pack of my camera was exhausted I returned to the barn and lent a helping hand, or rather foot, in the silo until the last of the corn was finished. Mr. Burnham was then at liberty to chat about his farming methods.

Engleburn Farm is principally noted for its pure bred Jerseys. The herd was established 28 years ago, and for 20 years cream has been sold to the same firm in the city of Peterboro, which is only about two and a half miles distant. Each morning the trip is made to town. Seventeen cows are at present being milked, and, as might be expected with Jerseys, the herd is a high testing one, averaging over five per cent. of butter fat. Mr. Burnham is a firm believer in putting cows to a test, and is a member of the local cow testing centre, so that each of the animals has to give a strict account of itself. At the head of the herd is Branton Eminent Fox, a son of the noted imported bull, Arthur's Golden Fox. Recently the second prize junior bull calf at Toronto Exhibition has been purchased, and a promising youngster he is, a worthy successor to the splendid bull which had preceded him in the herd.

Some three years ago the stables were enlarged and the silo built. The new stables have up-to-date equipment with metal fixtures and cement floors. The fixtures are not galvanized, this in the owner's opinion being a rather serious defect as it necessitates giving them a coat of aluminum paint every year, and even this does not succeed in keeping them in the best condition. An acetylene gas lighting outfit is installed in the stables as well as in the house, but though it has proved highly satisfactory for household purposes, not so much can be said for it in the stables. Some time ago an accident by which one of the glass bulbs was broken, came very nearly being the cause of a fire. Since then its use has been discontinued. The silo is of cement construction 12 feet in inside diameter and 40 feet high. This year, as in the case of the majority of silos, it is far from full. The corn, however, went in in excellent shape, and there will be a lot of good feeding in it during the winter months.

A WELL DIVERSIFIED FARM.

Operations are by no means confined to dairying on Engleburn Farm. On the contrary they are very widely diversified. As on the majority of dairy farms, hog raising is the most extensive sideline, and the most profitable one, as high as $11.75 being realized for hogs this season. Another source of income is the orchard, from which $580 was realized one season—that of two years ago. Pure-bred Shropshire sheep and Wyandotte poultry are also kept, and to round out the list of operations on this all-round farm the manufacture of maple sugar is followed quite extensively. Burnham Wood, as it is locally known, is well suited for this purpose, as it consists of 100 acres of forest from which very little timber has ever been taken.

SOLVING THE LABOR PROBLEM.

In common with most of the farmers, Mr. Burnham has had a labor problem to contend with. His solution of this problem has not been widely adopted, not as widely as its merits warrant. It has proved very satisfactory, both from the standpoint of the owner and of the young man who has charge of the work on the farm. It is also a noteworthy tribute to the enterprise and intelligence of Mr. W. J. McGregor, the young man in question. As a boy he worked for several years on the farm, during which time he became thoroughly familiar with the farming methods followed. He also impressed Mr. Burnham with his enterprise and ability, an impression that outlived the 10 years in which he was away, a part of the time out West. It was during the period of his absence that the labor problem in Ontario developed. On his return an arrangement was made by which for a stated share in the returns from his farm he was to take full charge of the farm work, Mr. Burnham retaining a supervisory interest in the management. Being now a married man Mr. McGregor was also provided with a house on the farm. By this arrangement his remuneration depends largely on his own efforts, and there is, therefore, a constant incentive to increase the income from the farm. If this system of profit sharing were more widely adopted it would doubtless have the effect of inducing many of the more energetic young men to stay on the farm instead of turning their steps cityward.

AN ATTRACTIVE COUNTRY HOME

On approaching Engleburn Farm from the west, one's attention is first attracted to the evergreen shelter belt that flanks the buildings and grounds on that side. This belt, which is about 12 feet high, is composed of cedar and Norway spruce. It is trimmed perpendicularly at the sides, and level across the top, and thus resembles a high hedge. Above it only the roof of the house can be seen. "It makes a nice protection from the storms of the winters," said Mr. Burnham, "but it is no small contract to keep it well trimmed." I have often wondered why it is that in districts that were once covered with woods, and where it is a simple matter than out on the prairies, where handsome groves or shelter belts, less interest seems to be taken in the matter than out on the prairies, where much greater difficulties have to be overcome in making the farm grounds attractive by planting. It would not be necessary to go to the trouble that Mr. Burnham has done to keep it trimmed, but any one who has seen this beautiful row of evergreens with the two shades of green showing up, both in summer and winter, would be inspired to emulate the owner by planting a few sheltering trees at least on the exposed side of the home grounds.

Circling in front of the house is a cinder driveway, and on this lawn is a fine example of what can be done with our native trees by way of ornamental planting. A common native spruce originally dug up in the woods and planted in the lawn, has developed into a beautiful ornamental tree about eighty feet high and as much in diameter. It is trimmed heart shaped, and the foliage is so dense as to make it appear like a solid block. I would delight the heart of any landscape gardener. These and many other features lend an attractiveness to the country home that draws many remarks of appreciation from those who have seen it. An ideal place to live, is Engleburn Farm.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passage of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking snuffling, mucous discharge, headache dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

GASOLINE IN WAR SURGERY.

The war apparently has been the cause of revealing a hitherto little known use for gasoline, namely in the cleaning of wounds.

Dr. M. H. Embree of the Royal Army Medical Corps, describes his experience with it in the British Medical Journal. The New York Medical Journal prints this comment on his article in the current issue:

"It has been in use for twenty years he says, in the hospitals of Toronto Ontario, to cleanse contused, lacerated wounds, with dirt ground into them. As the wounds received at the front are contused, lacerated wounds, and come in a very dirty condition, it seemed worth while to try gasoline in cleaning them; the method used in his field ambulance for the first cleansing of wounds is as follows:

"The skin, and then the surface of the wound, is cleaned by vigorous rubbing with a swab of absorbent cotton soaked in gasoline. Swabs of cotton are wound round an artery forceps or probe and soaked in gasoline, and with them the wound is cleaned from the surface inward as far as the forceps can be pushed. The forceps is rotated and pushed in all directions a number of swabs being used, and the process is continued until a couple of swaps come out perfectly clean.

"If there is much dried blood or gross dirt on the surface of the skin or the wound it is best removed with warm water and soap, and a brush, if necessary, before the gasoline is used. The gasoline does not cause any special smarting and the patients did not complain of it when questioned. If gasoline is left wet on the skin and gauze or adhesive plaster strips close together are applied over the dressing, preventing evaporation, there will be blistering of the skin, but otherwise this does not occur.

"Gasoline used in the manner described certainly seems to clean up the surface, and particularly the depths of wounds, better than any other method that has been tried. If we are not mistaken workmen in industrial plants in the United States have long been thoroughly versed in the effective use of gasoline in first aid treatment of dirty cuts and lacerations."

DYES INSTEAD OF POWDER.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The Du Pont Powder Co. and the Aetna Explosives Co., two of the largest munitions concerns in the country, have announced the completion of plans for transformations with the close of the war. Plans were perfected with the assistance of Dr. F. D. Norton, the dye expert of the Chamberos Department. Both companies have built large auxiliary plants since the war began to meet the enormous demand for munitions.

Seattle Woman Kills A Young Canadian

THEN TURNS PISTOL ON HERSELF—ACCUSED BANK CLERK OF SLANDERING HER.

Seattle, October 24.—Leo G. Pratt, an 18 year old clerk in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was shot and killed to-day in the bank by Mrs. Edwin C. Sobel, aged 30, who then shot and killed herself. Mrs. Sobel was the wife of an advertising agent of Seattle, who formerly was the publisher of the Western Motor Car Magazine.

A report as to the motive for the shooting was to the effect that Mrs. Sobel had accused Pratt of telling her husband stories reflecting upon her character.

JANITOR IS NOT SUPREME.

Toronto, October 24.—Occupants of apartment houses may now rejoice. Inspector Robert Wilson of the Department of Health, haled J. W. Ellis before Magistrate Kingsford in the police court yesterday afternoon on a charge of neglecting to supply sufficient heat to the tenants of his apartment house in Roncesvalles avenue.

"What is the reason?" asked the magistrate.

Ellis explained that owing to the war the scarcity of labor was great. In consequence opportunities for securing a competent janitor was limited.

"Well, I am glad to know that the janitor is no longer supreme," said the magistrate as he dismissed the case.

WAR CLEANS UP SLUMS.

War and the resultant industrial activity have done miracles in the great arsenal city of Woolwich, Eng., the health officer states in his annual report. He says:

"As a result of the increased prosperity in Woolwich the homes are better furnished, the provision of bedding is more satisfactory, and the children are much better clothed.

"With better financial conditions many of the home that I almost despaired of have become improved almost beyond belief, which goes to prove very emphatically that if we want to eliminate the slum type of human being and the slum type of home the surest and the quickest way is to give the workman a good living wage.

"It is only natural that wives and mothers get tired of struggling against a tide of difficulties which every day threatens to engulf them."

According to English scientists electricity passed through timber when freshly cut makes it more resistant against decay and fungous growth.

FIRST TRAIN OPERATED FROM TORONTO TO MONTREAL SIXTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—This is the sixtieth anniversary of the inauguration of railroad communication between the cities of Montreal and Toronto. On October 27th, 1856, the Grand Trunk operated its first through train between those two important Canadian centres.

Toronto and Montreal had been dependent for their communication upon the St. Lawrence waterway and the stage routes, and after the close of navigation each year intercourse was maintained with great difficulty. The Grand Trunk Railway Company was incorporated in 1852, to build a railroad between the cities, the undertaking being looked upon as one of great national importance. The first section from Montreal to Brockville, 125 miles, was completed in November 1855, and it was on the 18th of October of the following year that the second section from Brockville to Toronto was thrown open, joining up the two principal centres.

The company had promised the people of Canada that it would provide those new facilities for travel during the winter of 1856, and it accomplished its pledge in spite of many difficulties. The general manager of the road in his report to the directors in the following year said, "Notwithstanding all these obstacles the trains were enabled to run with a regularity which was not surpassed, and in the majority of cases not equalled, by any railroad on the continent."

The first train to operate over the Toronto-Montreal line was the forerunner of the International Limited of to-day. It represented the last word in railroad equipment, although it only consisted of three first class and three second class coaches. The eastbound train left Toronto at 7.00 a.m., and the west-bound train left Montreal at 7.30 a.m., and the running time was fourteen hours between the two cities, as against the seven and one half hours of the International Limited of to-day.

The first train from Toronto was greeted on arrival in Montreal by thousands of visitors from all parts of Canada and the United States. There were military parades, trade and society processions, torchlight marches, fireworks and dancing.

The Mayor of Boston, Cleveland and Portland and representatives of the city of Chicago congratulated the Mayors of Montreal and Toronto and the proceedings were graced by the Governor-General of Canada. The Point St. Charles shops of the Grand Trunk were turned into a great banquet hall with seating accommodation for 4,400 guests and every table was crowded. Speeches were made by the Governor General, the Governor of the State of Maine and other notabilities. The Mayor of Montreal alluded with pride to the fact that the Grand Trunk possessed 849 miles of railroad; to-day the Grand Trunk System comprises 8,115 miles of road. Montreal newspapers in describing the banquet hall, said, that the table cloth was close upon one mile in length.

One of the ceremonies in connection with the opening of the line was a visit to the Victoria Bridge, then under course of construction with two abutments and nine piers out of twenty-four already built. Barges, steamboats and sleighs in the winter served to move passenger and freight traffic across the St. Lawrence to join up with the railroad line to the Atlantic seaboard. The company's officials were looking forward with confidence to the traffic which the steamship "Great Eastern," planned in connection with the through booking arrangements of the Grand Trunk, would bring to the line.

Five months after the opening of the road between Toronto and Montreal, night trains were added to the schedule and railway history gives many complimentary accounts of the excellence of the accommodation provided. The first sleeping coach ever made for any railroad in the world was built at Hamilton, Ont.

The Grand Trunk is justly proud to-day of the fact that it was Canada's pioneer railroad and takes especial pride in the fact that it had led the way in a very large number of the most important improvements in connection with railroad transportation, and that it is pursuing the same progressive policy in initiating or adopting all modern devices making for the safety and comfort of its patrons.

ECONOMY URGED IN ITALY.

Rome, October 24.—A government decree just issued orders that all the street lights and also the lights in the stores, hotels and cafes dimmed at 10.30 o'clock in the evening. This is another measure in the continuation of the energetic movement to force national economy, the first measure having been the raising of the price of sugar to 25c a pound and also prohibiting its sale for the manufacture of candies or other sweets.

The government is also making a campaign against the speculators in food stuffs and wearing apparel. A semi-official warning has been published saying that peace is yet distant, and that any merchant making a big profit from his goods at the present time is a traitor to his country.

Men's, women's and children's shoes are selling at from $5 to $9 a pair, and woollen and other articles have doubled in price. Foods produced in Italy, of which the exportation is prohibited, are in the hands of the speculators. Eggs have disappeared from the markets.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Three Cornered Swindle

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by Associated Literary Press

It wasn't what a conservative old lawyer would call a straight case. I had been sent to London to look up a swindler and make him disgorge for the benefit of the heirs of another sharper. The widow of one John Saunders, an Englishman, who had died in Buffalo several years previously, had put her claim in the hands of a New York law firm. This handed over to a solicitor in London, who put it up to a big swindle before leaving England. The name of the living partner was Smallwood, and it was understood that he had set up as a money lender. The papers criminated Smallwood in a sense, but in case he was declared we could not push the case against him.

After some little trouble I found Smallwood and his den. He was a burly, big man, with a loud voice and a domineering way. In assisting to perpetrate that swindle he had a narrow escape, and he realized that in a way he was still under the surveillance of the police, but I put him down as a man not to be easily frightened. I found I was right in this. When I had stated my errand he laughed in my face and called me a fool. The one interview satisfied me that my mission was a failure, and I bade Mr. Smallwood good day with as much courtesy as I could assume. It was about lunch-on time when I left his office, and I dropped into a modest restaurant for a light meal. I had scarcely got seated when a stranger, who had a seedy-genteel look about him, asked permission to take the opposite side of the table, saying he had some information to give me. When we had begun on our meal he said:

"I saw you leave old Smallwood's office, and I followed you. Has he done you a bad turn?"

I did not give my case away in replying, but gave him to understand that the money lender had refused to do the square thing by me.

"He's a cur, a cheat, a swindler and all that's mean and contemptible," continued the stranger with a good deal of feeling. "He has cheated and wronged me, and I can get no satisfaction. Today, however, I learned of an incident in his past life that will give me a good hold on him. I must go to Liverpool to complete my information. If you will go along and become responsible for expenses I will share the information with you."

I thought it might be a good thing to hold over Smallwood as a club, any way, and I promised to reward my informant, whose name was Duff, if anything came of it. In a couple of hours I returned to the money lender's office. He greeted me affably and said:

"I have heard that you Yankees are a persistent race, but in this case you are simply wasting your shoe leather. I suppose you have come to make a new offer?"

"I have, about that Liverpool affair," I replied, and I went on and stated the nature of his crime and the name he used to sail under.

The shot told. The man grew nervous and pale faced, and when I had concluded he said:

"How you secured your information I do not know, but I will frankly admit that it is partly correct. I have little fear that the police would meddle with me at this late date, but I do not care to have the affair stirred up. I am willing to make a fair financial arrangement with Saunders' widow."

That was a matter to be talked over at another meeting.

When I made my third call on Smallwood I was cordially received, and while waiting for supper to be served we came to an understanding. He was to give me $10,000 for Saunders' widow, and I was to give him a receipt in full. He grew sociable and jolly as the affair was concluded, and my glass was no sooner empty than he treated me to drink again. Other and ten things began to whirl, and then it was a blank. When I recovered consciousness it was morning and I was lying on a cot bed in a strange room.

"Where am I?" I asked of a man who was in the room.

"In Dr. Coldwell's private lunatic asylum," he replied.

"Who brought me here?"

"Your friends. The loss of your money in that Peruvian speculation unbalanced your mind. You will be well cared for here, and if you did not go you should your detention will not last over three months."

"I see how it is," I said as I looked him straight in the eye. "I am indebted to Smallwood for this. He drugged me and had me brought here that he might have time to fix up his affairs."

I was given plenty of reading matter and the doctor played chess with me and taken altogether, the time did not pass unpleasantly. In the three weeks I was in the house I saw only the doctor and an old woman. At 9 o'clock one evening I was told that the cure was complete and ten minutes later was being driven away from the building in a closed carriage. After an hour's ride I was set down in a street in Whitechapel, and had I been blindfolded by all the police of London I could not have found the house where I had been held captive. Smallwood had been gone a week—gone no one knew where. While I do not believe there was anything in the Liverpool story told me by Duff, the banker had a wad more afraid of me than he need have been and had played me a pretty little trick to give himself time to set the affairs and move on.

HUMBERT LIKE ROBERTS

Creator of Sherlock Holmes Describes French General

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle describes a visit to the French front as follows: That night we dined with yet another type of the French soldier, the general who commands the corps of which my friend has one division. Each of these French Generals has a striking individuality of his own which I wish I could fix upon paper. Their only common point is that each seems to be a rare good soldier. The corps general is Achon with a touch of d'Artagnan. He is well over six feet high, burly, with huge, curturing moustaches, and a voice that would rally a regiment. It is a grand figure which should have been done by Van Dyck with lace collar, hand on sword, and arms akimbo. Jovial, and laughing was he, but a stern and hard soldier was lurking behind his smiles.

His name may appear in history, and so may Humbert'l who rules all the army of which the other's corps is a unit. Humbert is a Lord Roberts figure, small, wiry, quick-stepping, all steel and elastic, with short, sharp upturned moustache. . . h one could imagine as crackling with electricity in moments of excitement, like a cat's fur. What he does or says is quick, abrupt and to the point. He fires his remarks like pistol shots at this man or that. Once to my horror he fixed me with his hard little eyes and, demanded "Sherlock Holmes, est ce qu'il est in soldat dans l'armee Anglaise?" The whole table waited in an awful hush. "Mais, mon general," I stammered. "Il est trop vieux pour service." There was a general laughter.

By the introduction of ventilating devices a lead smelter works in Hungary reduced the illness among its employees from 75 per cent. to three per cent.

PLAYED HOSE ON CASE OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES

Gallant British Naval Officer and Soldier Win Rare Honor Aboard French Ammunition Ship

The King received at Buckingham Palace Lieutenant-Commander Arthur Richard S. Law Warden, R.N., and decorated him with the Albert Medal (1st class) for special gallantry. The award of the 1st class Albert Medal is very infrequent, and the deed for which it was awarded would probably have won the Victoria Cross or other high military decorations but for the fact that it was not performed "in face of the enemy" in a military sense.

The following was the record read in the Official Gazette in giving out the medal, shook hands with the recipient and heartily congratulated him on his coolness and heroic behavior: On the morning of October 26, 1915, the orderly officer on duty at the Bassin Loubet, Bologne, was informed that a fire had broken out in the after-hold of the steamship Maine, ammunition ship, in which a quantity of high explosives was stowed, and he immediately reported the fact to Lieutenant-Commander Arthur R. S. Warden, R.N., at the office of the naval transport officer. In the meantime the ship was abandoned by her officers and crew and steps were taken by the local fire brigade to rig the shore fire hoses.

Cases Were Browning

Lieutenant-Commander Warden immediately proceeded on board, and on arrival at the after-hold found smoke issuing from between the high explosive cases in the centre of the hatch. He went down into the hold, lifted up one of the cases, and called for the fire hose, which was passed to him by Private R. Gimble, Middlesex Regiment, who had followed him on board. This case, and the one next to it, were alight on their adjacent sides. Lieutenant-Commander Warden played the hose on them and extinguished the fire.

Fire Is Began

Subsequent investigation showed that the fire was in all probability due to the ignition by friction or spontaneous combustion of amorphous phosphorous which had leaked from boxes containing that substance stowed above the cases containing the high explosive. There is little doubt that the gallantry of Lieutenant-Commander Warden prevented an explosion which would have had serious and possibly disastrous results, with almost certain loss of life. Mention is made in the following of Private R. Gimble, of the Middlesex Regiment, who pluckily backed up the lieutenant-commander. The Albert Medal of the second class has been conferred on this soldier.

If Your Hair Is Coming Out Read This

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who have tried nearly every advertised hair-tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomforts. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germs. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be mixed by any druggist: Bay rum, 6 ounces; Lavona de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half dram. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 dracham of your favorite perfume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Ladies should be careful not to apply to face or where hair is not desired.

WAITER PROVED A HERO

Italian Who Visited Gorizia During Austrian Occupation

In one of the Italian restaurants in the London business district, much frequented by newspapermen there is a popular and polite little figure who has been kept busy telling of his experiences in Gorizia. When he was a private in the Italian Bersaglieri he went into the famous Austrian fortress under the very eyes of the enemy and had a meal in a restaurant.

"We were on a hill," he said, "and we could see Gorizia far away down below us. I should say it was about six or seven miles, and we were talking about the distance, when one of the Austrian prisoners we had just taken said, 'Why don't you go down there and see Gorizia?' We had taken a number of Austrian prisoners and they were very decent chaps and we gave them salad and Chianti wine. One night we said, 'Very well,' and we went down. There were seven of us and three Austrian prisoners to show the way. It was dark and I do not know what Gorizia was like. We went to a place and had supper. It was in the poorer part of the town, but we had a very good supper there with our prisoner guides. There were no soldiers in the town itself then.

"We were on the hill at one side and the Austrians were behind it and on the sides. There were old people there and sometimes Austrian soldiers came to visit their homes there, but did not wear uniforms in the streets. The old woman of the restaurant said that her son who was an Austrian soldier had been there earlier in the evening. We asked her to show us his clothes, which she did to prove that what she said was true, and one of us cut off the collar of his uniform with the number of his regiment on it."

Here his story stopped. He spoke [illegible] adventure, the slipping back to their own lines and the dangers that surrounded them everywhere worth mentioning, though he admitted that the visit was a good deal talked about in the regiment. A few weeks later he was wounded and now he is back in his old place in the London City restaurant once more.

SIMPLE LETTER SHOWS HEROISM OF FRANCE

Written in Blood, Dying Officer's Scrawl Forgot Nobody—Orderly Cries Like Child

It is a humble unconspicuous little thing, an ordinary notebook, bound in black oilcloth, such as you may buy anywhere for two sous. But on those yellowed pages there are crimson stains, already many months old, and faded like a rose. "It is the blood of Lieutenant Luquiaud, fallen for his country at the age of twenty-four at Angres. He belonged to the third battalion of the 63th regiment of French infantry, which for two days held its position in a German trench, taken at the bayonet's point. During these two days, out of a total of eight hundred men, 320 were killed, 250 wounded, and of the fifteen officers, six fell and five were severely wounded. Of the four remaining officers only two came out of the struggle unhurt. A shell tore away the lower half of Lieutenant Luquiaud's face, leaving only the eyes and the forehead above strong man he had in one second been transformed into a horrible ghost. His orderly, Poupart, bandaged him as best he could, took him into his arms and gently carried him to the rear.

The Wonderful Letter

In a second line trench, the dying man awaited the coming of the nurses, whom he was not to live long enough to see. With tears in their eyes his men stood around him. A rattling sound in the dying man's throat, and Sergeant Merigaud understood that his lieutenant wanted to write. He handed him a pencil and his own little notecook, in which he had entered the names and addresses of his men and whom to notify in case of their death. The dying officer wrote: "I thank all those who have been fighting with me." Then his thought went out to those who would mourn his death. "You will please tell my parents that I have always done my duty." Then came: "Please inform my family: Luquiaud, Bellevue, near Remalercs."

His Money For the Poor

The last words were badly written. His strength was failing rapidly, but suddenly he made a last heroic effort and wrote in a bold hand: "I die happy." Then the death struggle set in. The next words at first appeared quite illegible, but later on his soldiers made out some of them—"Do not take me away from here—because the Boches may recapture the trench."

Thus until the last he thought of his duty. But he did better still. He wanted to show his friendship towards his loyal, faithful orderly, Poupart, who stood at his side crying like a child: "500 francs—my money for Poupart. 500 francs for the poor at my home." These were his last words.

COURAGE---CHIEF ASSET

Why Britain Chose Lloyd-George—Saw War's Awful Size

The secret of the hold Mr. Lloyd-George has on the popular imagination, wrote T. P. O'Connor, is the impression he gives to everybody of that iron and inflexible courage which makes him never count the cost whenever he has convinced himself that he ought to take a certain course. He told me once that when he was making up his mind about anything he passed through a hard, an anxious and an unhappy time; but when once he had made up his mind, all care dropped from him as a mantle, and he then went on without any further worry wherever the course he adopted might lead him. This was the kind of courage the man in the street knew was especially necessary in one who had to take the chief responsibility for the conduct of the war.

Another secret of the hold which Mr. Lloyd-George has got on the imagination of the nation, is that almost from the first hour of the war he seemed to be the first, and except for Lord Kitchener, the only one who grasped its gigantic difficulties. I do not know whether he began the war like that—few people did, especially few civilians. Mr. Lloyd-George's hour of conversion came, I think, during his first visit to the front.

DRAFT NIJINSKY TO WAR.

Russia Threatens to Declare Dancer a Deserter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Waslav Nijinsky, the Russian dancer, has been ordered by the Russian War Office to return to Russia and report at once for military service, under penalty of being considered a deserter, according to a statement given out by E. I. Bernays, who is associated with the American management of the Ballet Russe. The dancer is under contract to tour America with the ballet, and, as he is the principal dancer of the organization, steps have been begun to have the order set aside.

Last winter, when the ballet made its first appearance here, Nijinsky was interned in Austria as an alien subject. His release was finally obtained in time for him to appear during the spring season at the Metropolitan by Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who succeeded in enlisting the offices of the American Ambassador, in Vienna and of the King of Spain. The dancer was released upon his promise that he would not bear arms during the war against the Central Powers.

The ballet management holds that for Nijinsky to return to Russia and enter military service in view of his promise would bring up a point of international law that might involve this government, and such representations will be made to the Russian Government in the hope that it will nullify or at least qualify the order of its War Department.

TRUST BRITISH CAVALRY

Hundreds of Thousands Trained For Modern Warfare

A Canadian paper adds:—The First Dragoon Guards, one of Britain's crack cavalry regiments, were used in a charge on German organizations. Great Britain still believes in this arm of the service in spite of the trench warfare. She has approximately 350,000 cavalrymen in France and England, trained to the minute, and these men can take their place as infantrymen in the trenches as well as charge the enemy on horseback. The most intelligent and physically perfect men in Great Britain have been picked for this work. They have been taught to charge over ground pitted with small holes and terrain of this sort has been prepared on British moors where the cavalry has been going through the hardest sort of work.—Toronto Mail.

"those upon whom they inflict suffering, for the pleasure of seeing them die slowly, are old men, women, young boys, and little children." Women and children were locked into houses and then the houses were set on fire and all the inhabitants left to burn to death. General Deruette, aide-de-camp to King Albert, saw, at Hofstade, the dead body of an old woman pierced by ten bayonet wounds. She was still holding in her hand the needle and thread with which she had been sewing. They came into houses to ask for food, and as they were being served, cut off the hands of the woman feeding them. After an old peasant had given them all the hay and feed in his stable for their horses, they kicked him against the wall and shot him. An old man, aged seventy brought them buckets of water for their horses and was killed outright by way of thanks.

At Ana a little boy of six was playing with a toy pistol. A German soldier shot him dead because he was playing at soldiers. A child three years old was burned on his nose and the thumb of his right hand by German officers with their lighted cigars. Children of any three, four years old were assassinated. I cannot give some of the horrible details of the crimes against children. No woman can read the book without being moved to tears.

Mr. Nothomb gives authenticated proof of the fact that all these crimes were planned beforehand, and were committed, for the most part, in cold blood. Occasionally, he says, the German private soldier showed some sympathy, but the officers were never seen to express the faintest sign of pity. Can one wonder at that grim and terrible prayer in the play that Sarah Bernhardt played here last week, "Father, forgive them not, for they know what they do?"

Do you remember when John Bunyan says, "There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bunyan?" In reading "The Barbarians in Belgium" one feels like saying, "There, but for the grace of God and the power of the British navy is the fate of Canada." We are told, and one can have but little doubt that it is true, that plans for the re-arrangement of all the Canadian cities, according to German ideas, are on fyle in Berlin. Thinking Canadians do not doubt that the Germans had the riches of Canada as one of their objective points in contemplating the results of "the Day."

And yet there are people in Canada who say, "This war does not concern Canada. Let Great Britain pull her own chestnuts out of the fire."

Suppose we all agreed to that, and then the day should come when Canada should meet the fate of Belgium.

BERLIN'S WAR MURDER

Worst Passions Revealed in Deed of Three Women

Three young women were held prisoners in Berlin charged with murdering a beautiful girl, cutting her body into pieces and shipping it away hid in a trunk. Two prisoners confessed. The third is held as an accessory. Police authorities said it was the worst atrocity in Berlin criminal annals.

Elsa Ullmann and Helene Bahl, who lived together, invited Fraulein Franske, an unusually pretty girl, to take supper with them. While they plied her with food and drink and pretended to make much of her, Anna Sonnenberg locked the door and acted as "lookout." Then the Ullmann girl threw a noose about Fraulein Franske's neck and the Bahl girl suddenly slashed her in the face with a razor. It was some time before they succeeded in killing their victim.

Leaving the Sonnenberg girl still on guard, the two murderesses calmly went out and bought a trunk, which they had sent home. They dismembered their victim, packed her in the trunk and sent it to a fictitious address in Stettin. Here suspicious circumstances led the police to open the trunk. By clever detective work the crime was laid bare and the accused were arrested in a restaurant in Berlin. As motive for the crime, it was learned the Bahl girl, while pretending to be Fraulein Franske's friend, was jealous of her. Both were in love with a man named Schulze.

A military officer and ten other people were fined in a Kent coast town for having lights visible after a siren had sounded an air raid warning.

WERE CANADA BELGIUM

An Englishman said to me the other day: "Even yet, you in Canada do not realise this war."

We think we do realise it when we see our always mounting list of casualties; when we see our men going off to France to fight for us; when we read the deathless tales of Canadian heroism, and yet I am beginning to think that the Englishman was right. We make our little moan because sugar is twice as dear and all our food necessaries are mounting; we grumble because we have so many little hardships to which we have been unaccustomed but we would have to go to France and Belgium to really realise what war means.

It would be a good thing for us all, I think, if we could do that; if we could really get the knowledge of war conditions inside our brains and inside our hearts, for, were we able to do so, there would be no necessity of a recruiting campaign. Every Canadian would dedicate his or her life to the cause of the Allies if, for no other reason than to save Canada from the fate of Belgium.

To-day I have read a book by Pierre Nothomb, a Belgian writer, which is vouched for by Carton de Wiart, Belgian Minister of Justice, who has written a preface for it, and which is sponsored in Canada by the Belgian Consulate so that there can be no doubt of its authenticity. Mr. Nothomb's book, "The Barbarians in Belgium," gives a plain, simple and unvarnished story of the German invasion of Belgium and the atrocities which marked it, a story which, by reason of its very simplicity and lack of "fine writing" leaves you quivering with horror and rage.

One passes over the Germans carelessness of property rights, their inhuman and causeless destruction of churches, libraries, universities and art-galleries, their burning of whole towns and villages, their confiscation of bank accounts, jewels and personal property, disgusting as all this is, but one cannot pass over the frightfull crimes which Germany has committed against the civil population of Belgium, the account of which you read and then read again, wondering if it can possibly be that these things are true and then convinced that they are so because every instance in the book is sworn to by competent and reliable witnesses, and you are repeatedly told that the book is an under-estimate of conditions rather than an over-estimate because many of the atrocities committed are too terrible to be put on paper for civilised people to read.

Catholic Canadians especially should read the chapter entitled "Their Defiance of the Almighty." A priest vouches for this description: "The Germans descended like a swarm on the village of F. on Tuesday, April 20th. They set fire to 190 houses, and 1,000 of the inhabitants are homeless. Twenty-two persons at least have been killed without any reason. Two men, named Macken and Loods, were buried alive before their wives' eyes. The Germans seized me in my garden, bound my hands behind me, and ill-treated me by every means in their power. They erected a gallows for me, saying they were going to hang me. One of them pointed to my head and my ears, and went through a pantomime of cutting them off. They forced me to stare at the sun for a long time. They broke the arms of the blacksmith who was a prisoner with me, and then they killed him. At a given signal they forced me to enter the Burgomaster's house, which was burning, and then they took me out again. They went on like this all day long. Towards the evening, they let me enter the church, saying that it was the last time I should see it. At a quarter to seven they released me, the cavalrymen striking me with their whips as I passed. I was bleeding and had fallen unconscious. I remember an officer raising me to my feet and ordering me to go away. A few yards off they fired at me. I dropped to the ground and lay there as if dead. That was my salvation."

The priests in all districts were used as examples. If hostages were needed, they were first to be seized. After crossing the frontier of the Belgian Luxembourg, the Prussian commandant shouted, "We shall shoot all priests. We have already shot five." The cure of Hacourt was bound to a horse which was set off at a gallop. When a church was reached, this priest, a limp human rag, half-dead, was propped against a wall and shot.

The chaplain of Bouge was bound back to back with a neighbor and both were pierced with bayonets. The cure of Spontin was suspended alternately by his feet and hands, stabbed with knives and then shot. The Abbes Zender and Jacques and M. Houden, cure of Letours, were acting under the orders of the German commandant, by helping to bring in the wounded near Teth. When all the wounded had been put into the motor ambulances, the German commanding officer ordered the three priests to line up on the road and they were shot to death. At Villiers-en-Fagne, a French Jesuit was officiating temporarily in the parish. They shot him in the presbytery and then set fire to it. German officers amused themselves by dressing up in priests' robes and then committing all sorts of crimes in these costumes.

The cure of Gelrode was commanded, if he wished to be spared, to renounce the Catholic faith; he chose rather, to die and he died in agony.

The Germans forced the priests to be present at revolting crimes. They used the sacred linen in the churches for the most profane purposes. They profaned the churches and forced open the receptacles in which the consecrated vessels were kept. They stabled horses in the sanctuaries, whose tomb and altars they had broken, and scattered and trod under foot the relics of the saints, and their treatment of the nuns is a subject not fit for discussion on this page.

I cannot bring myself to discuss the chapter on the treatment of women. It is too terrible to be written about calamity. Every newspaper reader is familiar with the Bryce report of the Belgian atrocities and it is unnecessary to go further into this phase of them.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S YOKE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

To the little sister in the family clothes matter very, very much indeed: she always feels proudly grown up when mother makes her frock with some feature to it that stamps an older model stylish. Contrasting goods serves the purpose in the design illustrated.

The yoke in fancy cutting at back and front makes this one a very interesting frock. There is no collar, the neck edge being merely bound. The sleeve length is a matter of choice, but make two tucks in each half of the front and back for the loose box plait effect that is always good style in dresses for children, and add a few buttons at the yoke centre where it dips into the plait, for they have importance.

There is with this model the opportunity to use light and dark or plain and plaited materials that you may have on hand: because of the great vogue for fabric and color combination it will be a stylish even if a made over frock.

The pattern No. 7,930 is cut in sizes 4, 6 and 8 years. To make in the medium size will require 2 yards of 36 inch material, dark or plaid, and ½ yard of 36 inch light or plain goods.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10c to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

German Destroyers Attempted To Raid Channel Transport Service

Ten Enemy Destroyers Make Dash Into Channel--Sank the Empty Transport "Queen" But Crew of Latter Were Saved---Two of the German Craft Sent to the Bottom and the Rest Were Driven Off---British Destroyer Flint is Missing and Is Feared Lost.]

FRENCH ARE CLOSING IN ON FORT VAUX

LONDON, October 27.—British and German destroyers clashed in a sharp naval engagement in the English Channel last night, the Admiralty announced this afternoon. The German warships attempted a raid under cover of darkness. Two enemy destroyers were sunk. It is feared that one of the British destroyers was lost, the Admiralty added, and another disabled.

The naval fight last night is the first engagement of the war in the English Channel excepting submarine activities, and the first serious clash between British and German warships since the great battle off Jutland on May 31, 1916. German destroyers and fast cruisers have made several daring raids in British waters, approaching near enough to bombard east coast towns and darting back to shore at the approach of British warships. Teuton destroyers also have raided English shipping off the Flanders coast, taking ships in Zee Brugge.

"Last night ten enemy destroyers participated in an attempt to raid the Cross Channel Transport Service," said the Admiralty statement. "The empty transport Queen was sunk. The crew of the transport was saved. Two of the enemy destroyers were sunk and the rest driven off. The British destroyer Flirt is missing, and it is feared is lost. The destroyer Nubian was disabled and forced aground."

The destroyer Flirt was one of the older British destroyers built in 1897. She had displacement of 380 tons, and a complement of 62 men. The Nubian was built in 1909, displacing 985 tons and carrying 71 men.

PARIS (French Official), October 27.—French troops have begun closing in upon Fort Vaux, the last important position held by the Germans northeast of Verdun. In heavy attacks last night, the War Office to-day announced further progress west and south of Vaux and the capture of 100 prisoners. The Germans kept up a lively bombardment throughout the night around Fort Douaumont and the Chenois Woods, recaptured by the French in Monday's offensive. On the Somme front the lull continued. The French artillery exploded a munition depot near Ablaincourt. Bad weather is hindering operations on the Salonika front, it was officially announced today.

BIG BRITISH LINER HAS BEEN SUNK

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 27.—The Johnson liner Rowanmore, ten thousand tons, flying the British flag, has been sunk.

The Rowanmore is one of the largest British liners sunk since the beginning of the war. She was a steel screw four-master.

The Rowanmore's captain was taken prisoner. The crew was landed. The cable thus indicates that the liner was sunk by a submarine.

German Submarine Arrives At Norfolk

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, October 27.—News of the arrival of a German submarine at Norfolk, Va., reached the Navy Department this afternoon, but all information concerning it was withheld. "Nothing to be given out" was the only statement.

Supervision of the Expenditure Of Pensions And Patriotic Fund Under Consideration of Officials

The supervision of the expenditure of pension and patriotic fund allowances is contemplated by the Dominion Pension Board, which is expected to announce in a short time a scheme whereby many of the women receiving these grants will be protected against themselves. The proposal is no reflection upon those soldiers' wives who have been spending their money wisely, and have been wisely saving whatever portion of their allowances they could put away.

It is likely that the branch offices of the Patriotic Fund will be given certain powers by the Pension Board whereby the local administrators of the Fund will be authorized to co-operate with the beneficiaries of the Patriotic Fund and Pension Board in the supervision, where necessary, of the money received by them. Examples, local and otherwise, might be mentioned illustrating the fact that some women on these fund lists have no conception of the value of money, of its use and especially of the need of saving for the future needs of themselves and their families. Besides; there are many persons who look upon the weakness of such women as a reflection upon the administration of the Patriotic Fund and pensions. In short, for numerous reasons the authorities at Ottawa are now engaged upon plans which are expected to be put into effect in a short time.

TO RECRUIT FOR THE NAVY HERE

Lieut. Ellis R. N. is in Peterborough To-day

Peterborough young men who wish to get a chance to do their bit for King and country on the sea instead of on land are to get an opportunity. Lieut. Ellis, of the Royal Navy, is in the city to-day, and as a result of his visit, arrangements are being made for the enrolment of naval recruits for the British Navy. Full particulars will be announced in to-morrow's Examiner. Lieut. Ellis, it may be mentioned, is a brother of Gerald Ellis, formerly of the Review business office staff, and who enlisted with the Peterborough contingent in the 2nd Battalion. He was wounded at Langemarck, and is now a lieutenant in the West Somerys.

RAILWAY SITUATION NOT EASY

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—The railway labour situation is still somewhat disturbed. The maintenance of way on all three railways are demanding wage increases. In the case of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Eastern lines boards have already been granted under the Industrial Dispute Investigation Act.

It is now rumoured that the Brotherhood of Railway Employees, an organization embracing all roads, and comprising baggagemen, freight handlers, telephone operators, clerks, etc., are again preparing to renew their demands of three years ago for stated schedule and increased pay.

Mr. W. E. McElroy passed through the city yesterday for Toronto having spent the past two weeks at the Jacks Lake fishing party.

18th BATTALION NEEDS SOME SOCKS

Mr. W. H. Dunsford has received a letter from his son, who is in France, stating that socks and cigarettes are badly needed by the men in the 18th Battalion. Socks from any of the Societies in Peterborough doing knitting, will be gratefully received and distributed, if addressed in care of Lieut. M. Dunsford, 18th Battalion, Second Division, C.E.F., on active service in France. The Overseas Tobacco Club has agreed to forward cigarettes.

COAL SITUATION MAY IMPROVE IN DECEMBER

Shortage of Coal is Due to the Shortage of Labor at the Mines and Also Shortage of Cars—How the Buying Public Can Help the Situation

LOCAL CONDITIONS

That the middle of December will see an improvement in the coal situation, is the opinion of Mr. Robert Hicks, one of the largest coal dealers of the city. That there is a shortage of coal cannot be denied. A shortage of labour at the mines is given as one of the reasons for the present scarcity of coal, while a contributary cause is the shortage of cars. A major cause for the shortage of coal and present high prices is owing to the fact that the coal companies are supplying all points on the great lakes before the close of navigation. After that an improvement is looked for. Following the close of navigation the companies will turn their attention to supplying all rail points.

PUBLIC CAN HELP

Speaking to an Examiner representative this morning, Mr. Hicks said: "If people who failed to store their coal in the summer, would buy now in such quantities as immediate necessity requires, the present situation would be relieved to a considerable extent for the next thirty days. We are endeavoring to avoid filling orders for people who are trying to get coal from more than one source with a view of storing it. People who attempt to store coal now are only making the situation worse. Some of them are storing coal they won't burn until February or March of next year. One way they can help to alleviate the present situation is by purchasing coal in small lots, according to existing needs and not with a view of storing it. Then by December we hope the situation will have improved to such an extent as to enable us to take care of all the business that comes, said Mr. Hicks. "At present we are only catering to the needs of regular customers and are turning down all new business. The buying public can materially help the present situation", assured Mr. Hicks.

INDEPENDENT DEALERS

The coal dealers as a whole hope to avoid the necessity of purchasing coal from independent coal dealers, who according to one local coal dealer, market their product at prevailing current prices. In other words, they take advantage of whatever situation happens to exist, all of which tends to increase the price of coal. Mr. Hicks states that if the dealers can avoid the necessity of buying coal from the independent dealers, prices should not go higher than twenty-five to fifty cents per ton. The six large companies through which coal is usually purchased are not out to take advantage of the situation and consequently do not raise their prices unless forced to through a shortage of labour or other unavoidable circumstances.

Nut and stove coal to-day is selling at $8.75 a ton, while pea coal is $7.50 a ton. This is an increase of about one dollar over last year's prices. Against this the coal dealers have to meet a higher freight rate, an increase in the cost of coal and a higher cost for labour.

BRITISH RED CROSS

Some of the Members of the British Red Cross Committee visited the factories in Peterborough yesterday in connection with the British Red Cross Fund and were cordially received and were promised every opportunity would be given the employees to subscribe to this fund.

The Committee are encouraged by the contributions and feel satisfied that the citizens as a whole will hasten to hand in a subscription no matter how small it may be, to make it worthy of the City of Peterborough, and in this connection our citizens would do well to note how other towns and cities in the Province of Ontario are contributing to this Fund, the little Town of Lindsay contributing over $6,000, Cobourg over $7,000, Orillia $16,000, the Village of Norwood $1,400, and Stratford $85,000.

What will Peterborough do? Your answer to this question is important.

The citizens are especially requested to recognize the fact that the Serbian Army is without a country, the Belgian Army is without a country, and Great Britain is standing in the position of a mother country to these armies in addition to her own and that of the colonies and the men from India who are thousands of miles away from home. The demands on the British Red Cross Fund are necessarily almost overwhelming.

Two More Peterborough Soldiers Reported On The List of Wounded

Lance-Corp. R. Irwin of the 21st Battalion and Pte. J. Merik, Formerly of the 93rd Battalion, Have Been Hit in the Recent Fighting--Promotions Announced For the 247th Battalion---To-day's General Military News

WOUNDED

Lance Corp. R. Irwin, 21st Battalion.

Pte. J. Merik, Canadian Mounted Rifles, late of the 93rd Battalion.

Peterborough Honour Roll is increased to-day by the addition of two names to the wounded list.

Lance Corp. R. Irwin, whose name appear on to-day's list from Ottawa, as wounded, enlisted in Peterborough in the autumn of 1914 with the 57th quota to the 21st Battalion. He went overseas with Col. Hughes' Battalion and had been at the front for some time. He is a well known soccer player. Lance Corp. Irwin's brother, enlisted here with the 93rd Battalion and is now overseas.

PTE. J. MERIK.

Pte. J. Merik of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, late of the 93rd Battalion who is officially reported wounded was one of three Russians living in Peterborough who joined Col Johnston's battalion last winter. Pte. Merik, although unable to speak English very fluently learned his drill readily and was popular with his comrades. He went to France with the first draft from the 93rd. Pte. Merik's relatives live in Russian Polland. He is the sixteenth 93rd man reported wounded.

To be Company Sergeant-Major of A Company—Sergt. H. M. Latimer.

To be Lance Corp.—Pte. J. J. Peers.

Coming Home.

Mrs. G. L. Stevens received a cablegram from her son, Flight Sub-Lieutenant Leslie Stevens, of the Royal Naval Air Service, yesterday that he is sailing for Canada this week on furlough. Lieut. Stevens was injured some time ago, and has been in hospital in England

Pte. Teadle's Death.

NEWMARKET, Oct. 27.—After an illness of two months from heart disease, which became acute after he had spent some months in a Peterborough battalion, Arthur Teadle died here on Tuesday. He was rejected from his unit as medically unfit. His two brothers are now in the trenches. Pte. Teadle was thirty-four years of age and unmarried. He was the son of Mr. Edward Teadle.

Mrs. J. C. Davidson of the Peterborough Red Cross Society has received an interesting letter from Bandsman H. Gilbert of the 93rd Battalion Band, which reads in part as follows:

"Since I wrote you last the remnants of our battalion have been broken up. It certainly is a most distressing thing to have your battalion sent hither and thither, not knowing when or where they will meet again. Most of the boys are already in France, and last Friday we had orders to leave Otterpool for West Sandling, some four miles distant.

When we got on parade Col. Preston of the 39th Base Battalion informed us that in future we belonged to the 39th. This was certainly a hard blow to our beloved Col. Johnston, and I might say, to the rest of us, too. We have not got over it yet.

You mention about the band being recalled. We have also heard a great deal about it, but it is up to the people to fight hard for us, for certainly we are no use here.

If only Peterborough people could see what their fine band is doing they would be shocked, and yet we enlisted as bandsmen only. I won't hurt your feelings by telling you what they are doing. Bandmaster Hughes went to Shorncliffe to-day to arrange for a permanent job, but as yet nothing is settled. We all live in hopes. I now close with best wishes to you and the family and sign myself,

Yours very sincerely,

Bandsman H. Gilbert.

Sergt. L. Millership, sergeant of the military police while the 93rd Battalion was in Peterborough, in a recent letter to Chief Thompson, wrote that he was a sergeant of the transfer department of the Canadian Military Police.

Sergt. Will O'Brien, son of Mr. Michael O'Brien, Separate School Inspector, was recently admitted to a hospital in France suffering from shell shock. He wrote that he was not seriously affected and hoped to be back with his Howitzer brigade in a few days. His aunt, Mother St. Michael, of St. Joseph's Hospital, stated that he was already back at the front.

His brother, Dick O'Brien, of the same battery, was recently injured, and is now in England with shrapnel wounds in thigh and knee.

TWO CANADIANS HAVE BEEN GIVEN THE VICTORIA CROSS

Pte. L. Clarke of Winnipeg and Pte. J. C. Kerr of Cumberland N. S., Rewarded for Great Bravery.--Official Story of Their Exploits

CAPTURE 62 PRISONERS

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Two Canadian soldiers, whose exploits have been recounted in the weekly communique of the Canadian "eye-witness", have been awarded the Victoria Cross. They are 72132 Private and Acting Corporal Leo Clarke whose next-of-kin is given as H. T. Clarke, 785 Pine Street, Winnipeg, and 101463 Private John Chipman Kerr, whose next-of-kin is given as Mrs. Robert Kerr, Fox River, Cumberland County, N.S.

"The Victoria Cross has been granted to 73132 Private (Acting Corporal) Leo Clarke, Canadian infantry, for most conspicuous bravery. He was detailed with his section of bombers to clear the continuation of a newly captured trench and to cover construction of a block. After most of his party had become casualties he was building a block when about twenty of the enemy, with two officers, counter-attacked. He boldly advanced against them, and emptied his revolver into them, and afterwards two enemy rifles which he picked up in the trench. One of the German officers then attacked him with a bayonet, wounding him in the leg, but he shot him dead. The enemy the ran away, pursued by Acting Corporal Clarke, who shot four more, and captured a fifth. Later he was ordered to the dressing station, but returned next day to duty.

CAPTURED SIXTY-TWO PRISONERS

"To Private John Chipman Kerr, Canadian infantry, for most conspicuous bravery. During a bombing attack he was acting as bayonet man, and knowing that bombs were running short he ran along the parapet under a heavy fire until he was in close contact with the enemy, when he opened fire on them at point blank range, and inflicted heavy loss. The enemy, thinking they were surrounded, surrendered. Sixty-two prisoners were taken and 250 yards of the enemy trench captured. Before carrying out this very plucky action one of Private Kerr's fingers had been blown off by a bomb. Later, with two other men, he escorted back the prisoners under fire, and then returned to report himself for duty before having his wound dressed."

The Military Cross has been awarded to Chaplains W. R. Thompson, W. E. Kidd and A. H. McGregor.

MILLBROOK PERSONALS

Mrs. Francis Hamilton of Bethany, mother of Dr. Hamilton, has moved to the house of Mr Hartley which he had vacated in his removal to Peterborough.

Mr. J. J. Preston, M.P.P., has returned from his trip to British Columbia, where he had been visiting his brother. Mr. Preston is much improved by the trip.

500 PRISONERS TAKEN

LONDON, Oct. 26. — Again the Germans have delivered counter-attacks—four in number—against the newly-won French positions at Douaumont, in the region of Verdun, but, like all of their efforts since the big French drive of Tuesday, they were successfully withstood. Similarly a violent attack against the British in the Stuff trench, north of the famous Stuff redoubt near Thiepval, was put down, the Germans suffering considerable casualties and the loss of 41 men made prisoner. The fighting at Verdun continued from dawn until dusk, and when the Germans, exhausted, ceased their attacks, the French were still holding all their original positions.

About 500 prisoners were taken during the day, bringing the total of Germans captured in the new Verdun operations to over 5,000.

The early fall of Fort Vaux, the only one of the outer forts of the Verdun ring now in the hands of the invaders, is assured. It was for the purpose of preventing the further advance of General Nivelle's forces in this direction that the desperate German onslaughts were launched.

The attacks were prepared by a heavy artillery fire during the night. The first was delivered at 8:30 o'clock in the morning, but failed to even reach the French lines. Two which immediately succeeded it were broken up, the Germans being driven back in disorder. The greatest attack of the series was launched about 3:30 in the afternoon. The Germans debouched in great force, from Haudremont Wood, advancing in waves upon the French line. Only a few reached it, and they were taken prisoners. No less severe was the repulse inflicted upon the Germans in their fourth assault, the last of the day, during which they attempted to seize French trenches south of Chauffour Wood.

DESERVE WELL.

General Nivelle, commanding the armies defending Verdun, issued the following order of the day:

"Officers and men of the Mangin group: In four hours of magnificent assault you carried at a single blow from a powerful army ground bristling with obstacles and fortresses east of Verdun, which the enemy had spent six months tearing from you by shreds, at the price of fearful efforts and considerable sacrifices.

"You have added new and brilliant glory to that which covers the flags of the Verdun army. In the name of the army I thank you. You deserve well of your country."

A Rousing Wind-up

The seven days' wonder sale at H. Zacks has brought a busy week to the two stores at 428 and 430 George Street. The sale closes to-morrow with a rousing wind-up, which the bargain announcement in the large half page advertisement on another page is sure to bring. The prices quoted surely represent a big saving on the regular selling prices, and in the face of present rising values, presents a buying opportunity that shrewd buyers will not let pass without profiting by.

RECENT INVESTIGATION

Proves 40 per cent. are unconscious of visual defects. This means that in every hundred, 40 people who are not wearing glasses do not know they need them. You may be one of the 40. Why take chances? Dr. Lacey, Peterborough Optical Parlours, 410 George Street.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, OCT. 27, 1916

TU QUOQUE, SIR THOMAS.

Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, with more good intention than consistency, takes the superfluous role of urging the people to practice economy and thrift—as if with the highest, and still soaring, prices, it were possible to do anything else. Sir Thomas, if not quite consistent, is quite right in making such a call. Where he is not quite consistent is in not beginning his admonitions, like charity's beginnings—at home. He should begin with his colleagues in the government. Hon. Mr. White has done well in providing his colleagues in the government with money to spend, and they certainly have made the money fly; and amidst the whirlwind of extravagance the government is practising the Finance Minister's occasion to enjoin the people to economy and thrift.

We have only to go to the government records themselves to find out where the money goes. Sir George Foster presides over the department of Trade and Commerce, and his last book on the subject deals with the expenditures of the Dominion year by year, inclusive of the last fiscal year, 1915. By this official compilation we see that the total ordinary expenditure for last year, 1915, was $135,923,000. Compare these figures with the total expenditures of 1911, the last fiscal year for which the Laurier government was responsible. The total expenditure that year was $87,-000,000, indicating an increase in four short years of $48,794,000, or an average increase of twelve million dollars a year. The high water mark of government expenditure was in a year—1913—when there was a tremendous call upon the financial resources of Canada, in respect of the war. This was a time when the most rigid "economy and thrift" were called for. Not only was there the demand for war money, a demand for government economy, but falling revenues called for retrenchment. While the government had increased ordinary expenditure 48 million dollars in four years, the national revenue from Customs, the chief source, had increased only four millions over the figures of 1911. If Sir Thomas White had induced the government to practice "economy and thrift," he would have been justified in demanding the same thing of the people.

While he is preaching that, the government has been practising the greatest extravagance—increasing expenditures on ordinary services at a time when our extraordinary services in connection with the war, cost about a million dollars a day. Not only that but the government has been extravagant in its extravagance. Sir George Foster's blue book also tells us that in the year 1911 it cost $37,000 to collect $74,858,000 of customs revenue, while in the year 1915 it cost a good deal more than a million more to collect an almost similar amount—in 1915 it cost $3,775,000 to collect $75,944,000 of customs revenue. Was not this million of extra cost for collecting revenue a waste of people's money, through reckless administration and increase of office holders, in the customs service? The people of Canada willingly assent to greatly increased expenditure to help on the war—but they can get back at Sir Thomas White, who asks the people to pinch and starve and economize in the interests of the same object, while the allies the government is to commit, the crime of extravagant public expenditure, at a time when every dollar is needed to save the country and empire. The people and parliament did the [illegible] expenditure [illegible] of millions of dollars [illegible] the government [illegible] engineer expenditure—on works and services that can wait—when war conditions have doubled the burden of living upon the backs of the people, who are asked to pinch and scrimp and starve, while the government merely makes the money fly—as if we had no big war expenditure on hand; as if we did not need every dollar to devote to saving the bacon of the country and empire.

LEST WE FORGET

When we lie weak and sick unto death—as we fear—and things of this world and the next take new perspectives, we commit death bed repentance, which we—some of us—promptly forget when we get on our feet again. In other things we have short memories, too. In these days when employment is plentiful, wages high, and in spite of high prices, we are wallowing in prosperity, it needs an effort of memory to recall that within the past two years times were hard, employment so scarce that it drove many men to enlistment, and the soup kitchen loomed up as a possibility. If that memory has grown dim, it is no wonder that we have, many of us, also lost sight of the lesson that hard times taught—the lesson of economy, of thrift in laying by a store to meet another such emergency of hard times.

All of our citizens are earning good wages, and some of them princely wages. Are the mass of the people acting upon the true principle of economic living—spending just a little less or a good deal less than they earn? War conditions have solved for the moment the burden of unemployment, that was so hard a nut to crack only two short years ago. That problem is not dead; it looms up in the question we are beginning to ask about what will be done to provide employment for returned Canadians after the war is over. Do the wage earners of today with their fat pay cheques; do the mass of the people who are prospering to-day, consider that the sun of prosperity will not continue shining in a clear sky—that—soon, and the sooner the better—the war will be over and they will be happy who have been wise enough to-day by a little for the rainy day that is sure to come. Thousands who were, not more than two years ago, reduced to crusts, should remember that the day of "short commons" will in the inevitable results of economic causes, come again. Then a few dollars in the savings banks—the overflow of present high wages—will be a godsend; a bulwark against deprivation; that will help tide the family over till the inevitable cycle of good times and prosperity shall return; till things settle down after the war.

Wherever you wander, whatever you do,
You'll find your best friend is a dollar or two.

THE MAN FOR THE TIME.

The fact that in every great crisis of Great Britain and the Empire, the man of the hour is raised up, seems more than fortuity—a special Providence. When this war came upon us unprepared—like a bolt out of the blue, Premier Asquith was at the head of the affairs. As a party leader he had his political enemies and the voice of party, is hard to silence, Asquith had his critics, and his enemies gave him his full share of political criticism. But he has lived it down, or rather, worked it down, by wise administration, by virtue of a noble firmness and splendid ability to act in the right way, and to say the right word. He reconciled warring political forces, he brought harmony of action, he mobilized the statesmanship of the kingdom, as Kitchener mobilized its forces and Lloyd George its resources. His statesmanship has stood the test of the strenuous emergencies of the war; and the voice of complaint has been changed to the voice of praise. His enemies, as well as his friends, see that his big personality, his wise statesmanship have stood, and are standing, the Kingdom, the Empire, and the world in good stead in the greatest crisis of the Empire's, and world's history. In the cause of right he shows the glorious obstinancy of the bull-dog breed. In his emphatic declaration of the only conditions on which Britain and the Allies will sheathe the sword, he interprets to the nation and the world the heart and mind of the Empire and [illegible]hes One of the bitterest opponents of Premier Asquith has been the London Spectator, This is now [illegible] shows its confidence in him

We are determined to defeat the enemy and win a complete and final victory. But it is vitally important that the national will in this respect should be expressed by a Prime Minister who is by nature as stubborn and tenacious as any of us, and who is not likely to be swayed by sentiment or by impatience at the length of the struggle. We can, we think, trust Mr. Asquith, however long the war lasts, to see that the final peace embodies all that he has laid down as our aims—namely, the restoration of Belgium and Serbia, full reparation for the enemy's misdeeds, and material guarantees that the enemy will not again disturb the peace of Europe in our time. As the end approaches, our statesmen will require a cool head and a calm judgment not to accept more or less delusive offers from a despairing but not utterly beaten foe, and Mr. Asquith's doggedness will then be needed to control the sentimentalists in his own party, and the financiers and business men who are in a hurry to begin trading once more on normal lines.

If concludes it eulogy of the Premier with the statement that "there can be no question of Premier Asquith's personal supremacy." It is fortunate for Britain and her empire and her cause that we have so strong a man at the helm.

THE DESTRUCTION OF MERCHANT SHIPS.

Germany's policy in continuously sinking merchant vessels, no matter whether they belong to the Allies or to neutrals, indicates a settled determination to hinder the shipping trade of the world to the utmost of its power. While the object of this is to embarrass the Allies as much as possible during the war, there can be no doubt that Germany is also looking to the situation after the war, and is hoping to recapture a good deal of its foreign trade through having at its disposal a merchant fleet which has been lying up during the war, and which will be greatly needed through lack of vessels belonging to other nations.

Many people will wonder why the British Government does not give effect to the recommendation of the Navy League, that Britain shall announce that she will make it a condition that German shipping shall be handed over ship for ship and ton for ton or equal value to supplant what has been destroyed. This recommendation has received warm support from the press in Great Britain and from the Chambers of Commerce throughout the country. There can be no doubt that if the Allies were to declare that before negotiations with the enemy are undertaken a definite condition must be accepted by Germany that Allied vessels destroyed must be paid for in kind from German shipping, this would considerably affect the continuance of German submarine warfare. This matter is now being agitated in Great Britain, and possibly it is also a matter of discussion between the Allied Governments.—Montreal Herald.

DOUBLE-FACED ATTACKS ON SIR WILFRID LAURIER

The Toronto News, which continues to do its worst to besmirch the record and the reputation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Tuesday's issue repeats the statement that the Liberal leader did not send Canadian contingents to South Africa until compelled to do so by public opinion. The fact, remains, however, that he did send them, and that in so doing he defied the traditions of the Conservative party under Sir John Macdonald, a fact clearly brought out in Willison's "Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal Party," an authority which is certain to command the respect of the editor-in-chief of The News. In this book it is said:

He (Sir John) had always contended that in constructing canals and railways, and in subsidizing steamships for commercial purposes, Canada was doing her fair share for the support of the defences of the Empire, and should not be called upon for direct contributions to the British army and navy. This view will be found in many of his speeches and in many of his contributions to periodical literature. . . . This is a position which can be strongly supported. It is, as has been said, the view which Sir Charles Tupper had always entertained. It is known also that Sir John Macdonald was resolutely opposed to the participation of Canada in the wars of the Empire. But while the Conservative press and the Conservative politicians in the English provinces were denouncing Sir Wilfrid Laurier as recreant to the interests of the Empire, and timid and faint-hearted in his proffer of aid to the Imperial arms in South Africa, it was surely a strange proceeding for the leader of the Opposition to go down to Quebec and attack the Prime Minister for seeking to involve Canada in an annual expenditure of millions for the defence of Imperial interests. Sir Charles Tupper also declared at Montreal that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was too English for him with his programme of Imperial federation, and the plain purpose was to rouse against the Liberal leader such prejudices as existed in Quebec against the despatch of the contingents and the government's general support of the British cause in South Africa.

One of the Conservative campaign documents, intended for use in the French constituencies only, said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, during the Jubilee year, had committed the fatal mistake of giving vent to words that were binding us to the war destinies of Great Britain, and that he had advocated Imperial federation, while Sir Charles Tupper had opposed that project. A Conservative candidate made a bitter attack on the government for sending troops to aid Great Britain in what he described as an unjust war, a war entered on from the basest motives, for robbery, plunder and rapine. Trifonvin, the Conservative journal at Three Rivers, said that in order to gain British honours Sir Wilfrid Laurier had "sacrificed the sweat of our workmen, the backbone of our industries, even the blood of our children." An influential Conservative member of the Quebec Legislature said that "the Bordens (Sir Frederick), the Chamberlains, and the Huttons," were dragging Canada into participation in the wars of the Empire. Le Monde Canadien, a Conservative journal, said that the Conservative policy was "Canada for the Canadians," while Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "British to the Core" was a word of surrender. L'Evenement, also a Conservative journal, asked whether it was necessary to espouse all the quarrels of England, just or unjust, furnish targets for her enemies' guns, applaud her damnable acts and proclaim a victory when her army suffers defeat.

It will be seen from the above that it has ever been the policy of the Conservative party, in dealing with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to blow hot into Ontario and to blow cold in Quebec; to charge him in the English-speaking province with being disloyal to the Empire and berate him in Quebec for being too British. Sir Wilfrid throughout his lifetime has been the victim of this duplicity, and it is rather remarkable that the star actor in this performance to-day (the editor of the Toronto News) should be his biographer and the author of the extracts from his biography reproduced above.

As for the part played by Sir Wilfrid in the sending of troops to South Africa, the Imperial tendencies of the man are to be judged not only by that incident, but as well by the granting of the Imperial preference and Imperial penny postage—a record of which the Conservative party has left no parallel. In sending Canadian contingents to fight the Boers Sir Wilfrid was breaking new ground, and the furrow he made in this minor war made it easier for Sir R. L. Borden to follow in his footsteps in the great world's war in which the Mother Country is now engaged.—Brantford Expositor.

WHEAT UP BECAUSE OF POOR CROP

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—"Not speculation, but actual crop shortage the world over, is responsible for the high price in wheat." B. W. Snow, crop expert with Bartlet, Frazier Grain Company here, said.

"Wheat can be expected to return to normal prices next year on an average crop," he said, and added that consumption was not outstripping production normally. "Production has more than kept pace with the demand for the past fifteen years, and in the last three years we have had enormous surpluses," he said.

"This year, however, there is no surplus in any wheat growing country. In the United States not enough was raised for domestic consumption. But a carry-over from last year creates a surplus of 100,000,000 bushels above domestic requirements.

"Speculative wheat prices are based absolutely on the price of cash grain, which is fixed by what exporters and millers are forced to pay to get the grain. Less speculative interest is shown and speculative holding are smaller than in years."

"Corn is higher than ever before at this season," Snow said. The advance, he thinks, is due partly to short crops and partly to the reflected influence of high wheat and other food products.

"There is no occasion for an embargo on wheat as long as the supply is beyond our need. That is the present condition. If it were to become apparent that we were about to export more than we could spare, then an embargo could be looked to for relief."

Snow refused to predict the price wheat would reach this winter. Grain men, however, incline to the $2 figure as a conservative prediction.

The pure, brilliant, flawless tone of a Heintzman & Co. piano is at once apparent to musicians of discriminating tastes, and a minute examination of the mechanism and construction will always prove interesting.

For that reason, we invite a personal visit to our warerooms of all prospective piano buyers. Backed by an unbroken record of fair dealing with buyers, we invite the privilege of an interview with any one who may be about to close the purchase of a piano.

Upon receipt of your name and address we will be pleased to call upon you by appointment at your home address.

By closing the purchase of a piano before you have taken us into your confidence, may mean that you have missed the consideration of some important point that has not been discussed during your inquiries.

Many are not aware of the particular feature of the propositions we have to make to prospective buyers who have failed to investigate the claims of the Heintzman & Co. instruments. From our long experience, therefore, we are certain that we can save prospective piano buyers some money and some disappointment by making direct inquiries, rather than through a middle man.

The Peterborough ware-rooms of the Heintzman & Co. are temporarily located at No. 421 George street, next Examiner office, where different types of instruments may be seen. Also various styles of Victor Victrolas, newest records, needles and other accessories. B. H. Britton, District Manager.

ATHLETICS FLOURISHING AT Y. M. C. A. GYMNASIUM

The semi-monthly athletic event was held last night in the Senior Employed Boys' Class at the Y.M.C.A., the broad jump being the event contested. 25 older boys competed and some good jumps were made. R. Cherrett was first, 8 feet, 6 inches; C. Helson, second, 8 feet; J. White, third, 7 ft. 10 1-2 inches. Eagle's team again won the highest number of points, scoring 42 points. The other three teams each scored 37 points. The following is a summary of Basketball and Athletic scores:

Team.	Basketball	Athletics.	Total
Copp	247 pts.	105 pts.	352 pts.
Brown	304	100	304
Eagle	94	120	214
White	95	87	182

The following names have been added to the different teams: Brown, captain; Head, Baraclough, Foote, Eagle, captain; Brownscombe, McLennan, Northey, Jeffries. White, captain; Cherrett, Armstrong, Adams, Webb. Copp, captain; Deyell, Schwerdt, Sharpe.

There was a splendid attendance at the Life Problem Club last night before gym. class and the club promises to be a big feature among the boys of this class. Next meeting Thursday night at 7.30 sharp.

Butter Substitutes Are Being Seriously Considered Since Butter Has Reached Top Prices

The high price of butter has turned public attention more favourably toward oleomargarine, which is at present excluded from Canada. In the United States and other countries, oleomargarine has become a recognized article of diet among the poor, says the Hamilton Spectator, and is used for cooking purposes by those who can afford to buy butter for the table. The great meat-packing houses of Chicago turn to account in the manufacture of this imitation butter huge quantities of lard, etc., from the animals passing through their hands, and do so in a manner so systematic and clean that there can be no doubt as to the quality of the product. The laws of the various States usually provide that oleomargarine, whether called butterine or anything else, shall be sold wholesale and retail for what it is, so that except to the patrons of restaurants, there can be no deception in the matter. Under present conditions, we are not surprised to learn that the Dominion Government has begun to look upon the much-discussed substance with a more kindly eye.

Perhaps there is a better substitute for butter than oleomargarine, to which Canadians might profitably give attention. A contributor of the Toronto Mail and Empire speaks of "nut butter," made from copra, "the dried flesh of the cocoanut, which has risen in price in a few years from £12 a ton to £43. Clever French chemists have not only succeeded in eliminating the disagreeable taste of the copra, without impairing its nutritive qualities, but have freed it from its liability to turn sour and rancid. That is why the British people, among others, are now enjoying a delicious nut butter at half the cost of dairy butter, to which it is considered superior by hygienists. Immense quantities are being consumed by our heroes in France and England, as well as by increasing numbers of civilians. The frugal Danes eat cheap nut butter, and sell their dairy butter to England at high prices. In England, the consumption is about 6 pounds per head per annum; on the Continent, quite 25 pounds per head." A correspondent of the same paper, on a later date, adds: "Before I left England, in 1914, thousands of tons of this article (nut butter) were made and consumed in the United Kingdom annually. There were and are two conclusive reasons for its use. First, it is better than the ordinary run of dairy butter; second, it was about one-third the price —sixpence, twelve cents a pound. I speak from experience. Who the makers of nut butter are I know not, but I have been wondering ever since I came to Canada that somebody does not start a factory. There is money in it. If a farmer can sell his milk, butter-making does not pay, even at 45 cents a pound, since it takes ten quarts to a pound of butter. No wonder butter is scarce and dear. Margarine of the ordinary quality is not up to much, but nut butter is quite another thing."

About fifty per cent. of Rochester women do their own baking.

A RE-UNION IN VICTORIA HALL

The Protestant Benevolent Federation are holding an old-time reunion to-night in their Victoria Hall (Old Opera house). It is to be a free and easy evening, where the oldtimers can once again meet the other fellow and talk over old times. It is expected that several hundred will be there who have not had a shake hands in years. No doubt reminiscence will find a large place in the order of things. The committee in charge has very generously seen to the provision of smokes, sandwiches, coffee, etc. All in all a very happy time is looked for and every member past or present is earnestly invited to be present to eat, drink, smoke and forget these sad days for just a few hours. And it is all free.

Drawing Contest

A drawing contest will be held for the residents of Douro by the Township Council for the benefit of the Red Cross Society. The Council has donated a ten dollar gold piece for the penny selling the highest number of tickets. The Reeve has also kindly offered five dollars as a second prize. The tickets for the contest will be on sale by the ladies of the township at 25 cents each. The results will be drawn off at a basket social in the church hall, Douro, on the evening of Monday, November 13th at p.m., the proceeds of which, together with the contest money, will be handed to the Red Cross fund. All are invited. 1d-1w-439

An Easy Way To Get Fat And Be Strong

The trouble with some thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dressing their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams" or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, re-construction powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. All leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the Sargol Laboratories, 94 St. Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days treatment will be sent you postpaid in a plain wrapper.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

NOTICE RE COAL ORDERS

We wish to announce to our patrons the advisability of ordering coal in small quantities, and only as you require it, as coal shipments will be restricted for the next five weeks, after which time shipments will be more liberal.

We will give our customers the best service possible under existing conditions, but will not accept any new business until after December 15th.

We will not deliver coal to any person who is attempting to collect a quantity beyond the present requirement, nor will we duplicate orders for the same customer.

Mrs. Snelgrove Is Bereaved

Her Brother Corp. W. A. Dingman of 2nd Battalion is Killed in Action

Mrs. Robert Snelgrove, 544 George Street, received a wire from Belleville yesterday, informing her of the tragic news that her brother, Corp. W. A. Dingman, of the 2nd Canadian Battalion, had been killed in action in the recent fighting. Corp. Dingman enlisted in Belleville at the beginning of the war, and was in Major Chas. Ackerman's company. He was well-known to many of the Peterborough boys in the 2nd Battalion, who will be sorry to hear of his death. A number of interesting letters written by Corp. Dingman have appeared in the Examiner from time to time. He had been at the front for twenty months, and had been through many exciting experiences.

SOFIA'S ROYAL BURROW.

Bulgarian Monarch Sleeps in Steel-Plated Cellar.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, according to messages from Sofia sleeps in his cellar to avoid any danger of being bombed by Allied airmen belonging to the Saloniea armies who may appear over Sofia during the night. Since the Allied forces landed in Saloniea last autumn he has had no peace of mind. Sleep was a prolonged nightmare. The roof of the palace was sandbagged and metal networks were stretched across it, but still Ferdinand had no repose. Recently he took to retiring to his cellar every night. It has become a luxurious cellar. A suite of rooms has been fitted up for the King's use —bedroom, dining-room, lounging-rooms, and library. The floor of the ground floor, which covers the ceiling of this part of the cellar, has been strengthened with steel plates, and thus made bomb-proof. In this underground retreat King Ferdinand passes his nights. There is much gossip in Sofia about his new nocturnal habit.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

THURSDAY NEXT WILL BE PETERBORO DAY AT ENEMY PRODUCTS EXHIBIT

The manufacturers of the Board of Trade met at luncheon in the Empress and discussed the question of a Peterborough delegation attending the exhibit of German and Austrian products in Convocation Hall, Toronto University. It was decided that the manufacturers of this city would endeavour to make Thursday, Nov. 2, Peterborough Day at the exhibit, as other cities have done. The manufacturers who can get away for the day will attend on Thursday next.

There is some consideration being directed to the idea of forming a manufacturers' section of the Board of Trade, a plan that has worked out successfully in most cities. In some places weekly luncheons are held, and in others they are monthly affairs, or at the call of the President. But they have brought the manufacturers close together and have been of considerable benefit to all the members.

Had Nine Wives

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., Oct. 27.—Arthur Worthington, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church in New Hamburg, N.Y., was yesterday deposed from the ministry and excommunicated from the Presbyterian Church by a trial Commission of ministers and laymen of the North River Presbytery. He was found guilty of bigamy, swindling, fraud and blasphemy.

The evidence, secured after two years' investigation, showed that Worthington had nine wives, and was known under eleven aliases. His right name is Samuel Oakley Crawford. Records show he served two terms for fraud, one in Melbourne and one in Australia. His operations covered the United States, Canada, Europe and the Antipodes. In his activities he secured by false pretences more than $500,000, it is alleged. The deposed minister disappeared from Poughkeepsie five weeks ago and cannot be found.

DO YOU KNOW ANY SOLDIERS LIKELY TO BE OVERLOOKED AT XMAS?

Persons who know the names of boys at the front who are likely to be more or less overlooked this Christmas are requested to send in the names of those men to the ladies of St. Peter's Patriotic Club before Monday next. Members of St. Peter's parish are particularly reminded of this matter as the parcels will be mailed on Monday. These boxes are not intended for members of the T. A. S. alone, but for men from the three Catholic parishes. Nor is there any distinction made as to creed, for the ladies chiefly desire that they may be able to contribute to the comfort and cheer of Peterborough men who might be otherwise overlooked. Boxes will be sent to every man whose name is forwarded to St. Peter's Patriotic Club, and the members ask only that these names be sent in between now and Monday, either to the T. A. S. rooms or to the Secretary, Mrs. A. Lehane, 381 Water Street.

TEN MEMBERS WERE INITIATED

Court Bridgenorth, No. 315, C.O.F., had a big initiation night last night, when ten new members were initiated into the order. The big addition to the membership represents the efforts of Organizer A. C. Wiley, who has been busy in the neighbourhood for a week.

Diamond Ring Stolen On Train

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 27.—Diamond rings, valued at over one thousand dollars were stolen from a young Napanee woman, Chicago bound, whose name the police withheld, last night, in Grand Trunk Express, No. 1. In the wash room she took her rings off and left them while washing her hands. After going back to her seat she remembered the rings, but they were gone. All efforts to locate them have failed.

Restrictions For Hunters and Trappers

Hunting in Ontario has been very much restricted by the provincial government. Every resident of the province is not free to shoulder his gun and go forth to take as much game as his prowess as a hunter will enable him to bag. In future hunters and trappers of all fur-bearing animals must secure licenses for which a fee of $5 per season will be charged. A man may hunt on his own farm without a license, but must secure the necessary paper before going on anybody else's.

DIES FROM COW'S KICK.

Aged Market Gardener Had Fatal Internal Hemorrhages.

Windsor, Oct. 27.—Kicked by a cow three weeks ago while at work on his farm in Sandwich West township, Eugene Canty, a well-known market gardener, died yesterday of internal hemorrhages. He was seventy-five years old, and had lived in Essex county for nearly thirty years.

An Old Hunter Discusses The Game Prospects

KINMOUNT, Oct. 26—An old hunter and trapper, over 70 years of age, and still engaged in the business, says that partridge are very scarce owing to the bush fires of the past few years. Not being fleet winged or long-distance flyers, they dive into the flames of a bush fire at night, instead of getting away.

Bears have all denned up for the winter months. There are no beech nuts this year, and feed is scarce. A few may be seen during deer-hunting season through being frightened out of their dens.

Many of the fur bearing animals show little signs of early winter. Water is very low and there have been no preparations for winter houses as yet. The season being open for otter and beaver many animals will be killed during the first week of November and owing to the mild weather the pelts will not bring good prices.

Deer are scarce owing to the ravages of wolves. Foxes are very plentiful. Several flocks of wild geese have passed over lately.

RETURNED NURSE IS TO SPEAK

Miss Jessie MacCallum, a nurse who is home on furlough after many months on the French front, and who is visiting friends in Peterborough, will give an address to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Andrew's Sunday school under the auspices of St. Andrew's Patriotic Society. Miss Taylor, soloist of Trinity church choir and Mr. H. C. Trewer, organist of St. Andrew's, will sing. The public is invited.

THE CHAPLAIN'S SERVICES ARE APPRECIATED

Dear Mrs. ————,—Just a line to let you know how the boys miss the Major. He was the right man in the right place—always doing his best to help and to cheer the men of the 93rd. He is missed by everyone, the band in particular. He was our friend indeed. Without doubt he is one of God's own. His heart and soul full of good doings. May God bless him and his loved ones at home and bring him safe home in due time.

Yours sincerely,
BANDSMAN H. GILBERT.

Fall Was Fatal

INGERSOLL, Oct. 27.—Injuries which he sustained more than two weeks ago by a fall from a tree which picking apples on the farm of M. J. Williams, West Oxford, resulted in the death of Ransom Harris, for many years a widely-known farmer of Dereham township, who for seven years had been living retired here.

For many years Mr. Harris was closely identified with township affairs. He served twenty-four successive years as a school trustee, and was also president and director of the Salford Cheese Company. He was a Liberal and a Methodist, and was a member of the Salford Court, Canadian Order of Foresters.

4,500,000 PIECES OF MAIL DAILY.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The French soldiers' correspondence now amounts to nearly 4,500,000 pieces per day. They receive an average of 4,000,000 ordinary letters, 300,000 registered letters, 10,000 postal and telegraphic money orders, and 50,000 newspapers. It keeps a busy staff of more than 2,000 special employees at the central postoffice in Paris.

German Artillery Is Active On the Somme

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 27.—German artillery was active during a heavy rainstorm last night. North of the Ancre British troops successfully raided German trenches.

LONDON, October 27.—In a letter to the Times, Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador to Washington, suggested to-day that after the war England should join the United States in forming a league to enforce peace.

Roumanians Take Transylvanian Villages

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUCHAREST, October 27.—While offering stubborn resistance to Mackensen's advance the Russo-Roumanians in Dobrudja are retiring northward toward Harsova-Casapchioi line, thirty miles north of the Constanza-Cernavoda Railway, it was officially announced to-day. The Russo-Roumanian lines everywhere are intact.

Roumanian troops operating on the Western frontier of Moldavia have captured the Transylvanian village of Balan and Piartarotkul Heights, according to the official statement issued to-day by the Russian War Department. Fierce fighting, the statement adds, is continuing on both banks of the Jiul River.

Drastic Step Has Been Taken

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—The Province of Ontario has taken drastic steps to prevent further importation of infantile paralysis from Quebec Province. Dr. McCullough, the Provincial Medical Health Officer, has declared what is virtually a quarantine against Quebec, notifying all railways that no children under the age of sixteen years will be permitted to enter Ontario Province until they have produced a certificate from a doctor that they have not been anywhere near a case of infantile paralysis within twenty-four hours of entry into Ontario. Measures are taken to see that this quarantine is vigorously enforced.

Canada's Day Will Come After War, Says Shaughnessy

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. — Baron Shaughnessy, in an interview granted a press representative as he was about to board the steamer Kroonland on Wednesday, en route to Europe, predicted a greater Canada, industrially and politically, when peace is declared.

"Though bleeding with sacrifices and bending with effort in behalf of the great Empire of which she is an integral part," he said, "Canada's biggest role in the play of nations is not now, but in the future. The history of the Dominion," he said, "showed that what mistakes have had to be rectified have been due to short vision, and that the deeds most criticized had been of over-anticipation. As between those two, Canada would after the war steer a middle course of steady development.

"Canada is an empire in itself," continued Baron Shaughnessy. "Its population is not a fraction of what it should be, of what it is capable of becoming, or of what it will be after the war. We are now taking steps to prepare for the future, and are anticipating an immigration that should be unprecedented in Canadian history."

France Honours Cleric for Bravery and Devotion Shown While Under Fire.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Mgr. Emile Lobbedey, bishop of Arras, has been decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honour for the heroism and devotion with which he remained at his post of duty under fire. The official decree says:

"He remained at Arras amidst the first times from October, 1914, to June, 1915, under a bombardment which was some times very violent. He exerted himself unselfishly to the accomplishment of his ministry, visiting the soldiers, assisting ambulance, burying the dead, giving to all a magnificent example of calm, sangfroid, energy and duty fully done under the immediate menace of the enemy."

Power Given To Municipal Councils

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—Extension of the powers of municipalities enabling them to investigate local conditions dealing with the cost of living, and to prosecute where prices are unreasonably enhanced, is proposed by a sub-committee of the Cabinet dealing with the question. Its recommendations will likely be framed this week.

At the same time it is probable that the Government itself will institute investigation into the cold storage question. Direct regulation of prices by Government officers is unlikely.

FIND BODY OF CHILD IN CLOTHES BASKET

WALLACEBURG, Oct. 27. — Dr. Taylor, coroner, decided an inquest was not necessary in the case of the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rose Tromley, burned to death in her mother's house.

Chief Clark Best went all through the blazing building when Mrs. Tromley made it known that the child was missing, but could find no trace of her. After the fire was nearly out, the charred body was discovered in a clothes basket. It is believed the child must have been playing with fire.

The building, a wooden structure, was owned by Mr. Harry Mitchell, and is insured. The furniture, which was entirely destroyed, was partly covered by insurance.

Rumours are revived that the Canadian Northern has acquired control of the Minneapolis and St. Louis.

The average price of 20 industrials is 104.57 off .5a and of 20 active railways 94.72 off 1.09.

RESPONSIBILITY RESTS WITH MEMBERSHIP

Attorney-General Says Act of Last Session Covers Friendly Society Difficulties

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General, sees no necessity for a Government investigation into the affairs of the A.O.U.W. or any other fraternal organization.

"The amendment to the Insurance Act passed last session," declared Mr. Lucas, "meets the very questions raised. The Act obligates all societies to place an actuarial statement in the hands of each of its members triennially. It is then up to the member to act. If he finds his society is going backwards, the responsibility is with him to insist upon an increase in rates.

"If the membership of the societies don't act, the next step would be for the Province to cancel the license of the society which declines to raise its rates to avoid going into deeper bankruptcy. The Act provides for all contingencies which may arise."

Xmas Parcels To Germany Must Be Sent Before Nov. 1st

The Toronto Telegram prints the following cable.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Canadians sending Christmas parcels to prisoners in Germany are advised by Mrs. Rivers-Bulkeley, in charge of the prisoners of war department of the Canadian Red Cross here, to see that the gifts are despatched from Canada by Nov. 1st, to ensure them reaching England in ample time to be forwarded to Germany by December 1st. This is the last chance to send private packages, as German regulations come into force forbidding private parcels, and ordering all supplies to come through the Red Cross for general distribution to all prisoners.

Those conversant with conditions in German camps declare that though being deprived of sending private parcels will be a great grief to relatives, perhaps it is better in the long run, as, while seventy per cent. of the prisoners are thus getting supplies, the other thirty are almost starving. Henceforth there will be provision for all. It is expected that there will be a great congestion of Christmas parcels via Holland, and early forwarding is urgent.

The Government Adopts Initial Measures To Smash Food Monopolies

Legislation which the Government proposes to take to deal with the rapid increase in the cost of living was outlined yesterday.

The Order-in-Council embodying this legislation has not yet been passed by the Cabinet, but it is understood that it will be within the next few days.

The Government proposes to give full power to municipalities to conduct investigations under oath into all alleged combines operating within their borders, and to investigate the alleged undue advance in prices of foodstuffs.

It is also proposed that when an undue enhancement of prices has been established by investigation to give municipalities the power to prosecute.

A Sub-Committee.

The Government also proposes to appoint a sub-committee of the Cabinet, who will probably be Hon. C. J. Doherty and [illegible] W. Crothers, to conduct investigations into questions and situations affecting the cost of living of a wider influence than is exerted within individual municipalities.

With regard to the allegation that the operations of cold storage plants have resulted in withholding from public use for an undue length of time foodstuffs which the public required, and which policy resulted in greatly increased prices, the Government will welcome information from parties who can supply it and conduct a rigid investigation.

Powers Will be Wide.

In regard to the power to be given municipalities to conduct investigations, it was stated, that under the Order-in-Council they would be enabled to examine individuals under oath and will have the authority to either compel firms to produce their books or send accountants to examine them.

The underlying policy of this proposed legislation is publicity. It is believed that the fear of publicity will help to prevent an undue advance in prices.

LINDSAY WOMAN BEARING UP WELL

Mrs. Davis Who Is Awaiting Trial in the County Gaol is Enjoying the Best of Health

LINDSAY, Oct. 27.—How is Mrs. Davis, the woman who did the shooting at Kinmount on the 7th day of last September? is a question frequently asked.

Mrs. Davis is awaiting her trial at the fall assizes, which will take place in Lindsay, November 14th, inst. The charge preferred against the prisoner is murder; having shot Fred Spencley, of Kinmount, in the knee, from the affects of which, following the amputation of the limb by a surgeon, the man died at the Ross Hospital. These are the salient points in the case.

But how is the woman who has sat behind barred doors and windows, away from her simple little frame cottage surrounded by a nice potato patch and situated on the Monck Road, Kinmount, bearing up? Very well, according to reports. She has enjoyed the best of health since coming to Lindsay, and is well spoken of by the jail official. At times the prisoner apparently grieves over her rash act and impulsiveness upon that eventful evening and its misfortunes, which now leaves her freedom hanging on a balance, which will finally be decided by 12 good and loyal men of the County of Victoria.

Mrs. Davis receives religious consolation from members of the Salvation Army, and Rev. Mr. Bryant, of the Cambridge street Baptist church. The latter clergyman has made her several visits at the jail, and he states that the woman expressed much sorrow when she heard the victim Spencley had lost his leg, and wept when informed that he had died. The woman, it appears, did not realize what she was doing at the time. Being in a fit of nervous excitement and rage she pulled the gun on Spencley. It is said that Mrs. Davis' husband states that his wife would grow hysterical when excited and lost control of her senses, during which time she was prone to commit any rash act. The unfortunate woman has no relatives in this country, her husband being the only relation to call on her since she was locked up. As he is a night watchman in a Kinmount mill it is impossible for him to pay frequent visits, but he has been to see her twice since September. She is expecting that he will be in town during her trial.

MR. T. C. ELLIOT WILL OPEN STORE IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, OCT. 27.—Mr. T. C. Elliott, of Peterborough has leased the store from Mr. E. E. W. McGaffey, formerly occupied by Mr. G. W. Allely. Mr. Elliott has been proprietor of the Port Hope Knitting Works and "The Beehive" at Peterborough for a great many years, and will open up a branch store in Lindsay in ladies' and children's ready-to-wear goods, etc.

Mr. Elliot has leased the store for a term of years. The arrangement could not have been consummated had not Mr. F. W. Sutcliffe waived his claim of agreement, which is highly appreciated by Mr. McGaffey.

PTE. J. TIERNEY TELLS HOW HE WAS WOUNDED

Peterboro' Soldier, After Going Through Big Charge on Sept. 29th Safely Was Wounded by a Shell at Daybreak Next Morning

NOW IN MANCHESTER

A member of the Examiner staff has received the following letter from Pte. Jas Tierney, of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 58th Battalion and who was wounded last month while fighting as a member of the 30th Canadian Battalion:

My Dear Friend—I now take the pleasure of writing you a few lines to let you know that I was wounded in the great battle of the Somme on the western front, and I had a very hot time of it while it lasted, but all the same we held our own, what was left of us. We went into action with about 600 men and came out with about 50 left. I came out all right the first time, but we had orders then that we had to go back again and make another charge. We went over at 5 o'clock in the evening, Sept. 29, and made a terrible dash for the German trenches and we got our objective very easily, for when we got over to them they all put their hands up and cried out Kamerad, Kamerad, have mercy on us. Some of them could speak good English. They never showed any fight. They were running and giving themselves up in bunches, so we got two thousand prisoners besides what we killed and wounded. I got through the big battle all right, but I got my medicine next morning at daybreak when a big shell burst over me and five others, wounding me very badly in the right foot. It went right through my instep, through the sole of my foot and got me in the shoulder at the same time. I have been in hospital in Manchester ever since, and I have suffered an awful lot of pain in that time, but I hope to be able to get over it all right soon again. I don't think I will be fit for the front any more for this war anyway, but you can bet that I did my bit as far as I went. I can account for a few of those Germans. I give you my word. This is all for the present.

Yours truly,
Pte. J. Tierney.

WILL SEND CHRISTMAS BOXES TO PRISONERS

57th Chapter I. O. D. E. Have Also Sent 12 Pairs of socks to Peterboro' Boys, During the Month—Contributions for the Melting Pot Will be Received During Next Two Weeks.

The regular monthly meeting of the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. was held last night with a large attendance.

So liberal a response has been made for articles for the melting pot that it was decided last night to extend the time for receiving donations two weeks. Articles may be sent to Mr. E. F. Mason's store.

Resolutions of sympathy were passed to the families of Lieut. Arthur Ackerman and Lieut. Crawford Rush.

Christmas boxes will be sent by the Chapter to the 39 Peterborough prisoners of war. Mrs. Cottrell is the convenor of the committee in charge of the work.

Miss Hay, convener of the knitting committee reported that during October, 124 pairs of sox had been sent to Peterborough soldiers as follows:

Pte. W. H. Adams, formerly 93rd Battalion now with 5th C.M.R.

Corp. L. A. McIntosh, formerly 93rd, now with 19th Battalion.

Gunner Alex. J. Butcher, Reserve Battery.

Pte. Cyril Giroux, 1st Canadian Motor Machine Gun Brigade.

Lieut. Gordon Matthews, (French Motor Battery).

Q. M. S. Sam Thomas, 21st Battalion.

Signaller Wm. Cumming, 3rd Battery.

86 pairs of socks were purchased during the month and seven spindles of wool purchased. The report extended thanks to the Thursday Club for a donation of socks.

Mrs. W. Sharpe, convenor of the Visiting Committee reported that over 50 visits had been made during the month.

A very instructive paper on the war was read by Mrs. T. C. Neal, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Will Share In The Estate

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—Lieut. Harry J. McTaggart, of the 35th Battalion, who fell in action in France on Sept. 16th, left an estate of $4,465. The National Trust Company is the executor of the will. His mother gets the insurance upon his life in the Manufacturers' Life, and also that placed there by the city of Toronto, each amounting to $1,000. His brother, John D., gets the Aetna Life Insurance amounting to $2,000, and 7-15 of the estate outside of insurance amounting to $217. His sister, Myrtle Mabel McTaggart, gets one-half of the estate outside of insurance, or $135, and his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Spry, of Peterborough, the balance, or $90.

Hay at Eleven Dollars A Ton

Several Tons Were Sold This Morning on the Farmers' Market

Several loads of hay sold on the market this morning at ten and eleven dollars a ton. A lot of good hay is beginning to come in. Hay is one of the farm commodities that has so far failed to respond to a rising market in farm produce. For the past few years, hay has sold around Peterborough at this season of the year at from fifteen to eighteen, and twenty dollars a ton. There is some prospect of an easier market to-morrow, so far as the regular lines of farm produce is concerned. It may be possible to secure butter at forty cents a pound, with eggs a couple of cents off from last week's prices.

G. T. R. WILL GIVE PASSES TO EMPLOYEES OF LONG SERVICE

The Grand Trunk Railway System is about to adopt a new method of recognizing faithful service rendered by employees. President E. J. Chamberlain, in a circular issued to-day, announces that, effective Jan. 1st, 1917, the Grand Trunk will begin the issuance of "meritorious or long service annual passes," this being in accordance with the policy of the company to reward the continuous and efficient service of its workers.

To employees who have been continuously in the service for a period of not less than fifteen years the company will issue annual passes for themselves, and, if married, to include their wives good over either the Eastern Ontario or Western lines, according to the respective territory in which they may be employed. Employees who have been twenty years in service will receive annual passes for themselves and wives good over the entire system.

Head office employes continuously in the service of the company for fifteen years will receive these annual passes, good over the whole system, for themselves, and, if married, to include their wives. Ex-employees on the pension or superannuation lines will be considered, as regards length of service, the same as employees, and will be accorded the same pass privileges. Female employees will be treated the same as male employees, except that passes will be good for themselves only.

Through A Tunnel To Verdun Front

EXPOSED TO GERMAN FIRE

But Teuton Sniper Failed to Create International Complications by Shooting.

VERDUN—Just west of here, in the forest of Argonne, there is a remarkable military tunnel, 45 feet underground, running right up to within 300 yards of the German trenches. It is one of the most hardpressed points around Verdun, but through this tunnel reinforcements move forward without danger, relieving every two hours the men on the firing line.

There was a very American atmosphere about this tunnel when The Associated Press correspondent visited it, for the curious fact developed that the two officers in command were American residents, one a stock-raiser in Alberta, Canada, and the other a bank official of the Franco-American Bank at Los Angeles, Cal. Both were born in France, and when the war broke out left their American business to come home and fight. And now they are in full charge of this underground highway, leading up to one of the most desperate positions along the front. They are so American that they speak English instead of French, and the commandant's headquarters—a little nest in the clay—has a big picture of Uncle Sam hanging on the wall.

Creeping through this tunnel toward the first line the members of the visiting party knocked their steel casques on the roof, and plunged through water ankle deep. Paul D. Cravath of New York, six feet six inches tall, was bent double in the struggle through the tunnel. Along the way they passed an electric plant throbbing with energy and pumping the fresh air which keeps the tunnel habitable. Further on in a large clay hole a kitchen was in full operation, with soldiers eating bowls of nudels.

As the visitors emerged from the tunnel into the front line French trenches the German trenches were plainly visible on the crest only 300 yards away. The intervening space was swept clear as though by a cyclone. Instead of the beautiful green of the forest that was left at the other end of the tunnel, here the whole outlook was gray and desolate, the ground jagged and torn as by eccentric plows—not a vestige of grass or verdure, and the few gaunt trunks of trees stripped of their last leaf and looking like so many scarecrows. "This has been a rather quiet day—only two mine explosions," said the commandant, "two men injured, one in the shoulder, the other in the leg. That is little, for often we have sixty to sixty men killed or injured in these mine explosions, which go on continually as the Germans try to mine under our trenches and we try to mine under theirs."

Even beyond the front line French trenches the French soldiers had pushed their observation posts into the fire-swept division line 200 yards wide. Some of those daring men could be seen almost up to the crest where the German line ran. They were crouched behind heaps of boulders, rifles ready.

"Those men are only 150 yards from the Germans," said the commandant.

As he spoke Mr. Cravath said: "I see a German; there he is on the crest, you can see his uniform with the round cap."

"And he sees you, too," said the commandant. "You have been under fire," he added, as he led Mr. Cravath and the others to a more secure position.

"It's good that the German didn't fire," remarked Cravath. "It might have been an international incident. Think of it—killing an American visitor to the French trenches!"

The ingenuity of some of the trench quarters along the way is shown in the use of empty glass bottles for windows. One officer pointed with pride to the very artistic effect he had secured with three empty wine bottles. A triple row extended all across the front of his log shack, giving light within and having rather a cathedral window effect without. The bottles are of white glass, used for bottling the white wine of Bordeaux.

The headquarters of General Neville, in command of the operations at Verdun, are quite a way outside the city, at a little cross-road hamlet, which cannot be named for military reasons. The General's offices are in the town Court House, a two-story stone structure. It was in the same building that Gen. Petain, who preceded Neville, and General de Castelnau, quickly made the plans on the first onrush of the Germans which held them until reinforcements could be brought up.

As we were at General Neville's headquarters, a party of German prisoners came by. Already they were being set to work, and instead of a gun each German carried a spade over his shoulder.

Huns Are In Imaginative Mood

Every British Prisoner Taken Earned Captor a Two Weeks' Holiday.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—The idea that German effectives have been removed from the western front for duty elsewhere is a mistaken one, said Major-General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the War Office, in an interview.

"There are more German divisions on the western front to-day than ever," he declared.

The slowing down of the British offensive on the Somme front has been entirely due to weather conditions, General Maurice explained.

"Despite the minor importance of the British operations during the past fortnight," he continued, "you may notice that the German official communiques frequently state that heavy attacks have been repulsed. Such statements are purely imaginative. Our operations, while designed to improve our positions, have been accomplished with minimum losses to ourselves while inflicting the heaviest possible losses upon the Germans.

"Our chief operation was the occupation of the loop of the mire extending from the Ancre to Thiepval, which was dominated by the Schwaben redoubt. A brusque order answered from the German staff was that the redoubt must be captured at any cost, and offers warfare of German regiments fourteen days' leave on every English prisoner brought in. The order explains that the said ring of the line by the British enables them to overlook the whole German artillery position in the valley of the Ancre, exposing the same to destruction."

General Maurice commented that the German statements were probably to be explained by the fact known to every old soldier, that when an enemy loses the ascendancy he becomes "jumpy," and magnifies every minor operation into a determined attack. Consequently, if there is an exchange of artillery fire and this is not followed up by a British infantry attack the Germans, according to General Maurice's theory, think they have repulsed an important movement.

DRY LAW GREAT SUCCESS

Reports From All Over Province Show a Great Decrease.

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—"Prohibition looks to me to be wonderfully successful," said J. W. Flavelle, chairman of the Ontario License Board, this morning. "It's a greater success than any member of this board thought it would be so soon after its coming into force. Of course liquor is being procured illegally by those who are determined to get it, but we are taking steps to meet this situation and enforce the law in the strongest possible way. The reports that continue to reach the board from the different parts of the Province show an astonishing decrease in the number of arrests for drunkenness, and this is very true in the case of Toronto."

COAL SHORTAGE IN ITALY.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 26.—A threatened shortage of coal throughout Italy is responsible for far-reaching police regulations regarding the use of fuel for heating and lighting. Early closing of cafes and a reduction of public illumination have been ordered. The price of coal in Italy has now reached exorbitant figures.

Boy Puts Girl Soaked By Oil Into a Bonfire

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—For pouring kerosene over a little girl and then pushing her into a bonfire, thereby causing her death, Benjamin Hojarnoki was arrested.

He is eight years old and lives with his parents at No. 210 Thirty second street, Brooklyn.

Nobody knows whether he hated little Veronica Brandes or wished to punish her for some fancied offence, or simply did not realise the fiendishness of his deed.

Two grown men, one of them Veronica's father and the other a neighbor, received severe burns in extinguishing the oil-fed flames that were consuming the little girl.

WERE PLAYING ABOUND FIRE

It was on Saturday afternoon that Veronica, five, with her sister, Jennie, seven, of No. 201 Thirty-second street, were playing around a bonfire on a vacant lot in Thirty-second street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

The Hojaracki boy was larger than any of his little neighbors. Where he had procured the kerosene is as much of a mystery as the origin of the impulse which caused him to seize Veronica suddenly, and pour it over from the bottle in which he had it. He saturated her little frock, and a moment later also was a column of flame.

Martin Perkins was the first man on the scene. He saw the burning child from his home across the street and tore of his sweater with which to stifle the flames. While so engaged he was joined by Veronica's father.

DIED IN HOSPITAL.

The two had much trouble in putting out the flames. Their burns were treated by an ambulance surgeon. Veronica was taken to the Methodist Episcopal Hospital, where she died the next day. The police, after hearing what all the witnesses, big and little, had to say, took Benjamin Hojarnoki to the premises of the Children's Society, where he was locked up pending trial.

The boy seemed to have very little sense of the enormity of what he had done. Owing to his tender years the charge against him is juvenile delinquincy.

France Adopts American Idea For Hospitals

(By F. C. Bertelli)

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Alexis Carrell, who was sent here by the Rockefeller Institution, of New York, announced impending reforms of surgical methods throughout France are likely to result in a vast diminution of amputations and fatal wounds.

"Hitherto," he said, "grafting tissue, bone and flesh has been next to impossible, owing to the difficulty of transporting wounded to a hospital before gangrene or infection had set in.

"American ambulance physicians, however, demonstrated the possibility of getting wounded soldiers to a hospital within ten hours. Heretofore the average has been twenty-four hours.

"The French army medical service frankly recognizes the splendid methods of the American Hospital, and has decided to speed up transports everywhere, as well as to generalize the use of the Daken solution for washing suppurating wounds, rendering possible a vast campaign of grafting."

Ladies, before selecting their Hats, are invited to inspect Misses Ennis & Armstrong's New Fall Styles. Corner of George and Simcoe Streets, upstairs. 8d-6-79

WEDDING BELLS

DORAN—CARROLL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's church, Ennismore, on Tuesday, October 24th, when Miss Mary Carroll, daughter of Mr. John Carroll of Emily, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Austin Doran, also of Emily. The attendants were Miss Marie Kennedy of Chicago, and Mr. Cecil Wolff of Peterborough. After the nuptial ceremony dinner was served to a host of friends and relatives of the young couple, among the many present being Rev. P. McGuire and Rev. P. J. Gallivan, cousin of the bride.

Ask Better Salaries

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—That the salaries of rural Postmasters are not commensurate with the duties involved and entirely disproportionate to those paid in city offices was the contention of Rural Postmasters, which waited upon the Postmaster-General yesterday. The delegation consisted of H. E. Proctor, Secretary of the association; J. V. Borque, Postmaster of Wallace, N.B.; A. B. Foran, Postmaster of Winona, Ont., and A. A. Wright, Postmaster at Renfrew, Ont. They went carefully into the whole situation and placed their claims for equality before the Minister.

BROOMS AND BIVALVES ADVANCED IN PRICE

MONTREAL, Oct. 27.—In sympathy with the increase in flour prices last week, an increase was also registered this week on shorts and general feed flours. To-day shorts are selling for $31 per ton, an increase of $1 per ton.

With the failure of the corn crop in the United States the first effects were felt last week when brooms advanced 75 cents per dozen on nearly all lines.

Oysters are not exempt from the general increase. Last year one gallon Lin- sold at $1.60, and for the same tin this year $1.90 is demanded.

Prefers Prison

WINDSOR, Oct. 27.—One year in the Ontario Reformatory at hard labour was the sentence imposed in the Police Court yesterday upon Cecil Buck, alias George Anderson, charged with deserting from the 135rd Battalion at Camp Borden. He chose the prison sentence rather than be taken back to the ranks and sent overseas. Buck insisted he was only sixteen years old when he enlisted. Evidence was produced in court, however, to show he was between nineteen and twenty. It was also learned in the information that he stole Government property valued at $65, but this charge has been dropped.

JUMPED UP NO HORSE HIS BUGGY SMASHED

TILLSONBURG, Oct. 27.—Dr. Early, Veterinary Surgeon, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon, when his buggy was struck by a C. P. R. train which he did not see approaching. He jumped on the horse's back, but the buggy was completely demolished, himself and the horse luckily escaping serious injury.

Wm. Allaway's Death

Reported Cause, Kick on Knee from Horse, not Considerd Sufficient.

PETROLEA, Oct. 27.—Wm. Allaway died last night at the Petrolea Hospital after two days of unconsciousness. It was reported that his illness was caused by a kick on the knee from a horse in the livery stable in which he was employed. On being medically examined it was found that the kick was not considered sufficient to have caused death. Coroner R. M. Calder empanelled a jury yesterday, who viewed the remains, ordered a post-mortem, and adjourned till Saturday evening.

Say Manufacturers Must Not Fix Prices

OTTAWA, Oct. 26—That a manufacturer, when selling to a retailer, has the right to fix the price to himself, but not to go further and arbitrarily determine the price to be paid the retailer by the purchasing public was the emphatic declaration to-day of Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour.

The Minister said he had been making enquiries, and was astounded to find the extent to which this custom prevails. From information he has received, Mr. Crothers says there is a widespread system of contracts by which the manufacturer fixes these retail prices, and, in many instances declines to sell to the retailer if this schedule is violated.

WORST KIND OF COMBINE

The department intends to investigate fully. The system of fixing prices is regarded as a combine in the worst form and opposed entirely to the spirit of the Combines Act. Incidentally, it is doubtless a factor in the cost of living.

It is understood that the Government will pass an order-in-council which will facilitate action by the municipalities in efforts to reduce the cost of living. For instance, there will be a clear definition of what is to constitute illegal manipulation of the food market, and there will be provided a direct method under which a municipality may proceed in case of a violation of the new regulations.

CHECK UP SUPPLIES.

It is considered likely also that the Government will establish a system of inspection, under which the amount of stock of various foodstuffs in the country may be checked up from time to time. This will operate effectively, it is believed, to prevent the hoarding up of food stocks by speculators.

Neutral Correspondents Are Prisoners In Germany

Writers Allowed to Remain Only on Humiliating Terms of Vassalage to Teuton Interests---Pledges Were Exacted and Signatures to an Agreement Secured--London Daily Mail Eye-Witness Makes Further Disclosures.

Many disclosures regarding the military, social and economic situation in Germany are being made by Mr. D. Thomas Curtin, the London Daily Mail eye-witness, who has returned from there after ten months' adventurous touring. He shows in the following how the German Government 'works" the neutral, and particularly the United States, press:

In order to understand thoroughly the importance the Germans attach to the possibility of their forcing the United States to intervene against England, it is necessary that I should explain, and at some length, the extraordinary measures taken by the German Government in regard to American newspaper correspondents now practically imprisoned in Germany.

It is imperative for the understanding of the news that will come from the other side of the Atlantic in the next few weeks that the conditions under which the American journalists are working should be understood here and in my native country. It is they who the Germans rely upon to stir up war feeling in the United States.

PLEDGES EXACTED.

Towards the end of 1916 the American newspaper correspondents in Berlin were summoned to the Kriegs-Press-Bureau (War Press Bureau) of the Great Central Staff. The official in charge, Major Uicolai, notified them that the German Government desired their signatures to an agreement respecting their future activities in the war. It had been decided, Major Nicolai stated, to allow the American journalists to visit the German fronts at more or less regular intervals, but before this was done it would be necessary for them to enter into certain pledges. These were, mainly:

1. To remain in Germany for the duration of the war, unless given special permission to leave by the German authorities.

2. To guarantee that despatches would be published in the United States precisely as sent from Germany—that is to say, as edited and passed by the military censorship.

3. To supply their own headlines for their despatches, and to guarantee that these, and none others, would be printed.

FROZEN OUT.

After labourng in vain to instruct Major Nicolai that with the best of intentions on the part of the correspondents it was beyond their power to say in exactly what form the "Omaha Bee" or the "New Orleans Picayune" would publish their "copy," the correspondents affixed their signatures to the weird document laid before them. It was signed without exception by all the important correspondents permanently stationed in Berlin. Two or three who did not desire to hand over the control of their personal movements to the German Government for an unlimited number of years did not "take the pledge," with the result that they were not invited to join the personally-conducted trips to the fronts subsequently organized.

Nothing that has happened in Germany so illustrates the vassalage to which neutral correspondents have been reduced as the humiliating pledges extorted from them by the German Government as the price of remaining in Berlin for the practice of their profession.

Wheat Prices Still Climbing

Cash Wheat is Two Cents Higher —Oats Very Strong—Barley Going Up—The Cattle Market

HOG MARKET STRONG

Wheat markets are still going strong for the $2 per bushel goal, yesterday's gains bringing prices up 5 cents nearer to that mark. Foreigners were still buying heavily in spite of the reported rains in Argentine. This encouraged the bulls, and prices continued their upward way. Manitoba cash wheat 2c higher. Oats very strong. Barley still going up.

CATTLE MARKET.

There were nearly 10,000 head of cattle received at the Union stock Yards, Toronto, this week, besides 13,000 hogs and close upon 11,000 sheep and lambs. Receipts at the city western cattle market were also the heaviest in a long time. The total receipts at the two markets constitute new high records, and demonstrate the growing importance and huge growth of the cattle trade in Toronto in the past few years, ranking as it now does as the greatest cattle trading centre in Canada, one of the great cattle markets of the continent, and perhaps from the cattle breeders' standpoint, the best and the highest priced market in the world, the quality of the cattle considered.

Notwithstanding the heavy receipts for this past week, prices have not only held steady and firm, but on the whole a little higher than the previous week. Ontario-fed cattle sold up to $8.50, and a consignment of Western cattle made good prices selling at $37.80 for the best steers.

Stockers and feeders have been fairly active at prices a shade better than last week.

The market for choice milch cows and springers is at the present very active, real choice milkers selling freely around $100 to $120.

Sheep and lambs have been active and strong all week, good breeding ewes being much in demand.

Hog market has [illegible] efforts to lower prices not being at all successful.

CATTLE MARKET RECEIPTS

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 809 cars, with 9,700 cattle, 918 calves, 12,564 hogs, 10,923 sheep and lambs, and 2,141 horses.

States Calmly Watches German Vows Broken

Lord Beresford Questions Neutrality of the United States —American Warships Watched Submarine Raid But Raised No Hand to Prevent It—Great Britain is Probing Raid--Lord Beresford Expresses Opinion That Germany is Endeavouring to Draw America Into the War.

GUARANTEE A PAPER ONE

LONDON, October 28.—Some utterances of the feeling that the activity of American warships in rescuing passengers from the vessels sunk by the German submarine U-53 off the American coast amounted to a breach of neutrality were made in the House of Lords by Baron Beresford and Baron Sydenham.

Lord Beresford is recognized by the country as the spokesman for the navy in the House of Lords, and Lord Sydenham's varied activities have included the authorship of books on naval affairs.

Similar opinions have been expressed by some newspapers and public men, as well as by naval officers and the matter was brought up for discussion by requests for information from Viscount Grey, secretary for foreign affairs, regarding the American policy and possible action by the British government.

Viscount Grey's reply was that the matter is one between the American and German governments. While stating that the British government was not yet informed as to whether any acts of the U-53 constituted a breach of the German promise to President Wilson, he declared that German submarines had committed violations of that pledge in other waters many times.

The submarine question was brought forward by Lord Sydenham, who asked if the particulars of the sinking of the British steamer Stephano and the others had been received, and whether the circumstances were in accordance with the German pledge to the United States. He referred to the activities of the U-53 under the very eyes of the American navy and to the declaration of President Wilson which resulted in the German pledge. Lord Sydenham declared:

Even before the exploits of the U-53 that pledge was torn to shreds. Yet the government of the United States has made no sign whatever that the sinking of neutral ships goes on almost every day. The Norwegians have lost 18 vessels in this one month, and what must small neutrals think of their powerful representatives.

ACTUALLY AIDED BY UNITED STATES.

No lives were lost, he said, because of the presence of American ships. Lord Sydenham took the position that the presence of American warships actually enabled Germany to defy what he said President Wilson had described as a sacred and indisputable rule of international law.

Baron Beresford expressed the opinion that Germany intended to bring America into the war so as to be able to say she could not fight the whole world, and also because the United States would be a valuable asset to her at the peace conference. He continued:

"The United States are really rather aiding and abetting this rather serious state of affairs. If the United States had not sent their ships, which for some extraordinary reason happened to be on the spot to save life, the Germans would no doubt have broken the pledge to which their attention had been called. I think we are bound to take notice of a fact which does not appear to be quite within the bounds of neutrality, as far as the United States are concerned.

BRITAIN PROBING RAID.

Foreign Secretary Grey said: "We have no understanding with the United States government as to what information they are going to get or what they will do with the information when they have obtained it. All we can do is to obtain information for ourselves from such sources as are open to us, and the sources in this case I imagine are officers in charge of the merchant vessels sunk or passengers, in one case at any rate, aboard the merchant vessels, all of whom have survived and to whom we can get their individual statements of what happened.

"That is what is being done on the other side, I understand. Full reports, I trust, will reach the Admiralty in due course as to the statements of survivors, and when these reports are received I cannot imagine any reason why they should not be made public in this country or that there will be any reluctance on the part of the Admiralty or among the departments concerned to make public the facts which we shall have got for ourselves, as to how the vessels were sunk and treated by the German submarine."

GUARANTEE A PAPER ONE.

"Lord Sydenham," continued Viscount Grey, "quoted statements made by Lord Crewe in August of the number of vessels sunk by German submarines since the German government gave a pledge to the United States government in May of last year up to the middle of August in circumstances which were apparently not in accordance with that pledge, which included firing torpedoes at ships without warning and insufficiently providing for the safety of the crews or passengers when the ships were sunk.

"I am sure the Admiralty (indeed, I think it has made public) can multiply instances which have occurred since the middle of August and are occurring every week of allied o. neutral merchant vessels having torpedoes fired at them without warning, and in some cases loss of life occurred from crews being placed in open boats as the only chance of safety when the vessel is sunk.

"These instances are occurring in different parts of the world. If he asks whether they occurred off the United States coast the other day, that is a matter on which I cannot pronounce my opinion until we get the facts; but if he wishes to know whether they are occurring elsewhere it is undoubtedly a fact and we have published instances quite lately of its occurring in the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

LET THE UNITED STATES FIGHT IT OUT.

"I see no use at this moment of discussing the question. The pledge was one which passed between the government of Germany and the government of the United States. It is not a pledge given to us. I do not think that at the present moment we can do any good whatever by discussing the question of what the policy of the United States is or ought to be towards the German Government in regard to that subject. That is a matter for the United States itself. I do not think allied interests or the interests of these merchant vessels could be served by raising any discussion in this country at the present moment with regard to a matter which is one between the United States Government and the German Government and which is a matter, of course, in which it is for the United States Government, not for us, to decide what is the policy and what is the action which the circumstances of the case require that the United States Government should take."

Duvall glanced at the locket, then opened it and looked at the photograph within. "It does not tell us much," he said. "The dead man's monogram, and a portrait no doubt of his sweetheart. It should be returned to her."

"Yes," said Grace. "The poor girl may not even know." She replaced the locket in her purse.

"You will not, of course, know me outside of these rooms," said he.

"No. Of course not. And now—what do you wish me to do?"

"Keep out of sight for the present. If that woman who was with Hartmann recognizes you she may do something we do not want. Just pretend to be seasick or something for a while until I see how the land lies." He replaced his disguise, drew on a soft hat, and stepped from his room into the corridor.

He had no difficulty in identifying the woman Grace had described to him, and through Captain Bonnot learned the number of her room. He further arranged that while she was at luncheon he would be admitted to her room by the purser. He was determined to lose no time in recovering the missing franc.

To his surprise a great disappointment awaited him. He had no sooner opened the satchel into which he had seen Hartmann toss the box of cigars the night before than he saw that the box was not there. The woman had packed a quantity of her own belongings into the satchel and had doubtless removed the bulky cigar box to obtain additional room.

But what had she done with it? Her it lean carelessly tossed aside at the house in Twenty-seventh street since the woman had spent the night? Or had she taken the cigars from the box and wrapped them in smaller compass?

In the first case, the coin was probably lost beyond all possibility of recovery. In the second, the woman doubtless had discovered it and had it in her possession.

With feverish haste Duvall examined every object in the satchel. At last, near the bottom, he found the cigars neatly tied in a bundle by means of a bit of string. The coin was nowhere to be seen. He concluded that the woman must have it concealed about her person.

He began to feel almost superstitious about this franc that had a way of so mysteriously disappearing, slipping like quicksilver through the hands of every one who endeavored to possess it.

The woman doubtless knew of its value, but it was unlikely that she could make use of her knowledge without Hartmann.

It was improbable that he had imparted the secret of the coin, whatever it was, to her. Duvall therefore felt certain that she would, at the very first opportunity, rejoin her confederate and apprise him of the good news. He had supposed, no doubt, after his unsuccessful attempt upon the safe at the Hotel Rochambeau, that the coin was lost to him forever, and yet, by a curious fate, he had, unknown to himself, been carrying it about all night in his satchel.

Duvall set the room to rights as quickly as possible, and went at once to the dining saloon. He had also arranged with Captain Bonnot to be assigned a place alongside the woman at table. As he went to his seat he wondered whether Hartmann might not have come on board in disguise and so have eluded Grace's observation. If so, the woman would doubtless attempt to communicate with him at the first opportunity. He determined to watch her every move from now on.

During the afternoon this was not at all difficult. She sat quietly in a steamer chair reading a magazine and paying not the least attention to any one.

Duvall began to wonder whether, after all, she had not arranged to meet Hartmann in France after landing, he to have taken another steamer.

And then it was that the whole matter was swept from his mind by a note which he received from Captain Bonnot. It was delivered by a deck steward, and it asked Duvall to come to the captain's cabin at once.

He went, much as he disliked to relax his observation of the woman. The note of Bonnot's now told him that something of interest had happened.

The captain was sitting at a desk in his room, and with him were the ship's doctor and the first officer. When Duvall entered he presented them to him. "Gentlemen," he said, "this is M. Lefevre, prefect of police of Paris. He is on board in connection with the matter of the strange disappearance of our purser, George Vernon."

The doctor and the first officer both smiled, the latter a bit superciliously. "No doubt, then," he said, "M. Lefevre will be interested to learn what has just occurred."

Duvall looked at the captain. "What is it?" he asked.

"This, monsieur. The purser, George Vernon, is not dead at all. As a matter of fact, he is at this moment alive and well; aboard this vessel, Beaugard, bring M. Vernon here."

CHAPTER XIII

THE WIRELESS FROM M. LEFEVRE.

About four o'clock the same afternoon Mr. Germaine, the managing director of the Trans-atlantic Line was sitting at his desk, enjoying a late-afternoon cigar.

He had just finished signing his mail when a clerk came in and laid on the desk before him two envelopes, which, from their external appearance, evidently contained wireless messages.

He took up the first and read it, then removed his glasses, in a dazed sort of way, wiped them carefully with his handkerchief, and put them on again. Then he read the message.

It was dated that day, and had been sent from the steamship Richelieu half an hour earlier. It said:

"Man claiming to be Purser George Vernon now on board Richelieu. Believe him to be an impostor. Am handing case as you requested.

(Signed) ETIENNE LEFEVRE."

The managing director sat back in his chair somewhat helplessly. Vernon not dead, after all! M. Lefevre on board the vessel, bound for France. It seems incredible. He again polished his glasses, then blew his nose violently. After that, as he could think of nothing else to do, he proceeded to read the second telegram.

It also was from the steamship and read as follows:

"Purser George Vernon found on board to-day. Is weak from long confinement, but otherwise well. Tells strange story of assault and robbery by unknown men. Case being investigated by M. Lefevre, the prefect of police, who is now on board.

(Signed) EMILE BONNOT, Capt."

Mr. Germaine laid the two telegrams carefully on top of each other and pressed a button at the side of his desk.

"Is Mr. Barnes in his office?" he asked the boy who appeared in response to his summons. "If so, ask him to come here at once."

The boy withdrew. A few moments later Mr. Barnes came into the office. The managing director glanced up then spoke.

"Barnes," he said, "you were at the pier this morning when the Richelieu sailed?"

The detective seemed surprised by the question. "Certainly, sir," he said. "I always am. Why?"

"Did you see M. Lefevre, the prefect of police, on board?"

"Yes, sir. Just at the last moment. I was talking to him. I must say I was surprised when I saw he was going back to France. I asked him why he had decided to leave New York so soon, but he wouldn't tell me."

Mr. Germaine passed him the two messages. "If you will read these you will see that he had a very good reason," he remarked, with a short laugh. "A remarkable man—a very remarkable man. I doubt if there is his equal as a detective anywhere."

The detective gave a low whistle. "Well, this beats me!" he cried. "Vernon not dead! I can't believe it."

"I don't believe it," growled Mr. Germaine. "Captain Bonnot has been made the victim of some clever rascal. You see, what Lefevre says. I have every confidence in him."

Barnes scratched his head, very much perplexed. "The man we found dead in the hold was certainly Vernon. I knew him too well to be mistaken."

"Of course, and so did I. There's something mighty queer about this thing, but I don't doubt that M. Lefevre will find out the truth."

"Sure he will." A wonderful man, as you say, Mr. Germaine. I take off my hat to him every time, and I don't do that to many in this profession. Is there anything to be done at this end, sir? This fellow Hartmann is still at large. The police lost track of him last night, I hear."

"I did not know they were on the track."

"Yes. He was pointed out on Sixth Avenue last night, and after trying to burglarize the Hotel Rochambeau. He had a woman with him, I understand. They both got away."

"Indeed! That's too bad. Why don't you get busy, Barnes, and see what you can do? It would be a great feather in your cap to locate the fellow, after both the police, and M. Lefevre as well have failed to do."

"I believe I'll try it, sir, since you suggest it. I might turn the trick. You give me a free hand, of course?"

"Of course! See what you can do, and, Barnes, I wish you would run up to-night and tell Mr. Morris of his latest development. He is very deeply interested. I fancy he would like to know."

"I'll do it on my way home. Anything else, sir?"

"Nothing else just now. You may go."

"Yes, sir." The detective went out, a somewhat mystified look upon his face. "A remarkable man, this Lefevre," he muttered to himself as he left the room. "Just think of comparing him with a fellow like Duvall. Ridiculous! They're not in the same class."

He saw Mr. Morris about seven o'clock. The financier did not seem to be as much surprised at the news as Barnes had expected him to be.

"I judge that the case is perfectly safe in M. Lefevre's hands," he remarked, with no great show of interest.

"Safe as a church," Barnes assented enthusiastically. "The fellow Lefevre's a great man. Great! Doesn't he have gay time, believe me. Right on the job." He went away still voicing his enthusiasm.

Mr. Morris returned to his dinner, smiling quietly to himself. Had Mr. Barnes been able to look into the financier's dining room at that moment he would have beheld a sight that no doubt have caused him a very great deal of surprise.

Mr. Morris sat at the head of the table, and the place opposite to him was occupied by an elderly gentleman in evening clothes, whose gray hair and pointed mustache gave him a distinguished and rather a military appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris were both laughing heartily.

"A remarkable fellow, this Lefevre," Mr. Morris was saying. "If you will permit me, monsieur, I will propose a toast. To the health of that most able of detectives, M. Etienne Lefevre."

The elderly gentleman bowed and laughed. "I only hope, Mr. Morris," he said, as he put down his glass, "that he will succeed both in finding the murderers of M. Vernon and in recovering the missing legacy of that poor child, Mlle. Estelle Mercier."

"Amen," responded the financier. "And if he doesn't, I'll be hanged if I don't make it good to her myself."

Nerves!!
—"On Edge"
—"Jumpy"
Yours is a case for Wincarnis

If your nerve centres have become weakened by overwork, worry or anxiety, they are unable to transmit the necessary nourishment, and the nerves become worn out and "on edge." Then it is that a sudden sound makes you "jump"—you get irritable—you suffer from neuralgia—you are restless and depressed. In this condition there is nothing to equal

WINCARNIS

Because, being a powerful nerve food, Wincarnis gets right to the root of the trouble, and, by creating a supply of new nerve force, stimulates and revitalizes the whole nervous system. Try Wincarnis for "nerves." It is wonderful. Over 10,000 doctors recommend it.

WHEN CANNON SWELLED

Experiences of Gunners While Protecting Infantry Rushes

A British gunner writes from the front as follows: "At last, the day dawned and, after an early cup of tea, we started to dispatch a few more specimens of English metal into the enemy lines. For a couple of hours, we (as well as every other battery in the line) poured a ceaseless stream of metal upon the poor 'blighters' waiting for our infantry attack. In the gun pits, stripped to the waist, with sweat running down us and covered in oil and dirt, we do some record firing. Deaf, owing to the terrific noise and concussion, smarting eyes where the lachrymatory gas had penetrated under our masks, strained faces due to lack of sleep; but, withal, a look of satisfaction on every face.

"We got the signal to pause for a minute, as the infantry is going 'over the top.' The London Terriers (London Scots, Rifle Brigade, etc.) who were in front of us, went steadily across, and in exactly 36 minutes from the time of starting had penetrated the enemy's fourth line of trenches. As they got nearer the German lines, the latter rushed out and threw up their hands, but on the Terriers went to the next trench, though not without bestowing a kick on the tender part of the 'blighters' anatomy, leaving them for those who followed. We started firing again at a longer range, and worked like demons as our range gradually crept up, and the fuses were lengthened accordingly, for we knew our men were going on rapidly. We set up a cheer when we knew they had reached the fourth line of trenches.

"At one time we reached such a rapid rate of firing, that water had to be poured down the muzzles of the guns to cool them. All that came out the other end was—steam, and, the steel of the breach expanding, we had to force the breech open after each shell with a stave of wood. At length the guns became so hot that one could hardly stand near them, let alone touch them. The steel, of course, expanding under the heat stopped the gun from sliding back into its proper place after the recoil. Two of the guns in our battery were thus compelled reluctantly to 'cease fire' till they cooled down a bit."

CONSECRATED GROUND

"When," wrote a gifted English writer, "the war is over this triangle of meadowland, (the Ypres salient) with a ruined city for its base, will be an enclave of Belgian soil consecrated as the holy land of two great peoples. It may be that it will be specially set apart as a memorial place; it may be that it will be unmarked, and that the countryfolk will till and reap as before over the vanishing trench lines. But it will never be common ground. It will be for us the most hallowed spot on earth, for it holds our bravest dust, and it is the proof and record of a new spirit."

MUDDY, PIMPLY SKIN?

Many people with disfigured complexions never seem to think that they need an occasional cleansing inside as well as outside. Yet neglect of this internal cleanliness shows itself in spotty and sallow complexions, as well as in dreadful headaches and biliousness. NO HOUSE BIG ENOUGH FOR 2 FAMILIES, ADVICE

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 27. — The following advice to newly married couples is given by Foster G. Iddings Sioux City police court judge.

"There is no house big enough to shelter two families.

"Too much father-in-law has the same effect.

"A wife should leave her husband to visit relatives at least two weeks every year. On her return she appreciates her better when he returns.

"A young couple's place is by themselves. Their battles are their own.

"Welcome your relatives as company, but do not permit more than one to come at a time."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S COVER-ALL APRON.

By Anabel Worthington.

An apron that will be popular alike with mother and the junior, for whom it was designed, is shown in the illustration No. 7,916. It is cut with a square yoke front and back to fit the figure neatly, with the upper edges of the body part gathered to the yokes. The joining is neatly bound.

You may have the short sleeve without a cuff or the long one with a wristband cuff. A collar in contrasting color will give the neck a dainty finish and also brighten up the garment for the wearer.

This serviceable little cover-all is so neatly fashioned that it may take the place of a dress at times, with the sureness of comfort and propriety as well.

Gingham is popular and dependable for such garment, but there are other durable fabrics that will make up prettily and give as good satisfaction. The fastening is at the back. A school girl can make the apron with the pattern before her.

Pattern No. 7,916 is cut in sizes 4 to 12 years. To make a size 8 will require 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

You may obtain the pattern by sending 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BABY SICKNESS.

CONVULSIONS A CONVULSION in an infant may be the symptom of any acute illness or of indigestion. It does not usually mean brain disease, but it is alarming. The best thing to do is to give an injection of half a pint or so of warm soapsuds to induce a movement of the bowels. After this place the baby in a baby's bath-tub half full of water of a temperature not over 105 Deg. F. Test the water with a thermometer or by dipping the arm over the elbow in the water. Don't do as the writer once saw an otherwise intelligent mother do upon one occasion. In order to heat the water the tub was placed upon the stove and when the water seemed to be warm enough the baby was placed in the tub on top of the stove. Of course, the bottom of the tub was about as hot as the top of the stove; the consequence was that the buttocks of the poor baby suffered severely and took some time to heal of the resulting burn. Unless the convulsion is checked at once, the doctor should be called in.

* * *

COLDS Many communicable diseases start like common colds; for example, measles, whooping cough, and to some extent cerebro-spinal meningitis. Colds are contagious or catching; they usually spread through a whole household when one member of the family becomes affected. At the onset of a cold it is best that the sick one be isolated in a separate room. One cannot tell at the beginning what trouble may be coming on.

* * *

CONSTIPATION If the baby's bowels have not moved for forty-eight hours or longer he should be given an injection of two or three ounces of warm soapsuds or a suppository of soap or glycerine. Milk of magnesia, a dessert spoonful, may be given at six months. Keep the following things in mind if the baby becomes constipated:—

(1) Have a regular time for bowel movements, best in the morning. Let nothing interfere with this.

(2) Teach the baby to drink boiled water and let him have plenty of liquids. This should amount to one and one-half or two ounces in the twenty-four hours.

(3) Give the baby orange juice and prune juice. These are best given in the morning. Two teaspoonfuls may be given at first and increased up to one tablespoonful or the juice of a whole orange as the child gets older.

(4) The addition of more fat in the form of cream to the food.

(5) As the baby gets older coarse cereals may be given. These add bulk to the movement.

(6) Massage the abdomen beginning at the lower right hand portion, rubbing up; then to the left and then down to the left-hand portion.

* * *

WORMS Worms are rare in infants. The diagnosis cannot be made unless one sees the worms, which in infants are of the variety known as thread worms. All sorts of symptoms are put down to worms, such as "picking the nose," "worm fever," etc. This is all nonsense. The chief trouble with most infants who are sick is that they are stuffed too much with nurse or food. If worms are seen a doctor should be called in. It is not wise for the mother to fool with the treatment of an infant. The early service of a reliable doctor is always the wisest course to pursue.

* * *

VACCINATION All babies should be vaccinated before they are a year old, because at this age they can be well taken care of. There is no danger from vaccination if the little wound is protected from dirt and injury.

* * *

MILK There are a great many babies killed in this country every year by dirty milk. Milk is an excellent food for children, if it is clean and properly taken care of. In order to have clean milk the cows must be healthy, well fed and their udders kept clean. The hands of the milkers must also be clean. The Board of Health has a "Movie" picture which many of you have seen. It depicts more clearly than one can tell the story of how milk is often produced on farms. The cows wade through mud and manure to the stables, which are far from clean. The milker is a dirty old chap, the pail stands in the stable filth and, to crown it all, the milker spits on his hands before sitting down to fill the pail from the dirty udder of the cow whose swishing tail and dirty flanks contribute their share to the contents of the milk pail. How can the milk be good and wholesome under such conditions?

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

SCHOOL OF MOTHERHOOD

There have been innumerable projects for schools or school courses in the art and science of motherhood. Some of them may have been successful, for all anyone knows, although in the rush of news on the advance styles in corsets and earrings and other necessities there seems no place for reviewing the motherhood situation. But the will the late Mrs. Lizzie Morill Palmer, of Detroit, is attracting some attention, momentarily. Mrs. Palmer left something like one million dollars to found a school of motherhood. The million surely tinkles in the ear, even if motherhood doesn't mean much to some mothers.

Mrs. Palmer's idea went deeper than the mere vocal and instrumental teaching of motherhood. And properly so. For the fundamentals of motherhood can be picked from a ninety-eight cent dictionary, while what we want to see taught is the responsibility, not the medicine of it.

Mrs. Palmer understood that. Her plans provide for no ordinary clinic in obstetrics, but for a school that shall train girls of ten years and upwards, mentally, morally, physically, and religiously for the discharge of the functions of wifehood and motherhood and the management, supervision and inspiration of the home. Poor girls will receive the training free. Rich girls will pay—if it should strangely happen that any girls with money to spend are interested in such affairs.

The will of Mrs. Palmer may never be executed in its finest intention. Ours is a busy world, and motherhood is hardly more than an incident as some women view it. But it's a good will. The beautiful idealism of it may impress a few, even if people do snort at the thought of going to school for posterity's sake.

A trifle eccentric,' no doubt, but hearken to these words of Mrs. Palmer:

"I hold profoundly the conviction that the welfare of any community is divinely and hence inseparably dependent upon the qualities of its motherhood and the spirit and charity of its homes."

It sounds like the music of an old song. You couldn't fox trot to it to save your soul, but it does have a certain melody.

Boys, do not forget that profanity is a mark of low breeding. Show us the man who commands the best respect; an oath never trembles on his tongue. Read the catalogue of crime. Inquire into the character of those who depart from virtue. Without a single exception you will find them to be profane. Truth is one of the rarest gems. Many a youth has been lost to society by allowing it to tarnish and foolishly throwing it away. If this gem still shines in your bosom, suffer nothing to displace it or dim its lustre.

It has been well said that a single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts a gloom over the whole household, while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light the darkest and weariest hour. Like unexpected flowers, springing up along our dusty road, full of fresh fragrance and beauty, so kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell. No matter how humble the abode if it be thus garnished with grace and sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn longingly toward it from all the tumults of the world, and home, if it be ever so homely, will be the dearest spot beneath the circuit of the sky.

A clean, well aired and well managed house results in good natured inmates.

If you love, love more. If you hate, hate less. Life is too short to spend in hating any one. Why war against a mortal who is going the same road with us? Why not expand the flower of life and happiness by learning to love, by teaching those who are near and dear the beautiful lessons? Your hands may be hard, but your heart need not be. Your form may be bent or ugly, but do you know that the most beautiful flowers grow in the most rugged, unsheltered places? The palace for care, the cottage for love. Not that there is no love in a mansion; but somehow if we are not very careful, business will crowd all there is of beauty out of the heart. This is why God has given the Sabbaths and Saturday nights, that we may leave business and have a little heart cleaning.

Take the trouble to get well acquainted with your children, and to interest yourself in their pastime, etc. By this means they will learn to trust and confide in you, and are not easily led away by outside influence.

The person that has wiped wet eyes, moistened parched tongues, put a new star in the sky of a dark life, added beauty and bloom, the song of birds and the blossom of flowers to the lot of another is—whether he be rich or poor, known or unknown, bond or free—one of God's nobility.

Preparing For The Lighter Side of Life

The Seasons Evening Gowns and Wraps Are Most Elaborate—The Novelties in Accessories

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. — Evening gowns and wraps are once more the centre of attraction for the social season is at hand and all who take part in the gaieties of dances and theater parties that brighten the autumn and winter, are starting their preparations for these social events.

The materials and trimmings for evening wear are very rich this season, and the gowns are accordingly most elaborate and luxurious; seemingly, there is no limit to the extravagance of many of them. In materials, the preference seems to be given to chiffon velvet, and the soft richness of this material is especially adapted to developing the sumptuous gowns that women of fashion demand. Next in importance come the brocaded silks and satins and the gold and silver laces and nets. Quantities of these gold, silver and other metallic laces are used and they are combined with tulle and net or with soft silks, satins and velvets. Black chiffon velvet combined with gold or silver lace is especially high in favour, but the coloured velvets are also favoured, some of them being very brilliant, while others are in the softer shades For young girls, white satin embroidered in silver as well as the soft shades of pink and blue make very charming gowns. Tulle is another of the girlish materials for youthful dance frocks. It makes the dantiest of frocks and the tulle used at present is not of the perishable kind that was used formerly.

In the way of trimming, everything that glitters and sparkles is in demand for decorating evening frocks. Quantities of paillettes, sequins, and rhinestone trimmings are employed so that there is a great deal of glitter and glamour about the evening frocks of this season.

The use of chiffon velvet combined with lace is shown in the charming model illustrated. Fine lace flouncing forms the side sections of the skirt, and this may be of white or silver lace, or black lace, which is also very effective. Bands of pearl or rhine stone trimming over the shoulders hold up the little bodice of black velvet, and at the same time they serve as a finish to the frills of lace which take the place of sleeves. Another type of sleeve which appears on ever so many evening frocks is the long trailing sleeve of tulle, known as the wing sleeve. It always gives added grace to a gown and is often outlined with iridescent beads.

In the Line of Accessories

Of the accessories for evening there are countless dainty conceits in the form of bags, artificial flowers to match dresses, and fans. The bags are of gold and silver tissue, or of silks. The large ostrich feather fans are favoured above all others, and very beautiful they are, coming in all colours to match the gowns they are to accompany.

Evening slippers are of satin, brocades and silver and gold tissues the latter being particularly favoured. Many are ornamented with buckles of rhinestone and crystal, while there are those entirely devoid of ornament Some striking fancy slippers are half of gold or silver tissue and half of gay-coloured satin. They were made with vamps of the coloured satin and the heels and quarters of gold or silver, with bows to match are worn with the slippers, for they are to be had in all the desired colours.

When boiling salt beef, if you intend to use the liquor for soup, leave a couple of carots in the pot and throw in a slice or toasted bread. These will absorb much of the salt.

It is almost as easy to achieve foolishness as to be born foolish.

False pride is really lack of pluck.

Pans for baking bread should be narrow to insure thorough baking of the bread.

To bake patties successfully the oven should have a strong under heat.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure Blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. After using "Fruit-a-tives" for one week, the rash is completely gone. I am deeply thankful for the relief and is the future, I will not be without "Fruit-a-tives".

BRITAIN MAY ARM LINERS.

Washington Sees New Move In Arrival of Laconia With Guns Aboard.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The arrival at New York Tuesday of the Cunard liner Laconia with a four-inch gun mounted on her stern is looked upon in Washington as marking the initiation of a new policy of arming for defence British merchant vessels traversing the North Atlantic steamship lanes.

Early in the war two British ships came into American ports with guns mounted on their decks, but, after an exchange of communications between the State Department and the British Ambassador, the guns were removed from these vessels.

The activities of the U-53, which is regarded by Lord R. Cecil as having extended the war area to the American side of the Atlantic, according to information reaching Washington, has revived in England the question of arming for defence vessels travelling to and from American ports.

Weed Industry In England

Herbs Neglected for Generatons Now Carefully Garnered.

Under the caption "Neglected Weeds Make a Rich War Harvest" the British Intelligence Service recently issued a story dealing with the renewed use to which various herbs long neglected in England are now being put, particularly those with medicinal qualities.

"The great war," the story reads, "is teaching England anew the value of many natural possessions neglected for generations. When Shakespeare wrote 'Small herbs have grace' small herbs had also a great value in the national economy of England: they provided the only medicine that cured the ills of the flesh, they helped to keep the vigorous yeomen of England in health and sturdiness. In modern times the English herb garden has been preserved much as a curiosity. The garden around Shakespeare's house at Stratford-on-Avon is a typical example.

"Except in country places the practical use of herbs in England had almost entirely ceased—every hedgerow every piece of waste land was full of growths of commercial value, and the people of England for want of instruction neglected them—medicinal compounds could be bought so cheaply from Germany! But the war having cut off the German supply England is turning to its own herb supplies again, and this summer has seen a wonderful development of herb collecting as a new industry in country places. Old people, children and wounded soldiers are doing the collecting, and centres for accumulating the harvest, cleaning and drying it are springing up everywhere. Here is a description of one of them:

"Hidden from the country road in one of the prettiest districts of the Eastern Counties is a three-storied mill, centuries old, picturesque and strangely silent, though its wheels remain in contact with the river. The mill seems only a relic of Old England and the most prosperous days of farming. It is really a drying station of the new medicinal herb industry.

"A glance through the open door shows what transformation is necessary to fit a mill for drying herbs. Bunched leaves of nearly every variety of medicinal herb hang in row after row from the heavy beams, drying in the breeze from the open door. Biscuit tins all over the floor store the smallest plants; daisy headed camomile, colchicum seeds, the fly devouring sundew, and many others.

"There are different rooms in the building for the various processes of the industry. One department, set apart as a kiln, in which is maintained a heat of 120 degrees, is hung with burdock roots. On the ground floor is 'the steep,' where plants are washed before being hung from the rafters of the biggest loft. In every room are large sacks on the floor awaiting either the herb collector or some one deputed to despatch them to a London dealer.

"Not far from the mill are small plots where garden plants are grown for test purposes. These plots yield valuable information and prove that some of the most needed herbs can be grown on soil insufficiently fertile for ordinary cultivation; belladonna, henbane, datura, peppermint, meliot, pennyroyal, woodruff, agrimony and yarrow thrive where other plants wither.

The difficulties in the cultivation of belladonna have been overcome in East Anglia by interspersing plants with rows of scarlet runners, which shading the poisonous herb, cause it to grow rapidly.

"The herb industry, though restricted to the cultivation of herbs, has become associated with several industrial and social problems. For instance it can give employment to the wounded. Some convalescent soldiers staying in the neighborhood of the East Anglin branch of the herb industry, volunteered to collect herbs, and from the hedges they brought all sorts of plants to the drying station. A small party of men lately collected a cwt. of foxglove leaves during one expedition.

"This occupation, undertaken voluntarily, showed the Herb Growers' Association that the men could find herb growing a congenial form of livelihood, and a scheme will be discussed at a conference to make the project practical. The branches of the industry employ all ages and classes and appeal to all sorts of people. Children bring their little contributions, farmers, amused and interested that that their weed pests are valuable, send the weeds from their cornfields, and paid experts utilise them in a building voluntarily provided by the local landowner, who on a reserved plot experiments with the cultivation of digitalis and other poisonous plants to the benefit of the nation."

ARE BATHS NECESSARY?

This looks like a foolish question in this enlightened age but there are nearly a million Americans who know nothing of Internal Bathing a few years ago and are now eager to testify that they are fully as essential to health as External Baths.

By a purely natural process of properly using warm water, the "J. B. L. Cascade" removes ALL the poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, which physicians agree is the cause of 95 per cent. of all human ailments.

It instantly relieves constipation, properly regulates the bowels and prevents all the dragging down which Biliousness and Liver Troubles always create.

E. W. Southall, M.D., of Geneseo, N.Y., writes:

"I challenged the doctors in this town last week in regard to what I can do with your 'Cascade.' I can say for a truth that I know the reason for my success with many serious illnesses was due to having the bowels washed out once and sometimes twice a day. I only wish I could make the people in general believe in the efficiency of a good bowel washing. Sincerely yours."

The Warne Drug Co. will show and explain it to you on request. A free and interesting booklet on Internal Bathing—"Why Man of To-day is only 50 per cent Efficient, can also be obtained for the asking. If you prefer write to Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, 165 College Street, Toronto, for the same.

THANKFUL TO FRANCE

London Times

We did our part in helping France to stay and to turn the felon rush of the Germans through violated Belgium at the beginning of the war, and she has acknowledged the value of our aid with characteristic generosity. But the whole course of the struggle that has followed, culminating in the heroic defence of Verdun, brought home to us that we owe her the time which enabled us to transform our "contemptible little army" into the great host to press back the Kaiser's choicest troops. We are thankful to France for the respite which has made it possible for us to raise and equip the new armies that are fighting side by side with their French comrades for right and liberty to-day. She could have no greater claim upon our gratitude than that of gaining us this privilege.

PRETTY WAR ROMANCE

Australian Hero Marries School-Day Sweetheart in England

A pretty romance has been discovered in the marriage recently of Gunner T. H. Arrowsmith, of the Australian Field Artillery, and Miss Amice Deane, of Ealing. Gunner Arrowsmith, who is a close friend of the Australian Premier, Mr. Hughes, said in speaking of his bride: "We went to school together. She used to help me with my English, and I to assist her with her French. We grew very fond of one another, in a boy and girl manner. Eight years ago I went to Australia, and for a time we corresponded, but it gradually waned, till we never wrote at all. Nevertheless I never forgot her.

"When the war broke out I joined the Australian contingent, and I sent her a postcard to say that I was going to fight. In view of that I asked her if she would send me a letter. She did so, and letters became more frequent, but I had no idea of what was waiting for me when I arrived at Paddington recently. There she was, with her parents, and directly she saw me—well, perhaps I had not better say any more."

Incidentally, he mentioned that Miss Deane was formerly engaged to be married to a well-known millionaire. He expressed no sorrow for the millionaire, describing the incident as a "victory for first love." Mr. Arrowsmith went through several severe engagements in Gallipoli and bears many scars. His father was also wounded in the same campaign.

RUSSIAN INDUSTRY SET BACK BY WAR

Russia's Great Problems Discussed by a Leader—Tribute to Western Instructors of New Russ Armies

M. Protopopoff, Vice-President of the Duma and a leading Russian manufacturer was interviewed in England. He said, regarding the successful Russian offensive against the Austrians that considerable credit was due not only to Japan which had sent enormous quantities of guns and ammunition but also to France and England and particularly to the many French and English officers who during 1915 came to Russia and who had done admirable work as instructors of the young men making up the new armies of Russia. These officers, and many Japanese officers with them, had not only been active in the military colleges and training camps behind the fronts but had accompanied their pupils into the firing line. "It was exactly this kind of assistance we needed from our allies," Mr. Protopopoff said, "for of ordinary human material we have enough to carry on this war until every German soldier has been put out of action."

Germans Ruthless

Speaking of the sufferings of the Russian people during the war, he said that words failed him to describe what the refugees from the districts now in the hands of the Germans have had to bear. He added: "The war naturally has played havoc with our industries, which mainly flourished in the part of the country occupied by the Germans. As you may perhaps remember, thousands of factories were evacuated and stripped of all machinery as soon as it was seen that it was impossible temporarily to stem the tide of the German armies.

Pessimist's View

"Many manufacturers have had the energy to make a fresh start in Petrograd and further east, but they will not remain there after the war. When recently I asked a manufacturer who had moved his factory from Riga to Petrograd if he would not settle down there permanently he replied most emphatically: "No, a thousand times, no! Everything is wrong here. The people first of all. They are clever and smart enough, but they are fatalists. The proximity of Asia is felt too much—the workers are all lazy, as lazy as Asiatics. They will work two days but on the third day they will stay away. In driving us out of the western provinces the war has set back Russian industry at least a century.'

"This is of course a very pessimistic view to take and one which I am far from sharing, but it will take us a very long time to recover and what we fear most is that it will prove impossible to keep out the Germans. We want energetic people from friendly countries to come to Russia and settle down."

GERMAN DENOUNCES HUNS

"Germany Walked War," Says Author of "I Accuse"

The anonymous writer, supposed to be a well known Berlin millionaire of social-democratic tendencies, who aroused a storm of indignation, when he published his book "I accuse," denouncing official Germany for having brought about the world war, created a fresh sensation here by publishing a volume "Der Springende Punkt" (the salient point) in which he violently attacked German militarism under the pen name "Germanicus." He declares that "the legend of the war of liberation" which never found credence anywhere in the world outside of Germany, has been absolutely disproved by the diplomatic events which preceded the declaration of war, now generally known.

"All the official and semi-official assurances issued by the German government, all, the books and pamphlets with which the neutral countries have been flooded have been powerless to disprove the established fact that Germany and Austria, consciously or unconsciously, from the moment of the sending of the Austrian ultimatim to Serbia until the declaration of war against Russia, wanted the war, made it inevitable, and frustrated all the peacemaking efforts of the powers of the Entente."

"It is still being asserted in Germany," the writer says in another passage, "that it was France which committed the first hostile acts against Germany, but the notorious tale of the wicked French aviators, who, according to the German declaration of war, dropped bombs on Nuremberg which did no damage, is far too clumsy for any intelligent person to believe it even for a single moment. It was Germany, a civilized European state which was the aggressor. Of this there is not the slightest doubt. Such aggression may be renewed and will be renewed without the slightest doubt if Germany should be able, by force of arms, to impose upon her adversaries the war demands of her annexionist politicians or even the most modest demands of her government, such as they were recently outlined by the Chancellor.

"The consequence of a peace of this kind would certainly be the resurrection of the vicious clique who would in the end again provoke new aggressions 'as a measure of prevention.' Other nations, other parties in the world who stand on a lower level of civilization, savages or semi-savages, yellow, red or black, are apt to make themselves guilty of similar acts, aggression against Europe and ever more so against other colonial countries, for the Prussian Junkers, the Jan-germanists, and the militarists are not the only savage people in the world. If the will to preserve peace had existed in Berlin or Vienna, Europe would not be involved in war. But this will did not exist."

Sir Arthur Herbert, the British diplomat, who received anonymous warnings before sailing from New York, is one of the most accomplished and experienced men in the service. He speaks seven languages, and has drawn two Foreign Office allowances for his knowledge of Russian and Persian.

MY HEART IS IN ENGLAND.

My body is in Canada,
Dear land, so good and fair;
But, Oh, my heart is in England,
Since my boy went over there.
And my thoughts are ever with him,
Though he's far away from me;
And between us, wide are rolling,
The dark billows of the sea.

From the cloudier skies above me fell,
A shadow dull and grey;
Overcasting life's bright sunshine,
When I saw him march away.
But his king and country needs him,
And think not that I complain;
For when duty calls I'd be the last
To bid him home remain.

When the troop-ship bore my darling boy
Across the waters blue;
Upon love's lightsome wings upborne,
My heart went with him, too.
I will wait for his returning,
And a welcome, warm, prepare,
But my heart will be in England,
While my boy is over there.

I am proud that he has voluntered,
To fight for home and kin;
And I hope for our dear Canada,
High honours he may win.
O, Canada, I love thee well;
Blest land of beauty rare;
But my heart will be in England
While my boy is over there.

MAN GOES 60 MILES TO ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL

HANOVER, Pa., Oct. 27.—J. Emory Renoll, of this place, who has not missed a session of Sunday School for nineteen years, travelled sixty miles last Sunday in order to maintain an unbroken record.

Renoll is Secretary of Trinity Reformed Sunday School, and when he learned of the edict of Dr. Samuel Dixon closing all Sunday Schools in Pennsylvania, he decided to go to Maryland.

Arriving in Baltimore on an early train he found all the city schools closed, but, undismayed, he went to the country; and after searching for hours, found a school in session six miles from Baltimore, which he attended.

Renoll is preparing to go out of town, probably into West Virginia, as he is determined to uphold his unique record.

BILL:—"I insured my life to-day for $5000 in The Manufacturers Life."

GEORGE:—"You're only passing this way once why don't you have a good time with your money?"

BILL:—"When I told Edith's father about our engagement he enquired what my prospects were. I told him how good everything looked and what I expected to be worth in a few years when he cut of duruduunded me by asking what would become of Edith should anything happen in the meanwhile."

GEORGE:—"What's that got to do with life insurance?"

BILL:—"Why everything, George. If anything happens the policy will be the FIRST ASSET realized on and this will provide Edith with sufficient funds to maintain her until she can dispose of my business to advantage."

GEORGE:—"Guess you're right Bill. Think I will also take out a policy with The Manufacturers Life for a substantial amount."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Episode of Travel

By MARTHA V. MONROE

Marriage in Europe has always been brought about in different ways from those prevailing in America. With us the great bulk of the marriages are made for love; in Europe they are largely arranged by the parents. With us the bride is not expected to have a stated dowry; in Europe the amount must not only be fixed, but settled upon the bride before marriage. In America there are no marriage brokers, or, at least, there is no such institution; in Europe there are places, notably Geneva, where most of the marriages are brought about by this craft.

Jim Wilson, a young American, finding himself in a place where such was the prevailing custom, was much interested in it. Jim was one of those fellows who are not content with observing odd ways, but must try them. He went to a marriage broker and gave him an order for a wife. Not that he expected to marry; his purpose was to experience a case of wife negotiation. The broker told him that the man was expected to deposit sufficient money to pay all expenses; that when introduced to a lady, the object being matrimony, he might, after seeing her, withdraw, and she had the same privilege.

All classes availed themselves of the brokerage system, from the highest down to those who could not afford the expense. Jim was introduced to the daughter of a colonel in the army. He found a very ladylike and a very comely young person who received him, ignoring the purpose of the meeting entirely but chatting with him frankly and with charming sunset.

Jim could not understand how a girl of her refinement could depend upon a broker to find her a husband, and yet he knew that in the place where she lived such was considered about the only process by which girls could find husbands. He felt ashamed of himself for entering upon the matter since he had done so merely from curiosity.

Thinking that the best way out of the matter was to withdraw at once, he told his broker to say to the lady that he had decided that marriages between different nationalities were not likely to be happy and if he married he would mate with one of his own countrywomen. He had been told that it was the privilege of either party to withdraw and felt no compunction at doing so.

One day while walking in a park, where a military band was playing as people promenaded or sat about in groups, he came upon the young lady he had met for the purpose of gratifying his matrimonial curiosity sitting at a table with her father, who was sipping wine and smoking cigarettes. He expected to be recognized, if at all, with reserve, perhaps embarrassment. To his surprise she bowed to him with a smile. He did the proper thing by advancing and expressing himself charmed to meet her again. Her father, the colonel, rose, bowed very low and invited him to take a seat and partake of a liter of wine.

Jim was immensely pleased. After all, the matrimonial brokerage custom was not so bad. At any rate, here was a girl who had the good sense to consider the preliminaries in the light of a business transaction and not feel hurt that he had not proceeded in the affair. He chatted with her for some time, when her father took her away, giving him a cordial invitation to call upon them.

Jim was much pleased to make a pleasant acquaintance in this peculiar manner. When he reached home it would be one of the episodes of travel to tell his friends. He determined to accept the invitation for once at least and within a few days made the call. The lady, though as modest as before, seemed to feel a greater freedom that the matrimonial business was no longer between them. Contrary to European customs, he was left alone with her and when he departed felt that he had spent one of the most delightful evenings of his life.

Three weeks from that evening he left the lady again feeling that for him the bottom had dropped out of the universe. He had fallen desperately in love with the lady he had declined to marry and proposed to her. She had refused him, giving him to understand that she would not marry a foreigner and on no account an American.

If Mr. Wilson had any curiosity it was to know why she had received him cordially at first as a suitor and now that he was ready to complete what the broker had begun would not accept him. He knew that her father had nothing but his pay in the army and had felt certain that the marriage on that account alone might have been arranged. He concluded to go to the broker who had introduced him with a view to learning what had brought about the change. That person said to him:

"Monsieur, the lady could not be expected to meet with a refusal on your part to marry her. She has punished you for that."

"But," said Jim, "I thought you said that after one of your introductions of the party is at liberty to withdraw."

"So I did, but this is the business part of it—a woman is privileged to take another view of it, and in this case mademoiselle was evidently offended."

To Stop Hair Loss and Rid Your Scalp of Dandruff, Use

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Do you have dandruff? Does your hair fall out? Is it getting thinner and the parting more pronounced every day? If so, we advise you to get busy right away and before it is too late.

We are not trying to scare you. We are simply telling you the truth. If you would ward off impending baldness you must check that hair loss and rid your scalp of dandruff.

Start right and start now with the right remedy and stick to it—Newbro's Herpicide.

Use Herpicide daily for a while, then three times a week will be sufficient. Watch the change which takes place in the condition of your hair and scalp.

The scalp is clean and free from dandruff. The hair looks strong and healthy and does not fall out. There is vigor and snap where before the hair was dead, dull and brittle. The itching which is so annoying stops and you enjoy a feeling of coolness and cleanliness hitherto unknown.

Any dealer will sell you Newbro's Herpicide either in 50 cent or $1.00 size. It is guaranteed by The Herpicide Co. The first application will convince you that Newbro's Herpicide is the very thing for the hair. Its odor is delightful.

HIGH LIFE BELOW STAIRS

Artistic Methods of Some of Our "Fighting" French

A good craftsman had carved the names of some of the dug-outs on slabs of stone, with fine style and finish, such as those which announced the "Veterans' Villas" and "The Castle of the Snails."

"I live in luxury, mon capitaine," said a young artillery officer, as he led the way to a bomb-proof shelter very close to the German lines. It had real glass for its windows, and a green sun blind, with furniture of snow-white wood, and on the window ledge a bunch of poppies in a wine glass. There were even some oil color paintings on the walls, taken from a chateau too much frequented by hostile shells.

Another artillery officer—a tall, keen, dark-eyed fellow, from the South, as one could tell by the roll of his r's—had made a number of little mouse traps out of match boxes into these he pops some of the mice which he catches in his dug-out, and each box is labelled with the name of an enemy of France, the strongest one being for the Kaiser.

"We must cage the Hohenzollerns like that before the war ends," said the officer, and there was a glint of fire in his sombre eyes, though he smiled at the toys he had made.

Disloyal Hun Women

Facts which reached Berne from Germany brought evidence of the very severe watch that is being kept upon German women who show a disposition to be friendly with allied prisoners of war. A woman of Stettin was sentenced to eighteen months' hard labor to be followed by five years detention for having carried on a love affair with a Russian prisoner of war. Her daughter was sentenced to six months' hard labor for a similar offence. Many other German women have been severely punished for flirting with Russian and other enemy prisoners.

Roumania has the highest birth-rate of any European country.

Had To Cheer The Air Men

The Australian and New Zealand soldiers, whose valor and grit manifested in Gallipoli and in Picardy have received high recognition here, are themselves enthusiastic in praise of the British airmen on the Western front.

"They are all astonishingly brave," said a convalescent New Zealander who has watched them for months. "You always know that if the machine is very high up it belongs to Fritz, but if it is taking every risk and playing round among the Archies it is one of ours. Often your heart is in your mouth as you watch them flying through a sky that looks black with shells. We have strict orders not to cheer, and I've only known our trenches to do it once. That was after a most dramatic bit of work by British aircraft.

"Two aeroplanes had suddenly whirled over our lines, flying low and so mixed up that we were confused as we watched them. One was obviously English, and it was attempting to drive the other back over the German lines, and as they flew in circles we saw it was succeeding. The Germans were watching with as much interest as we, and so, we thought, were the men in the six beautiful observation balloons of a new pattern moored behind the German lines. The man who was chasing forced the other right back over the German trenches, and instantly they separated, each flying toward those balloons.

"It was the most dramatic thing you ever saw. Before the Germans had time to realize what was happening those six balloons were bombed and destroyed. One man alone was quick enough to seize a parachute and fling himself out, but the bomb that ripped up his balloon killed him as he fell. It was then that our trenches at the back cheered like mad. We didn't. We turned round, waved at them, and yelled 'Shut up!' You must relieve your feelings somehow."

Winning Friends by Telephone

"I HAVE never met that young man face to face," said a business man recently, as he hung up his receiver after a telephone conversation; "but the way he talks over the telephone is typical of the whole organization of that house. They always answer every question in a polite and courteous manner. They never keep you waiting unnecessarily. They all seem to take a personal interest in what you have to say, and you can be sure that your telephone requests will have the most careful attention."

Isn't such an endorsement of your house by those who deal with you by telephone a valuable business asset?

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM PERMANENTLY CURED

There are many types of rheumatism, but none worse than inflammatory.

It was this kind that almost killed Mrs. Edw. Warman, of Kent Jct., N.B.

Every known remedy she tried, different doctors gave their advice, but the disease increased.

Weak and despairing, she was at her wits' end when the remarkable cure of Thos. Cullen was published. This gentleman was cured of rheumatism by "Ferrozone." Consequently Mrs. Warman used the same remedy. Here is her statement:

"For five years I have been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success The disease increased, settled in my joints, and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pain and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better; it eased the painful joints, gave me energy and a feeling of new life.

Ferrozone has power to destroy cured it so that not an ache has ever returned. Even damp weather no longer affects me."

Ferrozone has power to destroy Uric Acid, neutralise and enrich the blood, and therefore does cure the worst cases. Mrs. Warman's statement proves this.

By removing the cause of the disease and building up a reserve of energy, Ferrozone is certain to cure Sufferer, isn't it about time to stop experimenting? Ferrozone is a CURE. order to-day, 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, sold by all dealers or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont

Decline of Spiritual Life in the Church

In continuing our subject on the decline of spiritual life in the Church we come to a period of struggle and strife and falling away from the truth, false prophets, false teachers, schisms, in the fourth chapter of 1st Timothy, verse 1—"Now the spirit speaketh expressly that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron." 3rd chapter, 2nd Timothy—"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good; traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. Having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof: from such turn away." People of that kind were in existence before the flood, were also when the apostle penned these words, and are to this day. As we look on the world and the pages of history we see those words verified in the towns and cities where we dwell. The first seven centuries of the world's history show the decline of spiritual power with awful sins and tradegy that appall the reader of history. These were called the dark ages, but their sins and crimes are all recorded in the Book. We would look with horror on the record of them all if they were written with pen and ink on paper. What must the Almighty think when He looks upon the world's record of the present age, in this gospel day, with the clear light of revelation that we have and open access to our Heavenly Father? Through the merits of Jesus Christ, His Son, we cannot deny these facts that we see around us, but people do not want to think upon the things that pertain to their soul's eternal peace, because it interferes with their pleasures. When the subject of vital religion is brought up and those that are following the pleasures of the world are asked to become a Christian, they say, like Felix when he trembled under Paul's preaching, "Go thy way for this time; when I have a more convenient season I will call for thee." But it never came. Returning to our subject, we will give a few instances of Christianity during the dark ages. Rome, the mistress of the world at the time of which we write, 410 A.D., was lying in her slumbers, when at midnight a blast of trumpets like the roar of thunder woke up the inhabitants from their deep slumbers, and Alaric the Goth, with his mighty army, had entered Rome. It is said that it was by an act of treachery that Alaric was admitted into the city. The Gothic trumpet, however, at the Salarian gate, the march of the enemy along the great highway and the flames issuing from the palace of Sallust, which was fired by the troops as soon as they entered within the walls, proclaimed that Rome, the Queen of Cities, after the lapse of nearly 800 years from her invasion by the Gauls, was once more in the hands of a barbarian foe. Although the Romans had been aware of the vicinity of Alaric, yet lulled into a state of false security, they did not anticipate any assault, and the senators were quietly slumbering in their beds when the enemy entered the city. Fearful were the scenes enacted, and well might Jerome apply the lines of Virgil:

"What tongue can tell the slaughters of that night,
What eyes can weep the sorrow and affright?
An ancient and Imperial city falls,
The streets are filled with frequent funerals,
Houses and holy temples float in blood,
And hostile nations make a common flood,
All parts resound with tumults, plaints and tears,
And grisly death in sundry shapes, appears."

The cruel and licentious soldiery made a dreadful slaughter of the Roman people. Forty thousand slaves broke loose from the authority of their masters and retaliated on their masters and their families for the wrongs that they had suffered through their oppression; but Alaric, who was an Arian, showed some considerable regard for the Christians of the city, and spared the churches, where they met for worship. Indeed, he appointed the edifices which had been dedicated to the apostles, Peter and Paul, as places of of refuge for the terrified Christian inhabitants, and gave strict orders that they who fled there for sanctuary should be protected from injury. Instances illustrative of the forbearance of the soldiers and of their respect, not only for the persons of the Christians, but for the consecrated vessels which they employed in their worship, are afforded us by the historian of these times. Orosius gives us a graphic description of a long train of Christians carrying on their heads the communion plate of gold and silver, and singing their sacred hymns, who were escorted in safety by the Gothic soldiers through the streets of the ravished city to the Church of St. Peter. He speaks also of many of the barbians and the pagan Romans joining in these songs and walking in the solemn procession, and represents the latter as saving themselves from vengeance by taking shelter beneath the wing of the Christian faith. Numbers were slain, the houses of the wealthy pillaged, their most costly treasures seized, and their most beautiful works of art destroyed. Many were sold as slaves and driven into exile. Rome, who had been built up with the spoils of the whole world, turned into a sepulchre.

On the fall of Rome the Church stands out as the instructor of the people and teachers and the influence of the Church during the middle ages upon the manners, morals and literature and art and on society. The decided benefits emanating from this source proceeded from the genuine spirit of Christianity as it was, but how much more had she been preserved in her apostolic purity and her heaven-born energies been directed to the improvement of mankind? The Church failed to perform her mission, and the benefits she actually conferred on society were but scanty and imperfect specimens of those rich and clustered blessings which, if faithful to her Lord, she would have been enabled plentifully to scatter over all the nations of the world. It affords matter for speculation. If the Church had continued in her early purity, it might have been the salvation of the Roman Empire and a new and righteous civilization might have sprung up and the human mind preserved from its deep and long degradation.

In the next letter we will try to show the state of the Church in the following period of her history. — Yours sincerely,

James Sutherland.

The Machine That Talks And Sings is the Voice of the Home

To-day the House Without an Instrument to Reproduce the Voices of Artists, the Genius of Musicians, Is Like a House Without a Library

(New York Journal, August 16, 1916.)

The machine that reproduces the human voice, musical instruments, all music, and dramatic power, is to the human race a discovery as great as the printing press, which gave us the printing of cheap books.

The extraordinary inventions for artistic automatic piano playing are equally valuable and marvellous in their benefits to the race, in their spreading of education.

The work of the greatest musicians, and the technical skill of the greatest artists can be reproduced at will, adding to the production the player's own temperament and feeling—without undergoing the long years of tedious, painful preparation and study, and without undergoing the torture of imperfect performance.

The machine that reproduces the human voice, and the machine that reproduces the piano recitals of the greatest artists of this age, are the greatest intellectual triumphs of this age. They mean more to the human race even than the flying machine or the wireless telegraph. For those are mechanical instruments, dealing only with the physical problems and the physical part of man. The marvellous inventions that put the musicians's genius and the artistic talent of the professional performer within the reach of all are aids to the human intellect—and those are the most important of all aids.

The self-respecting man would scarcely admit that he lives in a house without books.

Just as great a misfortune—greater, even, for young people and for children—is to live in a house without the modern miracle of art, the machine that talks and sings, the piano that contains within itself, or the machine that gives a voice to the millions of pianos that are dumb because none in the household can make them speak.

In ancient days few men—only the rich—could own good books.

Each book was written by hand, illustrated by hand. Men travelled thousands of miles to visit the library, and the burning of a library was a misfortune for the whole of civilization.

To-day the poorest man may own the greatest books. The intellectual genius of all ages is on the shelf, asking only to be taken and made part of the owner.

As it was with books and the thoughts of the greatest writers, so it was, until recently, with music and the genius of the great musician.

Music was for the few. Year after year of painful study was necessary to enable the individual to reproduce, even in a faulty manner, the creations of genius.

Concerts and operas were few and expensive. The knowledge of the best music throughout this country was practically nil.

To-day, thanks to the invention of the machine that speaks, not only the greatest music, but the greatest musicians, singers and players of musical instruments, are at the command of every family, of every mother and father, of every child.

It is impossible to predict the wonderful results that will come to the human race in a few generations from the making of good music universal.

Wherever the father and mother will it, the children may hear from their infancy the works of genius, the greatest composers, the most wonderful artists.

The genius of Beethoven, the dramatic power and voice of the greatest artists, are at hand on your shelf, like the poems of Shakespeare—and great personality is added to the beauty of the music.

There are many presents, useful and otherwise, that may be appropriately given.

But for the home that lacks singing and talking machine, with an equipment of good records, music gay and light, music serious and noble, there is but one gift to be thought of.

The greatest addition to the education of man since the days of Gutenberg is the machine that does for music what the printing press did for books and knowledge.

If you haven't in your house a machine that makes all music and all artists your own, get one.

If the friend to whom you mean to give a present lacks the modern machine of civilization, give him one, or give him a better one than he has

A man would feel himself disgraced if one, entering his house, should ask: "Have you a book in this house?" The answer would be: "Do you suppose that we are not civilized?"

The house in which there is no machine to interpret musical genius and artistic genius is just as far from the latest civilization as the house in which there are no books.

Silver Securities

From now forward silver stocks will command greater interest among securities buyers.

The absorption of the white metal by Europe is proving a material factor in keeping the price of the metal close to the 70c mark, but the prospective buying promises to establish materially higher figures.

A country-wide boom in silver securities seems inevitable. It should parallel the interest in copper during the past two years.

And, pursuing the policy that enabled our clients to take full advantage of the sensational movement in coppers, namely, directing attention to these issues before the great investing and trading public fully appreciated their possibilities, we recommend the silver situation be closely studied.

More, we suggest the immediate purchase of Tonopah and Cobalt securities.

ANOTHER FRENCH SUCCESS AT VERDUN

BIG RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IS REPORTED

The French Troops Score In a Brilliant Attack Near Douaumont

Storm and Capture Quarry on North-eastern Front of Verdun---Berlin Reports Allies Again on Offensive on the Somme Front---Nine Norwegian Vessels Are Sunk By German Submarines---Rome Reports Russians Have Commenced Big Offensive.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS (French Official), October 28.—French troops stormed and captured a quarry northeast of Fort Douaumont in a brilliant attack on the northeast front of Verdun last night, it was officially announced to-day. A brisk artillery duel continued in the region of the fort. On the Somme front there was only intermittent cannonading.

BERLIN, October 28.—Allied troops resumed the offensive on the Somme front yesterday after several days' lull, the War Office announced to-day. "Preceded by strong artillery preparation," the statement said, "the English attacked across the line of Gueudecourt and Les Boeufs. The French in the adjoining district of Morval in the evening hours. Our troops repulsed the attacks by artillery and machine gun fire, and northeast of Morval with the bayonet. The positions were completely maintained."

Nine Norwegian Vessels Are Sunk

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 28.—Nine Norwegian vessels have been sunk by German submarines within twenty-four hours, said a Christiania despatch to-day, in the campaign directed against Norwegian shipping as a protest against the Norwegian decree refusing submarine admission to her waters.

The Christiania newspapers are urging the Government to stand firm and not be coerced by German threats. "The deliberate murder of so many Norwegian sailors inevitably makes bad blood between the two nations, and it will be a long time before they are forgotten in Norway," said the Verdensgang newspaper. "The brutal deeds of German submarines, however, have not caused any hysterics among Norwegian ship owners."

Admit Roumanians Are On Offensive

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, October 28.—On their northwestern frontier the Roumanians are on the offensive. Here they have achieved some local successes, but the position of this whole northern Roumanian army becomes more perilous as Falkenhayn drives forward against its supply lines. The Berlin newspapers, though expressing regret at the loss of Fort Douaumont, term this a slight reverse compared with the victories over the Roumanians. Striking forward with two columns, Field Marshall Von Falkenhayn's Austro-German army threatens the early capture of the Roumanian railway towns of Sinaia and Campolung, seventy miles northwest of Bucharest.

McCurdy Back On Job In Department

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, October 28.—F. B. McCurdy, Parliamentary Secretary for the Militia Department, has returned to Ottawa after an absence dating from the return from England of Lieut.-General Sir Sam Hughes three weeks ago. It had been predicted by some that General Hughes would not tolerate Mr. McCurdy's partnership, but Mr. McCurdy is back again, and from all appearances has practically full charge of departmental details.

While duties now developing upon both the Minister and Parliamentary Secretary do not appear to be very clearly defined, there appears to be no doubt that both will remain. Mr. McCurdy has new quarters just off the Minister's office.

Reports the Russians on the Offensive

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 28.—The Wireless News Agency to-day gave out a Rome despatch asserting news from German sources indicated the beginning of a tremendous new Russian offensive in Poland ad Galicia. This report is not confirmed from any other source, but if true, is believed to mark the beginning of the Allies' attempts to relieve the pressure on Roumania. Another wireless message from Rome said that Bucharest estimates the Austro-German losses in Transylvania at 200,000.

Bomb Killed The Engineer

Examiner Special:

A bomb dropped by an aviator of the Entente Allies has killed the engineer driving the train of Emperior William of Germany, according to information received at Zurich, Switzerland. Emperor William recently was reported to be at Bapaume, on the Somme front.

Will Have No Effect

Examiner Special:

LONDON, October 28.—London newspapers expressed some disappointment to-day that only two of the ten German raiders that entered the English Channel Thursday night were destroyed, but declared the raid will have no effect on transportation of troops and supplies to France.

Roumanian Counter Attack Successful

BUCHAREST, Oct. 28.—Continuing their successful counter-offensive on the Transylvanian front, the Roumanians have recaptured the town of Pascal, it was officially announced to-day.

IRELAND STILL OCCUPIES GREAT DEAL OF ATTENTION

Dissension in the Emerald Isle Has Been Greatly Magnified According to Investigation of T. P. O'Connor

LLOYD GEORGE'S VIEWS

by T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Amid the tremendous swayings of all battle-fronts, with Roumania depressing and Verdun raising our hopes, Ireland still occupies much attention behind the Parliamentary scenes. This is partly due to the after effects, even more than to the interest created during the actual debate in the House of Commons over John Redmond's tremendous indictment of the War Office methods and Lloyd George's deliberate and emphatic admission of the truth of the charges.

With such staggering terms as "stupidity" and "malignity" applied by Lloyd George to his predecessor's methods, in addition to the candid Simon report as to the murder of Skeffington, together with other revelations of the follies of the military regime, have shaken the implicit faith in the present military methods in dealing with Ireland. Another factor that has helped towards a settlement of the Irish question on which all sane men, of all political parties, English as well as Irish, are now determined, is the growing need of the splendid soldiers which Ireland could still give the British army.

TAKES THE LEAD.

Lloyd George, who always takes the lead in demanding the exhaustion of every effort to win the war both in men and munitions, and who was the first to realize the gigantic needs, the difficulties and perils of this war, put this aspect of the Irish question to the forefront. He argued, however, that recruiting was impossible until a better atmosphere existed in Ireland and he declared that the better atmosphere could only be reached by Home Rule. But before further attempt is made to give Home Rule to Ireland, everybody recognizes that the Irish resentment against militarism must be assuaged by the transformation of the present military methods which are relics of the rebellion.

Secretary Duke is somewhat too apprehensive, owing to his English training, of the sporadic outbursts of popular impatience, and is inclined to go slow, though he is in full sympathy with the universal desire to settle the Irish question. Plans to reform the Irish administration, however, are being forced and several changes will be made soon. The first example of this is the appointment of William Byrne, an Irishman born in England, and both a Catholic and Nationalist to the important office of under Secretary, succeeding two English officials who recently held the office. Other changes are to come soon.

There is a growing feeling that the

THIS IS GOOD ADVICE TO TAKE

Try Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills For Lame Back

Every pain in the back signifies a trouble that should not be there. If it repeats there is some trouble that should be immediately looked into. Don't allow yourself to become an invalid through kidney trouble, backache or rheumatism. The setting in of cold weather will aggravate this disease, and for your future good health you should give every symptom that shows itself thorough attention. To those who realize the seriousness of these diseases and wish to secure a remedy that will cure them, they will find if they use Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills that they will not only be benefitted, but cured. If they fail in any one case we will, on application, return the amount paid for the pills. Guaranteed and sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street, Peterborough. 24-tf

BRITISH RED CROSS

Signaller Max Breckenridge, a grandson of John Breckenridge, J.P., of Westwood, who is on service at the front, and who enlisted in Peterborough, writes: "The Red Cross work on the battlefield is simply marvellous, to watch those fellows bringing in wounded and dressing them under barrages and shell fire is grand, and it is only a God send they have such few casualties."

This testimony to the Red Cross from one of our own boys on Active Service should stir up any citizen who has not yet sent in a subscription to do so at once.

The Clergy are co-operating, and it is expected that in the Churches on Sunday special offertories will be taken up for the purpose of the Red Cross.

Peterborough Soldiers Back From Overseas Are Now At Quebec

Ptes. King and Ed. Cooney are Among the Number--- 93rd Men May be There--- Pte. George Barrel of the 59th Battalion, Describes How He was Wounded on Oct. 8th Injured by Shell Fire---To-days General Military News.

A number of Peterborough soldiers invalided home from overseas are at Quebec, having arrived during the past week, and are expected home within a day or two. It is not known definitely just what soldiers from this city are in the party, but among them are Ptes. J. King and Ed. Cooney. The latter went overseas with the 59th Battalion. It is expected that a number of men from the 93rd Battalion are in the number.

Lt.-Col. Gardiner of Kingston, the Assistant Director of Medical Service for No. 3 Military District, paid an official visit to the armouries this morning.

Pte. M. Griffin of Peterborough, who enlisted recently with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, [illegible] leave from Hamilton.

Mrs. R. J. Saunders, 693 George street, has received the following interesting letter from Pte. S. N. Saunders, of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion:

S. N. Saunders, 455543, Sept. 19, 1916.
France.

Dear Father, Mother, Brothers and Sister:—

Received your very welcome letter just before we went into the trenches and was very glad to hear you were all well, as this leaves me at present. I guess you will have seen by the papers that we were in action and I came through it safe and without a scratch, although it was fierce, but was more so for the Germans. It was the first time I saw so many Germans, and it was great to see them come over with their hands up with their old tale "mercy kamerad." There were some laughable parts, and then at other times there were sights that were not to be laughted at. I guess you will get more of the battle by the papers than what I can write and tell you. They are all looking over their haul that they made here. Some have German hats, coats, rifles and everything imaginable. Well, one thing I know, we put an awful hole in the Huns' thought of victory, and I expect they are still pushing on. We are giving him no chance to dig in at all. And our artillery was something wonderful. I don't see how the Hun lives under it. Some of the prisoners said it was the worst they ever were under. There was nothing left of one village only a heap of ruins and German dead.

We had armoured cars that lead the attack. We call them crawlers or land battleships. They went right over trenches and shell holes and put machine gun emplacements out of commission. They would go through anything that was in their way, even knock trees down, and best of all put the fear into the Germans. Well I guess I had better get on before I put too much into this letter.

Written from No. 3 Stationary Hospital, Boulogne, France, on Oct. 10th, Pte. Geo. Barrell of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion, tells his wife how he was wounded. Mrs. Barrell resides at 718 Harvey street. Her husband's letter is as follows:

Dear Wife and Children. — Just a few lines to let you know how I am getting on. In the first place you must not worry, for I am not. We are being well looked after. I got wounded in two places at the back of the right leg. One just above the ankle, and the other at the back of the knee. It was done by pieces of shell. It happened on Sunday morning, Oct. 8th, at 5 o'clock. We had just got out of our trench and laid down in front, ready to have a go at Fritz when he started shelling us. I got hit and dropped back, but the boys went on and took Fritz's trenches, though I believe they lost them the same afternoon, owing to running short of ammunition. Still I guess they have got them back again by now. We arrived here early this morning. I tell you it is nice to lie in bed again. It is nearly a year since I lay in one before. I do not want you to write until you hear from me again, as I do not know whether I am going to stop here or not. We get everything we want. I have had no mail from you for over three weeks, but I guess there is some back with the battalion. As soon as I write them they will send it on.

Two new recruits were added to the strength of the 247th Battalion yesterday. They are Pte. Herman Russell Shier and the other, Pte. Leroy S. Labard. Both were born in the United States.

Mrs. Harry Robinson of Peterborough has received the following letter from Rev. J. W. C. Wand, Chaplain, in regard to her brother, Gunner Gordon Nicholls, Canadian Artillery:

September 29th.

I saw your brother, Gordon, today as he was passing through the station, here. He thought it might relieve your natural anxiety to know that I had seen him, and could assure you that he was quite safe and well. He looks forward to the time when he will see you all again and asks you not to fret about him, as he is in good spirits and the best of health. He sends his best love to you and says that he will write, himself, as soon as possible.

This is a hard time for all relatives and friends of our brave fellows, but it will comfort you to know that they are so cheerful. Pray for them always; that is the best way to help them, and may God give you strength to bear your anxiety with courage and hope.

Yours sincerely,
Rev. T. W. C. Wand,
Chaplain to the Forces.

A Mother's Complaint

Mrs. Margaret Bradley, 296 Edinburgh street, writes, complaining of what she considers a hardship—

"On Thursday about four o'clock, my little boy, only six years old, was seen throwing stones on the street. A man who saw him took the law into his own hands and slapped my boy on each side of his head. Not wishing to make trouble at the time, I spoke to the police about it. This morning at the police court the man was tried and discharged, though he was guilty of breaking the law. My child, not old enough to be accountable, was reproved and I got a lecture for not bringing up my children better. This is hardly hard justice. The boy's father is at the front fighting for king and country and I have three other children. I wonder if I am in a British country."

WILL ADDRESS A PUBLIC MEETING

Mrs. Plumptre will address a public meeting under the auspices of the local Red Cross Society on Monday evening, October 30th, at 8.15 o'clock, in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute.

All Red Cross workers, particularly those actively engaged in the work are cordially invited to be present.

FRENCH AND BRITISH BOTH MADE GAINS

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE PREMIER HUGHES

Man Forced a Window in the House of Australian Leader and Fired Revolver at Hughes, the Shot Missing the Premier.

ASSAILANT ESCAPED

MELBOURNE, Oct. 28. — An attempt was made early to-day to assassinate Prime Minister Hughes, at his home in Kew, Victoria, but the attempt failed. A man forced a window in the Prime Minister's home, and fired a revolver at Hughes. The shot missed the Premier. The man leaped to the ground and fled. Australia is voting on conscription to-day.

Premier Hughes, by his advocacy of the conscription measure, drew the bitter fire of a faction of the Australian Labour party, of which he, himself is a member, and it is possible that the would-be assassin belonged to a group of his most bitter opponents of Teutonic sympathizers. His own labour union recently expelled him for advocating the conscription measure, but he ignored the expulsion.

TENDERS FOR THE COLLECTION OF GARBAGE

Property Committee Recommend That the Contract for 1917 be Awarded to Messrs. Mitchell and Turner.

The contract for the collection of garbage within the prescribed garbage collecting area for the year 1917, may be awarded to George C. Mitchell and Frank Turner, at a contract price of $7,000. This action was put in the form of a recommendation at a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council, held last evening. The following tenders were received: A. B. Downer, $6,900; E. K. Graham, $6,250; George C. Mitchell and Frank Turner, $7,000; H. Shurter, $7,500; A. Bludgett and J. Lasure, $6,400.

This year E. K Graham had the contract at $6,250. Next year the area will be slightly larger. The motion recommending that the contract be awarded to Messrs. Mitchell and Turner, was moved by Ald. Edgar, and seconded by Ald. Duncan, where as Ald. Langford and Ald. Evans moved in amendement, that the contract be awarded to the lowest tenderer, which was E. K. Graham. The amendment was lost and the original motion carried. The majority of the committee were in favor of passing the work around. Messrs. Mitchell and Turner had the contract in 1914, and were reported to have given very satisfactory service. If the Council adopts this recommendation the contract will take effect at the first of the year.

Three Young Men Arrested in Barn

Three young men arrested while sleeping in a livery barn by Constables Blade and Dainnard last night, were cited as vagrants in Police Court this morning, and were remanded for a week. Should they decide to enlist the informations will be forgotten by the court.

RECENT INVESTIGATION

British Took Trenches in Attack South of Ancre Brook While General Neville's Troops Made Further Progress in Direction of Fort Vaux.

LOSSES WERE LIGHT

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Despite the continuous down pour of rain the artillery was active on the Somme front to-day, particularly in the region of Sailly-Saillisel, and to the north where the British lines are located. Sir Douglas Haig's infantry gained some trenches in an attack south of Ancre brook. French troops made further progress last night in the Verdun region, advancing west and south of the fortress of Vaux, until they are now within a few hundred yards of the fort. One hundred Germans were made prisoner.

Today the Germans attempted an infantry attack west of Douaumont village, but it was checked by the French artillery.

Heard Above Artillery.

The correspondent of the Daily News says that a new terror has been added to war on this front in the shape of powerful steam sirens, which are able to scream their piercing signals above the appalling din of the artillery.

The French losses on the Somme have been cut down 50 per cent. owing to the scientific projection of shell barriers in front of the infantry after all the enemy cover is pulverised.

A German carrier pigeon was captured by the French at Fort Douaumont during the fighting in the region of Verdun on Tuesday. It carried the following message:

"The rolling fire of the enemy with guns of the heaviest calibre is such that sectors S. C. and H. are to a great extent leveled. The garrison, including that of sector V., is disorganized completely. Some of it has been obliged to fall back on the 63rd and 68th Regiments, which also had to retire.

"Sector V. (von Raun's) was subjected to such fire that its observation post was put out of order. All sorties are being bombarded, and one is occupied constantly in replacing them.

"The battalion demands its immediate relief this evening by fresh troops. It can fight no longer.

(Signed.)
"First Lieutenant Steinbrecht."

Disproportionate Losses.

The correspondent of the Daily Mail makes the remarkable statement, which he states is official, that the French casualties in the Verdun drive did not exceed 2,500, a large proportion of which were of a minor nature. The German losses on the other hand, were approximately 20,000. Practically the whole enemy force south of Douaumont and Damloups was exterminated. Over 10,000 tons of explosives were fired by the artillery into the German trenches and redoubts, and when the clearing parties got to work they found the ...gouts choked with dead, the occupants being either buried alive or killed by poisonous fumes of the shells.

Information gathered from the General Staff is to the effect that the recent victory of the French at Verdun was in no way due to the numerical inferiority of the Germans, who were surprised by the rapid offensive. The French attack was carried out by three divisions, which had opposed to them troops belonging to seven different divisions, which it is stated, were ample for effective resistance. Battalions from 10 regiments have been identified in the first line from Meuse to Grimaucourt-en-Woevre. Among the prisoners taken are ten German battalion commanders.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, OCT. 28, 1916

AN OBJECT LESSON.

An object lesson in loyalty to country and principle is presented in today's pictorial supplement to the Examiner. It is a photographic group of some of Western University footballers, who worked the gridiron in the autumn of 1915. Since the picture was taken fourteen of the group have answered the call of king and country and are serving in various battalions. While football and other athletics are good for the making of young men, there is a greater game for higher stakes that demands the best of Canada's young manhood. The possibility of cancelling and keeping in existence Canadian football, or any other, sport at this time is one of the saddest conditions one can fancy. The place of every eligible young man—and a man fit for the strenuousities of football is fit if any is—fit for the duties of soldiering which now presents the loudest call to Canadians, is in the fighting ranks; he cannot consistently throw his energies into play. We want, at once, or at the soonest, 100,000 Canadians to take the "king's shilling," and we want a thousand of these to sign up in Peterborough—in fact.

RECRUITS FOR THE NAVY.

Service in the navy should exert a strong and penetrating appeal upon the average Canadian and Peterboronian. Though we are inland and not much go down to the sea in ships, yet the romance of the British navy, the brilliant illumination of the glorious pages of Britain's glrious history, the bulwark it has been against the assaults of the enemy in this war, stir the heart and quicken the pulse. There is now presented a chance for Peterborough young men to enlist in the navy. An officer of the Royal Navy on his recent visit, completed arrangements for recruiting in this city for the naval service. If the glory of the service, the romance of it are not enough to bring decision, a factor may consist in the fact that the British rate of pay in the naval service, which is not extravagant in its figures, is to be supplemented. The Canadian government has, to its credit, provided the rate of pay to Canadian recruits for the Royal Navy shall be the same as that given to the mere "land ubbers," the Canadian Tommy Atkins. The young Canadians in Peterborough will have two strings to his bow: if one string doesn't draw him to the recruiting rooms of the 207th, the other may tie him to some one of the ships of the Royal Navy.

QUICK RETURNS.

The recent representations of Mayor [illegible] to the government, as a member of a deputation, to urge the government to take action in the matter of high food prices, seem to have taken of the hair-trigger, quick-fire, variety. It was only the other day that the Mayor called the attention of the government to the fact that the municipalities were not qualified to take action because they possessed no machinery to this effect. The government has acted promptly, probably more than him. It is understood that the government is on the eve of taking steps to deal with the high cost of living. It is a part of its proposals to give municipalities the power to conduct effective investigation and deal with possible local combinations to enhance prices. Authority like this, if conferred, will probably be effective; perhaps by the mere fact of its creation by a municipality. It will capture the idea of publicity in regard to possible combinations, and in a reasonable community where everybody knows everybody else, the very force of public opinion—the fear of being discredited among neighbours—will probably have a deterrent effect. There must, of course, be cooperation between the local and the government authorities. It seems easily possible that in this land of plenty, measures can be taken to unearth the cause of high prices and prevent the people from being burdened oppressively, perhaps with an undue and unwarranted increase in the cost of living. There must be some reason besides the operation of the law of demand and supply to account for the high and still soaring prices of foodstuffs that are produced in the community and country.

In the multiplicity of demands upon us, if one interest more than another establishes preferential claim upon our thought and liberality upon our very hearts, it is the work of the Red Cross. This appeal is becoming more insistent to us in Peterborough every day. The number of Peterborough wounded, the especial wards of Red Cross solicitude, is about two hundred and twenty, the additions in the past month mounting to more than eighty. The British Red Cross fund in Peterborough is growing slowly but surely, and it should be our aim not to be surpassed by other and lesser places. Cobourg has already gone ahead of her last year's contributions by one thousand dollars, her total being this year $7,000, while ours is only at the $6,000 mark as yet. But additions are coming every day, one of the most notable being $151 from the "Primer" department of the munitions side of the C. G. E. This is especially creditable since 75 per cent. of the employees of the department are girls; and girls, in the exercise of the prevailing injustices of the world, are not embarrassed with too high wages, especially compared with those paid men for munitions work. We should have greater reason to take pride in our Red Cross total, if every one in the city followed the example of the girls mentioned and contributed in the same proportion to income. Another example of the results of small and systematic giving is furnished by the report of the one-cent-a-day club of East City, which has contributed for September the considerable sum of $48, the total being $867.50—almost a thousand dollars resulting from one-cents being contributed regularly day by day. If similar clubs covered the whole city the daily additions to the Red Cross Fund would amount to many hundreds in a week. This is also a lesson in these days of stringent conditions of life, arising from the high cost of the necessities of existence. There are thousands of our citizens who, by trifling economies, applied to the various demands of living, would save and accumulate large sums for their own benefit or to help them to the happiness of supporting good causes like the work of the Red Cross.

POLITICS AND NEUTRALITY.

The real point at issue in the United States presidential election contest is not the attitude of the country towards the war, but the tariff in relation to the industrial and labour interests of the country. The cry of the Hughes party, the Republicans, is "Tariff for protection to American wages and American industries—not for revenue only." The New York Herald says the overshadowing problem for the next four years is a purely business problem. It points out that there is no reason for the factitious campaign cry raised in favour of Wilson "he kept us out of war." Attention, it says, must be given to the fact that when the present European war is over, which will be in the life of the next administration, "warfare that comes directly home to every workingman will be at our doors." It holds that the operation of the Underwood tariff will, if it is continued in effect, result in "dumping the products of European factories into the United States in quantities sufficient "to destroy American industry in practically all lines"—"the overshadowing issue of the campaign is protection for protection's sake."

The issue is practically the interests of the few and "big interests" against the interests of the many and little interests— the interests of the people. The thought seems to be of the almighty dollar only, and not of the national honour in relation to its place among the nations. There is no thought of the responsibility of the United States in a great struggle in which the principles upon which it is founded are at stake. Others must fight and sacrifice to maintain liberty and civilization in the world while another country, among the greatest, materially, if not in spirit, must sit back in selfish isolation and organize all its forces to reap the reward without contributing, except in a well paid way, to the victory that will alone justify the national existence of any country that has a place in the ranks of civilization.

President Wilson is, however, now seeing that he made a mistake in demanding of the United States, at the outset, "neutrality even in thought." He as good as told an audience at Cincinnati, recently, that the neutrality of the United States at the present time was something to be ashamed of, rather than to be proud of—"too proud to fight." He said much in the way of reantation in saying:

"America was established, in order to indicate, at any rate in one government, the fundamental rights of man. America must, hereafter, be ready, as a member of the family of nations to exert her whole force, moral and physical, to the assertion of these rights throughout the round globe."

The United States, under President Wilson, has done nothing, except in the money-making way, to protect the "fundamental rights" of its citizens. If Germany wins this war, by means, in part, of drowning United States citizens, and destroying commerce at its very doors, virtually under convoy of—on the sight of—vessels of its own navy, the "neutrality even in thought" of the United States will not save it from the outrage of the fundamental rights of its citizens, or the material interests or territory of the country. It will make mock of the Monroe doctrine, as it has made mock of every fundamental principle of national or human right.

If Canada had taken the view of President Wilson we shouldn't be engaged in this war. Apart from our imperial affiliations we would have sat back comfortably at ease, letting the Mother Country and her Allies pull our chestnuts out of the fire, though we had no greater interest in the preservation of our interests and rights from a victorious Germany than the United States. Political and party considerations did not deter Canada from doing her duty. The one comfort in the situation is that President Wilson, in his attitude, did not represent the best thought of his nation, did not reveal the real great heart of the American people, whose sympathies are with the Allies and the cause they are fighting for.

Religious Journal Deals With "Some Peterborough Theology"

Another Point of View of Preachers and Popular Attitudes Towards Religion

An editorial in the Peterborough "Examiner" asks the question, "Why the Vacant Pews"? meaning of course the pews of the Protestant churches. For with the authorities of the Catholic Church it is not the question of filling the pews but of providing enough pews to go around. Through a typographical error the editorial caption in our contemporary reads, "Why the Vacant Views?" The "Examiner's" linotype man is a genius. He has supplied the answer to the question. It is the "vacant views" of the pulpit that are responsible for the vacant pews. If proof of that were needed it is supplied by the remark of a lady member of a Kingston Protestant church on a recent Sunday evening: "I don't go to church to shake hands with the minister," she said. "One gets lots of that sort of thing at parties and At Homes. And his sermons never mean anything to me. Oh, how I wish he would say something that would touch my heart."

"Empty church pews," says the "Examiner," are not the fault of the Church." We venture to disagree with this. "There is something radically wrong when the becoming and seemly services of the church and faithful preaching are the accompaniments of empty pews," continues our contemporary. Indeed there is "something radically wrong." But it is the preachers, and not the people, who are to blame. If, as our contemporary says, the great craze of the day is "to hear some new thing," it is the preachers who have set the fashion. If the "Examiner" wants to put this to the test it has but to drop round to St. Peter's Cathedral, the Sacred Heart or the Immaculate Conception churches any Sunday morning. There the priests are preaching no new things, but the old eternal truths of Revelation. And yet we wager that the editor will have some difficulty in squeezing into a seat. Very little religion is preached from the present-day Protestant pulpit. The Bible has been replaced by the political handbook. "Social service has superseded the Gospel. The great eternal truths have been discarded for the latest sensation or fad of the moment. People do not go to church to hear about "The Man in the Moon," "The Care of Babies," or a rehash of the week's war news, rounded out with abuse of the Catholic Church. If the people have gone away from the Church it is because the church has ceased to be a church and has become a mere social centre, a debating circle.

But we do not wish to be too hard upon the preachers. Since they know not what they, themselves, believe, how can they teach the people? And hence it may be that it is in an attempt to be honest with themselves that they substitute sensationalism for the word of God. Our contemporary was nearer the truth when it wrote in a former issue:

> "A Toronto minister has been preaching on "The Art of Preaching." His own definition of preaching—"To bring back God into human life"—religion—agrees with the definition of St. Paul and defines the only object of preaching. But so full agreement cannot be made with the conclusion from another statement—"we are passing through a period of reconstruction in belief." Why is there necessity for reconstructing the "faith once delivered to the saints?" That delivery is the chief function of true preaching and "meeting the honest doubts of men" is subordinate. Are there "honest doubts among men who have had the Gospel preached to them from their infancy." The multitude of "honest doubts" regarding religion are dishonest delusions; doubts that the doubters do not believe in, themselves; voluntary assumption of doubt, to justify to themselves and others the excuses for neglecting the duties of religion. The best way of combatting "intellectual unrest" in religion is the antidote of the straight plain Gospel. And if there is "doubt" and "intellectual unrest" who is to blame for that except the preachers and theologians? The poor old Gospel is placed on the dissecting tables of exegetical surgery, and the process of dissection is carried to absurd extremes and intellectual heresies are read into the plain Gospel story. As St. Paul enjoins "women professing godliness" against "braided hair," or "costly array" so preachers are enjoined against befrilling the Gospel of Truth with the sophistical tinsel of the "higher criticism." The "honest doubts," the "intellectual unrest" are the ruinous spawn of the mishandling of the divine truths of the Bible: the fruit of intellectual pride, that seeks to violate the ark of the divine mysteries, and reduce revelation and religion to shreds."

But will the "Examiner" man please tell us by what right it calls the preacher to account? Once the right of Private Interpretation is conceded who is to say what is scriptural and what is unscriptural? The entire Protestant system is like unto the house that was built upon the shifting sands. When the winds of Modernism and Higher Criticism beat upon its walls they come tumbling down, for they have no sure foundation.—Kingston Freeman.

THE SHADOW OF BROKEN HEALTH

Can be Quickly Dispelled Through the Use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills

When the shadow of poor health follows your life; when hope begins to fade and friends look serious, then is the time you should remember that thousands just as hopeless have been cured and restored to the sunshine of health by the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. The pills actually make new, rich blood which brings a glow of health to anaemic cheeks; cures indigestion, headaches and backaches, drives out the stinging pains of rheumatism and neuralgia, strengthens the nerves and relieves as no other medicine can do the aches and pains from which womanfolk alone suffer. In any emergency of poor health give Dr. Williams Pink Pills a fair trial and they will not disappoint you. Here is a case that will bring hope to many a weary sufferer. Mrs. E. C. Taylor, Ascot Ave., Toronto, says: "A few years ago I was so run down with anaemia that I could scarcely walk about the house, and was not able to leave it. I had no color; my appetite was poor and I was constantly troubled with headaches, dizzy spells and a general disinclination to move about or do anything. I tried many medicines, but none of them helped me, and my friends thought that I was in a decline. One day a friend who was in to see me asked me if I had tried Dr. Wiliams Pink Pills. I had heard of this medicine often, but had not used it, so I determined to give it a trial. I certainly got a pleasant surprise for after using two boxes I could feel an improvement in my condition. Continuing the use of these pills I began to regain my health, the headaches and the dizzy spells were disappearing, and I began to gain in my weight. People began to enquire what I was taking, and I was not slow to give Dr. Williams Pink Pills the credit. I took the pills for less than two months, and completely regained my old time health and strength. I hope my experience may convince some doubting person as to the great merit of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I certainly have cause to be a firm champion of them."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, cents a box of six boxes for $2.50, Brockville, Ont.

Provincial Ploughing Match At Whitby On Three Days Next Week

The Provincial plowing match will be held at Whitby on November 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and is attracting no end of interest among the farmers of Ontario, especially in this Midland district. Quite a number of Peterborough county men are going to this match, especially those having automobiles. Mr. Henry Ford, the Detroit motor magnate, has announced his intention of attending. He is deeply interested in the tractor plow business the importance of which is recognized by contest for tractors in which class thirty-five of the big machines are entered. In the horse plowing classes the best plowman of the province will be entered, and to the young farmers of Peterborough it may not be amiss to recommend this match to them. It should have a broadening influence and give them a new realization of the general interest in better plowing and farming.

release of the many young men who were dupes and visionaries from the prisons and detention camps, will be carried out more expeditiously. And when these changes are made, another problem will present itself, that of taking up the task of satisfying Ireland, by creating her liberties.

A NEW SESSION

As usual in the days preceding the opening of a new session of parliament, the members of the Irish Party who live in Ireland and consultations with those who have remained in England, and the two sets of members exchanged information as to the state of political feeling in the two countries. Such consultations are made the more necessary by the fact that opinion is not only different between Englishmen and Irishmen, but even between the Irishmen who live in Ireland and those who live in England. I have already told the story of the visit I paid to my own people in Liverpool and of the atmosphere of fierce and unbroken conviction among the Irish there as to the side and place of Irishmen in the great war. I am certain that Liverpool in that respect can speak for all the other great Irish centres in England; on the other hand there are still some discouraging symptoms of division, largely owing, as everybody knows, to the executions and the wild performances of military rule.

But I was relieved to find that the dissension in Ireland has been greatly magnified; as is always the case when there is a violent and vocal minority speaking against the sober and silent sense of the sane majority of a nation. As I always anticipated, the three hundred peasant proprietors whom the Irish Party have brought into existence by their success in winning so many acts of land reform, are not the kind of people to see with any satisfaction the dominance of anarchy in their nation; and in spite of everything, they have been steady. Their steadiness is now asserting itself, and meeting after meeting in different rural capitals have indicated their unswerving and unbroken confidence in Redmond's leadership and in the constitutional movement. The chain of silence was imposed on the steady forces so long as military law was exasperating everybody in Ireland—the peasant proprietors as well as others. And this silence was misrepresented as meaning the break-up of Redmond's party. But military rule is gradually passing out of sight; the reality of the peril to the constitutional movement with the consequent loss of Home Rule for another generation has been more real to everybody's mind by the outbursts of faction; and so at last the real opinion of Ireland is asserting itself; and the real opinion means that in spite of everything the Irish people are determined not to go senseless chasing by following the apostles of hopeless physical force.

GAVE BRIEF REPORTS.

The English papers as usual gave but brief reports of Redmond's meeting at Waterford; I am able to supplement these reports by information I have received from members of the Irish Party who were present I must avow, that I looked forward to this meeting with some anxiety; but I was told that my anxiety, here in London remote from the scene, was felt equally by men in towns not many miles from Waterford. All kinds of alarmist reports were circulated. It was freely said that Redmond would not get out of Waterford alive; that there were men who were determined to have his blood, and that they though this visit to Waterford gave them their opportunity. Some substance might be given to these reports by the fact that Waterford is well known in Ireland as a city in which political feeling runs high. During the Parnell split Waterford remained almost unanimously and certainly fiercely Parnellite; and when there was the bye-election at which Redmond was first returned for Waterford after Parnell's death, the Parnellite sentiment was so strong that no anti-Parnellite could venture to address a meeting without risking his life.

If there was nothing so bad as an attempt to assassinate, at least three might be some small and yet damaging and painful division of feeling; especially as there is a waspish little paper in the city which constantly assails Redmond and his party. As a matter of fact, just one man and two women did try to create a disturbance at the meeting of Mr. Redmond; they were all bundled out quietly before Mr. Redmond's arrival; and as to the man, he had to be escorted home by the police or he might have been very badly mauled by the exasperated people if he had not had this protection. I am told that the reception of Redmond was royal in its enthusiasm and in its unanimity. When the people in the hall had cheered themselves hoarse, Redmond had to speak from a balcony to an overflow meeting; two bands played for hours in his honour, then made a tour of the whole city; again returned to the point opposite Redmond's hotel; and again there was a demonstration of passionate enthusiasm and welcome of which an Emperor might be proud.

AN ELECTRIC SHOCK.

This story has gone like an electric shock through Ireland; it has re-established discipline and confidence in the constitutional ranks, and already threats that came out when it was supposed that the Irish Party were down and out, are rushing fast back to their holes. Ireland, then, is all right.

But coming to England the situation is [illegible]. The demand for more men for the front is real and urgent. The advance on the Western front is making its way steadily, uninterruptedly, splendidly—everybody on the front on the side of the Allies' armies has now the perfect and unquestioning confidence in being able to defeat the enemy, though nobody believes that the task is accomplished or nearly accomplished. This advance, however, is tremendously costly in life, and the wastage proceeds at such a heavy rate that a constant supply of men is absolutely necessary. It was inevitable in such conditions that there should be a movement in England to extend the Conscription system to Ireland; and many papers and some public men have spoken strongly in favour of that course. What is also discouraging is, that the anti-Irish feeling, which had ceased to exist before the Rebellion brought it back once more to life, thus almost destroying in a week what Irish leaders from Butt and Parnell and Davitt down to Redmond and Dillon had accomplished in forty years of labour, has grown stronger. In some of the big munition works where Irishmen had been introduced from Ireland, there was grave discontent, and some of the Irishmen have had to return to Ireland—to the equal regret of the munition manufacturers and of the Ministers.

It looked then possible that the parliamentary session would have opened with a serious attempt to apply conscription in Ireland. Everybody who knows anything about Ireland, knows that there could be no more disastrous mistake, especially in the present feeling of Ireland of exasperation against the executions and military rule. I do not believe there is any serious possibility of another rebellion in the open; but everybody acquainted with the rural population of Ireland knows that the Irish peasant is always ready to garrison and fortify his cottage; and to die there to the last man rather than submit to what the peasant considers injustice. Long before the rebellion this central fact of Irish peasant life was brought home very clearly to the minds of the British authorities in Ireland; for when an attempt was announced to capture a young Irishman who had come from England by the military authorities, the home of the boy was prepared for defence by his parents and relatives and friends, and the fortress could not have been taken without loss of life; so the attempt was abandoned.

FACTS OF IRISH LIFE.

Liberal journals in this country have realized these facts of Irish life and, with one accord, have denounced the attempt to extend conscription to Ireland. I do not think that there is any Cabinet Minister or indeed, anybody in a responsible position who does not share these objections. But all the same, the resentment exists and may be damaging to the future of Ireland when the time comes again to bring to an end the century-old quarrel between her and England by the concession of Home Rule. The peril will be the greater after a victorious war with a Khaki House of Commons and a military class exultant in its triumph over the most serious peril that ever assailed the British Empire.

Any talk of renewing negotiations for an Irish settlement at this moment is futile; Ireland would not permit her leaders to enter into any such negotiations. And thus, as Mr. Redmond said in his Waterford speech, he and his colleagues will refuse any such negotiations, and will resume their old position of independent critics of the Ministry.

Thus, then, we have this paradoxical position in British politics, that an overwhelming majority of British politicians are in favour of the concession of self-government to Ireland and at the earliest moment; while Ireland, resentful and suspicious, stands aside in proud aloofness. How this situation will ultimately develop it is impossible to say. Irish politics are always uncertain and always changeful, and it is possible that a few weeks may create an entirely new situation. For the moment there seems to be no possible policy for Ireland and for those who love her, English as well as Irish, but to wait and be patient and hopeful. I do not myself bandon the hope that Ireland will have her parliament before the war has come to an end. But it is British statesmen who must make the first advance, and must do so openly and not by negotiations in which the faith of Ireland has been destroyed by the stupidity of some English politicians in the last effort at recapitulation.

Edison Performs Miracle!

CLEVELAND PRESS, OCT. 12, 1916.—PAGE 14.

Soul Versus Mechanics

By Wilson G. Smith

LET me state at the outset that this is not an ad, a boost or a boom. It is simply the statement of honest conviction—another instance of a man convinced against his will.

I went to Grays armory Wednesday night pretty well convinced that a machine was not the habitat of soul, that all mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of music were at the best only an approximation, that the soul of art could not be satisfactorily reproduced, that personality and individuality were indigenous to humans.

I came away thoroly persuaded of my error and am willing to admit that there are quite a number of things concerning which I am in error—darkness, if you so wish to call it. My only redeeming quality is my willingness to be convinced. I might add, too, that such is one of the qualifications of a critic.

Rappold and Edison Phonograph Co-Stars.

What I write about all happened at the concert given by Mme. Rappold, Metropolitan star, assisted and truly emulated by the new Edison phonograph, one of the master achievements of that wizard of invention.

When I saw the stage bare of any accompanying instrument, I asked the New York representative how Mme. Rappold was going to sing satisfactorily without accompaniment.

He pointed to the two cabinet phonographs upon the stage and said, "Wait."

I indulged in the smile credulous and waited. In due time Mme. Rappold appeared, and, standing beside one of the phonographs, alternated with it in interpreting some of her recorded songs.

And, truly, it was a difficult matter to distinguish the real voice from the recorded one.

Naturally, the reproduction was in miniature, but the quality, character and individuality was there in a remarkable degree.

If anything the record was clothed with a redner mellowness, due in all probability to a curtailment in brilliancy.

Acute Ear Needed to Tell Difference.

Excerpts from Puccini, Verdi, Wagner and Bach-Gounod were sung unisono by the Metropolitan star and the phonograph record, and when the lights were lowered—as they were in some instances—it took an acute ear to distinguish between the original and the reincarnated.

Violin selections were played on the record by Spalding, with Mr. Polk assisting with an instrument in hand, and again the marvel of soulful reproduction was apparent.

What caused further amaze upon my part was the reproduction of a piano solo with such faithfulness of the characteristics of the instrument as heretofore I had deemed impossible.

The only failure of full realization was in the reproduction of orchestral effects.

Wizard Edison has yet to encompass the complexities of massed sound. And when he does that, his invention will possibly lose that intimacy and refinement of expression it now possesses. As it is, he had added to artistic commodities one of the marvels of the age.

Here is a simple experiment we ask you to make. Let us play the New Edison in one room and you listen in another room. You will find it difficult to believe it is not the real voice.

Hear This Test

Come to our store to-day and hear Madame Marie Rappold on the NEW EDISON, as she sang at Gray's Armoury in Cleveland. You may hear her in "Ave Marie," in which she made a most wonderful impression, with Albert Spalding, America's greatest Violinist, playing the Obligato. You are cordially invited to come in to hear this world-famous Metropolitan Star and other famous Artists on the New Edison.

TO BE STRONG AND HEALTHY YOU MUST HAVE IRON IN YOUR BLOOD

Iron makes pale faces rosy, and phosphorus restore nerves; making you 100 per cent stronger in a few days.

It is the desire of every man, woman and child to feel well, eat well, digest well, look well; but you must have plenty of iron in your blood to obtain this glow of happiness and youth. The moment that the blood gets thin or impure, your stomach is unable to digest your food and it passes into the bowels undigested, then your bowels are unable to take any nutriment from the undigested food and the food begins to ferment, causing indigestion, the impurities run into your kidneys soon follows liver trouble, constipation, rheumatism, etc., and your skin becomes sallow, your nerves shake, you feel tired and all worn out, you take all sorts of medicines and you find nothing does you any good. Now, what you need is iron to build up your blood and phosphorus to restore your nerves. First see how much you weigh, then go to your druggist and get some Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, and in ten days you will find you will be 100 per cent. stronger. The moment that Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is taken it is absorbed by the blood and nerves and you will notice a difference almost immediately. By uniting the iron with the phosphorus you form an entirely new form of iron that will not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach nor cause constipation.

Bonised Phosphorus with iron as modes of here does not contain an atom of arsenic strychnine, nor any poison which has been found so harmful in almost every tonic. This is not a stimulant which makes you feel fine for a while, but is stead it goes to the root of your trouble. builds up your blood, strengthens your nerves, giving power to digest your food and drives away all stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed in this city only at F. C. Wyber's Drug Store, Charlotte street.

RUSSELL DARLING IS HONOURABLY ACQUITTED AND RETAINS RIFLE

Conclusion of Case That Has Interested Smith Residents and Concerned Two of Its First Families—Mr. Wearing's Summary

Mr. Russell Darling was honourably acquitted by Magistrate Langley this morning of the charge of the theft of a Winchester rifle from Isaac Archer, and Mr. Darling retains possession of it. Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the defendant and Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution.

The case has attracted considerable attention in the township of Smith, where the parties are neighbours and reputable citizens. In addressing the Magistrate, Mr. Wearing stated that thirteen years ago Mr. Archer had purchased a rifle in Peterobrough, and shortly after Mr. Stuart Darling, a brother of the defenadnt, had bought a gun that was exactly similar to Archer's. On a number of occasions Stuart Darling's rifle was taken to Archer's house, and Mr. Wearing presented the idea that those two guns may have become interchanged. Mr. Archer had stated that some time after he bought his weapon he had written its number on a panel of his door, and also had entered it in his note book, but Mr. Wearing stated that Mr. Archer admitted that some time had elapsed before he made the entry, which was in lead pencil, while the other memoranda in the book was in ink. Hence, the two rifles might have become exchanged and Mr. Archer would then have inscribed the number of Stuart Darling's gun. Darling's rifle had been left at Archer's several times. Mr. Wearing stated, and their minute similarity may have caused further exchanges. Witnesses had sworn that the rifle produced in court by Russell Darling was seen by them in his possession in August of 1915, but Mr. Archer did not lose his rifle until two months later, in October. Hence, Mr. Wearing argued that the rifle Archer lost could not possibly be the one County Constable Moore secured at Darling's on September 11th, 1916.

Mr. Wearing referred to the fact that both the Archer and Darling families were of the most prominent in the county. Mr. Archer admitted that his memory had been very untrustworthy since an accident he had sustained several years ago while working in Darling's barn, and Mr. Wearing felt that Mr. Archer's present impressions regarding Russell Darling may have arisen through that defective memory.

Mr. Hatton followed Mr. Wearing, reviewing features that appeared salient to the prosecution and Magistrate Langley, after weighing the evidence, dismissed the action.

ACTIVITIES HAVE OPENED UP AT THE Y. M. C. A. WITH A SWING

The Y.M.C.A. leaders are very much pleased with the way activities have opened up at the Association building this fall. Gymnasium classes were organized earlier and are being better attended than during the past three seasons.

The class of business men are meeting for physical work on Monday and Friday afternoons at 5.15 o'clock. The attendance at these classes is about fifteen and will prove helpful to others who will enroll.

The following addition has been made to the bowling equipment: Six large balls and one set of five pins together with three small balls. New mats have been purchased for the bowling alley pits and as the alleys have recently been shellaced and oiled, they are in very good condition. If, after a trial, the set of fivepins proves to be popular, another set will be purchased in the near future.

The Association's religious programme is a strong one and gives every promise of being most successful. The Sunday men's meetings have an average of thirty-three. The meeting last Sunday was addressed by Mr. A. K. Hone, B.A., and had an attendance of forty young men. The Senior Boys' Bible Class organized on Thursday night with an attendance of 20, led by Mr. Roper, and the Junior Collegiate and Junior School Boys' Bible Classes under the direction of Mr. Gailey are each having an average attendance of more than twenty-five. The Senior Collegiate Bible Class which was organized one week ago, with C. N. Meserve as mentor had an attendance of thirty-five last evening. Mr. Hone conducted the discussion of the subject, "The School in Relation to Life." Mr. Hone will be present next Friday and conduct the discussion on "Custom and Habit."

The men's meeting on Sunday next at 4.15 o'clock will be addressed by Mr. H. B. Cowan, the subject being "Tests That Make or Break." Every man and older boy is invited to attend.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The city will pay D. G. Moloney, market clerk, the sum of eight dollars as compensation for the loss sustained during the two days that the market scales were out of commission while repairs were being made.

Improved Ventilation.

The Property committee is in receipt of a letter from Alexander & Miller stating that two, sixteen inch exhaust fans for the market building will cost forty dollars each exclusive of installation. The communication was received.

Complaint Heard.

Mrs. Geo. Carton was present in reference to the placarding of a house she owns on Aylmer street.

5 ft. 5 ins. and over in height. Chest—34 inches.

AGE—Over 20 years. MINIMUM HEIGHT—5 ft. 4 ins.
5 ft. 4 ins. and below 5 ft. 7 ins., in height. Chest—34 inches.
5 ft. 7 ins. and over in height. Chest 34½ inches.

Enrollment receive their kits and despatched overseas immediately.

A free kit is provided.

THE PAY AND ALLOWANCES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

Ordinary seamen and able seamen (at entry $1.10 per day. Separation allowance of $20.00 per month.

Men subsequently transferred to stoker ratings will be paid an additional 10c per day more.

There are no vacancies for any other ratings than seamen and stokers and men can only be accepted as ordinary seamen.

Candidates for the Navy may apply to the recruiting office, Simcoe Street, or to Lt.Col. Johnston at the Armouries. If they are successful in passing an examination by the local military medical examiner transportation to Toronto will be forwarded. The final examination will be made by the recruiting officer at 103 Bay Street, Toronto, and if successful candidates will be furnished with a kit at once and sent overseas immediately. However, if business necessitates the applicant's return home to close his affairs, leave will be granted and transportation provided.

PRESENTATIONS WERE MADE

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Honored on Eve of Departure from Peterborough.

On Friday, Oct. 27th, a very pleasant evening was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Price, by the friends and neighbours in honour of Mrs. Price's father's and mother's removal from town to a farm near Mt. Pleasant. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott have resided in Peterborough twenty-nine years and have made some very warm friends who regret at losing them, and gathered to present them with a remembrance of their departure. Mrs. Gordon presented Mrs. Elliott with a very pretty casserole, and Mr. Elliott, a beautiful pipe in case. The following address was read by James Price:

Mr. and Mrs. John Elliott,—

Dear Friends,—The sad necessity of saying good-bye to you as neighbours is now before us. We feel we could not let this opportunity pass without showing our regret in losing you from our midst. All the time you have spent with us in our neighbourhood we regarded you as good, kind friends. What is going to be your gain is our loss. We, as neighbours, wish you the best of good luck in your new field of labour, and hope that we will have the pleasure of meeting you again, just to kindle old-time friendship. We ask you, Mrs. Elliott, to accept this casserole, and you, Mr. Elliott, this pipe, as a small token in remembrance of the pleasant hours we have spent together as neighbours. Signed on behalf of your neighbours and friends:

Mrs. R. Gordon,
Mrs. G. Davidson,
Mrs. Jason Elliott,
Mr. R. Gordon,
Mr. D. Terriff.

Childhood ailments in most cases coms through some derangement of the stomach or bowels. Baby's Own Tablets have been proved by thousands of mothers to be the greatest medicine known for the cure of these ailments simply because they regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach. Concerning them Mrs. Napoleon Lambert, St. Ignace, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for childhood ailments, and I am well pleased with their use." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brock-

Mr. Rowell's Address Nov. 2

Peterborough Fortunate in Being Given An Opportunity to Hear Message From Front

The 8th Chapter, I.O.D.E., are pleased to announce that they have secured Mr. N. W. Rowell, M.P.P., to give an address on Thursday evening, November 2nd, in the George St. Methodist Church. This address has been wonderfully well received wherever given, and requests for it have been made from all over the province. Peterborough is, therefore, particularly fortunate, as Mr. Rowell is to visit only two other cities in Eastern Ontario. Mr. Rowell particularly requests the presence of all returned soldiers, and of all wives, mothers and friends of the boys in the trenches, as he brings a message to them direct from the front. No admission fee will be charged, but a silver collection will be taken up, the proceeds being for soldiers' comforts.

FALLEN HEROES WILL BE REMEMBERED AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Sergt. W. H. Curtis and Pte. Ed. Payne, Will be Held in Special Memory at Morning Service To-morrow

During the past week two members of St. Luke's Church have been reported killed in action, Pte. Edward Payne and Sergt. W. Howard Curtis. They will be held in special memory at the 11 a.m. service to-morrow. Sergt. Curtis went over with the first contingent and had been wounded and discharged from hospital three times previously. Pte. Payne fell in his first battle. Sixty St. Luke's boys are with the colours and there have been three other fatalities, Pte. Merton Adams (died in hospital, July 10, 1915); Corp. H. E. Carpenter, killed in action May 23, 1915, and Pte. Victor Northcott, killed in action, September, 1916. Four other St. Luke's boys have been wounded and made prisoners of war, and in addition a number of others have suffered wounds.

COURT PETERBORO' HELD ENJOYABLE SOCIAL EVENING

Successful Smoker Held in the C.O.F. Rooms Last Night

Court Peterborough No. 29, Canadian Order Foresters, held a very successful smoker last evening at their rooms on Simcoe street. About 200 members were present and spent the early part of the evening in a euchre contest until 10 p.m., when winners were declared, Bros. W. G. Strong, Supt. of Organization, won first prize, Bro. Jas. E. Henderson won second prize, and Bro. Albert Davis was lucky man for the booby prize.

After refreshments were served, short addresses were given by Bro. W. G. Strong, Bro. J. P. Hoag, 2nd High Auditor Bro. Wiley, at present organizing in the city for the three courts for new members, Bro. Adl. Duncan, Bro. Bobt Fair, Bro. J. Stewart, Bro J. J. Hartley, Bro. Jno. Hardwick, and Bro. Geo. Carter. Bro. D. Manzies occupied the chair for the evening.

In the remarks of the High Court officers they emphasized the strong, steady growth of the Order, notwithstanding the crisis through which the Empire was passing, and made mention of the work of Court Peterborough No. 29, which have added a large number of new members to the Order during the summer months.

This is the first social evening of Court Peterborough No. 29 for this season and will be followed by others during the coming winter.

Plaits which give the straighter outline, are much more often used on the new skirts than are gathers.

Wheat and The British Navy

Canadian wheat is worth about $1.75 per bushel. In Russia it is worth 50c a bushel. A very large part of the difference in price can be credited directly to the fact that the world markets are kept open for Canadians and Americans alike by the absolute supremacy of the British navy. Even a partial success of the German navy and the breaking away into the Atlantic of a half a dozen cruisers after the Battle of Jutland, might have largely paralysed shipping on the Alantic.

Every day we realise more and more what the British navy has meant to Canada and the Empire in this war. We did not begin to realise what the conflict meant for us till our own Canadians got into action, and into the casualy lists.

We ought to have our own flesh and blood fighting for the Empire in the navy just as in the army. Let us encourage recruiting for the navy on the scheme now outlined. We can do so heartily for the men who join will get the same pay and allowances as those in the Canadian army.

The pure, brilliant, flawless tone of a Heintzman & Co. piano is at once apparent to musicians of discriminating tastes, and a minute examination of the mechanism and construction will always prove interesting.

For that reason, we invite a personal visit to our warerooms of all prospective piano buyers. Backed by an unbroken record of fair dealing with buyers, we invite the privilege of an interview with any one who may be about to close the purchase of a piano.

Upon receipt of your name and address we will be pleased to call upon you by appointment at your home address.

By closing the purchase of a piano before you have taken us into your confidence, may mean that you have missed the consideration of some important point that has not been discussed during your inquiries.

Many are not aware of the particular feature of the propositions we have to make to prospective buyers who have failed to investigate the claims of the Heintzman & Co. instruments. From our long experience, therefore, we are certain that we can save prospective piano buyers some money and some disappointment by making direct inquiries, rather than through a middle man.

The Peterborough ware-rooms of the Heintzman & Co. are temporarily located at No. 421 George street, next Examiner office, where different types of instruments may be seen. Also various styles of Victor Victrolas, newest records, needles and other accessories. B. M. Britton, District Manager.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHORAL SOCIETY

Mr. John Allan Was Again Elected Musical Director—"The Messiah" Will Be Given About Christmas and "Elijah" Will Be Sung Early in 1917.

The deferred annual meeting of the Peterborough Choral Society, which usually takes place in June, was held in the Collegiate Hall (kindly lent by the Board of Education), on Tuesday evening last, the majority of the members being present.

At the close of the rehearsal the election of officers for the ensuing year took place, the musical director, Mr. John Allan, being again elected with acclamation. After having submitted a financial statement showing that the Society had commenced their year with an adverse balance of some $36.00 due principally to a contribution of over $80.00 to the Patriotic Fund, the treasurer proceeded to comment on the fact that despite unusually adverse circumstances and the loss of a considerable number of its male members who had joined the ranks, he was pleased to announce that during their past year, this deficit had almost been wiped out and that the society was financially sound. He also mentioned for the benefit of the many newly enrolled members that the raison d-etre of the society was purely and simply the study of the best choral music such as Oratorio, it was strictly undenominational, its members comprised singers from all churches, Methodist, Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist and Catholic all alike being welcome. Its officers, including their musical director, Mr. John Allan, and its pianist, Miss Flowers, had, all of them, given their time and services without fee or remuneration of any kind whatsoever, and he felt sure, were this fact more generally known it would only be a question of a very short time before the musically interested friends in Peterborough would come forward and show their interest in the society by associating their names with it and supporting its efforts. Surely an educational work such as the Peterborough Choral Society, was doing, and one so free from narrowness of spirit, was worthy of the city's support and without doubt would ultimately reflect credit on its citizens. The annual performance of the "Messiah" will be given about Christmas next and the work decided upon for the next year is the oratorio "Elijah."

The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year was as follows:

President—W. Stocker.
Vice-President—Mr. F. Heafield.
Treasurer—Mr. Raybould.
Librarian—Mr. McKee.
Secretary—Mr. F. Mather.
Musical Director—Mr. John Allan.
Assist. Director—Mr. G. Chandler.
Pianist—Miss Flowers.

CARTRIDGES FAILED TO PASS.

BOSTON, Oct. 28. — The Leyland Line steamship Anglican arrived here yesterday from London, armed for the first time since she began trips to this port. A four-inch gun, which fires a 65-pound shell, was mounted aft, and the ship's crew included two expert gunners. The Anglian brought back 3,500 cases of cartridges which were said to have failed to pass War Office requirements.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 30 or 35. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs comport the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orlisse in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orlisse taken at meal times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissues from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00 postal note or money order. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1340 Montreal, Can.

MARITAL BUGABOOS

Many a woman takes to her heart the delusion that she married the wrong man. In the inner circle of her bosom friends she may admit as much—in the strictest confidence, of course—and her tale of woe in corroboration is spun into sympathetic ears.

In every such rehearsal of domestic infelicity the most disconsolate part is the "might have beens," which have been denominated the saddest of all sad words. Lost opportunities usually take on exaggerated appearance in retrospect. Both Maud and the Judge might have been disillusioned had she devoted the latter part of her life to raking him instead of raking hay.

To make a jeremiad of this kind impressive it is only necessary to mention two or three men of prominence who were driven to despair by a "positive refusal" and who perversely went ahead on the highway of success, each with a life companion referred to with scornful reproach as a "spiteful hussy" not half good enough for him. As a matter of fact, success in such cases may be due to compatible association of a real helpmeet that never could have been attained with a discontented, scolding, and fault-finding companion.

This is a reversible hypothesis, for many a man harbors the hallucination that he made a mistake in his choice; and some of them are mean enough to add to the burden of an aching heart by saying so to disappointed and neglected housewives who share more of sorrow than of happiness.

Women who lament that other wives have the best husbands and men who deceive themselves with the belief that other men have the most attractive wives cannot judge with precision. Observation invariably is under most favourable circumstances that tend to warp superficial judgment.

What an amazing awakening there would be if the discontented could exchange places for a time, an awakening that would cause Jack to prefer his Jill and Jill to yearn for Jack again, and settle forever the doubts that disturb connubial contentment.

Thrice happy are they who bear and forbear and frown upon misgivings that wreck so many lives.—Salt Lake Herald-Republican.

VOTING TO-DAY IN AUSTRALIA ON CONSCRIPTION QUESTION

Melbourne, October 25. — The Australian Commonwealth is now in the throes of a campaign brought on a few weeks ago by the decision of the Hughes Government to submit the question of compulsory military service to a referendum to be held on Oct. 28th.

The enlistment situation shows that 109,000 reinforcements have been voluntarily enrolled, additional reinforcements needed up to July 1st next year are 100,000, and 125,000 men are available who are "fit, single and without dependents."

The government's plan is that voluntarily recruitment is to be continued; the deficiency to be made up by conscription; men to be called up month by month as required; no compulsory calling up of men under 21 years of age;; absolute exemptions otherwise: (1) Only sons; (2) single men who are the sole support of dependents; (3) in families which have already furnished volunteers no calling up of the remaining members up to one-half; the constitution of non-military tribunals to hear appeals for exemption.

The Labor Party, of which Mr. Hughes was a founder, is split into two factions over the issue. He with most of the Federal Labor Party (that is those members of the State Labor Governments of New South Wales and South Australia, advocated conscription, and are bitterly opposed by several members of the Federal Party, powerful trades unionists' bodies in Melbourne and Sydney, and Labor-ite politicians in several State governments.

Mr. Hughes has been expelled from the Political Labor League of New South Wales, but he refuses to recognise the action. Other leading Laborites are under almost as severe a ban. But Mr. Hughes has the backing of his ordinarily determined political antagonists, the Liberals.

In a manifesto appealing to the electors to vote "yes" on the referendum, Mr. Hughes quoted President Lincoln's defence of the draft at the height of the civil war, and added: "As it was in the northern states in Lincoln's time, so it is with us to-day. Like them we fight in the cause of liberty. Voluntaryism has failed us as it failed them. And we like them—unless we confess ourselves degenerate—must tread the path they trod, and along which they strode resistlessly to victory."

"Complexion Secrets of An Actress"

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title, the author says: "Commencing use of grease paints, rouge and powder, had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, coarse and punctured with large pores. While abroad I heard of the virtues of a so-called wax. My first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, spread on a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worn-out cuticle, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears.

"For the wrinkles and enlarged pores I began using a solution of saxolite one ounce, dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this every day for a while soon relieved the condition most wonderfully."

Horseshoers Will Raise Prices

An Increase of Five Cents on All Horse-Shoes Will Take Effect on and After November 1st

The local horse shoers, through the medium of the Master Horse Shoers' Association, announce that on and after November 1st, 1916, there will be an advance of five cents on all horse shoes. This is due to an increase in cost of materials, labour, etc.

TORONTO FAT STOCK SHOW

Farmers who have choice stock to market shortly would do well to enter in Toronto Fat Stock Show, Union Stock Yards, Toronto, Dec. 8th and 9th, 1916, and secure some of the big premiums offered in addition to market price of their animals. The show has been coming to the front very rapidly and carries the best and largest exhibition of fat butcher stock in Canada, and this year promises to be better than ever.

Music & Drama

S. J. GAUDIO, CLARINETIST CONCERT.

S. J. Gaudio, clarinet virtuoso, entertained a disappointingly small crowd at the Grand Opera House last night. His concert was certainly an unusual one in several respects. Touring clarinettists are decidedly few especially those of the musicianly abilities of Mr. Gaudio. A number of his selections included a piano obligato which Mr. Gaudio played, displaying the fact that in addition to his clarinet perfection he has also a wide command of the pianoforte. His programme was nicely balanced, including a number of grand opera selections, Rigoletto and the Carnival of Venice, with which he closed his programme, were among the generally known numbers. At its best, however, and there was no doubt of Mr. Gaudio's talent and technique, the clarinet does not lend itself to solo concert work as effectively and as appealingly as other instruments.

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

The Executive of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society are pleased to announce that Mrs. H. P. Plumptre of Toronto will give an address in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute, Monday evening next, October 30th at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Plumptre is the Honourary Secretary of the Dominion Branch of the Society and since the beginning of the war, has devoted her whole time and energy to the work. No one in Canada is better fitted to tell of what has already been accomplished by the C.R.C. for our brave men overseas, and of the tremendous needs and the vast work yet to be done. A good attendance is requested.

The report of the year's work of the local Red Cross Society, as presented at the annual meeting is one of which any organization might justly be proud. Looking at it from either stand-point, practical or humanitarian, the local Society will be seen to compare most favourably with any in the province. To have carried on the work of the Society, and to have administered funds, amounting to approximately $18,000 with an outlay of but $194.49 for general expenses, is assuredly highly creditable. When we consider, however, that $123.72 of this expenditure was incurred in purchasing packing-boxes, twine and labels that the goods to be shipped, could be securely enough packed to do away with the necessity of having them opened and repacked in Toronto, we realize that this sum was scarcely an expense, but, virtually an asset, as it meant the saving of time and energy for the workers at the head office. This reduces the actual working expenses then, exclusive of printing, to a sum of $70.77 a record of which few organizations could boast.

The many phases of the work, must appeal to all, as it extends over Hospital, Field, Trench and Prison Camp. The demand for supplies is increasing, the need of money, unlimited. To us at home therefore, comes the stentorian call of duty—to give of our strength, unreservedly and of our means unstintingly, that no one of us may fail to have a part in this, the noblest of all work, the alleviation of another's suffering.

The following news item should be of interest to Canadians.

HONOR PRINCESS PATRICIA
Canadian Red Cross Hospital Bears Her Name.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Canadian Red Cross Society have leased and are fitting up St. Lawrence College at Ramsgate as a convalescent hospital with accommodation for one thousand beds. It will bear the name of Princess Patricia. This will be turned over to the Canadian medical services to furnish the staff and operate it. A new departure in connection with the latest reforms is that all such hospitals will be operated by the medical services, the Red Cross continuing to be responsible for the buildings, the general fabric and the supply of motor ambulances, but the feeding of the patients will be undertaken by the "medical" authorities. This is not intended as a reflection upon the Red Cross, but only as an economic reform which will at the same time leave the Red Cross free to develop its work as regards the provision of comforts, which is greatly appreciated by the authorities.

NOTICE RE COAL ORDERS

We wish to announce to our patrons the advisability of ordering coal in small quantities, and only as you require it, as coal shipments will be restricted for the next five weeks, after which time shipments will be more liberal.

We will give our customers the best service possible under existing conditions, but will not accept any new business until after December 15th.

We will not deliver coal to any person who is attempting to collect a quantity beyond the present requirement, nor will we duplicate orders for the same customer.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEARS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Canada's Population To Jump After War

Conserving men and capital within the Empire, was the subject of an address delivered before the Insurance Institute of Toronto by Hon W. H. Hearst. He thought before the century was out that Canada would ish, are to insist on is only to be sign Britain ever had. Capital would come from some source to develop the great natural resources of the Dominion, and especially those of Ontario.

The one task before the Empire was, however, carrying on the war. While Premier Hearst was hopeful enough of the outcome if the proper support were givin it, he did not hide the fact that much more would require to be done. He said that the aid already given by the overseas Dominions of the Empire had impressed Old Countrymen, who were generously urging Canadians and others to take a part in the after-the-war settlement, but he hinted that many more men would be required. "It is a long way to Berlin, and the peace we, as Britons are as large a population as Great ed there."

WILL INSPECT MAYOR'S HOUSE

Smoke Test Will Be Applied to the Plumbing in the New Home of Mayor Duffus—The Property Committee

The house recently erected by His Worship Mayor Duffus at 846 Hunter street west, will on Tuesday next, commencing at nine o'clock, be the scene of a smoke test demonstration in which Plumbing Inspector P. Thompson and W. Rose, will participate. The latter alleges that the make an inspection of the Mayor's house including the smoke test, and report back to the Committee. Mr. Rose was invited to be present when the inspection is made.

plumbers are using material not up to standard called for in the By-law, and at a previous meeting also claimed that the Mayor's house was one of that number in which the plumbing was defective.

On motion of Alderman Edgar and Alderman Evans it was decided to have Plumbing Inspector Thompson

OTONABEE COUNCIL MEETING

The Otonabee Council met on October 16th.

On motion, G. W. Esson was authorized to 'brush' the road on the quarter line, between lots 22 and 23, ne to receive the timber for fire wood for performing the work.

A communication was received from the Red Cross Association. On motion, the committee who so efficiently did the work last year were re-appointed.

On report of Committee re Taylor's bridge, Otonabee, the Council decided the work was larger than the municipality would care to undertake at the present time.

The following accounts were passed: The Patriotic Association refunded $5, paid for the hall for concerts, etc.; for wire fence road, M. O'Keefe, $7.50; John Blakely, $10; E. Redpath, $14.75, for gravel, Mrs. C. H. Moore, $5.80; D. McCarthy, $7.40; Wm. Hatherly, $2.80; J. Webster, $3.10; Alex. Gillespie, $7.47; W. E. Wood, $9.10; A. Evans, $3; R. Davidson, $4.80; W. Council adjourned to Nov. 20th.

BUTTER TOUCHED 48 CENTS AND MANY POCKETS ON MARKET

Butter reached 48c. on the market this morning and in the grocery stores the best creamery was quoted at 45c. One sample of butter sold after twelve o'clock at 40 cents, but the general tendency of the farmers, or rather their wives, was to hold the prices as high as possible. Some of them would qualify for pirates, second storey men, or "dips" from the way they went after the city money. But the consumers who paid 48c. for dairy butter deserve to be bled when it is remembered that the retail grocers offered their best creamery at two cents below the market price.

Eggs sold at from 40 to 42 cents a dozen and were comparatively scarce. There was a surplus of poultry, with ducks, geese and chickens the favourites. There was a strong demand for geese.

Potatoes hadn't changed at $2.00 a bag.

$151 FOR RED CROSS BY C.G.E. "PRIMER" DEPARTMENT

The employees of the "Primer" Department in the manilton work of the C.G.E. have done nobly in contributing the considerable sum of $151 for the British Red Cross Fund, and turned the amount over to the treasurer of the fund this morning. This is exceedingly creditable, especially considering that about three quarters of the employees are girls. This is in addition to the $100 paid over to Mr. Peter Campbell by the inspectors of the work of this department.

Cent-a-Day Club's Contributions To The British Red Cross Fund

Mrs. W. H. Pretty begs to announce that the contributions to the "One-cent-a-day Club" of the Ashburnham Red Cross Society for the month of September last amounted to four thousand six hundred and six (4606) cents, making a total to date of ninety-three thousand seven hundred and fifty (93750) cents—nearly $1,000.

A PASTORAL LETTER FROM CANON DAVIDSON TO BE READ AT ST. JOHN'S

By Canon Cornish at Matins To-morrow

To-morrow, at the morning service, in St. John's, Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's, late chaplain of the 39rd, and at present brigade chaplain at Orpington Hospital, Rev. Canon Cornish will read his letter from overseas to his congregation. Major Davidson preaches at Westminster Abbey to-day, a fact that will add interest to his pastoral letter to be read to-morrow.

English Imports of U.S. Eggs and Butter

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. — At least five cents a pound and five cents a dozen has been added to the prices of butter and eggs by the enormous demand from England for these American products, according to opinion expressed by leading trade authorities. For the past several weeks England has been taking the poorer butter off the market here, until the inferior grades are relatively dearer than the better ones.

Eggs are being moved from American storage houses to Montreal in immense quantities, and are being repacked to meet the shipping requirements to England. Most of these eggs were bought last April for British account, and have been in storage ever since, awaiting cooler weather.

One shipment of butter recently to Montreal consisted of 110 carloads of 400 tubs, or 25,000 pounds each, enough to keep New York supplied for a week. England is favouring her own people in making and shipping their purchases, but they in turn have to depend largely on the United States for supplies.

For the week ending October 21 Montreal received 76,986 cases of United States eggs, and the previous week 26,375 cases. Her exports for the season this far have amounted to 201,836 cases.

It is estimated there is a shortage here of fully 1,000,000 cases in the warehouses as compared with last year.

BUSINESS BOOMING IN THE STOCK LINE

Mr. H. P. Kennedy Reports That the Stock Yards Established in Edmonton Last October Have Flourished.

HE HAS BEEN BUSY

A number of Peterborough people who are interested in the H. P. Kennedy, Limited, Stock Yards and properties in Edmonton, will be pleased to learn that the Company opened the [illegible] October 1st, last. An Edmonton paper states that the records of the Edmonton Stock Yards for the day previous were 491 cattle, 8 calves and 123 hogs, a total of sales of $67,500. Mr. Kennedy is in the city to-day and in conversation with him he anticipates an immense volume of business to develop. Mr. Kennedy also gives the information that this week he had handled 115 cars of live stock in different parts of Ontario, the West, and United States, representing a cash turn over of almost $200,000. October is usually a very heavy month, but this year, business is exceptional with Mr. Kennedy. 115 cars of live stock represents practically six train loads.

Just recently Mr. Kennedy sold a car load of steers to a buyer in Pennsylvania, and the following is taken from the letter Mr. Kennedy received as an acknowledgement when the cattle reached their destination.

Dear Sir,—The car load of cattle arrived yesterday, and I want to say, as strangers doing business together, you have treated me very fair, as you shipped me just what you promised. I have had many of my friends look them over and they all say that it is the finest bunch of steers they ever saw; one expressed himself by saying they were as fine as ever grew. I would not hesitate to recommend you to any of my friends for fair dealing. While I gave you my price, just to show you my appreciation for fair dealing, I herewith enclose you my check for $20.00 to confirm my appreciation for your fair and honest treatment.

Yours very truly,

The letter goes to show that Canadian cattle are giving excellent satisfaction and are looked upon as the finest cattle in the world. The county in Pennsylvania in which these cattle were sold, is said to be the richest farming county in the United States, and it is saying a good deal when a recommendation of Canadian cattle comes from that district.

In addition to Mr. Kennedy's interests in the cattle market in both Toronto and Edmonton, he is also Vice-President of The Western Shell and Box Company, with headquarters at Edmonton. They are shipping a car load of shells every week or ten days and have been manufacturing shells for over a year and a half.

Business Girls' Hallowe'en Tea

Interesting Function is Being Held This Afternoon and Evening in the Turnbull Building

The Business Girls' Club are holding a Hallowe'en tea this afternoon and evening on the fifth floor of the Turnbull Building. The proceeds are in aid of the Prisoners of War Fund. The quarters where the tea is being held have been beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion.

WILSON DAY IS CELEBRATED

Special to The Examiner:

SHADOW LAWN, Long Branch, N.J., Oct. 28.—Much needed reforms may be interrupted, perhaps for generations to come, should the Democratic party suffer defeat on November 7th, President Wilson told a great gathering of New Yorkers, on the lawn of his house here this afternoon. Several train loads of representative delegates from all over the United States poured in here this morning to celebrate "Wilson Day," which is also "Empire State Day." President Wilson spoke in utmost confidence of his re-election.

"THE IRON CLAW" IS COMING NEXT WEEK TO STRAND THEATRE

Arthur Stringer's fascinating and thrilling photoplay serial will be shown in its first episode at the Strand theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. This story by one of Canada's foremost writers of fiction attracted wide attention at Loew's theatre, Toronto, when it was shown there, and everywhere it has appeared it has been a big attraction. Pearl White, Creighton Hale and Sheldon Lewis are the principals of "The Iron Claw." In this photoplay the stirring action begins almost at the outset, and gains in interest in the subsequent episodes. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week Florence Reed will be shown in "At Bay," a splendid feature and the Pathe films will be a feature of this theatre.

Completely Renovated.

From the cellar to the theatre ceiling, and from the new screen to the handsome street front, the Strand has been overhauled thoroughly. The floors have been scrubbed and oiled, even the cellar cleaned out. A new furnace and complete electric lighting system in which there is only one other theatre in the city that meets the requirements of the underwriters, two machine operating thus avoiding all delays, a wide centre isle, one hundred new comfortable seats and a connection with one of the foremost picture studios in the world, these are some of the features the management of the Strand offer to the citizens. Amberlux lenses are used on the picture machines by which the eye-straining and hurtful violet rays are eliminated by lens filtration.

See the Strand programmes in real comfort and under the most sanitary conditions, and don't overlook the big serial feature "The Iron Claw."

TEMPLE SONGSTERS TO GIVE PROGRAMME

The Temple Songster Brigade, assisted by part of the band and a newly formed orchestra, will give a very special concert in the Salvation Army Temple on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Adjutant McElheney will occupy the chair and direct the service. The following is the programme, and all are cordially invited. Cut this out and bring it with you:

"All hail the power of Jesus' name."
Prayer.
Vocal march—"Forward March," Songsters.
Pianoforte solo—Selected, Miss M. Yost.
Vocal trio—"Morning Land," Mrs. Forde, Mrs. Hedge and Bululah Payton.
Selection—Selected, Orchestra.
Solo—"Good-by Pharoh," Fred Gandy.
Cornet duet—"Perfect Day," M. Forde and Fred Calvert.
Solo—"Broken Vow," Elsie Northcott.
Bible reading, Mrs. McElheney.
Selection—"Halting Saints Arise," Temple Songsters.
March—Selected, Orchestra.
Quintette — Selected, Songster Quintette.
Vocal—"Royal Command," Temple Songsters.
Quartette — "Wayside Cross," Songster Quartette.
Hymn—"Wondrous Cross" Temple Songsters. Orchestra accompaniment.

STREET CAR STRIKE

PARIS, Oct. 28.—A strike of street car employes which began in the suburbs of Paris, is reported to be spreading to the central districts. Up to the present the strike has not resulted in the stoppage of the service, but there is considerable diminution in the number of cars run. The Intransigeant says the strike is due to the high prices of food and the insufficient wages paid the employes, especially the women, who receive five francs daily.

QUEBEC NEEDS LESSARD.

He Could Have Recruited 50,000 Men If Given the Chance.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Reasons were advanced by Hon. Sydney Fisher in a speech here as to why Quebec has fallen down in recruiting.

"The French-Canadians," he said, "have not had a fair chance to recruit. There has never been any organized system by men who know them to get the habitant to join the ranks. Had a man like Gen. Lessard, one of Canada's leading soldiers, been sent to Quebec and given a free hand among the people, who know him and have confidence in him, there would now be 50,000 French-Canadian enlisted. Instead, the general is kept in Ontario doing practically nothing."

Mr. Fisher justified Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude in regard to the national service appeal.

Curley Brown Will Withdraw For $400,000

Strong opposition by directors of the Business Men's Racing Association to paying H. D. Brown $400,000 for City Park race track has developed. As a result a deal by which Mr. Brown agreed to withdraw from racing in New Orleans if paid the above sum, hangs in abeyance, but will be taken up by the directors of the Business Men's Racing Association at a special meeting, when it is believed that Mr. Brown's proposition will be accepted. Mr. Brown has signed an agreement to withdraw from the field if paid $400,000 for City Park, providing races are not conducted except during the time between January 1 each year and Mardi Gras day in New Orleans.

THREE DROWNED

Boat Capsizes When Trio Were Crossing a Lake.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 28.—Deer Lake, in the Township of Cashel in the northern part of Hastings County, was on Tuesday the scene of a triple tragedy. Mr. John Loveless, a farmer; Mr. E. Taylor, cheesemaker at Gunter, and a neighbor, a boy, were converting to a boat, camp supplies for the opening of the deer season when the craft upset. On Wednesday the boat was found floating on the lake, as were also some of the supplies. A search of the lake for the bodies has so far proved fruitless.

PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION AFTER NEW COUNCIL FOR BATHING

The Play Grounds Association concluded its summer work last night, when at a meeting in the Council Chamber the members passed a forehanded resolution nominating a committee to wait on the 1917 Council at the January meeting with a request that the city provide adequate dressing quarters at several bathing places for next summer's enjoyment by the public, and especially by the children. The association will also assure the Council of its heartiest co-operation in the matter of supervising whatever swimming places may be secured.

The various reports presented showed that the past year's work has been decidedly fruitful, and that it had also revealed the need of the work, its scope, and the extent of the operations that should be undertaken next year. At the King Edward school grounds this summer, for instance, the attendance reached 600. This appreciation of the play grounds indicated the need next year for more equipment and supervisors.

This is Grafonola Week AT THE J.M. Greene Music Store

GRASP THIS FINE CHANCE TO OWN A GRAFONOLA

Every home should own a Talking Machine—most everybody to-day admits this. No one who visits a home where a Grafonola is used to provide the evening's entertainment will come away without a vow to possess one for their home. Isn't this your experience Mr. or Mrs. Homelover?

Here is the Best Offer That Will Be Made You—While the War Lasts, at least

To-day and every day next week we are going to take orders for a limited number of the Grafonolas here illustrated, requiring only that you buy 3, 5, 7, 10 or 15 records (according to the instrument selected), and we will send the Grafonola home to you at once, and you can pay for it in small amounts while you are enjoying it. No money need be paid on the instrument to-day.

Better to be Sure than Sorry

Doctors Advocate PASTEURIZED MILK

The following warning notice has been sent out to the heads of families in the City of Montreal:—

"Owing to the outbreak of the epidemic of Infantile Paralysis in the City, we wish to warn you not to bring your children to the fund office, not to take them to moving picture shows, in the street cars, to school, church or wherever there are crowds of people or other children. Keep their noses and throats washed out several times daily; keep their bowels open and regular; take them to the doctor or hospital at the first sign of illness. Be warned in time. Take our advice and save your children."

There is no reason for panic. But there is every reason for the strictest caution. The campaign against Infantile Paralysis cannot be too prompt or comprehensive.

It is Better to be Sure than Sorry And the Time to Act is NOW

Will you take the Doctors Advice and use Pasteurized and Clarified Milk, delivered in Sanitary Filled Bottles at your homes every morning, from the Advice About Milk

The Montreal Star says: Health Commissioners had a long sitting yesterday and discussed the various means to be taken to combat the disease. Having established a strict quarantine on all households affected, ordered the destruction of all cats and dogs belonging to the families, and closed all the schools, the Commissioners turned their attention to the milk question. Milk is always regarded by medical men as a possible source of infection, no matter from how clean an establishment it comes. It is a great breeding ground for germs and the doctors always advocate pasteurization of it.

The health commissioners yesterday passed a resolution advising the people of Westmount for the present as a temporary precaution to use only pasteurized milk, and that where they are supplied with milk not pasteurized, they are recommended to pasteurize it by bringing it to a temperature of 140 to 145 degrees Fahreinheit, and keeping it at that temperature for thirty minutes and then cooling it quickly.

Fun For All Hallow's Eve

Ideas For Spending the Evening in an Amusing Way

Decorations for a Hallowe'en affair may simply take the form of autumn boughs, a few late flowers, and the hollowed-out pumpkin-face lanterns, or if the hostess prefers, she may elaborate the adornment of her rooms by purchasing festoons of gay pumpkin-colored paper, weird-looking black cat ornaments, and dozen of others novelties which the notion stores and stationers are showing.

For a Hallowe'en party invitations may be written on specially-prepared notepaper or cards which the novelty stores sell, or on pumpkin-colored paper adorned with tiny witch or black cat 'stickers' or yet again, squares of black paper may be used and the invitation written thereon in the 'white ink' which any book store sells.

A taffy-pull is an excellent feature for a Hallowe'en festivity. The guests should be warned to wear something washable, as if decked in "Sunday best" the evening will not be nearly so enjoyable. Corn may also be popped and may later form a contest for the guests. Assign couples by stretching a big sheet across an archway, place boys on one side and girls on the other, turn out the lights, except for the pumpkin candles, and instruct each man to grasp the hand of a girl, extended above the sheet. Thus couples are formed. Set them at stringing popcorn, and at the end of ten minutes call "time". The couple having the longest string receives the prize which may be some amusing Hallowe'en ornament. A potato race, in which the contestants carry a potato between two toothpicks to the desired goal, creates much fun.

FORTUNE NUTS.

Some suggestions for "fate" sentences to be written on paper, rolled up tightly and stuffed int oa walnut shell, the two halves then glued together are: 'Married in June', 'Tall, with brown eyes', 'A quack doctor', 'Live in a bungalow', 'Honeymoon in Florida', 'Riches galore', 'Marry a widower.' 'May end in jail', 'Girl with warty nose', 'Diamond at Christmas', 'Write a book', 'Be clown in a circus', 'Man with wooden leg', 'Three kisses very soon', 'Trip to Niagara Falls', 'Marry a suffragette', 'Dark man admires you', 'Breakfast food to live on', 'Just hard work', 'Her papa may say No'.

These make quite a bit of fun. There should be one distinct of the 'fortune' nuts for the girls and another for the boys. Better still is to write the fortune sentences on white paper with sour milk or lemon juice. Let them dry carefully and the writing will not show.

When the guests open the walnuts they will be surprised to find enclosed an apparently blank piece of paper. Instruct them to hold the slips over a candle or near the fire, when the writing will soon show up brown or black.

FUNNY FAGGOTS.

Make up a bright grate fire. Have ready a number of 'faggots'. These are small bundles of kindlings. Place them in a big market or clothes basket. Attach to each 'faggot' a numbered card of suggestion. On the cards are written all manner of stunts. These stunts are various forms of lively entertainment. The guests each draw a faggot and respond as the numbers are called. The room is lighted only by the fire in the grate, and each number is called in turn. The player called upon tosses his faggot into the fire, and as long as it continues to blaze he must continue his entertainment. Among the stunts suggested may be: 1, Sing a lullaby to a sofa pillow. 2, sneeze in five different ways. 3, laugh in five different ways. 4, action of an umbrella. 5, tell a funny story. 6, act in pantomime the visit of a doctor. 7, make a fool's cap and place it on the head of the most dignified person present. 8, deliver an oration on woman suffrage. 9, sing "Everybody's Doing It" in operatic style. 10, tell a ghost story. 11, compose a Hallowe'en poem. 12, give an imitation of a small child being sent to bed. 13, name the thing you would do if you had a million dollars.

WEDDING BELLS

WHITE—COYNE.

A very pretty wedding took place in St. Peter-in-Chains church, Trenton, when Miss Hattie Bernice Coyne, youngest daughter of Mrs. H. Coyne, was married to Edward Everest White only son of Joseph White, Peterborough, the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Conelly.

Mr. Jim McLean officiated as best man, while the bridesmaid was Miss Kathleen White, only sister of the groom.

A very dainty breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. White left on a short wedding trip to Rochester and Buffalo, and on their return will visit the grooms parents in Peterborough before returning to Trenton.

SULLIVAN—KILLEN.

On Tuesday, Oct. 24th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's church, Ennismore, when Rev. Father McGuire united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Killen, to Bernard Sullivan, son of Mrs. Andrew Sullivan of Emily. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Agnes Scollard.

The bride looked very pretty in a dress of white net with large white hat. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Nellie, in a dress of pink net with hat to match. The groom wasas sisted by his brother, Stafford Sullivan, of Ennismore.

After the wedding ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride's father, where a dainty dejeuner was served to over a hundred guests. The afternoon and evening were spent in games and dancing.

The young couple were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents, showing the high esteem in which they are held by their many friends.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet, to the bridesmaid a pin set with pearls, and to the best man a tie pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in Emily and begin their married life with the best wishes of their many friends.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JAMES FISHER.

There passed away on Monday, Oct. 23rd, one of Millbrook's most respected citizens, in the person of William James Fisher. Deceased was born in South Monaghan about 67 years ago, but for the greater part of his life he resided in Cavan, which township honored him by electing him councillor for several terms and subsequently to the Reeve's chair. In 1915 he had the honour of being a member of the Millbrook Council.

His wife predeceased him by a few months. Her death caused him much grief and this added to his own illness helped to shorten his life. He was a man of high ideals a kind, generous gentleman and by his death Millbrook loses one of her best citizens. While he was a member of the Millbrook Council he proved himself the ablest member of the Board.

One son, Bruce E. (in the army) and two daughters, Mrs. (Rev.) Malloson and Miss Fisher are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate parent.

I will not say and I cannot say
That he is dead, he is just away.

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land;

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you, oh you who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return.

Think of faring on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.

Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead, he is just away.

FATALLY SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

CHATHAM, Oct. 28.—A shooting accident which occurred at Rondeau Thursday morning has proved fatal to William Griener, of Ridgetown, who received the full discharge in his back of a shot gun, which exploded prematurely. Charles Hiles, who accompanied him on the duck shooting expedition, had placed his gun, which was loaded and cocked, on a log, when a dog ran over it, causing it to explode.

OUTFALL SEWER IS DISCUSSED

A meeting af representatives of the City Council, together with North Monaghan and Otonabee, met this afternoon to further discuss matters connected with the outfall sewer.

The Rink street sewer has been connected with the new outfall sewer at the end of Lock street, and this sewage is now going into the river. The township representatives claim this connection should not have been made, and was the subject for discussion this afternoon.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor has announced the engagement of his only daughter, Brenda, to Mr. Frank Duff Frasier, of New York and Manchester-by-the-Sea, Massachusetts.

Dr. A. G. Walmsley has returned to the city after attending the 16th annual convention of the Ontario Osteopathic Association, which was held in Toronto. Delegates from all over Canada were present.

A miscellaneous shower was given last evening at the home of Miss Violet Preston, 217 Reid Street, in honour of Miss Hazel Allin, whose marriage is to take place at an early date. After an evening spent in music and games, refreshments were served to the guests, who then departed with best wishes for the bride to be.

Mrs. H. D. Robertson Safe Back From China

The trio were pretty thoroughly exhausted with the fatigues of travelling. The journey from Ching-tu, West China, occupied nearly three months of continuous and tiring travel. The journey through Central China, to the coast, about a thousand miles, by native slow boat, was especially tedious. The little party, though terribly worn out, are in good health otherwise and will soon recover normal condition in the comfort of a winter in Peterborough.

Wool handbags are the latest novelty and some are ornamented with French knots.

The Roumanians Have Repulsed Invaders at Several Points

TURK OFFENSIVE IN PERSIA IS CHECKED

GERMAN GENERAL WHO LED TROOPS ACROSS ROUMANIAN BORDER GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS

Roumanian Gunners are Called Bad Shots—Infantry Said to Lack Stamina—Men are Good for One Battle Only—Men Recruited in Dobrudja Desert or Surrendered en Masse.

AVIATORS HAD BAD LUCK

BY CYRIL BROWN.

WITH GENERAL VON FALKENHAYN'S ARMY, Somewhere on the Roumanian Front (By Courier to Berlin).—I spent last evening with Lieut. Gen. von ——, who had the distinction of being mentioned in an official German Staff report as leading the first German troops into Transylvania and falling hard on the Roumanians at the Vulcan Pass.

He is a typical Prussian General of great energy and will power and wireless physique, who should bob up again in Roumanian history, as he holds a command of first line importance. He imparted the following odds and ends of pertinent information with running correspondential comment:

"We are going a little slow just now because of the heavy nature of the fighting in the passes. When we are once beyond the passes things will go faster.

"This heaviness had been increased by the year's first snow that had fallen all night. In the morning the Transylvanian Alps were white and beastly cold and unattractive as a threatre of war for war corresponding, yet the Germans say the snow cannot stop them.

"Scenically this is the loveliest battle-ground on any front on which we have fought."

The exhilarating mountain scenery is having a remarkable tonic effect on the veterans of the dreary Russian plains or exhausted Somme fighters for whom the Roumanian campaign is a high vacation. The Transylvanian Alps are proving a sanitarium, where German army corps are recovering from nerve shock incident to Anglo-French and Russian drumfire, a not unimportant factor.

GERMANS FEEL AT HOME.

"We are especially interested because the fighting here is on and for ancient German Kultur soil, tilled by an ancient Teutonic order.

"The German troops are feeling, consequently, very much at home and cheery here in Transylvania, with its clean, trim Saxon towns and villages, with their Germanic women. The Teuton tongue is spoken preponderatingly, and the rock-crested ancient burgs of the Deutschritter are the peers of any castles on them—a rediscovered German Kultur island in a Hungarian-Roumanian sea, now proving a moral asset of concrete military value.

"But lovely mountain scenery is hard to fight. It is surprising, however, what German soldiers can stand. It is an unbelievable hore as in the Carpathians. There is delay, of course, in our artillery Aufmarsch (meaning the bringing up of heavy artillery). Also, reconnoitering is much slower here, because the men have to clamber laboriously up mountain slopes. It takes an artillery observer, for instance, sometimes six hours to climb to an observation point. It is also a difficult country for aerial reconnaissance. Fliers have difficulty, owing to air currents over the valleys, and can only observe when the sun shines directly into the valley, namely, around noon, which is the worst time of day for flying. Not only reconnoitring, but reporting, is slower. Everything goes slower here.

"The Germans have plenty of aviators on the scene and the Roumanians practically nothing in the aviation line, as far as I could observe.

"Roumanian fliers have had bad luck. We've shot down six of them so far. Two others were forced to land and burned up their machines.

"Their wrecks are still visible to war-tourists in a field along the road from Kronstadt to Predeal Pass.

GOOD FOR ONE BATTLE.

"The Roumanian artillery in general is poor, particularly poor at correcting shots. The infantry have fought well, their Jaegers being experienced mountain fighters. The value of their infantry, however, varies. The Roumanians fought particularly well at Gejsterwald, where they stormed twice in our heavy artillery fire. Roumanian infantry could usually stand drumfire once. After that experienced men were good, but the inexperienced couldn't be brought to fight again. As a rule the new Roumanian formations are good for one battle only. We found many Bulgars from Dobrudja in the Roumanian ranks.

"These Dobrudja Bulgars were the finest physical specimens I saw among the Roumanian prisoners, and by general agreement were excellent fighters, but unreliable and prone to desert or surrender en masse to the Germans when hailed as friends and allies.

"We were surprised to find the Roumanians had such poor field fortifications. Curiously, the Roumanians seemed to be afraid to come into Hermannstadt. Apparently they were not prepared to take charge of so large a city. I watched the battle of Hermannsadt from its highest point. It was a unique experience. I was able to see all my troops in action as I directed them. It is not often that a General sees a battle in this war. Kronstadt, too, was a rare battle—like a manoeuvre. It was a joyous battle for us, also, because of bloody Roumanian losses with hardly any on our part. Curiously, I took twenty-five Roumanian guns, including thirteen heavy ones, exactly the number of my casualties."

The General concluded by saying that the Austrian heir to the throne, Archduke Karl Franz Josef, Honorary Commander-in-Chief of this front, had visited him earlier in the day. "A joyous, fresh, firm soldier's nature" characterized the future Austrian Emperor, who appears also to have sense enough not to mix in and try to tell these professionals how to run the offensive.

Several Steamers Sunk During the Past Twenty-four Hours—Austrian Submarine Sunk

MANY LIVES LOST

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Oct. 30. — The steamer "Marina" of Glasgow has been sunk by a submarine, with a possible loss of 70 lives. Of the steamer's crew of 104, only 34 have been landed. A despatch received here to-day declared she was torpedoed without warning.

Reports of the destruction of four other ships have reached London in the past twenty-four hours. They were the Danish steamer "Sif," the Russian three-master "Ingersoll," the Norwegian bark "Regina" and the Greek steamer "Angheliki."

ATHENS, Oct. 30.—Austrian submarine has been sunk off the Epiras coast.

Wheat Market Closed Strong On Saturday

Report to the Effect That British Government Has Taken All the Good Wheat in Sight—Cattle Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A feature which served to strengthen the wheat market materially Saturday was a report from Canada to the effect that the British Government has practically taken all the good wheat in sight. In export circles it was said that a large business was apparently being done under cover in Canadian wheat, but details and amounts were lacking. The export demand for American wheat was quieter, at least little business was reported, and exporters are becoming more and more reluctant about disclosing their operations.

WHEAT PRICES

Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.87 1-2; No. 2 do, $1.84 1-2; No. 3 do, $1.70 1-2; No. 4, $1.70 1-2 ;No. 5, $1.55 1-2;

Flax—No. 1 N.W.C. $2.49, No. 2, C. W., $2.46.

FRESH ADVANCES

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Advancing quotations at Liverpool led to a fresh upturn Saturday in the wheat market here. British cables explained that supplies were insufficient to meet requirements. Besides, offerings were scarce, and there were continued bullish crop advices from Argentina. Opening prices which ranged from 1c to 3c higher, with Dec. at 187 1-2 to 189 3-4, and May at 185 1-2 to 187, were followed by slight further gains and then something of a reaction.

Falkenhayn's Army Has Been Thrown Back By The Roumanians

Teutons Suffered Losses Amounting to 8,000 Men including 4,000 Men Captured by the Roumanian Forces—The Battle is Continuing—News From the Western Front—French Troops Gain New Ground—Famous German Aviator Killed.

BRITISH TROOPS ADVANCE

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Gen. Falkenhayn's army has been thrown back more than three miles by the Roumanians in a battle north of Campolung, on the Transylvanian frontier, with total losses to the Teutons of 8,000, including 4,000 captured. The battle is continuing. The Teutons have been reinforced and are desperately counter attacking.

At nearly every point of the Transylvanian border, the Austro-German invasion seems to have been blocked.

In Dobrudja, Mackensen's pursuit of the retreating Russo-Roumanians continues, the defeated armies retreating toward the bend of the Danube, where strong lines of entrenchments are awaiting them. The Roumanians repulsed the invaders at half a dozen places in Transylvania.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—French troops have gained new ground and captured prisoners. The Germans violently bombarded the Douaumont positions yesterday.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—British troops have captured several important trenches on the Somme front and taken many more prisoners. Several important trenches were captured north-east of Les Boeufs and some prisoners. Capt. Boelke, the famous German aviator, was killed in a fight Saturday.

FINDING A JOB FOR A HALF MAN

By Woods Hutchinson M. D.

The World's Famous Writer on Medical Subjects

In our tuberculosis crusade efforts were made to get kindly disposed employers to take two consumptives for one man's job, letting one of them come on duty during the morning and the other during the afternoon; but they either laughed them to scorn or shook their heads reluctantly, and vaguely but positively assured us that the plan wouldn't work; couldn't be made practical.

Finally we discovered with astonishment and even chagrin that the root of the whole difficulty was that the spirit of industrialism is not the paying of a certain wage for a certain amount of work, but the absolute purchase of the whole of the worker's hours, and then getting out of him as much work as possible in as many hours per day as he can be compelled to work, and at as low wages as he can be driven to take. A survival, in fact, of the old spirit of slavery, just as the labour unions have been telling us for scores of years, only we wouldn't believe them. If it should happen to leak out that a half man or even a whole man could earn a decent living in half or two-thirds of a day, then the bottom would drop out of the system. So we doctors began to join the discontented classes and to kick, yes, to agitate, for shorter hours, better working conditions, and higher pay, because this meant better food, decent housing and intelligent recreation.

Now a new era has dawned, thank heaven, in the industrial world, and we doctors are very proud to think that we may have had something to do with its coming, even if only of hinting at the accomplishment. First, it was discovered that occupations and working conditions which made the workers sicken and break down before their time didn't pay the employer any better in the long run any more than they did the workman in the short. Second, it was discovered that the capacity for improvement and increase of working power in the workman was almost unlimited, certainly indefinite, and what would formerly have been regarded as incredible.

Thirdly, and most interesting of all from a medical and hygiene point of view, one of the most potent ways in increasing the output of a plant was the careful measuring and testing and classifying of the workmen, and changing every man from the type of job that was unsuited to him to the type that fitted his abilities and temperament.

A new profession arose, the specialist efficiency engineer, which the medical profession might long ago to have invented, but it wasn't awake to its opportunities and duties, who makes a specialty of studying, grading and estimating the capabilities and fitness of the different makes of the human motor, and advising its employer accordingly. It sounds incredible, but it is true, that the writer has been assured by a leader in this new profession that he has never yet found a plant, even of the most successful and prosperous and brilliantly up-to-date, which was developing more than two-thirds of its easily possible efficiency, and very often not more than half.

In other words, by carefully working over and redistributing a given factory or business force, without hiring or firing a single man, or changing a single wage, it was possible to add from fifty to seventy-five per cent to the output and industrial capacity. And this was not only no harder, but actually easier for every individual workman, for each was now doing the work that came natural to him, instead of conscientiously striving to master and do well a job which came hard to him, and which utterly failed to fit his natural aptitudes and powers.

Germany Decides Hereafter to Make Skippers Prisoners of War.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—According to a wireless despatch from Zurich today, a German official note announces that, in conformity with article 100 of the German naval code, the German naval authorities have decided to regard as prisoners all captains of merchant vessels captured from the British, French, Russians and Italians, alleging that these captains receive instructions from their respective Governments to carry on espionage.

SURGEONS PLEDGE NOT TO SPLIT FEES

Clinical Congress in Session at Philadelphia Adopts Resolution Denouncing Practice

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—A resolution forbidding its members from engaging in the practice of fee-splitting was adopted by the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America here.

"The practice of division of fees means the buying and selling of sick people. It is the real basis of surgical operations on the part of incompetent men, and of unnecessary operations," declared Dr. John G. Bowman of Chicago, speaking in favour of the resolution. He declared that the practice was almost unknown in Philadelphia and vicinity, but was a "vicious practice" in some parts of the country.

The resolution, which was introduced by Dr. H. L. Snyder of Wamfield, Kan., and unanimously carried, calls upon all surgeons to take the following pledge:

"I hereby declare that I do not and that I will not engage in the practice of the division of fees under any guise whatever; that I neither collect fees for others referring patients to me, nor permit others to collect fees for me, nor make joint fees with physicians or surgeons referring patients to me for operation or consultation."

INSENSIBLE TO PAIN DURING OPERATION

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.— Painless and bloodless surgery by means of a system of nerve blocking and pressure on the arteries was one of the many delicate operations which held the attention today of members of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America in annual session here. Dr. P. G. Skillern, jr., of this city, operating on a subject for the removal of a tumor in the head, demonstrated a method by which the patient, though conscious, was insensible to pain.

The system consisted of blocking or strangling the nerve leading from the brain to the seat of affection with an injection of a drug regarded by surgeons as superior to and safer than cocaine to arrest pain impulses to the brain. The stoppage of blood loss was accomplished by a pressure on the arteries with a metallic clip, sometimes with a rubber band, and frequently by the finger of an assistant.

Further experiments in the transplanting of tendons to correct the after-affects of infantile paralysis formed a part of the clinics today.

Fired On Own Men In Runaway "Tank"

The first British tank that appeared on the Somme front got out of the control of its driver and was destroyed, with its crew, but the British artillery, according to Lieutenant Stephane Lausanne, former editor of the Paris Matin, who arrived on the French liner Lafayette yesterday. The tank was destroyed, M. Lausanne said, to prevent it from falling into the hands of the Germans.

The men apparently lost control of it, he said, and were steering straight for the German lines. To prevent the new war engine from falling into the hands of the enemy it was shelled to pieces by the British gunners with their own countrymen inside of it."

Mr. Lausanne said that the French officers spoke of the sacrifice made in order to keep the secret of the invention, which had cost so much time and trouble, from falling into the hands of the Germans. It was a sad thing to have to do, but there was no help for it, as the men could not be got out of the machine, and therefore they had to perish with it. He heard the cost was about $10,000 for each of the machines.

The sight of the tank coming toward them inspired terror in the minds of the Germans who thought it was some great animal [illegible] from India, and they did not know what to do," he said. When the British artillery destroyed the machine it caused more wonder among the enemy and their officers, according to prisoners captured later, could not make it out at all and were very much worried.

I have heard there are about 100 tanks now on the Somme front. They are not much bigger than the armoured motored cars, but very much more powerful in cars, but very much more powerful in construction. Their caterpillar wheels are hidden underneath so that they cannot be shot away. Each tank carries two machine guns and one Lewis gun. The crew of five men inside cannot be hurt with machine gun fire, as it will not penetrate the armor.

The tanks have a speed of six miles an hour. They are very useful in trench fighting, as they can go right down into the trenches and fire into the Germans without receiving any injury in return. For example, if the artillery has leveled three-quarters of a mile ahead, and the remaining quarter contains trenches which are still held by the Germans, a tank can go over the field, no matter how rough it may be, and wipe out the defenders in a few minutes. One end shows upon that when the caterpillar wheels and the claw chains under the rear of the machine, it is easy for it to climb out again.

CHAPTER XIV.
THE PURSER'S STORY

The announcement so calmly made by Captain Bonnot that the missing purser, whom everyone supposed to be dead and buried, was alive and on board the vessel at that moment, came as an absolute surprise to Richard Duvall.

All his theories of the crime which had been committed aboard the Richelieu were based upon the assumption that the purser was dead.

This new development, so startling in its nature, left him for a few moments unable to speak. New theories of the case began to form themselves rapidly in his mind, only to be as rapidly discarded as he saw their inherent weakness. He resolved to wait until he had heard Vernon's story.

"The news has just been brought to me, monsieur," the captain went on, as the first officer left the room to fetch the ex-purser. "It seems that some of the men at work in the afterhold became alarmed because of a series of mysterious knocks which appeared to come from a small room aft on the lower deck used for the storage of signal rockets, lights, and other explosives.

"The room is seldom entered except for the purpose of getting out material of this sort, for making signals of distress in case of accidents. It has not been opened so far as I know for weeks.

"The men who heard the mysterious knocks were greatly frightened. You know how superstitious sailors are. One of them reported the matter to Mr. Beauregard, who at once went to the room and opened it.

"Inside Mr. Vernon was discovered lying on the floor. Near him was a jug which had contained water, but was then nearly empty, and the remains of a large tin of biscuit. Some other tins, which had once contained potted meats also lay about the floor.

"Mr. Beauregard tells me that the man appears to be well although he is somewhat weak from his long confinement. He came to me and reported the matter at once. That is all that I know at the present time, but we will soon hear the whole story Mr. Vernon's discretion.

"And in what capacity, Captain Bonnot," asked Duvall, "do you wish me to be present at this interview? For many reasons I think it best that M. Vernon should not know my real identity."

"But—why not? He will be as much interested as you are in discovering who is responsible for this outrage."

"Undoubtedly. But I do not wish my reasons for being on board your ship to become generally known."

"I feel sure that we can rely upon Mr. Vernon's discretion."

Duvall considered the question for a moment: "Perhaps it may be just as well" he announced at length. "You may introduce me as M. Lefevre."

In the course of a few moments the first officer reappeared, accompanied by a tall, somewhat heavily built man with a dark mustache and a rather pale complexion.

Duvall regarded him keenly as they were introduced. There was something about the man that seemed to be familiar to him and yet he was unable to say just what it was.

He was dressed in a black sack suit very much wrinkled and soiled but his face was freshly shaven. He appeared to be very weak and at once sank into a chair.

"M. Vernon," remarked Beauregard, as the purser sat down, "has been making himself a little more presentable."

"I see that you have just shaved, monsieur," observed Duvall pleasantly. It must have been very refreshing after so long a time."

"It was, indeed," said the purser. "I am greatly indebted to M. Beauregard for the use of his razor as well as for the clean linen he has been good enough to lend me. I was, I fear, in a frightful state." He gazed ruefully at his soiled and wrinkled clothes.

"Permit me to say," remarked Duvall, studying the man's face carefully, "that you are strikingly like your brother, Mr. Charles Vernon, whom I had the pleasure of meeting on one occasion while in New York."

His words seemed to cause the purser the greatest surprise. "I do not understand you, monsieur," he said. "I have no brother—at least not in America."

"Indeed! Someone has passed himself off in that capacity at the time of your supposed death. A man of much the same build and appearance as yourself, except that he had a short, curly black beard."

Vernon started slightly. "It must have been he," he cried.

"Who?"

"Gentlemen" — the purser looked about him agitatedly—"it is true that I have a brother—a twin brother in fact, whom I have not seen for years. I supposed him to be in France. Do not ask me to accuse him." He seemed on the point of breaking down.

"Tell us the whole story Monsieur," said Captain Bonnot kindly. "Naturally we are very deeply interested."

The purser cleared his throat, and glanced about him in a somewhat confused way. "It is a queer story, gentlemen," he said. "I myself do not know what it means, but I will endeavour to give you the facts. Perhaps M. Lefevre"—he glanced at Duvall and smiled—"may be able to throw some light upon it."

"I will do my best," replied the latter. "Go on."

"Well, gentlemen, the last thing that I remember on the night of this strange occurrence, which I judge to have been seven or eight days ago, was sitting in my office, about one o'clock, figuring up my accounts.

"About an hour before I recollect that someone passed the window and said good night, but I was so absorbed in my work that I did not glance up until he had gone by, so I could not see who it was.

"A little after one there came a tap upon my door. I remember feeling some surprise at this, because those desiring to see me usually present themselves at the office window.

"I put down my account-book and, rising, went to the door and threw it open.

"A man stood without—a short man of about thirty, with blond hair, whom I remembered at once as the young Swiss named Gunther, the attendant of Haussman, the rheumatic passenger from Brussels. He informed me that the latter wished to see me about placing in the safe a valuable piece of jewellery which he had forgotten up to now.

"The attendant informed me that Mr. Haussman was unable to come to me, that he would trust the jewels to no one but myself, and desired that I should come at once to his state-room.

"I put away my account-book, locked up the safe, and accompanied Gunther to his cabin. I thought it queer at the time that Haussman had postponed placing his valuable in my hands until this hour of the night, but put it down to the eccentricities of one who was a sick and crabbed old man.

"I reached the state-room and entered. Gunther came in after me and [illegible] Haussman was lying on his berth, fully dressed. He motioned for me to approach. I did so, when to my surprise he reached out his arms and grasped me by the throat, effectually preventing me from uttering a sound. At the same moment his companion attacked me from behind, seized my arms, drew them behind my back, and tied them with a piece of cord.

"They then gagged me and placed me on the lounge. Haussman proved to be no rheumatic, but a very powerful man of about my own age. It may have been my brother, gentlemen, I do not know. His beard, and the fact that I have not seen him for a long time, would have prevented me from knowing him. I do not wish to accuse my own flesh and blood, but I was struck at the time with his extraordinary resemblance to myself. Undoubtedly he was the [illegible] who appeared as my brother in New York."

"But the man who said he was Mr. Charles Vernon had a short, curly, black beard," remarked Duvall, "while Haussman's was long and straight."

"It might readily have been false, monsieur," said Vernon, "as indeed may have been the larger one he wore when posing as Haussman. The last time I saw my brother he was smooth-shaven. I regret to say," he added hesitatingly, "that he has led a very wild life.

"But to go on with my story. This fellow at once possessed himself of my keys and disappeared from the stateroom for perhaps ten minutes. When he returned he carried with him a package, an envelope sealed with a large green seal, which I at once recognized as the one which had been placed in my care earlier in the day by one of the other passengers, an American by the name of Morris.

"Haussman and his companion busied themselves for some time with this package, but I could not see what they were doing with it. After a while they drew a steamer-trunk from under the berth and took from it two packages done up in brown paper. What they were I did not then know.

"It was then somewhat after two o'clock. I noticed that from time to time the man Gunther opened the stateroom door and peered out into the corridor, as though to determine whether or not any of the watchmen were about.

"After quite a long time they told me to get up. I refused, not knowing what they meant to do with me. I began to struggle. Then the younger man drew a hypodermic needle from his pocket and injected a drug of some sort into my arm.

"Under its influence I fell into a gradually increasing stupor. I no longer resisted. Then they walked me out between them into the corridor and along the deck to a staircase which is not used by passengers and leads to the lower deck aft, where many of the storage rooms of the vessel are located. Both men seemed quite familiar with the interior arrangements of the vessel.

"How they were able to go all this distance, even at three o'clock in the morning, without meeting some one, I cannot imagine. At last they reached the lower deck and went along a narrow corridor upon which opens the room in which I was found. They cut the cords which bound me, removed the gag they had placed in my mouth, and left me lying on the floor. I was so completely overcome by the drug they had given me that I remember this part of the affair indistinctly.

"The next thing I remember was waking up, feeling very sore and ill, in the room used for the storage of explosives. I did not know where I was, of course, when I first regained my senses, but gradually, as I came to, I remembered what had happened.

"It was quite dark when I opened my eyes, and for a long time I could not imagine where I was. Then I managed to strike a match which I had in my pocket, and from the objects which the room contained I saw I was in the storeroom. I also saw on the floor the two packages which Haussman had taken from the trunk in his room.

"One, as I soon discovered, was a small demijohn of water. The other contained some tins of meat and biscuits. Evidently they did not intend that I should starve.

"I immediately began to beat upon the door and make as much noise in every way as I could, but despite my cries for help no one came to my assistance.

(To be continued.)

Killing the Calves—All sorts of excuses are offered for the high price of beef, the most plausible being the alleged demand for veal—"the killing of calves which should be allowed to grow into regular beef." You cannot have beef if you eat it as "veal," but you can have Shredded Wheat Biscuit which contains more real nutriment than beef and costs much less. Shredded wheat biscuit is the whole wheat steam-cooked, shredded and baked. Make it your "meat" for ten days and see how much better you feel. Wholesome and strengthening for any meal with milk or cream or in combination with fruits.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn of constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomachs, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

The glass door saves half the time on bake days

LOOK through the door instead of opening it. The baking is always in sight. Glance at the range as you attend to other work. Now you can feel that you are less tied down to your baking. The clear glass oven-door makes the Pandora of even greater help than it was before.

Somebody has surely told you what a fine range the Pandora is. Among the thousands of friends it has made there must be one who has told you about the sensible ideas for saving time, the fine bakings they get with a small amount of fuel, the way the range withstands the wear and tear that wrecks ordinary ranges.

You already have a good enough opinion of it to investigate it fully, haven't you?

McClary's Pandora Range

The new booklet just off the press, "The Magic of the Pandora," tells everything in an interesting way. You will agree after reading it that no one should make such an important purchase as a range without knowing what is told in this booklet about the Pandora. SOUL AWAKENING

ARISE, O SLEEPER!

Long Sleep of Humanity Soon to be Broken.

The Sleep of Death—God's Call to Arise From the Dead—Sleeping in the Tomb—Sleeping Under Potion Administered by the Adversary—The Soul's Awakening —Responsibility of Parents and Teachers—"High Time to Awake Out of Sleep"—Sleepy Christians.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

San Diego, Oct. 29.—Pastor Russell was in our city to-day and preached a stirring sermon from the text, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give the light!" (Ephesians 5: 14.) He said in part:

The world in general is asleep. In one sense of the word it is dead. As we know, the death sentence passed upon all men because of Adam's sin. (Romans 5:12.) Since that time all of the human family have been going into the tomb; and even those still having a measure of life are spoken of in the Scriptures as "dead in trespasses and sins." (Ephesians 2:1.) But this death sentence resting upon all mankind has been transmuted by the Lord to be a sentence of a period of sleep to be followed by an awakening. God had this arrangement in His glorious Purpose from the beginning, from before mankind came into existence. In the Divine Program our Lord Jesus was the Lamb slain from before the foundation of the world. God purposed the redemption and restitution of mankind. For this reason the Bible refers to the death state as a "sleep."

When God spoke to Moses at the burning bush, He called Himself the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, although these men had long been dead. Our Lord Jesus referred to this statement, and declared that the fact that God so spoke of them when they were dead proved that there is to be a resurrection of the dead. (Luke 20. 37, 38; Exodus 3:6.) He did not say that this proved that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob were not dead, but alive in some other world, but that it proved that they were to be raised from the dead; "for all live unto Him" [God]. In other words, it is God's purpose that all shall yet live (John 5: 28, 29); and He can properly speak from the standpoint of His pre-determined purpose. In both Old and New Testaments death is spoken of as a sleep, because of the redemption and the deliverance from the Adamic death penalty purposed through Christ's sacrificial death on the cross.

An understanding of the Plan of the Ages given in the Scriptures reveals the fact that all mankind will be awakened from the Adamic death state, in order that they may "come to a knowledge of the Truth," which will be made plain to all during the Messianic Reign of our Lord. (1 Timothy 2: 3-6.) This will be the individual enlightenment then brought to all mankind; and the attitude of each toward God's revealed provision for all will determine his case, whether he shall have life everlasting or shall be cast into the death state again. This will be the Second Death—eternal destruction. In the Bible the Second Death is never spoken of as a "sleep." This term is applied only to the Adamic death.

"Awake, Thou That Sleepest!"

Our text applies especially to those who, although still having an existence, are dead in trespasses and sins, who are sleeping so far as the highest interests of their souls, their being, are concerned, those who are under the benumbing influence of the potion administered by the great Adversary. (2 Corinthians 4:4.) Since our Lord's death as the great Sacrifice for sin, the call has gone out in a general way to all who have heard the Gospel Message that they should repent of sin, should arise from their dormant condition, and live in accordance with the purpose for which they were created. To those who heed this Message comes the special Call of the Gospel Age.

The majority of the human family seem to be passing through life in a sort of maze. They are not awake; they seem to be in a dream. As a rule, they are not thinking about the more important things of life, but of the trivialities—what they shall eat, what they shall drink, wherewithal shall they be clothed, where they shall find pleasure or amusement, how they can multiply their dollars. These matters are indeed very trifling compared to the weighty questions—"Why am I living? What was the purpose in my creation? What are my responsibilities to my God and to my fellowmen? What is to be my eternal destiny?"—Matthew 6: 31-33.

In the experience of practically all who have come to the Lord there has been first a soul awakening. Their coming to Him has been preceded by an awakening of their inmost being, their nobler self, a dissatisfaction with the things of this world and a yearning for something that will satisfy, a hungering and thirsting for God. To the one who is beginning to experience this soul-stirring, the words of our text should be especially effective: "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light!" First must come the awakening, the realization of our need, the hungering for God. Then the light will come, as the heart comes into the attitude to receive it.

An Important Crisis in Life.

This thought of the need of an awakening should give us sympathy for those who have never yet heard the voice of the Lord. They need our sympathy. "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear," said our Lord to His disciples. (Matthew 13: 16, 17.) This benediction is for the disciples of Jesus to-day as well as for those to whom the words were directly spoken. These have had the soul-awakening; they see and hear things unknown before—things of incomparable value. A very large number of the poor world of mankind are steeped in sin and degradation. They are living merely for the things of time and sense. They seem to do very little profitable thinking. Although they have heard of God and of Heaven, yet what they heard seemingly has made but little impression upon them.

To some who have lived thus for years there comes a time of awakening. Suddenly, through the experiences of life, they are aroused from their lethargy to a realization that there is something to live for beyond what they have heretofore seen. They come to realise that they are sinners needing a Saviour, that they are helpless and need a Helper. Perhaps they get the right view—that the sentence resting upon fallen man is death. (Genesis 2: 19.) More likely they get the wrong view—that it is eternal torment. But from the moment of their awakening they faced a crisis in their lives. How would they respond? Would they come near to God and receive a blessing? Or would they turn from Him and the voice of conscience, and wander off into greater darkness, greater sin, and thereafter be more difficult to reach than ever before?

In the case of others, however, it was not an awakening to a realization of sin; for from childhood they had been children of the Lord, accustomed to the Bible, the hearing of prayer and the singing of hymns. They were Christians; yet their soul was not really awake. They were going through the form of singing hymns, of reading the Bible and of offering prayer, without thinking seriously of what the words meant. They were asleep, in a sort of somnambulistic condition, so it were, going around in a stupid way, having a form of godliness with little or none of its power.

Then, in the Lord's providence, they were brought to a sudden standstill. They received a mental shock which awoke them out of their torpid condition. They were brought face to face with a crisis in their lives. They saw in just what condition they were. They heard the Call to a higher, nobler life. We well remember when we received this soul-awakening. We were about fifteen years of age at the time.

Suggestions to Parents and Teachers

This time of soul-awakening is an important period in the life of the young. About that time there seems to be a great change in human nature. It is the age when conditions of thoughtfulness are reached, the time when the forces making for spirituality have the most favorable effect upon the youthful mind. This is a thought which parents, guardians, and teachers of youth do well to have before them. By this we do not mean, however, that no special attempt should be made to bring the child to the Lord previous to this time. Quite to the contrary. From birth the child should be trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Indeed, the child's training should begin even earlier than this; for the parental influence upon the mind of the infant during the prenatal period is of the utmost importance and has a decided bearing upon the character in later life.

In speaking of the importance of the period of life at the age of fifteen years or thereabouts, our thought is that at about that time the child mind is sufficiently developed to begin to reach out as never before—to wonder, to question, to see things in a new light, to look beyond the trivial things of the present time, to lose interest in previous childish diversions. Parents and teachers should use much wisdom in dealing with children at this crucial age. They should neither reprove nor seek to check these first stirrings of the mind toward higher, more important things.

It seems somewhat remarkable that at this age children reason with a great deal of accuracy, about as accurately, perhaps, as they will ever reason; but experience seems to show that this is true. It is afterward that their minds frequently become perverted by false reasoning, and their brain power becomes so confused that they do not know how to think or what to think. From their elders they learn deceit, and get improper views of life and its responsibilities. They imbibe erroneous teachings, which are often difficult to unlearn.

Parental Responsibility Very Great.

Strange to say, there are parents —and some of them professedly Christian—who say, "All children must sow their wild oats." How surprising that any parent could so reason! Whoever sows wild oats will reap in kind. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Galatians 6:7.) There is no escape from this inexorable law of nature.

From the first dawn of its understanding the child should be kept very near to the Divine standard. The parents should be able to express to the child in sympathetic terms those qualities of nobility and righteousness which the opening mind is so ready to receive, just as a sponge sucks up water. The child mind is ready to absorb very fully the thoughts which are given to it by sincere parents or by any one in whom it has confidence. But children soon lose confidence in one whom they find to be deceitful, one who tells them untruths.

Children are very quick to note whether the parent is untruthful or unjust. Thus their confidence is destroyed; and in time they learn to deceive others, to practise falsehood and injustice. We regret to say that there are parents who seemingly think it wise and proper to teach their children to be shrewd and "thrifty," as they call it—to take advantage of others and to fib a little. We are sure that all who come to a real knowledge of Divine Truth, and who have imbibed its spirit, will have no such sentiments. Having learned the right way themselves, they will be very desirous that their children and all whom they can influence shall take the same Godlike viewpoint as themselves.

After Awaking, Remain Awake!

Those who have experienced an awakening of soul should be very watchful lest they fall asleep again—drift back into the old worldly ways. After one has awaked in the morning, and his senses have become fully aroused, it is possible for him to turn over and fall asleep once more. Upon a second awakening, however, the energies are sluggish, and the mind is more or less dull and stupid. Upon first awaking after a refreshing sleep, there is a freshness of mind which seems to be lost if one permits himself to doze off again; and perhaps after his second awakening there is a languor or torpidity of feeling for the entire day.

So it is with those that fall asleep again after having been awakened to a realization of the higher and nobler aspirations and enjoyments. Such may be awakened a second time; but if they are, the perceptions of the soul are likely to be less acute, the conscience less sensitive. For this reason we should encourage those who have awakened to arise at once from the dead world and to be separate from those around them who are still asleep.

After one has awakened and begun to arise from the dead world, the soul is in the attitude to receive the light of Heaven. "Christ shall give thee light." "Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart." (Psalm 97:11.) Those who are arising from the dead world are approaching this condition of uprightness. The dead are represented as being prostrate. (1 John 5: 19.) Arising to a standing position represents an entire change of sentiment.

The awakened one should at once seek to know what the Lord desires him to do. He should begin to study the Word of God. There He finds that the Way to God is Christ —the only Way. The path that leads to God is by way of the Cross of Calvary.

In the past many of us made the great mistake of supposing that we became Christians when first we awakened, when first we arose from the dead world about us. But we were merely looking toward Christianity, merely awakening to the fact that there is such a thing as harmony with God and an escape from the condemnation that is upon the world because of sin.

There is still condemnation upon all except those who are in Christ. The Apostle truly says, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." (Romans 8:1.) From the moment we come into Christ we are counted members of His Body, and we lose all condemnation of Adamic death. His sacrificial merit has been imputed to cover all our imperfections, as well as the sins of the past. Arising from the dead, in this sense of the expression, means that we are living the resurrection life, that the new life in Christ is begun in us. (Romans 6:4.) This life will, if we continue in the good way, be completed when we receive our glorious spiritual bodies in the First Resurrection.

From the time that we lose the condemnation of death that came upon mankind through Adam's disobedience, by taking the steps of faith in Jesus as our Redeemer and of full consecration to God through Him, we are again placed on trial for life. The first trial for life was given to Father Adam; and when he failed, condemnation came upon all his posterity. But no one can be tried twice for a capital offense unless in the meantime he has been cleared of the previous condemnation. Therefore no one can have a second trial until he gets from under the condemnation that came through Adam.

Only the Church of Christ is now on trial for life eternal. They are reckoned as having passed from death unto life, but this is a salvation only by hope. They have yet to be proved, to be developed as New Creatures in Christ. They are now on probation. They have entered the School of Christ, to be perfected in character, to be made copies of God's dear Son, who is their great Instructor. They must be prepared for their future work in the Kingdom; for, if they prove faithful even unto death, they will become the teachers of the next Age—instructing, uplifting, encouraging, blessing, the whole world of mankind, who died in Adam and who are to be awakened and dealt with during the incoming Dispensation.

What wonder that we need first to be sent to school, where we shall learn the many lessons necessary to those who would qualify as judges, priests, and kings of the world! What wonder that we need the counsel to keep awake, not to permit sleep again to overtake us. No sleepy Christian will have a place in the Kingdom. God will have only those who are wide-awake, sober, watching unto prayer, keeping close to the cleansing Fountain, going often to the Throne of Grace that any spot upon their pure white robe may be at once removed through the efficacy of the precious blood of their Saviour. Let us, then, see that we become not overcharged with the cares of this world or with the deceitfulness of riches, whether possessed or only sought. If we rightly use the light given us and press onward, every step of our journey will bring an increase of light and an increase of blessing; for "the secret of the Lord is with them that reverence Him."

IS YOUR HEALTH WORTH $5.00?

Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a midwife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."—Mrs. JENNIE MOYER, 342 E. North St., Lima, Ohio.

Women who suffer from displacements, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache or bearing-down pains, need the tonic-strengthening properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

HERE'S NEWS! THE BAGPIPES ARE ENGLISH!

Neither Scotland nor Ireland can claim to have invented the bagpipes. Greeks, Romans, Austrians and Chinese all played bagpipes of sorts long before the time of Christ, and the instrument actually figures on one of the coins of Nero, who may have played it. The Breton bignou, the Calabrian zampogna, the German sackpfeife, and the French cornemuse are all bagpipes under different names.

It was actually a Scotsman, and no less a man than the Lord Advocate of the time, who publicly declared fifty years ago that "the bagpipe is an English instrument, essentially English; the English were the original bagpipers." He pointed out that while Shakespeare often speaks of bagpipes, he never does so in "Macbeth," and that it is in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire that he localizes the pipes. To Chaucer and Spenser also they are English. James IV., and other Scottish kings paid for "Inglis pyparis" at their Court, while Edward I., Edward III., Henry VI., and Henry VIII. seem to have had native pipers. The Highlanders never used the pipes in war before the fifteenth century; the harp was Scotland's instrument.

Mr. Philip Gibbs' stirring description of how the Irish troops made their wild charge at Guillemont, to the music of their pipes reminds us that the Scottish chanter is not the only instrument of the kind that has inspired deeds of valour on to battlefield. If the Irish bagpipes are not so familiar to us as the Scottish, they are close rivals in antiquity, and both races love equally the inspiring strains of their favorite instruments.

The Irish soldier has also yielded to the magic of the bagpipes in war. In 1745, for instance, the Irish Brigade in the service of France, Brigade in the service of France, which included the old Irish Guards of James II., marched on to the field of Fontenoy to the skirl of the pipes. Yet in Ireland herself little was heard of the instrument after the revolution of 1688 until its revival over 30 years ago. The old Irish Volunteers and the old 90th Irish Light Infantry had bands of pipers, but they disappeared, and it is to the militia of Ireland, now known as the Special Reserve, that the Irish soldier is indebted for the restoration of the pipes in its place of honour in the Army.—London Chronicle.

EXCHANGE OF CIVILIANS.

Text of the Agreement Between Britain and Germany.

BERLIN, Oct. 27.—Details of the agreement reached between Germany and Great Britain for the exchange of all German and English civilian prisoners detained in Britain or Germany or their possessions, and who are more than 45 years of age, are printed in the semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

The newspaper adds: "It is further agreed that younger prisoners shall be exchanged as soon as they reach the age of 45. Both countries, however, are authorized to except from this exchange persons of the age mentioned if military reasons warrant. This amendment was added by Great Britain and accepted by Germany in order not to compromise the whole agreement.

"Germany first had suggested that all civil prisoners in both countries be released and sent home and a promise given that the exchanged civil prisoners would not be admitted into the respective armies. This was declined by Great Britain. Germany then proposed to exchange all civil prisoners older than 45 years without exception, to which Great Britain only agreed after the foregoing amendment had been added."

GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE WILL BE CHANGED BY WAR

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The remoulding of French political methods after the war, resulting in a concentration of government, is predicted by Premier Briand, according to a conversation the Premier has had with friends, which is recapitualted in the Figaro, by Alfred Capus, the dramatist and member of the French Academy.

M. Capus quotes the Premier as saying:

"I do not pretend to do more than sketch the main outline. As the result of lessons which it cannot escape, I believe our country will resume instinctively the habit of direct council and authority.

"There will be this difference that, while under past regimes, this authority was imposed upon its historically and by custom, today it is the country itself which commands it from its elected representative as well as a more firm and concentrated direction of its business.

"You understand I am not speaking for myself. I am thinking of the next group of politicians who will be in power. They are bound to come on the scene with a fresh outlook, and, less bound by opinions and doctrines, will submit themselves more easily to experience.

"Our present political methods are not at all damaged by the war. They simply require to be revised, remoulded and re-adapted. I am convinced, for example, that the spirit born of the war is about to clash with the spirit of parochialism, and that it will break it.

"There will be substituted the notion of public welfare, which has been lost in what one might call the pulverization of efforts. What will be wanted will be the concentration of efforts in the general interest.

"In my opinion the need of to-morrow was to concentrate instead of disperse, and you cannot imagine with what good will universal suffrage will accept these principles. I believe it is ready to do so now.

"The war has put it in a state of receptivity and it remains only to speak to it clearly and frankly and to awaken it to a realization of its own condition."

What France Has Gained.

Speaking of the actual situation, Premier Briand said:

"I simply ask you to consider what has already been gained and what no hazard of war can take from us. Compare what France and Paris were in July, 1914, with what they are in October, 1916.

"The truth is that we were not decadent, but that a new generation had sprung up more sensible, perhaps, to reminders of defeat; more nervous, more impatient, than those which had preceded it. German insolence had contributed a great deal to this state of mind. And as one, nevertheless, dared not to think of war, there resulted a continual conflict between exalted imaginations and humdrum routine politics.

"It was a kind of moral confusion, which manifested itself by an acute need for distraction, by a violent desire for the new, the unexpected.

"No, again, it was not decadence, it was rather anger driven inward — the old insult revived bluntly in the mind by incessant provocation. And then we felt that the world did not appreciate us at our just value, and that irritated and hurt us.

"A nation seen from without has a general aspect to which all its citizens contribute. It is that aspect which a foreigner sees, and upon which he forms his opinion. Well, our aspect was not in our favour, and that was because it was not truly ours.

All Influences Reconquered.

"It was distorted by an old defeat, and the truth is that the day the defeat was wiped out, when France showed by unheard of heroism that she meant to throw off the obsession —on that day suddenly all peoples by common agreement recognized their error as regards us, and the prestige of France has become again extraordinary — greater than it has ever been at any epoch.

"In regaining our individuality as a nation we have reconquered at a blow all our influences, all our attractions. That is what we have gained, and nothing can affect it. That is the moral work accomplished in these two years, not to speak of the rest.

"The consequences are incalculable. They will affect all of us, our advantages as citizens as much as our individual property.

"They will affect labour, commerce, the arts of luxury.

"The completion of the task, the crowning of it by victory, is well worth taking time and patience over. And if that victory is hard to win, it is precisely on account of its richness and of what must be wrested from the enemy before it can be completed.

"For more depends upon it—a free existence, prosperity, social progress, a republic powerful and unchallenged."

FARTHING FOR A LIBEL.

London Hotel Proprietor Was Accused of Being Pro-German.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Sir Henry Lunn, tourist agent and hotel proprietor, has won a verdict of a farthing from the London Morning Post in an amusing action for libel.

The Post published a despatch from Berne which erroneously stated that Sir Henry had been arrested at Portarliar for speaking at a pro-German peace meeting at Berne, and Sir Henry at once brought the libel action and won his farthing.

In trying the action Justice Darling said: "It is obvious from Sir Henry's speeches in 1910 that he disagreed with our foreign policy. Sir Henry was deluded and he readily admitted it."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S APRON.

By Anabel Worthington.

7,944

Another "worth while" design is this one which has the bib and apron sections joined to the belt without fulness; the strings stitched to the belt at the sides are "bowed" at the back.

The separate revers stitched to the fronts of the bib revive a style of some years ago; they are a welcome feature of this design. The bib ends cross over the front shoulders and are rounded to the neck at back without a crease, buttoning at the centre. This is a feature that will appeal because it has so much to do with the trim effect of the front.

A pocket with the fashionable gathered top is another detail to claim attention. Edging is used to advantage in finishing the apron sides and lower edge, as well as the bib and revers; scalloping is also pretty. For light work, like serving and dusting, this is a very desirable style of apron.

Materials to be thought of as best for developing are lawn, sateen, crossbar and fabrics not ordinarily used for kitchen aprons.

The pattern of No. 7,944 is cut in one size only. To make it will require 1¼ yards 36 inch material and 2¾ yards edging.

You may obtain the pattern by sending [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

HIGH PRICES AFTER PEACE.

Living Will be Much More Expensive at End of War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—A tremendous leap in the cost of living, coincident with a slump in the demand for labour, will follow peace in Europe, a Government trade expert declares. He also predicts higher prices and less work than the country has ever known. This condition, he declares, will be brought about through an enormously increased demand for raw products, particularly foodstuffs, in Europe, and an almost complete cessation of demand for manufactured products. Europe will have to be restocked and the great body of European labour furnished with material to turn into manufactures with which to re-enter the world's markets.

COMMON LABOUR SHORTAGE.

American Employers Are Hard Pressed to Get on.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Chicago faces a famine in common labour, according to the Illinois State Employment Agency, and Canal street, near Madison, one of the greatest markets for common labour in the United States is slowly being deserted by employment agents, who for years congregated in that locality.

Instead of men paying for positions, it turns said to-day, railroads and other big employers are hiring agents who go out and search for men.

Love Notes to Lonely Soldiers Traps Set By Spies

LONDON, Oct. 27. — The official press bureau has announced that, in future, no newspaper shall print advertisements of "lonely soldiers, or love-torn ladies who wish to correspond with them.

The reason is the fear that numerous women, even though they are of British birth, are being employed by the German Government to correspond with "lonely soldiers" and under the guise of courtship lay themselves out to "obtain information calculated to be of use to the enemy."

The idea of forming guilds of leisured women to correspond with "lonely soldiers at the front," originated in the bra... of Lord Northcliffe. His principal papers, the Times, the Daily Mail, and the Evening News, boomed the idea and "Correspondence Guilds" spread with the rapidity of wildfire all over Great Britain. The idea has long been popular in France.

Titled ladies and clergymen's wives religious spinsters and sentimental servant girls combined to write cheering letters from home' to the lonely fighting men in the trenches. Naturally enough, a large proportion of the 1,300,000 single women of marriageable age in Britain saw through the medium of letter-writing an opportunity of catching 'Tommy' for a husband directly the war was over.

Photographs were exchanged and it is no exaggeration to state that thousands of engagements have resulted through lonely soldiers and young women becoming known to each other in this manner. The leading papers devoted columns to this craze and no one doubts the good intentions and philanthropic motives of its originators.

Other papers of large circulation, seeing what an excellent thing the "lonely soldier" correspondence craze was to boost sales, took up the idea and announced that they would accept advertisements from friendless Tommies. They were soon snowed under by the rush of advertisers in the British Army who desired letters and wives.

Here are some typical advertisements of the description the press bureau has just prohibited. They are taken from London Life, which has a very large circulation among soldiers, factory girls and servants. A page was devoted to these advertisements under the heading of "Introductions." A charge of 6d cents is made for each insertion and all answers received were forwarded to the advertiser.

"Friendless soldier would much like some nice girl to write to him. Being without friends feels awfully lonely, and would much appreciate cheerful letters. (Box A-99").

"Young N. C. O. (19), well educated would like to meet pretty, cheerful girls; medium height, good figure, one fond of fun and gaiety. London or Kent. View to matrimony. Enclose photo to Sergeant, Box A. 100.

"Young naval mechanic wishes to correspond with young lady from 18 to 22 years of age. Am prepared to exchange photos. Complexion fair for preference. View to matrimony. (Box A 102").

On an average between two and three thousand answers were received by each of the above and hundreds of other similar advertisements. This seems to show that the British Isles are happy hunting ground for men on matrimony bent.

Of course, not all the answers were serious. Many were written in sport, but a very large number express pathetic affection for the "dream man" the writers have never seen.

Many of the soldiers were doubtless as sentimental and lovesick as their fair correspondents. It is quite conceivable that women may have been obtaining valuable information to promote the destruction of the simple-minded soldiers under the guise of love and courtship. Hence the action of the press bureau.

IMPLANTS NEW NERVES.

Pennsylvania Doctor Shows Success in Aiding Animals.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—A remarkable demonstration in nerve implantation, which surgeons say may result in restoring to usefulness paralyzed limbs of thousands of infantile paralysis victims, was given on Thursday by Dr. A. B. Gill at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School at the clinical congress of surgeons convening here.

Dr. Gill used as his subjects dogs, rabbits, and guinea pigs suffering from paralysis of the legs. He implanted hundreds of new nerves into the paralyzed muscles. These nerves, he said, would soon take root in the muscles tissue and connect with the general nervous system, restoring feeling and animation to the paralyzed parts. He exhibited several animals upon which nerve implantation tests were performed some time ago. In all cases feeling and animation had been restored.

A dog saved a woman from a fire. That may be more than her husband would have done.

Telephone Courtesy is Growing in Favor.

Newspapers and periodicals, which reflect so well the trend of public opinion, are continually urging the practice of telephone courtesy.

Progressive merchants are studying its relation to their sales. Employees are being trained to treat telephone callers with the same degree of courtesy and consideration that obtains in a face-to-face conversation.

And the result for those who practice telephone courtesy faithfully is a constantly growing volume of telephone trade and good-will.

The encouragement you give to your employees in developing pleasing telephone manners will bear fruit in the promotion of good-will amongst your customers.

ROUMANIANS CHECK THE ENEMY ADVANCE

FRENCH TROOPS SCORE ON THE SOMME FRONT

Berlin Admits Reverses On Eastern And Western Fronts

Roumanians Pushed Back German Column While Allies Were Successful in Advance Between Les Boeufs and Norval Says To-day's Enemy Station---British Make Successful Raid on Two Points on Western Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

BERLIN, October 30.—South of Szurduck Pass the Roumanians pushed back one of our side columns, the War Office stated this afternoon. The official statement says: "North of the Somme many places were under hostile fire to which we strongly responded. The enemy during an attack from the line of Les Boeufs to Morval enlarged his place of entry into our most advanced trench east of Les Boeufs southward for a small extension."

PARIS (French Official Communique), October 30.—French troops captured German trenches northwest of Sailly in a renewal of attack north of the Somme last night, reaching the outskirts of the strongly fortified church held by the Teutons, it was officially announced to-day. South of the river the Germans attacked Biaches and Maisonette Farm, after a most intense bombardment. They were repulsed on a parge part of the front, but succeeded in penetrating Maisonette Farm. On the Verdun front only artillery engagements were reported.

LONDON, October 30.—British detachments conducted two successful raids last night on enemy trenches west of Wylichaete and east of Boesinghe, taking prisoners and damaging enemy works, it was officially announced to-day. Enmy working parties in the neighbourhood of LaBassee Canal were bombarded.

MORE CANADIANS HAVE ARRIVED SAFELY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, October 30.—It is officially announced that the 156th, 156th, 157th and 160th Ontario battalions, the balance of the 166th and part of the 169th have arrived safely in England; also drafts for the Strathcona Horse, 9th Battalion, and nurses and doctors for the Medical Corps.

SUBMARINE SITUATION STILL VERY ACCUTE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 30.—The situation between Norway and Germany is still acute. While negotiations for the settlement of the submarine issue are going on at the Norwegian capital, German submarines have practically established a blockade of the Norwegian coast and are sinking Norwegian shipping at a rapid rate. Since the beginning of the war Norway has lost one-seventh of her entire shipping, largely through German submarines. She has lost more proportionately in tonnage than Britain herself has.

Says French General is Now in Command

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 30.—Berlin wireless says that the French General Bertholet has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Roumanian army with the Russian General Bialayex as his assistant. French newspapers reported.

Marina Was Sunk Without Any Warning

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, October 30.—The American Consul at Queenstown to-day telegraphed that the Marina was sunk without warning by gun fire Saturday afternoon. Several Americans are believed among her crew. A wireless from Rockhaven said that the Marina's crew was aboard a patrol boat, but made no mention of the probable casualties. The Marina was a British steel screw steamer of 5,204 tons, built in 1900 and owned by the Donaldson Line.

WASHINGTON, October 30.—In fixing the blame for the destruction of the steamer Marina with American lives, it will be necessary to determine the character of its charter. Some of the horse ships which have been plying between the United States and England have been under direct or indirect charter for the time being of Admiralty vessels, and are subject to attack charter for the time being of Admiralty vessels, and are subject to attack without warning. These questions must be settled before it can be determined whether the sinking of the Marina may again raise the submarine issue between the United States and Germany. Consul Frost also cabled today the Furness freighter Rowanmore, Baltimore to Liverpool, was attacked by a German submarine and sunk while attempting to escape. Two Americans and five Filipinos, his cable said, were aboard.

Smith Gives $1700 For British Red Cross

At a special meeting of the Council of the Township of Smith, held in the Clerk's Office on Saturday night it was decided to levy a one-mill rate in 1917 and the proceeds forwarded to the British Red Cross. The amount will be about $1,700.

NEWS OMITTED

The Examiner regrets that, owing to an accident to-day to the motor operating the linotype machines, a large amount of local news has had to be omitted from this issue.

Mrs. Plumptre's Address On Red Cross To-night

Mrs. Plumptre of Toronto comes to Peterborough to speak this evening in the Collegiate Hall, on the invitation of the local branch of the Red Cross Society. Mrs. Plumptre is Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and no one in Canada is better qualified to speak as to the work the Society has accomplished, as she is in direct and constant touch with Red Cross work on all the battle-fronts. Mrs. Plumptre will also speak in regard to the present requirements of our sick and wounded men, and of the urgent needs of the moment. It is specially desired that all the workers in the Auxillaries and the Societies be present to hear Mrs. Plumptre, as she speaks with authority as to present requirements, for in these days of intense strain it is well not to waste our energies in the making of articles no longer required. A cordial invitation is also extended to all the Society's subscribers and to everyone interested in this great and humane work. Miss Dorothy Allan, Miss Helen McLaren, Mr. Arthur Milton and Mr. John Allan will contribute to the musical programme. Admission free.

BOTH SIDES ARE CONFIDENT

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—At the opening to-day of a sizzling home-stretch of the Presidential campaign, both sides claimed victory on November 7th.

To-day found Hughes paying his second visit to the Ohio battle-ground, while President Wilson prepared to leave to-morrow for Buffalo and then swing into the Metropolis Thursday.

A flood of betting money was offered to commissioners to-day, while an uptown hotel reported that one wager of $1,000 to $800 on Wilson has been made there, the first time that odds have been given here on the President.

The commissioners thought that the first betting, this week, however, would be at even or 10 to 9 on Hughes.

SPECTACULAR DRAMA AT THE ROYAL

The nine reel drama, "An Alien" has been secured for the Royal Theatre and will be shown to-night. This will be another treat for theatre-goers. This beautiful story, as reproduced, is one of the best of the films yet shown. The incidents and features are of intence interest and have made it one of the most spectacular plays ever produced by the Famous Players' Film Service. The culmination is a happy one, and Mr. George Behan as the star, has the assistance of a staff of artistic players.

Several specially humorous comedies will also be given to-night. Prices 10c as usual.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The George St. Epworth League will hold a Hallowe'en party on Monday, October 30, in the George St. Methodist Sunday School. An excellent programme will be furnished including music, ghost stories, and witches. Refreshments will be given and there will be a sale of home-made candy. Admission 15c. 2d-30

1,500 Soldiers Are Returning to Canada

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, October 30.—Fifteen hundred returned soldiers are shortly to reach Canada, and of this number nearly 1,200 are sufferers from rheumatism troubles contracted in the trenches of France. These men were cured in England after the first seizure and returned to the trenches, but within a week after re-entering the trenches their condition became more chronic than before and disabled them for further duty. They are now being sent back to Canada as unfit for further service. The military hospitals commission has secured accommodation for the min sanitariums throughout Canada in connection with mineral springs.

Another Member Of 93rd Battalion Is On The Wounded List

Pte. Samuel Louis Lowe the Seventeenth Casualty in the Peterboro' Battalion--A Number of 93rd Officers May Return Home About the New Year---News of the 247th ---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Another member of the 93rd Battalion is reported wounded in to-day's list, in the person of Pte. Samuel Louis Lowe, whose name appears among the casualties reported from Ottawa. Pte. Lowe enlisted with the 93rd, went to Barriefield and went overseas with the Battalion, afterwards transferring to the Mounted Rifles, with the first draft from the 93rd. His next of kin resides in England.

SERGT. MAJOR DODDS

Sergt. Major H. Dodds of the 35th Reserve Battalion is in Peterborough on furlough from England.

Daily Orders.

Orders by Major W. D. Johnston, 247th Battalion, C.E.F., for Tuesday, Oct. 31st, 1916:

1. Parade. All officers, N.C.O.'s and men except those specially employed with parade in the Drill Hall, Armouries, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

2. Strength Taken On. Lieut. J. F. Strickland is appointed temporarily to the 247th Battalion, with effect from Oct. 29, 1916, with pay and allowances from that date. Pte. Lawrence Stanley Bustow is taken on the strength from this date, posted to A Company, and assigned No. 1063038.

3. Allotment of Officers. For the present all officers, N.C.O.'s and men, except the regimental staff and those specially employed, will be allotted to A Company.

4. Officers' Lounging Room. The canteen room has been fitted as a lounging room for officers. In future no one will be allowed in the orderly room except on business.

5. Duties. Orderly officer for Tuesday, Lieut. S. J. Dunsford. Next for duty, Lieut. A. H. Cameron.

6. Leave. O.R.C., J. H. Miller is granted leave of absence from 5 p.m. Oct. 28, to 12 noon, Nov. 1st.

7. Note. District Orders No. 734 Oct. 3, 1916. Since inquiries are received at Militia Headquarters from time to time from relatives of Canadian prisoners of war in Germany with respect to the method by which clothing may be forwarded to them, it is published for the information of all concerned, that there is a committee of Canadians living in London, Eng., who supply the necessary clothing, etc., to prisoners of war in Germany.

Relatives and friends of these prisoners of war should give notice of the number and name of the prisoner, the unit of the expeditionary force to which he belongs, together with the place of internment, and give particulars of requirements to this committee, when the need of our prisoners of war will receive prompt attention. All communications should be sent to Mrs. Rivers-Bulkely, care of Red Cross Society, 14-16 Cockspur Street, London, S.W., Eng.

R. B. Brooks, Lieut.,
Acting Adjutant, 247th Batt., C.E.F.

The Belleville Ontario says: The air is thick with rumours about the possible removal of the 235th Battalion to some other centre. As far as The Ontario has been able to learn it is now probable that the battalion will remain in Belleville. It is definitely known that an engineer of the Militia Department was in Cobourg yesterday looking over quarters there where troops might be accommodated. An order that was sent to Bowmanville yesterday for the removal of stores to Belleville was countermanded in the afternoon. Other preparations that were actively under way for the establishment of winter quarters here have been suspended.

The 235th received definite orders to come to Belleville and go into winter quarters.

Who is responsible for the change, if change there is to be?

The Ontario has made inquiry of Mayor Ketcheson, Mr. W. B. Northrup, M.P., and a number of the local militia officers and to them all the mix-up appears to be a profound mystery.

Major Allen, whose name has been prominently mentioned in connection with the organization of a new battalion, when seen by The Ontario this morning emphatically stated that he had no knowledge of the reason back of the rumoured change of plans. For his own part he welcomed the 235th to Belleville and believed their presence here would be a great help in recruiting if a new battalion were authorized.

The officers and men of the 235th are almost a unit in their desire to remain in Belleville. They were very enthusiastic over the welcome that has been extended to them and are delighted with the comfortable quarters that have been provided.

It is a mean insult to these men to be treating them like a herd of cattle from pasture to pasture to suit expediency rather than economy or decency.

The people will sooner or later find out who is to blame, if this threatened scheme is carried out, and when they do somebody will have a first-class row on their hands.

OFFICERS TO RETURN.

The Examiner is informed on good authority that a large number of these officers now in England will complete their knowledge of the war situation by going on an inspection tour to the front, after which they will return to Canada and to the localities from which they originally departed to assist in recruiting and training more troops for the war zone. The steady progress of the Allies only requires further reinforcements to expedite its ultimate success, and this being the case, it is understood that Canada will avail herself of the help of those officers whose presence is not required in England, and who are not young enough to stand the rigors of the firing line. Their experience before returning will lack nothing in its value to recruiting in Canada but will be of great, practical aid in helping to keep up the supply of trained men which will be needed for some time to come. This being the case it is expected that officers of the 93rd, over the age limit, will return by, perhaps, the New Year, and devote themselves to assisting those established here in carrying on their work.

Young men desiring to enlist in the medical services now have a chance to do so by joining the Queen's University Field Ambulance, which is the recruiting centre for the medical services in the 3rd Military District, and is now recruiting in this city.

Several well-known Peterborough fellows are in the first draft by this unit overseas, and are now on their way to England. Drafts are to follow every month, and men joining Bandsmen Suggest that They Would be of More Value Recruiting For New Battalion Than Doing Nothing in England.

MATTER WILL BE TAKEN UP.

The Examiner has received a communication from the band of the 93rd Battalion, asking the Examiner to lay before the Speakers' Patriotic League with a view to starting a movement for the return of the band to Peterborough. They point out that if they are going to be sent to the front they would be of more use helping to recruit the new battalion in Peterborough than to remain on fatigue work in England. They have the instruments presented to them by the citizens and $300 worth of music, and by their returning to this city would avoid a duplication of these expenses in connection with the new battalion. The matter has already been taken up with the military authorities in England.

SAYS THE UNITED STATES IS LIVING IN FOOLS PARADISE

Ex-president Taft Says Wilson's Ability to Write a Note Well and Deem Incident Closed, Has Exposed Nation to Ridicule.

A SLASHING INDICTMENT

Examiner Special:

MARSHALL, Mich., Oct. 30.—Spreading out the whole administration record here to-day, ex-President Taft preached that America's present prosperity is evervescent, attacked the Adamson eight-hour bill, the President's foreign policy and his domestic course. He declared the nation now is "living in a fool's paradise," and that prosperity must vanish after the European war, when the warrior again become workers.

Declaring "Mr. Wilson's policy in Mexico should defeat him for the Presidency," Taft attacked the administration's foreign polity in general, adding "the process of the administration to write a note well and appropriately appraised, and to deem the incident closed has exposed the nation to ridicule."

PTE. HAGGART RETURNS TO-NIGHT

Pte. Fred Haggart, son of Mr. Jas. E. Haggart, Lock street, will arrive in Peterborough to-night on the local C.P.R. train. Pte. Haggart who enlisted in Vancouver has lost an arm as the result of injuries at the front. He passed through Peterborough on the early C.P.R. train this morning, having to go to Toronto to report before coming back to Peterborough.

TWILIGHT MUSICALE A GREAT SUCCESS

First of the Season Opened Saturday Afternoon in the Conservatory of Music

Despite the fact that there were no less than four important attractions Saturday afternoon, there was a good turn out at the Conservatory of Music to hear Mr. Russell G. McLean, the well-known baritone of Toronto and the Peterborough Conservatory orchestra. The orchestra was heard to advantage in their various selections displaying precision in their attacks and in their general ensemble they showed careful training and were warmly received in all their numbers.

Mr. Russell G. McLean won a place for himself in the hearts of the audience by his excellent singing and genial manner—he has long been recognised by Toronto audiences as a genuine artist whose recitals are looked forward to by the music-loving public.

Mr. McLean is certainly an artist who gives to his audience the best that is in him—and that best was a treat to cosmopolitan Peterborough. The audience seemed to be drawn to the singer from his first number, double encores being the order of the afternoon. It is not necessary to go into detail, although "the pipes of the Gordons' men" of Hammond is deserving of a word. The gay spirit of the departing Highland lad and the sad homecoming, will remain long in the minds of those who heard it. "Uncle Rome" by Homer was spoken of by many as a delightful number in fact the programme throughout, which was well chosen and varied, was heartily enjoyed and received.

Mrs. Newton Magwood played the accompaniments with fine taste and effect.

Mr. McLean also sang, "It is Enough" from Elijah and "Flee as a Bird" of Dana in Trinity church last night adding greatly to the dignity and pleasure of the service.

COL. GUTHRIE MAY COME HERE SUNDAY

Col. Guthrie, who made a deep impression in the Bonne Entente trip to Quebec, will likely speak at a recruiting meeting here on Sunday night in the Armouries. The arrangements are at present under way.

AVOIDING WASTE OF EFFORT.

Apart from the intrinsic importance of the subject and the ability of the speaker, the address of Mrs. Plumtre to-night in the Collegiate Hall, is worthy of special interest to Red Cross workers. We have scores of women in the city, working day and night, almost seven days of the week, in the interests of the Red Cross and Mrs. Plumptre's address can not, eloquent and appealing as it may be, heighten their spirit of loyalty, industry and energy, though it may awaken new public interest in the cause of helping in their work these devoted and self sacrificing women. But there is much that our Red Cross women can learn in the way of wise direction of their energies; the way of avoiding overlapping in the directing of their work to the most urgently needed articles, so that there will not be a good deal of wasted energy upon providing a form of supplies not presently greatly needed, to the danger of neglecting articles for which there is insistently urgent demand. In this view, it is desirable that auxiliary workers who are coope rating with the local branch of the Red Cross should be present in order to learn from one of the best authorities, to avoid misdirection of excellent energy and waste of noble effort.

LACK OF REVERENCE.

The Examiner is informed that in one of the rooms of a public school in this city it is the custom of the teacher in charge to allow the pupils to remain seated while singing the National Anthem, which very properly, especially at this time, is a daily feature of school routine. Allowing children to assume this attitude while uttering a great prayer, whose significance extends far beyond the personality of the sovereign prayed for, is a reprehensible practice for many reasons. It shows and, indeed, expresses, a lack of respect for the person of the sovereign, and involves lack of reverence for sacred things; it antagonizes the conventions of society and social and public gatherings when the first bars of the national anthem are the signal for rising to the feet.

It may be held a small matter, be held as cavilling, to object to school children, while singing the national hymn, being allowed to loll in their seats at an easy position, that of ease, as suggests indifference and imperfect conception of the solemnity of their action, and a forgetfulness of the spirit involved. It has often been said that reverence for the Divine is the very basis of religion, and, therefore, every action and attitude that can be, and is, associated with the idea of reverence—courtesy, politeness, deference to hallowed custom—are essentially, and in spirit, if the right spirit animates, an act of religion. It is principles that we want to implant in the receptive minds of children, and incorporate into their character. We have Scriptural warrant for regarding acts of reverence as a divine duty. The chief of the apostles, St. Peter, condenses this doctrine into a few pregnant words "Honour all men, fear God, honour the King." Here courtesy and reverential demeanour are commanded. Is it honouring the king to sit at ease, in an indifferent attitude, while fastening a prayer that rings round the world, in some place, every hour of the day? If what is thus considered the small things of religion—respect the twin brother of reverence and reverence the fundamental of religion—are disregarded, the steps are made easy to disregard of higher things. While outward forms of respect and reverence are not religion, their importance and significance are expressed in the fact that no truly religious man or woman is irreverent, or disrespectful, or discourteous.

This is a breathing age, a democratic age, and the democracy that recognizes the rights of "the common people," the masses, is not relieved of the duties that religion, society, and patriotism demand — reverence of God, respect for superiors in position or authority, or respect for our elders and the graces of politeness and courtesy. We all admire a well-behaved, polite, respectful and modest child—a rara avis these days—and honour its parents or teachers. The school has a large place and part in teaching reverence, respect and politeness, but allowing school children to sit stolidly in their seats while the National Anthem is sung, or prayers said, is not to be regarded as a becoming regard of the duty to care for, and develop, the ethical side of the child concurrently with filling its head with human knowledge. The divine is greater than the human.

WE CAN'T COMPLAIN

With butter edging its way eagerly to the 50-cents-a-pound point; with eggs an energetic and dangerous second; with the price of bread jealously emulous of its honours, and with the price of every eating commodity (to our view) outrageously rising, we think we are hardly dealt with. But upon sober thought, upon comparison with the way in which sacrifices and sufferings come to other countries, we can see that we are comparatively making no sacrifice what ever—suffering no hardships.

We know nothing of the stress and strain, the intense enthusiasm and concentration of effort and sacrifice, the surrender of mind and muscle and means to the successful waging of the war that obtains in the Mother Country. We know nothing of the sufferings and deprivation of ravaged Belgium, sore scourged Poland, devastated Serbia and slaughtered Armenia.

With the high prices prevailing we have no want; we do not have to hear our children hopelessly cry for bread. We have plenty. With high prices we have abundance of highly—if not quite so highly-priced employment; and mighty few of us know what it is to economize at our tables or in our homes, though a little economy might be good for us.

The doctors tell us that, as a people, we eat too much—eat too rich foods. If high prices lead us to take the doctors' advice it will be the better for us and not be a hard thing to do, except perhaps in breaking the slavery to custom and habit. For instance, we all eat butter, though in many families of thrifty tendencies jam takes the place of butter, and even "dripping," which every housewife knows—though few of us know it by practical use. We are so accustomed to butter as an indispensible accompaniment of bread that we cannot conceive the possibility of doing without it, or adopting so porcine and prosaic a substitute as "dripping." Our tastes are inherited, habitual or acquired, and we might easily, if high prices drive us to it, acquire other and less expensive tastes. For instance, we know of a family in this city where the English nurse of a little boy trained him to eat butter and with such success that the little fellow, though he had access to the abundance of a well-spread table, actually preferred the "dripping" to butter. This is not mentioned as an injunction to save on the butter bill, but to illustrate the fact that if high prices force us to economy; to change the articles of our bills-of-fare, such a menu, of it as butter—at present the most prominent bogie—we can do so without suffering much hardship.

But we need not have recourse to such a drastic measure as that. We can, with advantage, make big reduction by applying measures of economy widely—distributing them over the whole field of our living expenditures. We can retrench here and there, and suffer little inconvenience and no hardship fit to be called hardship in comparison with what others are suffering. We are unfortunately retrenching in the matter of recruiting, and though that is a bad example, we can far better afford other economies. We must not too much complain of the high cost of living. We must put the soft pedal upon our song of hard times. We have no hard times. We have good times, and taking the good with the bad, we should, in the face of the sacrifices and sufferings of others, be ashamed to complain.

GERMAN IDEAS OF "NEGOTIATIONS."

The Germans are now affording a choice example of the kind of peace that the world might expect if they were to win this war. A diplomatic question has arisen between Germany and Norway, and negotiations are being conducted on the matter. Coincident with these negotiations Germany has sent submarines to Norwegian waters and is actually sinking every Norwegian vessel sighted, in many cases without the slightest regard for human life. This is the German method of conducting diplomatic negotiations with a country with which they are at peace. It is one more argument why the military power of the Huns must be smashed beyond repair.—Montreal Herald.

AN INTERESTING MISSIONARY SERMON BY REV. J. P. WILSON

More Money is Spent For Golf Balls in One Year Than the Whole World Gives For Missions—"We Wonder Why This War Has Come and Why We Are Learning To Give" Said the Speaker—A Yellow Peril

In the seventeenth century Germany overthrew Rome; but in the eighteenth century Germany overthrew Galilee, and it is no wonder that Germany to-day looks to the Turk as her natural ally.

The world to-day is spending $125,000,000 daily for the conduct of the war. The whole world gives but $25,000,000 yearly to missions. The bank interest for six months on the money in Canadian banks would support all the missionaries in the foreign field for years. More money is spent for golf balls in one year than the whole world gives for missions. And we wonder why this war has come and why we are learning to give.

Last year, in spite of the sorrow and sacrifice and great expenditure owing to the war, the Methodist church in Canada gave to missions $661,000, $30,000 more than ever before.

The church of to-day is working under a spirit the like of which has never rested upon it since the days of the apostles. We have adopted schemes for the advancement of the church which a hundred years ago would have seemed Utopian and visionary. A short time ago our missions consisted of scattered parishes in foreign lands, while to-day we are reaching out for continents. A few years ago a few ministers preached the Gospel in foreign lands, where now we have vast armies at strategic points.

It seems to me that after the war is over Christian missions will make a move such as never been witnessed in all the history of the church.

Above are paragraphs from a very interesting sermon by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor Trinity church, who occupied the pulpit in the George street Methodist church last night. "The Mission of the Christian church," was the theme of Mr. Wilson's discourse, and while the whole sermon had an optimistic trend, he drew the attention of the congregation to the fact that much more was to be expected of Canada than in the past. He prophesied that at the conclusion of the war the Christian church would launch out into a movement for the Christianization of the heathen, the like of which the world has never seen.

"And he said unto them, go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature,"—Mark, 16:15 was the text of the sermon.

The question was, what was the mission of the Christian church, and why is there a Christian church in the world? To know the mission of the church we must first know the mission of Christ, and then use that knowledge as a pattern for the activities of the church. He came, knowing no sin, to take upon himself the sins of the world. He was more anxious to say, "Thy sins are forgiven thee," than he was to say, "Take up thy bed and walk." The church then should not only be anxious to care for the poor, clothe the naked and feed the hungry, but still more desirous of searching out the cause of, and finding a remedy for this poverty, hunger and nakedness.

False Prophets.

And in the spreading of the gospel to "every creature," as commanded in the text, the church should not go to the heathen with the story that Confucius or Buddha or Mohammedan were scoundrels, false prophets or fanatics, and their religions delusions and lies. But rather should they approach the heathens with the news that what Confucius and Buddha and Mohamet has been searching for, we have found. And when the message itself was carried to them, they would then conduct the worship of their new Lord, according to their own customs and their own ideas.

The church of to-day, said the speaker, was working under a spirit the like of which had never rested upon it since the days of the Apostles. It had adopted schemes for the advancement of the church that a hundred years ago would have seemed Utopian and visionary, and was ringing with a new spirit. "Jesus shall reign where'er the sun, does this successive journey run." A short time ago its missions consisted of little parishes scattered in the heathen lands, while to-day we are reaching out for continents. A few years ago a few ministers preached the gospel in foreign lands where now we have vast armies at strategic points, and nurses, doctors and hospitals supplement the efforts of the ministers themselves.

Women's Movement.

And to-day we have the women's movement. At the beginning of last century not a woman was at work in foreign fields, but now we have them leading forward the men themselves. It would be impossible to subdue the heathen without the woman missionary. Then there was the students' voluntary mission movement, which had sent 2,000 missionaries out, and an additional thousand were ready and waiting to go. And lastly, that wonderful Laymen's Missionery Movement, whose influence had been of such direct and substantial benefit.

The Great War.

The great war came on when it was almost a romance to read of the progress of Christian missions. Last year, in spite of the unparalelled demands of the war the Canadian Methodist church had given to missions $661,000) $30,000 than ever before in the history of the church. When the war is over Japan will see that Britain would rather sink into oblivion than give up the liberty that Christ had brought them. "And it seems to me," was Mr. Wilson's forecast, "that after the war is over Christian missions will make a move such as has never been seen in all history."

The speaker told of six men in Antioch, of whom Paul and Mark set out on their great missionary enterprise as the result of which the whole Roman empire was speedily captured for Christianity. Then after Caesar had given orders to make all prisoners servants, except the Britons, "who were too lazy to do anything," Augustine took up the self-made challenge of making the "angles," "angels," and took Christianity to the British Isles. As a result we have those islands standing to-night between barbarism and the Christian civilization of the world.

A Yellow Peril.

It was the speaker's opinion that the Chinese were to play a great figure in the future of this world, and soon shall if they awaken to a great militarism or a great Christian commercial life. If the former, then, led by the Japs, we have indeed a yellow peril. But on the other hand, those Anglo-Saxons of the Orient, as they are sometimes called, are in a position to develop to the highest state and function of manhood. To avoid the one awful possibility or to ensure the other, an active aggressive campaign by Christain missions was absolutely necessary.

In concluding Mr. Wilson referred to the fact that Greece had left behind her the ideal of culture; Rome of law; Israel of religion; Russia of authority; Germany of brutality and England of freedom. What then, of the best of all these ideals would be gathered together as a national ideal for Canada. Mr. Wilson pleaded for a national ideal and objective of serving in the world wherever there was a need, and an active part in the establishing of the Kingdom of the Lord of Lords and the King of Kings.

NORWAY TO PAY $200,000,000 FOR SHIPS HERE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—American bankers are likely to be busted in a race to facilitate arrangements for Norwegian credits in this country.

Four Norwegian bankers arrived here on the Norwegian liner Bergensfjord to make credit arrangements for the payments of huge sums for material purchased here. One item alone is $200,000,000 for steamships constructed in American ship-building yards.

The Norwegians carefully insisted that they were not here as a commission, but as individuals. Other passengers, however, declared they did form a commission.

William Rose, a Boston banker who was on the same vessel, said:

"It is up to American bankers to get busy at once and establish credit banks in Norway. This can't be done too quick."

IMMENSE PURCHASES

The four Norwegian bankers are Knut Backke, Emil Sophus Dahl and Gustav Kamstrup Hegge, all of Christiana, and Trygve Barth, of Bergen. Mr. Dahl said:

"This is not a financial commission, nor do we represent any bank or banks, though we are directors of banks. We are here individually to better financial arrangements between Norway and the United States.

"There are immense purchasing needs in this country that have to be paid for. We will look into general conditions with a view to purchasing railroad stocks, iron and steel. This is necessary because we are unable to secure them from Germany."

On board the Bergensfjord were seven Norwegian steamship captains. They are here to take over a large number of big freight steamships that have been built in American yards for Norwegian concerns.

TO CAPTURE PACIFIC TRADE

Captain Hialman T. Bryde, of the Stolt Neilson Company, of Christiania, is on his way to Seattle to take over seven 9,000-ton steamers built there and two 7,000-ton steamers built in San Francisco. He said these vessels would probably be put in the Pacific freight trade.

Other passengers said it was openly declared in Norway that an effort would be made to wrest the rich Pacific carrying trade from the Japanese.

Captain Gabriel Holgaard, who was formerly employed in Cramp's shipbuilding yards at Philadelphia, is here to take over four 8,000-ton steamers being constructed in Philadelphia, Portland, Ore., and Seattle. He said the Norwegian people were convinced there would be no slump in shipping after the war for two years at least.

CANADIAN TRIBUTES TO OXO CUBES

The following letters have been received from Canadians who have proved the great value of OXO during the War.

OXO Cubes are handy for emergencies. They need no cooking or special preparation. An OXO Cube in a cup of hot water and a few biscuits makes a light meal which sustains for hours, while for enriching and improving stews and other dishes, OXO Cubes are simply wonderful.

From one of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

"We have completed a trip in the trenches which has been one of the coldest this winter; in fact, one night we had zero weather. Just before going into the trenches I received a parcel which contained some OXO Cubes, and I can assure you I was very thankful. It was a real treat to get off sentry duty and make a cup of OXO, as it warms one up and helps to keep one fit. It only takes a few minutes to make a hot cup of good OXO."

From one of the 24th Canadians:—

"I was out with a barbed wire party last night, and when I got back a parcel was waiting. Every item was a winner. The OXO was great; just try it about 2.30 some cold nasty morning after being out nearly six hours."

Territorial Service Gazette, March 25th, 1916.

MERCURY WILL FREEZE.

Point of Great Importance to Thermometer Makers Ascertained.

The U. S. Bureau of Standards has just completed a very careful determination of the freezing point of mercury, using platinum resistance thermometers to measure the temperature. The result of this work gives minus 38.87 degrees Centigrade, or minus 37.97 degrees Fahrenheit for this temperature.

It is interesting to note that as far back as 1863 the English Government recognising the importance of accurate knowledge of this point, appropriated £150 to have it determined. The value then obtained, minus 38.86 degrees Centigrade, or minus 37.93 degrees Fahrenheit, is in good agreement with that obtained by the United States bureau. A knowledge of the freezing point of mercury is of great importance to thermometer makers, as it marks the lower limit to which a mercurial thermometer may be used.

Little muslin bags filled with oatmeal and left in the water pitcher overnight are excellent for softening the water. Let an oatmeal bag remain in a basin of hot water for a few minutes, and it will take all the hardness away.

Indigestion Resulted From An Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Decline of Spiritual Life in the Church

In my last letter I spoke of the dark ages and the fall of the Roman Empire. The Gospel of Christ had been preached throughout Asia Minor and the islands and shores of the Mediterranean, the schools of intellect, letters, art and commerce were there at that day, nothing stayed the triumphant progress of the gospel till it reached Imperial power, then there was a dark interval of 1,000 years; we omit the long years that passed in degredation and vice and at a later period quote from Bishop Burnet, who said that candidates for ordination were commonly quite unacquainted with the Bible and unable even to give an account of the statements in the church catechism, when they re-appeared before him to obtain institution to a living. It was still apparent that they had not read the scriptures nor any other good book. Of all the ministers of religion, he had seen in the course of his extensive travels, they were the most remiss in the discharge some of their labours and the least severe in their lives. A writer of the time refers to family prayer as "a custom entirely neglected by men of any business or station". Lady Mary Wortley wrote in 1710 that there were more atheists among the fine ladies than among the lowest sort of rakes. Ignorance and drunkenness it is stated were the predominent qualities of the working classes, licentiousness and infidelity of the higher Montesquieu who visited England in 1729-31, protested that the English had no religion at all, if any one spoke of it everybody laughed. Low as religion had sunk in France, he confessed that he himself had not enough of it to satisfy his countrymen; and yet he found that he had too much to suit English society. Of the clergy 1781 Cowper could write:

Except a few with Eli's spirit blest,
Hophni and Phineas may describe the rest.

Such was the condition of the English people on both sides of the Atlantic on the eve of the great revival the darkest clouds are before the dawn, but mans extremity is God's opportunity. God is merciful and gracious long-suffering and slow to wrath and willeth not that any should perish but that all should come unto him and have everlasting life. A person spoke to me last evening about the letters appearing in the Examiner under my name. He liked the early closing letters but the letters on the decline of spiritual life in the church he did not like, because there was too much religion in them. The reason of his objection is not far to seek if we love God, we love his word and the revelation that he has given us of his son, and if we have put our hand to the plough and look back, we are not fit for the Kingdom of God. We are God's plowmen, ministers, local preachers and others who are fulfilling Christ's command: Go ye and preach the gospel to all nations, so I am with you always to the end of the world. It has been the happiest period of my life as a local preacher to preach the Gospel an dthe only regret that I have is that I did not commence earlier, for I was brought up in a good Christian home, with a family altar, good religious training in Sabbath and everyday school. The Bible was our text book and the shorter Catechism and Bunyan's Pilgrims Progress. Cards were not allowed, we were told that they were Devils Books. There were no yellow journals, nor trashy florels to lead the young mind astray. We had good parental training, clean practical common sense education, fitting men to fill the highest positions in the ministry in the legal and other professions, gained by hard honest study, often under adverse circumstances. I have seen young men attending King's College, Aberdeen with their clothing mended, who went to the harvest field in summer to earn money to pay for their education, and when finished were holding high positions, they wrought hard to get an education; when obtained they knew the value of it and were examples to many of their fellow students, who were in better circumstances. You will say I am digressing from my subject. Well, I don't want to tire the reader. I want the people to read these letters and perhaps profit by reading and help to raise the spiritual standard of life in all the churches we all have an interest in one another and when we work together in God's service we have his blessing and his smile resting upon us; if we are earnestly desiring the best things Jesus himself said seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all other thing will be added unto you. What is the cause of all the trouble that is in the world today. Nations and peoples and individuals have been striving, seeking, looking on sea and land in far off lands for the material things of this life, power, territory, riches and many other things that fade and perish. Men are giving their best energies, travelling to foreign countries, searching the world over for wealth, sacrificing health, enduring hardships, leaving home and friends and eventually laying down their lives far from home and friends all for the sake of glory, honour or fame. Quoting a line from Grays Elegy:

"The path of glory leads but to the grave"

Resuming the subject of a prospect of better times in the spiritual life of the church, who could have thought that the spring time of harvest was at hand and that the harvesters of God were preparing to go forth to sow the seed that God was to water and grow to a great ingathering of precious souls.

Two sacred poet, Isaac Watts, survived in mellow age and Philip Doddridge a younger man both labouring to promote a new order of things, about a quarter of a century after a boy by name of Charles Wesley at Oxford, began to think seriously how he could improve his time for his studies, he was sensible That time had been wasted in idle diversions, other of his fellow students joined him in this good resolve and they formed a society, observing the sacrament and other means of grace—in that day a thing so serious as attention to study religious worship on the part of a handful of boys could not pass without ridicule and they were dubbed the Methodists. Charle's brother John was a clergyman in the church of England, returned to Oxford as a tutor joining the little society, became a leader among them, they went in for self denial charities, fastings, prayers and labours. Although met by opposition and contempt, yet they kept together and preserved in the path that they had chosen. Five years had passed when a poor young student entered the college as a servitor, defraying his college expenses by personal service in the rooms of wealthier young men in the university—this was George Whitfield, then 19 years of age by nature and grace far beyond comparison of those among whom he moved as a servitor. He was strongly attracted to the Wesley's by their earnest religious life, but his lowly station kept him aloof, but at length was sought out and joined the brotherhood of which he became one of the most zealous members. I would like to give a short sketch of Whitefield, then Wesley, then the Revival of religion, that took place during their labours.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND

CANNED GOODS HAVE ADVANCED

Tomatoes, Corn and Pumpkin 100 per cent Higher.

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer last week.

Perhaps the most sensational happening during the week was the high prices named for canned tomatoes, corn and pumpkin. These prices have been well over 100 per cent. in advance of the opening prices of last year. Canners are going to deliver only 25 per cent. on tomatoes, 50 per cent. on corn and between 25 and 30 per cent. on pumpkins. Peaches will be 100 per cent. delivery. Dried fruits of all kinds have been firm and advancing in price.

Grocery markets have during the week quite generally tended upward. Sugar advanced 45c with three of the Canadian refiners, while the fourth Canadian refiner recorded an advance of only 20c per 100 pounds. Flour has touched new high levels with an advance of 40c per barrel recorded during the week. The price is not far short of the $10 level, being now quoted at $9.70 Toronto, in car lots and $9.90 in less than car lots. Cheese has also firmed in price and is selling 1-2c up. Storage eggs are in better demand, owing to meagre supplies of fresh laid eggs. In consequence, storage varieties have advanced in price. Cornstarch has advanced 1-2c lb. Butter has again advanced 2c and commission men are looking forward to 30c butter in the near future. Many commission men are in favor of the Government allowing oleomargarine to be bought into or manufactured in Canada. It is said that a first quality of this article can be made and sold at 25c to 30c lb. It is said to be a wholesome, palatable article when properly made from a good grade butter mixed with cottonseed oil and beef fat.

There is an added firmness in the spice markets this week, due to higher prices indicated by cables from the primary markets. Peppers are very strong and advances would not come as a surprise.

Prices of candied peels have firmed up considerably and in some cases advances of from 1 to 2c have been recorded. Seeded raisins are up 2 1-2c lb. On some lines of seedless raisins there will be only 75 per cent. delivery. Prunes have advanced 1-2c in local markets. The currant situation is unchanged from last week. There is a big demand for rice, owing to the comparative cheapness of this food. Beans are firmer in price this week. Shelled almonds are easier, while walnuts have advanced in price. A number of fish lines have advanced in price and the effects of the Government placing large orders for fish for the troops is becoming felt. Potatoes advanced during the week and steadily higher prices may be looked for from now on. Exports of potatoes from New Brunswick to Cuba have had a tendency to firm up the Eastern market. Generally, business is good, despite the very high prices prevailing.

A PACK OF CARDS

A private soldier of the name of Richard Lee was taken before the magistrate of Glasgow for playing cards during divine service. The account of it is thus given in an English journal.

A sergeant commanding the soldiers at the church, and when the parson finished the prayers, he took the text. Those who had Bibles took them out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor Common Prayer Book, and, pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them before him. He first looked at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him and said, "Richard, put up the cards, this is no place for them." "Never mind that," said Richard. When the service was over, the constable took Richard prisoner, and brought him before the mayor. "Well," said the mayor, "What have you brought the soldier here for" "For playing cards in church." "Well, soldier what have you to say for yourself" "Much sir, I hope." "Very good! if not, I will punish you severely" "I have been" said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor Common Prayer Book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I hope to satisfy your worship of the purity of my intentions." Then spreading the cards before the mayor, he began with the ace.

When I see the ace, it reminds me that there is but one God; when I see the deuce, it reminds me of the Father and son when I see the tray it reminds me of the the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, when I see the four, it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, when I see the five, it reminds me of the wise virgins that trimmed their lamps. There were ten, but five of them were wise, and five of them were foolish, and were shut out. When I see the six it reminds me that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, when I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work he had made and hallowed it. When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight religious persons who were saved when God destroyed the world, viz., Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives. When I see the nine, it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour, there were nine out of ten that never returned thanks. When I see the ten, it reminds me of the Ten Commandments, which God handed down nto Moses on tables of stone. When I see the king and queen it reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man. She brought with her fifty boys and fifty girls, all dressed in boy's apparel, for King Solomon to tell which were girls, and which were boys. The King sent for water for them to wash. The girls washed to the elbows, the boys to the wrists, so King Solomon told by that."

"Well," said the mayor, "you have described every card in the pack, except one." "What is that?" "The knave." said the mayor. "I will give your honour a description of that, too, if you will not be angry." "I will not," said the mayor, "if you do not term me to be the knave." "The greatest knave I know of is the constable that brought me here." "I do not know," said the mayor "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count the number of spots in a pack of cards, I find 365, as many days as there are in the year. When I count the number of cards in the pack, I find 52, the number of weeks in the year. I find there are 12 picture cards in a pack, the number of months in a year; and, on counting tricks, I find thirteen, the number of weeks in a quarter. So you see a pack of cards serves as a Bible, an almanac and a Common Prayer Book.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GEORGE BEBAN IN "AN ALIEN"

Synopsis "An Alien"

"An Alien" is an amplified version of the remarkably successful playlet, "The Sign of the Rose," which for five years served Mr. George Beban as a starring vehicle both in this country and abroad.

In order to fittingly celebrate an expected inheritance from his late father, Phil Griswold, a worthless young rogue, persuades his friend Robbins to steal from his employer, a fashionable florist, the funds necessary to make the revelry even greater.

To his chagrin Phil learns the next day that he has been cut off with one dollar, and thus the two young men are placed in a position from which they realize it will be difficult to extricate themselves.

On a visit to the home of his brother, William Griswold, Phil notices his niece's fear of an Italian ditch-digger, who has come bringing a Christmas tree. He determines to kidnap Dorothy, and manages to direct suspicion toward Pietro (Mr. Beban).

Searching the Italian quarters for the Alien in his automobile, William runs over Pietro's little daughter Rosina and kills her. Pietro wanders to the flowershop at which Robbins is employed, and entering to buy a rose for the little girl's grave he is seized by detectives, who think him the writer of the mysterious note which told their client to know the kidnapper by the Sign of the Rose.

Motion Picture News says: "The culmination is a happy one from an artistic standpoint, since it is so vividly portrayed by Mr. Beban and his associate players. The photoplay is a marvel of character delineation, beautiful with gorgeous settings, and strengthened by perfectly logical continuity and views of New York's Latin quarter. Attention to detail is apparent in every scene of the nine reels, and the production as a whole is a whole is a work of art."

We also present some specially selected comedies. Prices only 10c which covers war tax. Don't miss "An Alien" which is the most spectacular feature play ever produced by the Famous Players Film Service.

A delicious grape punch is made with lemon and orange juice, grape juice and shredded fresh pineapple. One may combine these ingredients in any proportion one prefers, but the entire mixture should stand some hours to ripen.

Pastoral and Personal Lette From Rev. Canon Davidson Read At St. John's On Sunday Morning

Yesterday morning at St. John's, Rev. Canon Cornish, read a pastoral and personal letter from Major Davidson, Chaplain at the Ontario Hospital at Orpington, England, to his congregation. Though the letter was specially written for the congregation and not with a view to press publication, yet seeing that Rev. Mr Davidson has been for twenty-five years in public relations with the city, and has earnestly concerned himself with its welfare, it is assumed that it will be of interest to more than his own people, to learn of some details of his work. This interests us all. We hear much of the material and destructive side of the war, but we seldom get an inside view of the really important thing, the practical relations and attitude of soldiers to religion and their religious ministers, as is disclosed in the following letter:

O.M.H. Orpington, Kent,
Oct. 4, 1916.

To the Officers and Members of St. John's Church, Peterborough:

My Dear People,—I need hardly say that though my life is a very busy one, crowded with interests of many kinds, and dealing with many people, still my heart daily turns to my old parish and people and to the dear old church which comes unbidden before my mind's eye.

I have written letters to a few persons within and without the congregation generally, dealing with matters which specially concerned them and hoped to gradually embrace the different families, but I find that I have too much writing to do in my work to manage this. One part of it is to write letters for patients to relatives and send reduced railway certificates for them to use in coming here, and this is so trying that my right arm is seldom free from cramp. My last letter yesterday was to Cobourg, Ont., which was especially interesting to me, as we deal with but few Canadians, perhaps 40 or 50 out of 900 to 900. The majority are English; Australians come next.

I cannot speak too highly of these Australians, a wonderful body of men. They are nearly all very tall and slender, with a picturesque uniform, the wide, sombrero hat turned up at the side with the rising sun badge of Australia. They are remarkably fine in demeanour and character and chiefly belong to the Church of England. Their Red Cross agents go through this and all other hospitals giving the men supplies. To all others we distribute stationery, New Testaments, reading matter, cigarettes, etc., but not to them. Their organization is the most perfect of any.

This is a truly splendid hospital, built of successive long, narrow buildings connected by central passages, with wards on either side, each one having its own little offices and private rooms near the passage. There are 20 of these wards, each having 53 beds, a total of 1,060.

The staff consists of 25 doctors, 80 nurses, 4 chaplains (2 C. E., 1 R.C. and 1 Free Church) and 200 soldiers unable to go to the front again from permanent injuries, etc. So when we are full we have 1,500 in all. There is a big recreation hall, and all sorts of offices for X-ray and other treatments. The chaplains' office, in which I am writing, is next the little chapel and the morgue.

The main services are held in the recreation room. Many of the beds are supplied I.O.D.E.; I.O.O.F. and other societies presenting them, and there are many quilts with the names of Canadian towns and societies or congregations on them, which interest the patients. We have none from Peterborough and no doctors or nursing sisters, as they are called, though almost every other city and town is represented.

The patients come to us in convoys, by special train, from 100 to 200 at a time, driven up in our ambulances, with the latest inscriptions (which one likes to see) "Canadian Red Cross." These are seen speeding through different parts of the country. Six of our newest ones come from the Canadian Club in New York. The names of contributing cities should always be inscribed it seems to me, as being interesting. The wounded men come from clearing stations and hospitals in France, many within three or four days of being wounded, with torn uniforms, spattered with mud, and looking very bedraggled. Perhaps nearly half will be on stretchers. They are bandaged on the head, arms or other parts and are all cheerful and thankful.

I spend from 10.30 to 12 and 2 to 4 going up and down the wards, with perhaps half an hour in the evenings and occasional other visits, and do the rest of my work in the chaplains' office or my room (which I share with a Toronto doctor.)

I could not stand longer hours. Dressings are going on all morning and I am getting accustomed to the sad sights of stumps, of arms and legs and gaping wounds in all parts, made chiefly by shrapnel. On the finish of each man hangs a card from the last hospital, which is exchanged for a bed ticket, after his particulars are taken. A bath, food and bed then follow in order. I prepared carefully a confirmation class of up-patients and 17 fine men were confirmed and received the Holy Communion last week. While men are said to gladly take part in prayers at the front, we find them easy-going and light-heartedly indifferent as a rule here, though they realize the crisis which they have passed through. However, they are nice about it and give us a chance.

I have come across two Peterborough men, Angus Macdonald, who has gone, and Geo. Liftheart, who is here now. They both gave me enthusiastic greetings when we met. A man named Simmons of Toronto, late of Peterborough, is also here.

At midnight on Sunday week I saw the Zeppelin fall in flames, a thrilling sight. It illuminated the sky with a reddish light and came down slowly, a blazing mass, breaking into two with scintillations of sparks. Four have been seen from here, and we expect more.

While I am throwing myself into my work here with pleasure, I hope to go on to France later on, and have assurances from my superior officers Col. Steacy and Major Wells, that I shall be given an opportunity as soon as maybe. I am left in no doubt as to my work giving satisfaction up to the present from the kindly encouragements given, some of which are added to this letter.

The work and conduct of chaplains at the front seems to have been very fine. Two at least have won the Victoria Cross and several other decorations for valour. My partner here is Rev. Capt. Buckland, of Gaspe, P.Q. 49th Battalion, who takes the odd numbered wards, my work being in the even ones, except special cases. I was extremely sorry to leave the 93rd, but from all accounts few of the regiment are now left in England. Capt. Rollins was a faithful friend and supporter to me while with it.

This whole experience (besides being a tremendous change in my life violently pulling one out of old ruts) has been most valuable to me. The constant and close contact with all sorts of men, not troubling to conceal either words, actions or opinions, has been a most practical education, though a rough one. It has been life in the arena indeed, especially in the camps.

I have tried steadily to find out what are the real essentials of practical, every-day religion and to insist on these only, meeting men if possible half way, in a conciliatory fashion and getting as close to them as they would allow.

I have come to see the Church and clergy and religion from the standpoint of the ordinary man, looking into a distant sphere, so to speak, from which I once was an actor myself. And I can see that there is much to be mended and changed. We need more robust type of religion and broader sympathies—a larger inclusiveness instead of exclusiveness—and free and easy kindliness and genial open-handed generosity in which we may get lessons from the man of the world. Of all things, Christians should not be, or even seem, mean narrow or petty—and really all this is in direct opposition to the spirit of our religion. Yes, in this shake-up and in the knock-about kind of life (something like the Pilgrim type) I think I have got on a bit in religion, and I hope, my dear people that you also are making like use of your changed experiences, and that, please God, I may be of more use to you and others some day.

Your affectionate friend and Rector,
J. C. Davidson.

In view of the fact that Canon Davidson has been the subject of some local press criticism, reflecting upon his loyalty to the 93rd and to his work, the following quotations from letters to him, are made as of some interest to St. John's congregation and to the public, and indicate that the departure of their Rector for England and France has already had some good results to justify the step:

From Col. Steacy, Director in Chief Chaplain Service, Canadians—"I congratulate you on your farewell greeting to the 93rd, and think it splendid indeed. . . . I can assure you I am indeed glad to have a man of your calibre working with us."

From Major Wells, Senior Chaplain of Shorncliffe Area (2nd in Command Chaplains):

Sept. 10—"You will, I know, wait as patiently as you can for duty in France or elsewhere. I know I am justified in saying that Colonel Steacy will do all in his power to place you where your energy and experience will find the greatest scope for effective work."

Sept. 25.—"I galdly recognize the excellent work you have been doing and your comprehensive grasp of our conditions and needs. I would be glad if our chaplains as a whole could measure up to the standard you have reached."—G. A. Wells.

PEARSON'S MAGAZINE HAS BEEN EXCLUDED FROM THE MAILS

AMERICAN PUBLICATION CONTRAVENED ORDER IN COUNCIL OF JUNE, 1915.

Ottawa, October 28—Pearson's Magazine, published from 425 East 24th Street, New York, has been excluded from the Canadian mails and prohibited from circulation in Canada. The action is taken under the war measures act for the publication of articles contravening an order in council passed in June, 1915. The editor of the paper is Frank Harris, a renegade Englishman, who is a son-in-law of Nietzsche, one of the foremost apostles of German "kultur."

Persons having a copy of this publication in their possession are liable to a fine of $5,000, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years. The paper has no connection with the English magazine of the same name.

DESERTER AND BRIDE CAUGHT

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 28.—The honeymoon of Hugh O'Neil and his bride came to an abrupt and an unhappy conclusion when he was arrested by Provincial Officer MacNamara. O'Neil was a member of the 241st Battalion but, according to the police, deserted from that unit on September 1st. He had received cheques to the amount of $105, and went to London, where he was married, and crossed the border to Niagara Falls, N.Y. The couple left their luggage on this side of the river and it was on coming over for it that the police got their chance to get O'Neil. An escort from Windsor took O'Neil back.

"OUR DUTY TO MISSIONS IN THE PRESENT CRISIS"

Excellent Paper Read by Rev. Mr. Wickett, of Fraserville, at District Meeting of Women's Missionary Society—Great Duty is to Evangelize the World

At the district meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, held in Mark Street Methodist Church, last week an excellent paper on "Our Duty to Mission in the Present Crisis," was given by Rev. Mr. Wickett of Fraserville. His address was as follows:

Louder and more distinctly do we hear the clarion call to duty and service on the part of the State, and in the spirit of loyalty and devotion to the best interests and highest ideals of our beloved Empire. Thousands of the best of the husbands and sons have responded to the call of King and Country.

Many have left positions of trust, honour and power, and the call of the State has been more imperative than the demands of dearest friends, yea, of even wife, child or parent.

We look over our fair Canada and we behold broken family circles, women working in the fields, and, in some instances, manning our factories, because from the homes of the rich and poor, of cultured and ignorant; from Bank, store and factory familiar faces are missing, and many of our noblest and best are fighting, bleeding and dying in the interests of liberty, justice and truth.

But what is our duty in the present crisis? — To respond to the call of the Church; to obey the command of Christ; to preach the Gospel to every creature. In other words, to evangelize the world. Some one has said: "That one of the tasks of the Church is to awaken and foster a sense of universal brotherhood."

Science has established the fact of the unity of the race. For the first time in history the body of humanity has attained to a consciousness of all its parts."

Yet all this is possible without any real sense of brotherhood, as the divisive spirit, which has turned Europe into an armed camp, and led to the present bitter conflict, reveals.

But that is the gift and influence of Christianity, for in Jesus Christ all national and racial antipathies, all social and economic irregularities pass away.

It is, therefore, the task of the Church to restore to religion her rightful place in the life of the nation, at home, and so hasten the evangelization of the non-Christian world.

In the presence of a great world crisis, what is the watch-word of the Master, whom we love, whom we serve, and in whose presence we are assembled?

I think it is one word, "evangelize." In the presence of merely human devices for the redemption of humanity, and amidst the convulsions of a great world war with all its carnage and its harvest of sorrow, suffering and shame, the watchword of the Master, "evangelize" is again sounded in the ears of the Church. There is a danger of emphasizing this world's material needs at the expense of spiritual needs. The work of the Church is to restate again and again the religion and teaching of Jesus Christ.

We must ascertain the mind of Christ in relation to present-day problems, and apply His method in dealing with the present crisis, and our relation to it; hence the evangelization of the world must be centered in Christ. The need of the non-Christian world is indescribably great. Hundreds of millions are today living in ignorance and darkness, steeped in idolatory, superstition, degradation and corruption. Surely the non-Christian religions may be judged by their fruits.

Though there are among the followers of these religions men of high and noble lives, yet in the sight of God all have sinned and stand in the need of the Saviour. All other religions have certainly failed to do what the Gospel, and the ability to satisfy and is doing, as a regenerating power in the individual, and as a transforming force in society.

The Scriptures clearly teach that if men are to be saved they must be saved through Christ, and the Word of God sets forth the conditions of salvation, and these conditions are to be made known through human agency, and in passing, I would emphasize the fact that the universal capacity of men to be benefited by the Gospel, and the ability to satisfy men of all ranks and conditions, sets forth the obligation and responsibility of every Christian to preach the Gospel to every creature. Hence we see that to have a knowledge of Christ is to incur a responsibility toward every man who has it not, and our sense of obligation must be intensified on this the morning of the 20th century, when we know the need, and the remedy, and to realize that access to them, because the doors of every nation are no open, and we have young women in our colleges and seminaries, who, having a vision of the Christ, and a corresponding vision of "the fields that are white with the harvest," are designed of responding to the call and appealing to our society, saying: "Here am I, send me." Let us remember that the evangelization of the world is to us no self-imposed task; it rests securely upon Divine Commandment. The great commission of Christ given by Him in the Upper Room in Jerusalem on the night after the resurrection, and again, a little later, on a mountain in Galilee, and yet again on the Mount of Olives just before the ascension, clearly expresses our obligations to make Christ known to all men, and in view of all the facts, we cannot but come to the conclusion that it is our duty to translate Christ's last command into terms of obligation concerning our own lifetime.

I wish to emphasize the fact that this command was given to be obeyed, and it is operative until repealed, therefore the execution of it is not optional, but obligatory.

Why call Ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" "If ye love Me, ye will keep my commandments. Further, we would state that the present day presents one of unexampled crisis in all parts of the unevangelised world.

Missionaries from nearly every land urge that if the Church fails to do her full duty in our life time, the task of our successors will be more difficult. Surely the time is ripe for a new spirit of earnestness and devotion to the real purposes and aims of the Gospel of Jesus Christ on the part of those who profess to govern their lives according to the spirit and teaching of our blessed Lord.

"If the Church of the present and of the future is to measure up to its opportunities we must have clear-cut and definite convictions, an unshaken faith in Christ power to save from sin, an intensity and earnestness in the religion of Jesus Christ, that has strength and verility in it and a willingness to respond to its demands, and let us not forget that the religion of Jesus Christ makes tremendous demands, and to rightly present Christ and exemplify His teaching is the call that comes to us to-day in the midst of the present crisis as it has not come to the Church in any age of its history. Surely this is a day of wonderful opportunity as well as unprecedented responsibility.

Just here we quote Dr. James Hill, who, at the outbreak of hostilities, said: "There are no human devices which either singly or combined, can permanently secure the peace of mankind.

Progress in this direction depends ultimately on a progressive change in human nature itself, which is the source of the evil for which remedy is sought, however it may prevail. It is the Gospel of good will upon which reliance must be placed for the redemption of humanity. It is the ministry of the Gospel in every land that we must look in a very great degree for the influence which is to bring a righteous and lasting peace." peace."

To what is God calling us?

In these days of darkness that are spreading over the whole earth, where the hearts of men and women are stricken with fear, where the darkest clouds of sin and slaughter and suffering the world has ever known from the depths of human sorrow and from the Holy Mount, we hear the clarion call to greater things, and still greater service; let us rejoice in the faith. That Christ is conqueror over all powers and forces of evil and destruction, and that He is still "The Victorious One," while we are glad and thankful to what Christ has done in the past, let us not forget to rejoice over the still greater things He is going to accomplish. The best is yet ahead, and we believe that the world will see in days to come a triumph of Christian faith and Spirit that will put all other triumphs in the background.

And so to-day, while the clouds of this great world conflict and crisis is about us, and it sometimes looks as if darkness and death would triumph, let us not forget that Christ still goeth forth conquering and to conquer. Conscious that His earthly career was to be very brief. Jesus prepared His programme for a world kingdom and then handed the movement over to a group of fishermen and women. All the work that He had been doing for three years they were to do through the rest of their lives. 'And what was His work? It was that He went about doing good.

Looking backward to that far-off time, we see this beautiful figure going up and down the hills of Galilee. He gathers the people about Him at the close of the day and talks over their poverty and hunger, their sorrow and heartbreaks, and with all the love of mother and lover He broods over them and heals them with words of comfort.

Always by day and by night He is abroad on His mission of recovery, and in this spirit of helpfulness Jesus went from hamlet to hamlet and village to village, everywhere going about doing good.

He did not organize a code, nor outline laws like Moses, He did not assemble an army and conquer new territory like Joshua; He did not aspire to be crowned a king, like Saul; He was here to help, to redeem, to save, because His heart was moved with compassion when He saw the people, as sheep having no shepherd.

This, my sisters, is our mission, especially in the present crisis, each becoming a light-bearer, a joy producer, a centre of life and power.

Surely there never was in all the history of the world such a clear and ringing call to high, heroic and helpful living as that which sounds in our ears these days. There never was a time when so many good deeds were right at hand to be done. The world never needed more than it does today the steadying influence of the men and women who have faith in God, and who look upon human life in that spirit of abounding hopefulness that characterized the Divine Nazarene.

There never was as big and so necessary a place in the world for that climax and consummation of all the virtues and human sympathy, that [illegible] and sorrow and sin with the eyes of Christ.

He who came to redeem life from destruction and to lift men up into fellowship with, and likeness to God, never needed your help and mine, my sisters, and the help of every man and woman who has any of His thoughts and spirit, more than He does to-day. Are we giving it to Him in this unparalleled hour of opportunity?

Shall we not pray as never before 'Thy Kingdom Come"? Personally, I feel confident that as members of our missionary society, that our lives should be helpful, uplifting, and Christ-like; and that having heard the call to duty in the present crisis, we will manifest by a higher and truer sense of exalted privilege to do what we can to usher in the Blessed Day when the nations of the earth shall become the Kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ, whence shall come the universal reign of Christ, and His Kingdom of Peace shall bless the whole earth, and fill the nations with righteousness and truth and peace for evermore.

Peterboro' Nursing Sister Is Married

Nursing Sister Irene M. Douglas, daughter of Nursing Sister M. K. Douglas, a graduate of Nicholls Hospital, who for meritorious service overseas was decorated by the King, was united in marriage recently to Dr. J. A. Stewart, medical officer at Westcliffe Canadian Hospital, Folkestone, Kent, England. The bride is a graduate of Brockville General Hospital.

The ceremony took place in the parish church at Folkstone. The bride and groom were both in uniform. After a brief furlough both resumed their duties. Mrs. Stewart left with the Queen's unit last spring and nursed first with Dr. Bowie at Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe, afterwards being transferred to France, where she now is. Captain Stewart is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, Perth Street, Brockville. He left with the 59th as medical officer and is now stationed at Westcliffe Canadian Hospital.

SCIENCE HELPING THE TRACKMAN

Compelled to do his work by primitive hand methods that have changed but little since the beginning of railroading, the railroad trackman has long ranked as the poorest paid and most unfavourably situated of all labourers. In recent years a change has been taking place, a change that is fast placing the trackman in the position that his skill and experience and the importance of his work entitle him to—that of a skilled mechanic. As in many other lines of work this change is due to just one cause, the introduction of power-driven machines for doing the work formerly done by back-breaking hand labour.

The first machine to break the evil spell, as it might be called, under which the trackman has laboured is the gasoline section car, which has been in use in a limited way for a number of years. What this means to the men engaged in the work is easily understood by any one who has witnessed the laborious ordeal of pumping an old-time hand-car. Starting the day's work by pumping such a car over from four to six miles of track, some of it upgrade, is enough to destroy the efficiency of any group of men for the remainder of the day. On some of the most progressive railroads the section men now ride to their work on a gasoline car that is capable of making a speed of as much as thirty miles an hour. When they reach their work they are as fresh and fit as a business man who has ridden to his office in an automobile.

Two other machines that are rapidly coming into use and that are relieving the trackman of much heavy work formerly done by hand are the gasoline weeder and the gasoline mowing machine; the latter of which was described in a recent issue of this paper. Both of these machines are proving profitable for the companies that have installed them.

What is probably the most important innovation in track work is the pneumatic tamper now being introduced. It is now known that machine tamping costs less than one-third as much as hand tamping, and that the track tamped with the machine settles approximately one-half as much as track tamped by hand and subjected to the same service.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

BRITAIN CONSIDERING A MINIMUM WAGE

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Replying to a deputation to-day on the subject of the high price of food and the low wages paid shopkeeping employes in the distributing trades, Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, made the interesting announcement that the Government was considering the whole question of a minimum wage for all workers. He added that legislation might become necessary to deal with the sale of milk, and that the subject of municipal shops being established for the supply of bacon and other foodstuffs was also being considered.

Regarding the request that the Government take over the wheat supply, Mr. Runciman pointed out the difficulties created by the fact that a large proportion of the grain came from abroad.

Canadian Arrested

ST ALBANS Vt., Oct. 28.—A man giving the name of Jack Allen, who was taken from a Montreal train by United States immigration officials was returned to Canada to-day by request of military authorities at Ottawa, on a charge of absconding from Renfrew, Ont., with $6,000 in Canadian Government funds. Allen says he is a lieutenant in the British army and has been eighteen months in France.

ENGLISH AS TEA DRINKERS

Why the Custom Has Grown in a Few Years

One remarkable feature of English domestic life has been the increase in tea-drinking. In 1876 the consumption of tea per head of the population in the United Kingdom was four and a half pounds. In 1913 it was six and three-quarter pounds. The increase has been all to the good from the point of view of the nation's sobriety. It represents a real change in habit.

Formerly it was customary for business men to clinch a bargain over a glass of wine or ale. Now this custom is far more honoured in the breach than in the observance. In busy cities tea is the beverage. The clerk, the foreman, the operative, the working woman, all drink tea, greatly to the advantage of health and pocket.

The great increase in the consumption of tea is very largely due to the efforts of British planters in India. Formerly all tea came from China. Fortunately, however, it was discovered that the tea shrub is a native of Assam, one of the Indian provinces. Energetic Britons started planting in Assam. The present-day Indian planter is a very different individual from the luxurious gentleman of "Tom Cringles Log" and the romances of Marryat. His life is one of assiduous toil, sweetened by all too brief furlough.

In Darjeeling or Kotagiri he enjoys that sweet half-English air of which the poet sings. In the Terai, which stretches at the foot of the Himalayas, he has to contend against all the iniquities of a fearful climate. Always and everywhere he is the same cheery and resolute fellow, facing with equanimity alike the risks of disease, the difficulties inseparable from the management of native labour, and the many diseases which are the enemies of all cultivation in the tropics.

The pioneer planters had before them the task of reclaiming these jungle wastes, of replacing their futile extravagance of vegetation by well-ordered gardens; of repopulating those bare tracts, supplementing the scanty and inert inhabitants by larger numbers of orderly and industrious workers from other provinces.

The planters are men conversant with modern science, and use ingenious machinery well adapted to the purpose it serves. Large gardens carefully planted, are cultivated by experts. After plucking the leaf undergoes many processes. It is withered to condense the sap. It is rolled to squeeze the juice on to the surface. It is oxidized to develop the flavour and aroma. It is fired to dry it. It is cooled in clean, lead-lined air-tight chests.

All these processes are performed by clean, automatic machinery. Thus the teas from India are pure and free from all contaminating admixture. Coming from healthy, well-matured plants, they contain all the essential elements in rich abundance.

FRENCH LINER ON FIRE.

The Chicago, With 180 Passengers Racing to the Azores.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The French Line steamship Chicago, which left Bordeaux October 22 for New York, with 180 passengers aboard, is racing for Payal, the Azores, with a fire in one of her holds, according to advices received here yesterday by the Maritime Exchange, through Lloyds. The Chicago was expected to reach Payal some time yesterday, the advices said. She is a ship of 19,502 tons and was built in 1909.

Peat being mined in New Zealand is so well filled with kauri gum particles that it can be made to yield oils, some of which can be used as gasoline or benzine and others in varnishes.

FOUR DRUNKS CONTRIBUTE $40 FOR SATURDAY'S OUTBURST

One of Them Faked a Confession to Detective Newhall on Sunday and Chief Thompson Will Investigate Certain Denials.

Edward Tighe, Alonzo Yorke and Joseph Sachrance were each fined ten dollars by Acting Magistrate Rush in the police court this morning for having been drunk in a public place on Saturday, contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act.

Tighe stated that he had got some liquor at a house where he was working.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

Alonzo Yorke pleaded not guilty to the charge of being drunk in a public place on Saturday night.

Sergt. Kidd testified that he met Yorke at 9.45 p.m. Saturday. He was drunk, with a staggering gait and whiskey reek. His language after being arrested was anything but that of a sober man.

Detective Meagher corroborated Sergt. Kidd's evidence that Yorke was intoxicated.

Acting Magistrate Rush imposed a fine of $10 or one month in jail.

In the box Yorke admitted a written statement to Detective Newhall made on Sunday afternoon, but told Chief Thompson who was prosecuting, that the statement was untrue.

Yorke had told Detective Newhall that he had obtained a bottle of liquor from the Dominion Express Co. Chief Thompson made inquiries and learned that this was a falsehood. In the witness box Yorke said he had had a fifty cent bottle of whiskey in his trunk for some months. He went home on Saturday at 5 o'clock for tea and dug out the bottle.

Chief Thompson said he was informed that Yorke did not have supper or lunch at 5 o'clock and that he was not at home at that hour.

"Did you tell any person that you would do six months before you would tell where you got the liquor?" Chief Thompson asked.

"No," replied Yorke.

"I will ask for a remand, your Worship," the Chief concluded, "until I look up the witnesses on this point."

Joseph Sachrance is a French Canadian. He had come from Montreal to work in a local factory and apparently had brought his supply with him.

A Monaghan youth added his ten spot to the morning's collection. He came up town Saturday afternoon with the last of three flasks he bought while the buying was easy in September. And to drink it, so he related, he went twice alone into the King George hotel sheds.

Chief Thompson remarked that he had been told that this youth was seen sober at 8 p.m. on Saturday.

MEMORIAL SERVICE WAS HELD IN ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Large Congregation Turned Out to Pay Tribtue to the Death in Action of Sergeant Howard Curtis, Private Edward Payne and Private Victor Northcott—An Appropriate Msssage.

WHERE ARE THEY?

The congregation of St. Luke's church yesterday morning mourned the death and paid tribute to the lives of Sergeant Howard Curtis, Pte. Edward Payne and Pte. Vincent Northcott.

It is not given to every young man to lay down his life in such a manner, or for the sake of such a cause, as will bring together people to do him honour, in such numbers that the church of their youth is crowded to the utmost. But such was the privilege of the three of Peterborough's brave sons, in whose remembrance the service in St. Luke's church was held yesterday morning.

The lads had seen the supreme opportunity, and had grasped it. The one great chance to serve the generation of the present and the civilization of the future had not joined over their heads unheeded, but they sprang to the unfaltering even in the thought that duty might demand of them the greatest of all sacrifices. Duty made that demand, and in the course of the past week the sad news of their deaths at the front came to their parents, their friends and their community. But they had died for the Empire, and yesterday that one small section of the Empire which knew them best, assembled as a token and acknowledgment that the brave soldiers had not given their lives in a struggle that is vain, of a cause that is unworthy.

MESSAGE OF COMFORT.

Rev. W. H. White's sermon was a message of comfort. He lead his hearers away from the worldly common, small interpretation of death (even death on the battlefield of a murdered Belgium) to the real meaning of death. He banished aside the everyday thought of death as the ending of all things, and instead enlarged on the proper idea of death as an active change from this world to the next, as a parallel to birth, ushering one into the great eternity instead of the brief existence on the earth.

The 13th verse of Paul's first epistle to the Thessalonians, 4th chapter, which reads as follows, was his text:—"But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep."

The rector first made reference to the Festival of All Saints' Day, (to be observed on Wednesday) remarking that it was an occasion that all deservedly and naturally wish to observe. For on that day they thought not so much of the mighty spiritual giants of the past—the martyrs and apostles of ancient times, but rather the saints whom we have and loved and who have gone but recently before us. The word "Saint" in the Bible meant and included all who profess the holy profession of Christianity, and did their best to live up to their beliefs. "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep". Paul had said, and we would be very ignorant indeed, said the rector if we did not have some special time in remembrance of the saints of our own times.

"It is an ignoble thing to forget friends when they are out of sight" said the speaker, "and in the rush and hurry of the past few years that has been the tendency. But to forget our friends just because they are not with us, narrows the Christian life, and impoverishes the heart. Often in our hearts there is a loss of peace; a certain distress; a needless sorrow, be cause of the fact that we are ignorant of those who sleep. For, he continued, quoting the verse following his text, "If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

There were some who would say, like Martha, "We know that we will all arise sometime at the resurrection." But the Judgment Day seems so far off that we are worried and depressed. To these was urged the comfort of the truth that not only would God bring the loved ones with him at the time of the resurrection, but in the meantime, through all the years between that time and this, Christ has with him the souls of those that sleep in Him. And so it was with present of the souls that sleep that the speaker wished to engage attention for a few moments.

THREE QUESTIONS.

In regard to this, there were three questions that naturally arose. In the first place "Are those who have died in Christ living?" Well, if they were not, then God had implanted an instinct in human nature—in every race under the sun—that is leading us astray. The burying grounds of even our prehistoric ancestors showed that they in their time looked forward to a future life. Their citizens they buried with a weapon in their hand for self-defence in their new life, and with flint to kindle a fire and food to nourish the body in times to come. From that time until this every tribe or nation believed in a future existence. But we were not dependent on our instinct, nor on the words of Paul for our assurance of a Heaven to come. Our Lord Jesus Christ had said as much, and this day or someday we shall be with Him in Paradise. And just as birth admits us to this present world, so death admits us to the life to come. Death is not a state, it is an active change. It is time that it brings to an end the life on this earth, and that after it the body dissolved again into the earth. But the spirit rises to spring up into a new, beautiful, glorious life.

WHERE ARE THEY?

Secondly, Where are they? Are they alive?—Yes certainly. But where are they? Christ says that they are in Paradise. He meant the place of the spirits of the blessed dead. In a good deal of modern religious thought there is no place for Paradise. But how about the interim? Our earthly lives end with death, and the Heavenly life begins with the Judgment. But in between what? The Bible tells us very plainly—"Paradise".

"To-day thou shalt be with me in Paradise", Christ had promised the thief on the cross, when the day was all but done. So Paradise was not far away. It is only a moment distant. One moment we close our eyes upon this earth and the next we open them in Paradise.

And so, if we only press close to Jesus Christ on this earth, we can rest assured that we are living very close to those who have gone before us.

The third thought was—"Is it well with them?" We can answer with confidence—"Yea! It is well". Some religious doctrines professed the belief in purgatory, but this theory was contradicted by the Bible. Purgatory was held to be a place where the souls were purged by further pain and suffering. But what Jesus promised in Paradise was not a place of agony or trial, but of precious relief from pain.

So to-day it was with those who had gone before us, and with regard especially to the brethren who had laid down their brave lives so recently. It is well with them because they are with Christ, and we should thank God that in their happiness we can be near to them, by living closer to Jesus Christ

Mr. Titlebaum Asked Court For Something Cheap When Fined

L. Titlebaum, a peddler, made a unique and probably characteristic appeal in Police Court this morning, when he was fined $3 and costs amounting to $4.60 for neglecting to tie his horse on Gilmour Street while he was calling at the houses.

"I want something cheap," he said to Mr. H. Rush, who was acting for Magistrate Dumble.

And with his usual consideration Mr. Rush replied, "Well, I am sorry but we have nothing cheap around here. You've come to a mighty cheap store."

Mr. Titlebaum seemed satisfied. He produced four dollars and got permission to go to the bank for the change.

Editor of the Examiner:

The Property Committee of the City Council has always provided more entertainment of the light comedy quality to the onlooker than any other municipal committee, but the latest exhibition of hard-headed finance engineering by Alderman Edgar in that Committee on Friday evening last, and supported by the reckless, not dauntless, three borders on the magical. To add another $750 to the already grievous burden borne by the ratepayers for what the Review justly terms a fad, is the proverbial straw that breaks the camel's back.

The only consolation one has is that the aldermanic term has only two months to run and the career that opened with such promise of frugal and economic expenditures of the ratepayers' money expires in a brilliant pyrotechnical display of extravagance and over his tomb might be written the celebrated epitaph of Charles I., with a slight difference but more truth, "He often said a foolish thing but never did a wise one". At the meeting on Friday last a statement was made according to the Review that a year ago the incinerator was costing the city five or six dollars a day for fuel. I don't know where this emanated from, but the truth is a year ago the incinerator was costing just two dollars for upkeep against five dollars at the present time. Another example of hard-headed finance, as the Property Committee led by Alderman Edgar turned down a proposition made by me whereby the incinerator could have been operated for practically no cost to the city.

Your truly,
C. A. G. SPENCE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir—The writer of the article printed in your issue of Oct. 28th, from the ingston Freeman overlooked one or two things in his defence of the Catholic Church and his criticism of the Protestant churches of to-day. He states: "If the people have gone away from the Church it is because the Church has ceased to be a Church and has become a mere social circle, etc." Evidently he means if the Church was all right the people would not leave it. If that is so, his argument condemns the Catholic Church even more and the great bodies of dissenters who left that Church are justified in his sight, as they left the Catholic Church because it had ceased to be a Church (a spiritual home), and had become corrupt and a centre of error and spiritual darkness, its leaders refusing to walk in the light of truth, themselves, and withholding it from the others. He reproaches the Protestant Churches for finding a place for social service, which, he states, has superseded the Gospel. If I have read my Bible aright, the whole Gospel of Christ is a gospel of social service. Christ's whole life was a life of social service. His mark of identification as Christ, as sent in His answer to John the Baptist was the fact that He was engaged in social service. He said: "Go and tell John the things that ye see and hear, the blind see, the deaf hear, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the poor have the Gospel preached to them." Was not this social service? If the Church would only do more service of this kind there would be few empty pews. The writer's reference to the right of private interpretation of the Scriptures reveals in a sentence the power of the Roman Catholic Church over its followers and explains why the seats of those churches are full. If they are so, it is because the right of people to think for themselves is denied by that Church, and the Scriptures are interpreted as giving its priests power to impose penances, give absolution, give a passport to Heaven, or condemn to perdition, as well as dictate to them in every thing that concerns them either socially or politically; that the people who submit to this authority are afraid to stay away from church, and thus the fact that those churches are full is no more a proof that the people get most good there, than a lot of sheep who were driven into a slaughter house would be proof that sheep like to be killed.

But why this to-do about empty churches? Shall we be awarded a place in heaven or shut up in the other place according to the record of our attendance at church? It is the old, old story that which was intended as a means to an end, has by constant use and habit become the end itself, and every religious organization to-day reckons its success by the number of it members, the size o fits collections, and the value of its buildings. When Christ was at the well of Samaria the first thing the woman said when realizing that He was a religious teacher, was: Our fathers worshipped in this mountain, but Ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship, thus seeking to enter into an argument with Christ as to the merits of the different churches. What was His answer: "Woman, believe Me, the hour cometh and now is, that neither in this mountain nor yet at Jerusalem shall men worship the Father, but those that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth, for the Father seeketh such to worship Him. The whole teaching of the Bible is for a heart service. God appeared to Enoch and walked with him; He appeared to Moses in the wilderness, and declared that the place where Moses stood was holy ground; He appeared to Jacob at his open-air camp bed at Bethel; to Gideon under the oak, by the threshing floor; to Elijah, who, by the way, declared that the whole Church had backslid, except him, and he was the only one left that really served God. God said He knew of seven thousand men, who, though they did not go to church, yet were true in heart and life. "Every knee that have not bowed to Baal, and every mouth that have not kissed him." So I find to-day scores of men and women, who, though they may not attend church regularly, are striving by the help of God to do the square thing to love God and do a little social service on the way through life.

By the light given me in the word of God I do not believe, it matters whether a man is attached to this or that church or none, so long as he clean hands and a pure heart. The question of moment is not, why are the Church pews empty, but why do not men serve God?

George Leader.

Note.—Place is given to the above communication in the spirit of a free press, but as both sides of the subject have now had a place in these columns the controversy, as far as our columns are concerned, is closed. The present is no time for controversy and religious discussion which, where fundamentals of belief are concerned, is vain and inconclusive, except as to stirring up animosity. We are divided in some beliefs, but are one in beliefs in the great foundation truths, and the chief point is, the chief rivalry should be, for each side to see which best puts its beliefs into best effect.

Life At the Front Described In Mr. Stenson's Address

The first regular meeting of St. Peter's Ladies' Literary and Library Society was held in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Friday evening when a most enjoyable programme was presented. Rev. Father Phelan occupied the chair, and made a most able chairman. He outlined briefly the work of the Society and gave a few words of encouragement to the executive and members.

Mr. C. W. Stenson, a returned soldier, gave a most instructive and entertaining talk on his experiences from the time he enlisted with the late Major Bennett's Battalion to the Battle of Ypres in which he was gassed, and forced to retire from active service. The capable manner in which Mr. Stenson related life at the front proved him to be not only a soldier who has assidiously performed his duty to king and country, but also one who has profitted in no small way by his thrilling experiences. All acknowledge this to be the greatest war from a humanitarian standpoint, and from a speaker's lecture, one would gather that the great after effects would be very uplifting to humanity. He seemed to be of the opinion that the kindly fraternal feeling which is now strongly evident among so many nations, classes and creeds will be the dawn of a new era.

The following musical programme was presented:

Vocal solo—Miss K. Masterson.
Vocal solo—Mr. E. Barclay
Vocal solo—Miss G. Clancy
Vocal solo—Miss Lolond.
Accompanists— Misses L. Hurley, Grassett and Lahey.

TO PREVENT BARN FIRES.

Prof. Day Chosen To Investigate Causes of Blazes on Farms.

W. H. Day, Professor of Physics in the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, has been invited to undertake an investigation on behalf of the Province into the causes of fires from spontaneous combustion, so frequent in Western Ontario barns this fall, and to suggest means to prevent them. He is an authority and has been chosen for the work by the Provincial Fire Marshal.

Work of Canada's Naval Units On The Two Coas

OTTAWA, Oct. 26.—The work of the Canadian Naval Department during the past year is reviewed in the annual report issued to-day. The Niobe —the principal ship—is not in active commission, owing to the considerable amount of almost continuous steaming since the outbreak of the war, says the report. It was considered that the state of the machinery and boilers would not warrant her continuance on duty. As a depot ship was urgently needed at Halifax to accommodate numerous drafts of men and a parent ship for the vessels employed on patrol work was also urgently required, it was decided to pay off the Niobe and re-commission her for these purposes. In this connection she has been a considerable utility to both the Canadian and Imperial services.

Squadron on Pacific.

The Rainbow, two submarines and the Shearwater have been employed in connection with the defence scheme on the Pacific coast. A large number of vessels, both Government and private, have been utilized in connection with the defence of the coast on such duties as examination service, patrols, etc.

The report says that both navy dockyards have worked to their full output on repairs, Halifax being the base of the North American fleet, the dockyards have been particularly busy.

Thirty In Navy.

Favourable reports have been received from the midshipmen graduates of the Halifax Naval College who are with the Royal Navy. There are thirty of them now with the fleet in the North Sea, and two on British submarines.

Thirty recruits for the British Navy (the first batch of Canadians under the new recruiting system) have left Halifax for England. They will undergo a course of training there before leaving for overseas.

The Examiner has received an interesting letter from Pay Sergeant W. G. Nicholls, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and is now on the staff of the Canadian Pay and Records Office in London. Sergt. Nicholls gives some interesting details about the recent Zeppelin raids on London. Sergt. Nicholls says: "I was very near the last one which was brought down, so close that I was there five minutes after it fell and saw one of the crew drawing his last breath. I have a few good pieces of the last one, which are in the show window of our Canadian office in the Strand.

Sergt. Nicholls adds that he was at the dinner held in Connaught rooms by the officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Pay and Records Services, Canadian Expeditionary Forces to commemorate the arrival of the first Canadian troops in England on Oct. 15, 1914. Col. W. R. Ward, director of the Pay and Record Services, was chairman and the programme was as follows:

BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB REALIZED $65 FOR PRISONERS

The Business Girls' Club are again to be congratulated on the great success of their Hallowe'en tea which was held in the Turnbull Building Saturday afternoon and evening. The decorations were very effective and appropriate. Yellow and black was the colour scheme. Sunflowers, witches, bats and brownies were everywhere.

The Witches' Home was the centre of attraction, and was the clever work of Miss L. Hamilton. The house was formed of plaster paris, with chimney of pebbles and a wicked looking witch on a broom stick flying from it.

Each table had for a centre a pretty basket filled with chestnuts, surrounded with yellow petals and black bats. The cash-box was a hollow pumpkin, while the "Man in the Moon," caps and aprons worn by those serving were most becoming. A very large attendance was evidence that the Business Girls' efforts were appreciated, and the sum of $65.00 will be added to the Prisoners of War Fund.

The members of the Club desire to thank the Greene Music Co. for the use of a new Edison machine, D. Belleghem for use of tables and chairs, the Daughters of the Empire for the use of dishes, Mr. Might for the use of tea-room, and all others who assisted in making the tea so successful.

$2.00 Wheat Is Expected

Special to The Examiner.

BREAD ADVANCES TWO CENTS PER LARGE LOAF

Now Selling at 16c in Peterborough While in Toronto the Staff of Life has Advanced to 18c.

MAY GO HIGHER STILL

Those who had occasion to buy bread tickets this morning were made aware of the fact that bread had advanced since Saturday night from 14c to 16c per large loaf. Bread in Toronto has been selling for some time at 18c per large loaf, and the advance here from 14c to 16c probably was expected to come some time, but the housewife hoped it would be delayed, and that conditions might improve, whereby the increase would not be necessary. However, it is with us this morning, and if we could be sure that this was all the advance to be made the public might be satisfied, but there is no guarantee as to this. An independent milkman hinted this morning that he thought an advance in the price of milk was likely, and not to be surprised if it came any time.

One housekeeper laid in a supply of $15 worth of bread tickets on Saturday, having sized up the situation correctly.

Ald. Dobbin Appointed To Ontario Executive of the Bonne Entente Movement

The Bonne Entente movement, originated recently by prominent business and public men of Ontario and Quebec, was advanced to a firmer position and a working basis at the meeting in Toronto on Saturday of between fifty and sixty of the men of this province who are working behind this idea. Mr. J. M. Godfrey presided, and after luncheon, which was held at the National Club, a discussion was commenced that covered the suggestions gained in the recent trip to Quebec and a prospect of future action. Ald. F. H. Dobbin, of Peterborough, was the third selection for an Ontario province of fifteen which will represent this province in an inter-Provincial Association, which is expected to issue from the Bonne Entente movement. An executive meeting of the Ontario representatives will be held in about a week, when the ideas and suggestions evolved by them will be concisely prepared for presentation to the Quebec committee at a meeting to be held in Montreal about Nov. 15th.

Thus far the movement has taken a deep root in this province, and it is believed that at the Montreal meeting a staff of officers will be elected and the two executives will unite into one body, cementing the inter-Provincial feeling that has already been engendered. Early in December the Quebec committee will make a short tour of Ontario, visiting Toronto, Hamilton and probably Brantford and London. It is hoped that one of the first fruits of this Entente will be a request from the Quebec members to the Government to take a referendum on the question shown that the Ontario members are unanimously in favour of this military measure, but a strong deputation could be secured from the combined executives and members if there was a preponderance of sentiment among the members of each in favour of the idea.

The encouraging feature appears in the success of Saturday's meeting, and in the prospect that Quebec's prominent men will be as responsive.

Borden Suspends The Recent Changes In Medical Service

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—The Toronto Telegram correspondent cables to-day from London, England—Surgeon General Jones received a cable from Sir Robert Borden instructing him not to return to Canada, as he intended, but to remain in England, for the present. He had to cancel his passage at the last moment.

It is understood that Sir Robert Borden, in his cable instructing Surgeon-General Jones to remain in England ordered all recent appointments to the Canadian Medical Service to be held in abeyance at present, and no further changes to be made.

MILLION HUSBANDS NEEDED IN FRANCE

(By C. F. Bertelli in N. Y. American)

Controversy still rages around the problem of providing husbands for the young women of France after the war. A practical remedy, which has a good chance of being adopted by Parliament, is suggested by Baron Maurice de Waleffe, who proposes that, whilst every effort should be made to make known to the world the fact that a million marriageable French girls are seeking mates, every foreigner who finds a bride here should ipso facto become a French citizen.

In this way, M. de Waleffe points out, not only will France avoid the fate of becoming a nation of old maids, but the imported foreign male stock will, by virtue of their French citizenship, be available for the French army.

The war's toll in dead alone is not likely to comprise less than 1,000,000 Frenchmen, the majority of them being between twenty and thirty years, and unmarried, since very few Frenchmen marry before thirty.

Social workers have refuse to discuss the possibility of the legalization of polygamy. Baron de Waleffe voices a gradually growing sentiment in favour of a vast campaign for the development of international marriages.

Writers Opposed.

Great psychological writers, like Marcel Prevost and Eugene Brieux, are emphatically against a dilution of the pure French stock by extensive international marriages, but they suggest no practical alternative for the mating of hundreds of thousands of girls. The consensus of opinion is that it would be far better to risk the deterioration of the French strain for a generation or two than allow France to suffer from a huge loss of population.

M. de Waleffe looks mainly to the United States to provide husbands for France, because the Franco-American strain has always proved vigorous and progressive, and because anything that helps to weld the two great humanitarian and civilized republics in a closer union tends to the uplift of the human race.

"We have no need to beg foreigners to make our girls happy," he says. "Any foreigner who weds a French girl wins a life prize. Without exaggeration, we can claim that of all European women, the French are the smartest, the most constant and affectionate, and the best housewives.

"Their cooking is unparalleled. And as mothers, no class of women show more care and affection and foresight."

NARROW ESCAPE WHEN REIN BROKE

Mr. Hobart Dunsford had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday. He was driving his horse, which is a spirited one, up Rubidge Street, when one of the lines broke. The horse was turned to the side of the road on to the sidewalk. The buggy was caught between a telegraph post and a post holding the verandah in front of Mrs. Dunsford's store. The driver jumped and escaped any injury, while the vehicle received only minor damages.

As a general rule, lambs would be the better of fairly early weaning. After the average lamb has reached the age of from four to five months, he will do better to be placed apart from the ewes on good fresh pasture and well fed, rather than being left with the dam.—Farmers' Advocate.

MEMORIAL TO LATE PTE. E. B. BOSWELL

At St. Peter's Church, Cobourg, on Sunday, Bishop Sweeney, of Toronto, dedicated a new pulpit and prayer desks, which were presented by Mr. J. E. Boswell, of Toronto, father of the late Private E. B. Boswell, of the Peterborough detachment of the 2nd Battalion. Mr. Boswell gave the pulpit in memory of his wife, Gertrude Ellen Osler, and the prayer desks in memory of his son Ernest, who was killed in action at Langemarck. Choir stalls presented by the congregation of St. Peter's for their late Rector, Rev. Canon A. W. Spragge, who was Rector for twenty-five years, were also dedicated. All the furniture was of quartered oak. Rev. F. J. Sawers, formerly of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, is the present incumbent of the Rectorship of St. Peter's.

MRS. CASTLE HEARS OF HUSBAND'S BRAVERY

Somewhere in the Somme section of France is Vernon Castle, who, with his wife are the darlings of New York society. Mrs. Castle who is to appear in the forthcoming production of 'Patria,' the new photo play serial of the International, has just received a batch of letters from her husband and from some of her husband's friends, telling of his most recent work as an ensign in the British Royal Aviation Corps. Mr. and Mrs. Castle write to each other each day, but, because of the infrequency of the mails the letters usually reach their destination in large numbers.

Vernon Castle's division of aviators as now attached to the French army of General Foch. On Tuesday, October 3, the New York dancer led a flight of seven monoplanes over the German lines, located Genermont and the Boville farms for French artillery, and brought back his aviators without an accident. As a result of the work of the American aviator, the French captured several salients, for which he will be decorated by the French Government.

While Mrs. Castle is putting forth the greatest effort of her life, to make impressive and forceful the remarkable preparedness play, 'Patria,' Castle is devoted to his work for the cause of the allies. He is doing really wonderful work, and is the idol of the Royal Aviation Corps. Many tempting offers have been made to him to quit the army and return to the stage, but to all of them he has replied:

"I'll quit when France and England quit."

Mrs. Castle, who came down to New York from Ithaca, where 'Patria' is being screened, for a day's rest last week, is intensely proud of her husband's achievements.

"Some persons imagined that Mr. Castle entered the aviation corps for publicity purposes," she said. "I hope they have changed their minds. He is as brave and daring a man as there is in the British army, and is daily risking his life for the cause he believes to be just."

The Italians Following Up Their Successes

Trieste is Now Within Fire of the Italian Guns—A Total of 5,500 Men and 18 Guns Captured in the Last Two Days

A DEATH BLOW

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME, Nov. 3.—Following up their successes south-east of Goritz, the Italians have advanced on a mile front on the Gortz-Vogers railway and are battling on the heights near Kemperlisee. Further south the Italian centre broke through the Austrian lines for an advance of nearly a mile east of Oppacchasella. The Austrian defences were pulverized and attacking infantry rounded up groups of dazed enemy soldiers.

The battle is extending southward to the Adriatic. The Italians are attacking Austrian lines north-west of Duino, an important railway point called by some military writers the key to Trieste.

The opinion prevails here that General Cadorna is preparing to strike a death blow.

NEARING TRIESTE.

ROME, Nov. 3.—The Italian offensive continues vigorous. Forces are now within ten miles of the Austrian port of Trieste. Total of 5,500 men and eighteen guns captured in the last two days.

LATER DESPATCH.

ROME, Nov. 3.—All night fighting in new Italian offensive. Trieste now within fire of the Italian guns.

BIGAMIST SENTENCED IN BUFFALO

Rochester, November 1. George Fred Nichols, a street car conductor, was convicted of bigamy in the county court at Buffalo, and sentenced to four years and four months in the Auburn prison.

Nichols induced Annie Sadie Brown of Toronto to elope with him, and on October 6th married her in Buffalo.

The Toronto girl's guardian found her living with Nichols here and caused her arrest.

Since then a Strathroy, Ont., girl claimed Nichols married her a year ago. He deserted her in the spring. A child was born to their union in August. Nichols' home is in Vienor, south of here. His first wife died several years ago, leaving him with five children.

THE BREMEN AT BOTTOM OF SEA, NOT CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH, ASSERTION OF CAPTAIN KOEING

Commander of the Deutschland Says His Own Vessel Dived Ninety two Feet Under Enemy Cruisers—Storm Gave Him More Trouble Than the Blockade, He Asserts.

SUBMARINE IN COLLISION WITH TUG IN FIRST ATTEMPT TO LEAVE BREMEN

Kaiser Conferred Six Decorations on Him For First Successful Voyage to America—To Carry Back Cargo of Nickel and Rubber.

NEW LONDON, Conn., November 3.—Under cover of darkness and a heavy mist a Prussian merchant submarine, the Deutschland, slipped into the harbour here at five minutes past twelve o'clock Wednesday morning and made fast at the State pier, East New London. Her evasion of two cordons of Allies' scout cruisers, one in the North Sea and the other just outside the three-mile limit of the United States, caused shipping men here to gape with astonishment for the second time within four months.

The Deutschland, according to her captain, Paul Koenig, and Paul G. L. Hilken, American manager of the American Merchant German Ocean navigation Company, is provided with no guns or offensive armament of any kind. James L. McGovern, Collector at the port, who examined the vessel within a few hours after her arrival, declared that she was a merchant craft in every sense of the word and did not take advantage of even the privilege of carrying a small gun for defence.

CARRIES A $10,000,000 CARGO.

The Deutschland's cargo approximates five hundred tons, valued, according to Captain Koenig, at $10,000,000, and consists of dyestuffs and drugs for the most part. Included in the cargo is a quantity of uncut gems. The chemicals, he said, included salvarsan, asperin and other drugs needed here. It was hinted by both Mr. Hilken and the Captain that bonds, securities and stock consigned to bankers in America are stowed in the vessel's hold.

Official correspondence from the German State Department to Count von Bernstorff filled three mail sacks, which were placed in Captain Koenig's charge before the Deutschland left Bremerhaven on October 10. The mail was started for the Embassy in Washington late Wednesday afternoon First Officer Franz Krapohl acted as messenger.

With only three exceptions the same officers and the same crew came with the Deutschland on her second trip to this country. Three of the men who made the first trip were discharged, Captain Koenig said, because they were unable to stand the rolling and pitching of the vessel in stormy weather.

The Deutschland left Bremerhaven in midday on October 10, Captain Koenig said. The voyage was the stormiest he ever had made, and for two days the vessel made absolutely no progress. For more than five days the men of the crew were kept constantly on a vigil, ready to submerge on sight of belligerent war ships.

The submarine is now lying closely guarded in a specially constructed pier. On one side of her a German merchantman, the Willehad, blocks her from view. On the other side the freight shed, built of steel, completely

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every pair passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

BEST HUN ARMY ON SOMME

German Soldiers Object to Belittling of British Troops.

German views about you are changing, writes D Thomas Curtin, who spent ten months in Germany, in an article to The London Times. The contempt in which the English were held before the war has now been transferred to my own nation. Good propaganda work for England is being done, if very slowly by the returned German soldiers, either wounded or on leave from the western front. It is to the efforts of these soldiers and their officers that the prattlers of the long-legged English soldier-comrade, a Highlander—running for dear life or saying that he won't fight another battle unless he gets an extra five shillings, are disappearing from the comic papers. The editors of these newspapers have received protests from German soldiers in the trenches saying that such pictures are untrue and do, in fact, belittle the German soldiers, who have to fight such unexpectedly worthy enemies. For it is the flower of German infantry that are sent to meet you on the Somme. It was the best available German troops that were destroyed in wave after wave in the great German defeat at Verdun. They are now systematically sending their best against the British, Australian and Canadians. That was admitted to me repeatedly.

An Australian is the inventor of a recording target which shows the course of bullets in relation to both stationary and moving objects.

SEES HARD WINTER OF FIGHTING AHEAD

English Correspondent Says Germans Are Savage and Discouraged But Not Beaten—The German Divisions Are Less Staunch and Less Dependable Than the Picked Formation of Two Years Ago—Allies Are Inflexibly Determined to Secure a Complete Victory.

A DESPERATE STRUGGLE AHEAD

LONDON, November 3.—A despatch to The Daily Express from Percival Phillips, who is with the British Army in the field, says:

"Hope of early peace has been abandoned by the German Army on the Somme. Apparently realizing that the Allies are inflexibly determined to secure a complete victory in the field, the enemy are busily preparing for a hard Winter campaign, with even harder fighting as the prospect for next spring.

"The people at home who are prophesying peace at Christmas will do well to accept this fact. They must look forward instead to many months of a bitter and desperate struggle before the German war machine is finally broken and the nation behind it is ready to accept the terms of the conquerors.

"The German army is savage and discouraged and disturbed by stories of domestic unrest, but it is still far from beaten. The German divisions are less staunch and less dependable than the picked formations of two years ago, and lack the invincible optimism of the later formations, but they include, nevertheless, well-trained, well-equipped, and capable men, who must still be reckoned as serious opponents in battle and many blows like those of the last three and a half months will be required to bring them to submission.

"There is not the slightest doubt that this can be done, but it will not be done quickly. Deterioration of the rank and file undoubtedly exists and it will increase as time goes on, but we have to reckon with other factors as well.

"The German higher command is not suffering from shell shock. The recent defeats have goaded it into renewed efforts. The highly trained professional leaders in control of Germany's fighting forces are preparing for a new phase of the campaign with characteristic foresight and thoroughness, making the best of all the material at hand and profiting by the lessons of the Somme to the extent of revolutionizing certain methods of waging war and of maintaining the inevitable defensive."

Children Had Eczema Doctors Failed To Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and so directly prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs W. L. Barnes, Tidnish, Que., writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on the forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried D Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend and in a month's time my child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be excelled as a nerve restorative pills, one a dose."

Mrs George M. Nair, River Charlo, N.B., writes: "We use Dr Chase's Ointment in our home and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and sprains. A few years ago a friend of mine whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advice of a neighbour they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to sufferers friends who I now will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

He heard some one cautiously turn the key in the door, and then as it swung back a few inches the woman's arm was visible in the opening. The man had stepped out of sight.

Duvall did not wait any longer. He sprang forward, throwing his entire weight against the door. It swung inward enough to enable him to enter.

The woman, pale and determined, faced him. Her companion, overcome with surprise, gazed helplessly at the intruder. Kicking the door shut with his foot, Duvall covered the pair with the revolver. "Give me that gun!" he said.

The woman recovered her courage first. "Grab him," she cried. "He won't dare shoot," then flung herself violently against the detective's breast.

The impact of her attack swept Duvall's arm to one side. He saw Vernon make a rush toward him and pulled the trigger. It was, however, too late. His aim had been completely disarranged—the bullet sped harmlessly to one side.

Then began a terrific though unequal struggle.

Strong as he was, Duvall found himself no match for the two who opposed him. The woman fought with the strength and the fury of a tigress. She hung about his neck, clawing desperately at his face, and not only succeeded in removing the major part of his disguise, but considerable skin as well. Vernon seized hold of his arm, twisting it until the pain forced him to drop the revolver to the floor.

And then the door was flung open, and a couple of frightened stewards, under the leadership of Beauregard, the first officer, burst into the room.

"What the devil does this mean?" demanded the latter, gazing in perplexity from Duvall to the purser.

"It means," said the latter, "that I came in here to speak to this lady for a moment and this lunatic, disguised in a false mustache and wig burst in with a revolver and then tried to kill me. He must be crazy."

"Evidently," the first officer remarked, fixing the detective with an angry gaze. "What is the meaning of this, my friend?"

Duvall saw that under the circumstances that it would be quite useless to attempt any explanations here. "I will explain the matter to Capt Bonnot," he said. "Take me to him at once."

The third officer evidently thought the suggestion a good one. In a few moments the entire party was assembled in Captain Bonnot's room.

He looked them over critically. "Who is this man?" he asked, as his eyes rested upon Duvall.

"I do not know," explained Beauregard. "It appears that ever since we left New York he has been palming himself off as M. Lefevre, the prefect of police of Paris."

"On the contrary," broke in Vernon, "it is quite true."

"Then Lefevre has not been on board at all?"

"So it would appear."

WOMAN A PHYSICAL WRECK

Tells in Following Letter How She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a physical wreck. I had been going to a doctor for several years but he did me no good. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I decided to give it a fair trial, and it gave me relief from bearing down pains which had been so bad that I would have to lie down. I also used the Sanative Wash and it has done me a great deal of good, and I am not troubled with a weakness any more." — Mrs. P. L. BRILL, 1299 Booth Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

The most successful remedy for woman's ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test for forty years, which would be impossible if it did not have genuine merit.

For special advice, free, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

"Who are you?" the captain asked, turning to Duvall.

The latter returned the gaze steadily. "Just at present," he replied, "I decline to answer that question."

"What is the trouble, Beauregard? Why have you brought these people to me?"

"This fellow"—the first officer indicated Duvall—"broke into this lady's stateroom, where Mr. Vernon was speaking to her, and attempted to shoot Mr. Vernon with a revolver. Upon an explanation being demanded he declared that he would explain his actions only to you."

"I am ready to do so," said Duvall, "but I insist on making my explanations in private."

"Explanations may be all very well, my friend," remarked Vernon angrily, "but they cannot alter the fact that you attempted to murder me."

"And broke into my room," cried the woman. "He must be a madman. I shall not feel safe if he is allowed at large. Captain Bonnot, as a lady, travelling alone, I demand your protection while on board of this vessel."

"And you shall have it, madam." The captain was plainly very angry. "Leave me for a time so that I may hear what this fellow has to say." The others at once retired.

"Well," said Bonnot, when they had gone, "what does all this mean?"

Duvall drew out his handkerchief, and wiped his bleeding face. It was streaked with dirt and badly scratched by the vindictive efforts of Vernon's companion. His hair was dishevelled, his collar and tie awry, and altogether he presented a very forlorn and disreputable appearance.

"From your present appearance, and your actions since coming on board of this boat," went on Bonnot, "I should take you for either a dangerous lunatic or a crook. That you are an impostor, I already know."

"Captain Bonnot, you are being grossly deceived. The man you think to be Vernon is not Vernon at all, but a dangerous criminal, as I have already told you. This woman is his accomplice. They have in their possession the one franc piece which was stolen from the safe on board of this vessel. I heard them talking the matter over not half an hour ago. I insist that you order them both placed under arrest."

Instead of quieting Bonnot's anger, Duvall's words only increased it. "Are you still harping on that nonsensical idea?" he demanded. "I tell you that you are mad. About the woman I know nothing, but your assertions concerning Mr. Vernon are ridiculous. If you persist in them I shall be forced to order you placed in confinement until after we reach Havre."

"I do persist in them," Duvall explained, his temper for the moment getting the better of him. "And if you, Captain Bonnot, are foolish enough to let these rascals escape I shall hold you responsible for the consequences."

His words made Bonnot furious. He pressed a button upon the wall, then turned to Duvall, his face crimson.

"So my friend, you defy me, it seems. You evidently forget that as a captain of this vessel I am my own authority, responsible to no one. I shall have you confined in your stateroom until we reach Havre to-morrow. After that you may explain your coming on board this vessel under false pretenses, as well as your attempt to shoot one of my passengers, to the police."

Send M. Beauregard here," he called to the steward, who answered the ring. "And tell him to bring two men with him." The man saluted, and withdrew.

"You will regret this, monsieur," said Duvall, angrily. "You are making an extremely stupid mistake."

"Very well. If I am I am willing to stand by it. At least it is my duty to see that you do not commit further assaults upon my passengers." Beauregard he called to the first officer who came to the door of the cabin, two stout French sailors behind him. "See that this man is taken to his stateroom and that he remains there until we turn him over to the police at Havre."

The first officer looked at Duvall with a chilly and unfriendly eye. "Come," he said, motioning to the corridor.

There was clearly nothing else to do. Duvall went. In a few moments he was locked in his room. A man stood on guard outside the door. They were due to reach Havre in the morning.

He waited for a few moments, then tapped very softly upon Grace's door. As soon as she opened it he passed in to her room. "We can talk better in here," he said. "There is a man on guard outside my door."

"Richard, what is the matter?"

He explained the circumstances to her in a few words. That pig-headed old fool, Bonnot," he growled, "is determined to let these people get away."

"Do you suppose that they will go at once to Paris?" Grace asked presently.

"Vernon will. The woman has some business in Havre which will take her several hours. I should like to know what that business is."

"I'll find out for you. I'll follow her, and see what she does. You will be released, of course, as soon as the prefect's men arrive. Either Veraet or Moreau will certainly be there in response to M. Lefevre's cable, and you know how much they think of you."

"I know," he explained in an exasperated voice. "I shan't have any trouble of course; but by the time I have seen them and explained matters this fellow Vernon will in all probability be safely on his way to Paris. Captain Bonnot will not release me until the passengers have all gone on shore, of that I am sure."

Grace considered this phase of the matter for some moments in silence. "I might tell them," she said after a while.

"If you stop to talk with them you will in all probability lose sight of the woman. She will undoubtedly go ashore at once. It is more important not to lose track of her than to follow Vernon, for she will inevitably lead us to him."

"Yes—you are right. I will come to Paris as soon as she does. You will go there at once? I suppose you will go to the Ritz, as usual?"

Duvall nodded.

"Then I will communicate with you there as soon as I arrive."

CHAPTER XVIII

BONNOT GETS A SURPRISE.

The Richelieu swung majestically toward the mouth of the Seine and the port of Havre.

Groups of excited passengers lined her rail, chattering volubly in half a dozen tongues concerning their plans, the friends they expected to meet at the pier, the coming ordeal with the customs officers.

Captain Bonnot stood awaiting the arrival of the health officers, who were presently seen splashing seaward in their fussy launch.

He shaded his eyes and examined the occupants of the boat expectantly. The case of the prisoner who had impersonated the prefect worried him. He was anxious to turn him over to the police.

Upon the boat deck, quite alone, a man leaned against the rail and also watched the approaching launch. He, too, had about him an air of expectancy.

In a short time the launch drew alongside and those aboard mounted to the deck. The man who had been observing them in solitary silence descended and stood among the little crowd of passengers which surrounded the new arrivals.

He was a mild-looking man, with large, black-rimmed spectacles, gray hair and a scraggly black mustache. His worn and shiny frock coat suggested the impecunious professional man.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessings to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, biliousness, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

40,000-TON WARSHIP.

Being Built by Britain—Will Carry Ten 18-Inch Guns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. Sea Power, the organ of the Navy League of the United States, will make the statement editorially in its issue of this week that "it is hardly to be doubted that Great Britain is preparing a surprise for the world in the way of a battleship bigger and better than any existing type."

"It is reported," says Sea Power, "that Great Britain is installing eighteen-inch guns on her latest type of battleship. We are informed also that a reliable observer, recently returned from England, saw under construction there a battleship (or battle cruiser?) larger than anything building or contemplated elsewhere, so far as he knew, but it was fe[w] in and he could learn very li[t]tle about it.

"The Navy Department, it is s[aid] has received rumours that Gr[eat] Britain is building one or m[ore] battleships of 40,000 tons displa[ce]ment. It is believed that, if this [is] true, these vessels will proba[bly] carry batteries of ten eighteen-i[nch] guns."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A MISSING LETTER

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

My wife, who is predisposed to auctions, was perambulating the street one day when she came to a dwelling with a red flag at the door. She went in and bought a small library of books. It was brought home and added to our family collection. My wife took the books one by one and dusted them all, giving each a cursory examination. Between the leaves of one of them was a letter, sealed and stamped, addressed to James Overaker, in a neighboring city, which had not been mailed.

I was appealed to for an opinion as to what should be done with it. I advised that it be taken to the house from which it had come. This was done, but the place was deserted. I then advised sending it on its way through the mail, but since it might be lost I wrote our address on the upper left hand corner. In a week it was returned. My wife then insisted on making a dead letter office of ourselves, opening the letter, learning the address of the sender and returning it to her. I say her, for the address had been written in a feminine hand.

Before I could stop my wife she had opened and read the letter.

"The brute!" she exclaimed, handing the letter to me.

The writer was evidently a young girl who had had a spat with her lover and either had sent him off or he had left her of his own accord. She wrote that she was heartbroken over their separation and had decided to ask him to come back to her and "make it up," though Sue—whoever that might be—had said she would be a fool to do so.

"It looks to me," I said, "that this Sue is the mischief maker in this case. I wonder if she didn't cause the trouble in the first place."

"What makes you think that?" asked my wife.

"My most cogent reason is your finding the letter in the book. Evidently the writer was bent on posting it, but was unable to withstand Sue's influence. It was laid away for consideration as to whether it should be mailed or not—and never mailed.

"I am going to send it back to the poor girl and advise her to send it. No man could resist such an appeal."

"Send it to her without the advice."

The letter was inclosed in an envelope addressed to the location given, which was the house where the books had been bought, with a statement of its finding. I inferred that the postmaster had been advised of the new address and would deliver the letter accordingly. I was right. In due time a letter came from the writer of the one returned, thanking me for sending it. Her name was Winifred, and this time she signed her full name, Winifred Marbury. She said that she had supposed the letter had been posted. Her cousin, Susan Fountain, had agreed to post it for her, but had delayed doing so, thinking she (Winifred) might regret having sent it, and the letter had been forgotten.

I smiled cynically.

"Do you doubt the poor girl's story?" asked my wife.

"I do not doubt that she is more confiding than bright. This Sue, instead of posting the letter, hid it in the book. Her explanation is a falsehood."

"I wonder if that is so? I'll write back and tell this Winifred Marbury that she has been duped."

"She'll not believe you. If you wish to do some altruistic work find the man and tell him to find the woman."

"What woman?"

"Sue."

"Explain."

"Tell him to get his girl from under Sue's influence. No; it's no business of yours. Send him the correspondence, if he is too stupid to perceive where the trouble lies he is no loss to any girl."

This got me into trouble. My wife started me on a hunt for the lover. I finally secured his address, and my wife mailed him the correspondence, including a copy of the original letter. The very next day the gentleman called on my wife when I was at business to thank her for having interested herself in the matter. He told her that he had been wavering between the two cousins, though he really wished Winifred. He was convinced that Sue had acted dishonorably in the matter, and he was sure he could convince Winifred of the truth.

Doubtless if he had seen me instead of my sympathetic wife he would have confined himself to thanks.

"You men," she said to me, "are brutally unsympathetic. If it had not been for me these lovers would have never been reunited."

"If it had not been for my discretion," I replied, "they would have been further apart than ever. She would have got the fellow, and you would have been hopelessly mixed up in it."

"Not at all. If I had had my way the matter would have been settled long ago."

I am not in the habit of holding a prolonged argument with my wife, for I consider myself incapable of breaking down her logic. I therefore made no reply to her last statement. When cards came to the wedding she said to me:

"That couple whom I reunited are going to be married. We're invited to the wedding."

"Indeed," I replied. "When does it come off?"

"Next week."

NOT TO BE BRIBED

Dutch Journalist Offered Any Sum—No Pan-Germanism!

Louis Raemaekers, the famous Dutch cartoonist, writes: As far back as the first few months of the war three Germans in Amsterdam tried to buy the services of a very well known Dutch journalist who was connected with many Dutch provincial newspapers. The facts are well known and were subsequently published in the Telegraaf and other papers. This journalist was offered a fortune if he would start a campaign in his papers to persuade the people that it was necessary to call in the German soldiers and cannons to defend our harbors against an invasion by the English. The idea was to create a public opinion which would bring pressure to bear on the Dutch Government.

"So you wish me to drop poison in the ears of the people?" said the journalist.

"Yes," answered the Germans.

"But I am already anti-German."

"That does not matter. If you will do this you can ask what price you like—10,000 marks, 100,000 marks—"

The journalist refused and informed the authorities. There is no question that this has always been the object of the German Government.

For more than fifty years German politicians and professors have spoken of us as Germans and as being geographically the door of the German house. Friedrich List, a great German writer, said: "Holland belongs to Germany as much as Brittany and Normandy to France, and as long as Holland remains independent Germany can never develop to her full strength, any more than France could when these two provinces belonged to England."

That expresses the attitude of the German Government and the German people to-day, although it was written before the middle of the last century. I have seen maps circulated in Germany showing what they think will be the extent of her Empire in 1920, and Holland is included in the black expanse which engulfs nearly all Europe.

Decline of Spiritual Life in the Churches

Our last letter foreshadowed a gleam of better things approaching. There is no standstill in the works of creation, neither is there in religion. Its votaries are either advancing or declining. It is passing strange to see the humble instruments that God uses to accomplish His purposes; it is not by might nor by power but by My spirit, saith the Lord. A brand plucked from the burning, like the apostle, a shepherd lad with a sling and a pebble from the brook goes forth in the name of the Lord, and slays the giant Goliath; encompassing Jerico for seven days, and blowing ram's horns, the strong walls of the city fell down, and the Israelites went straight before them and took the city. These simple people took Jehovah for their leader and obeyed His commands and as long as they did this, victory attended their arms, and they drove their enemies before them. Well might Israel say, Had not the Lord been on our side when men rose up to slay. Happy is that nation whose God is the Lord; and he who is like George Whitfield, who early in life chose God for his friend, laid up treasure in heaven, and many of those who had been saved by his instrumentality and had gone to the heavenly mansions before him would be waiting at the gates to welcome him. Luke 16th chap., 9th verse. Make to yourselves friends, of the mammon of unrighteousness that when ye fail they may receive you into everlasting habitations. Whitfield joined the Holy Club, as it was nicknamed, but I have a lovely engraving of its members, and piety and intelligence is stamped on every feature. If we had one generation of young men like Wesley and Whitfield they would evangelize the world. When we read and sum up the product of these two illustrious saints' lives the very best of men feel how little they have done, even with all their privileges and accomplishments. The world owes them a debt of gratitude for their self-sacrificing labors, and only the judgment day will reveal how much mankind is indebted to them.

Whitfield kept a daily journal of his life; he fell sick and was seriously ill, but through the kindness and the attention of his fellows, the Wesleys, he recovered. He calls this sickness "A glorious visitation." He spent much of his time in reading and in prayer, I thirsted for a clear discovery of my pardon through Jesus Christ, and the seal of His spirit. I was enabled at that time to look up with faith to the glorious Lord Jesus as dying for sinners.

Whitfield was now like the apostle, whose life like his own mostly resembled, ready for action though strongly restrained by a humble diffidence his scruples were overcome, and he was ordained as an evangelist at the age of 21 years. The discovery of a free salvation so complete filled his spirit with ecstacy, and from their great deep breaking, his affections flowed impetuously in the one channel of love to the Saviour. He traversed England, Scotland and Ireland for 34 years, and crossed the Atlantic 13 times preaching the gospel of Christ. A bright and exulting view of the atonement's sufficiency was his theology; delight in God and rejoicing in Jesus Christ was his piety, and a compassionate solicitude for the souls of men was his ruling passion. He was one of Christ's freemen in an eminent sense. He loved all who loved the Saviour; he like Paul sent not to baptise but to preach the Gospel. He preached his first sermon in 1736 in England, and drove 15 people mad, according to the report given to the Bishop by some of his hearers that in preaching that all men of all ages and conditions must be born again or never see the kingdom of Heaven. This was a new doctrine and he found himself practically alone. Critics of a later day have discovered to their astonishment that the sermons which turned the world upside down were composed of common thoughts, simply expressed. They were not common when he began to utter them—it was the effect that God wrought through the consecrated genius of this wonderful orator. Whitfield was fitted to his day and to his country where the work was done. His first sermon was preached in his native parish Gloucester, in his 22nd year. He then went to London, where the success of the boy preacher, as he was called, was great amongst people of all ranks, rich and poor, high and low, in the churches and streets. He preached the glad tidings, and multitudes were powerfully affected. Lord and Lady Huntington constantly attended wherever he preached, and Lady Anne Frankland became one of the first fruits of his ministry among the nobility of the metropolis. While he preached in London such multitudes assembled that it was necessary to place constables at the doors, both within and without, and on Sunday mornings in the latter months of the year, long before day, you might have seen the streets filled with people going to hear him with lanterns in their hands.

Leaving London in about two months he went down to Hampshire, amongst a poor class of people. While there a call came to him from the Wesleys from Georgia, which he at once accepted. While in Bristol where he preached for some months he conducted a service five times a week. It was wonderful he says to see how the people hung upon the organ rails, climbed upon the heads of the church, and made the church itself so hot with their breath that the steam would fall from the pillars in drops. Sometimes almost as many would go away for want of room as came in, and it was with difficulty he got into the desk to read the prayers or to preach. Persons of all ranks gave him private invitations to their houses and some made him large offers if he would not go abroad. When he came to London those who had heard him before urged him to preach incessantly; he preached nine times a week, and thousands went away from the largest churches unable to gain admittance.

Whitfield had undoubtedly a dramatic genius of the most extraordinary power but disclosed and called into play by nothing less than the glory of God. He had a voice of rich compass, which could equally thrill over Moorfield's in musical thunders or whisper its secret in every private ear.

I have a few more thoughts and facts to finish up this subject, which I will defer until the next letter.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland.

Deutschland's arrival was telegraphed to James L. McGovern, Collector of the Port of the District of Connecticut. Mr. McGovern was in Waterbury when news reached him, and he started in an automobile for New London. He made the trip in two hours. At the pier he was escorted aboard the Deutschland by representatives of the Eastern Forwarding Company. He examined the ship's papers and went through a perfunctory search for armament.

A few minutes later one of the examining physicians arrived from the Quarantine station. The men of the crew were submitted to a physical examination. There was no illness among them and they were passed by the physician.

MAKE SECRET OF THE MANIFEST

By nine o'clock in the morning a large throng had gathered in front of the pier entrance. An extra detail of policemen requested by the Deutschland's agents were on hand to prevent the more curious from climbing over the fifteen foot fence that surrounds the company's property and all lookers were warned away.

At half-past ten o'clock Captain Koenig left the vessel and walked to an automobile with Mr. Hilken, agent of the Deutschland's owners. They were driven to the Customs House, where a Deputy Collector examined the manifest and admitted the vessel under bond.

The Collector of the Port said that the manifest would not be made public until permission was received from Washington.

After declaring his cargo Captain Koenig returned to the office of the Eastern Forwarding Company for a conference with the officials of both the agents for the cargo and the agents for the Deutschland's owners. Later he took luncheon at the Mohican Hotel.

Captain Koenig met the newspaper men in the Mohican Hotel and told the story of the voyage.

The Deutschland left Bremerhaven on October 10 in the middle of a strong southwest gale. She was navigated on the surface until the North Sea was reached. She then submerged.

An attempt to leave port was made on October 1, but the submarine came into collision with a tug and was obliged to return for repairs.

Passing under the surface of the North Sea, Captain Koenig set a course between the headlands of Scotland and the Orkney Islands. Here several patrol cruisers of the British navy were sighted through the periscope and the Deutschland dived ninety-six feet beneath the surface, passing directly under the war ships.

"We observed the New York traffic rule, 'safety first,'" Captain Koenig remarked.

DIVES AT THREE MILE LIMIT.

Once clear of narrow channels and the dangers of scout cruisers the submersible set a course that took her just north of the regular track of ocean travel.

No Man's Land was sighted at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Deutschland was then running on the surface. This was not deemed dangerous, Captain Koenig explained, because of thick mist and fog.

At the three mile limit she dived and remained under water until well inside the line. It was almost midnight Tuesday when the entrance to New London harbour was reached. A heavy fog overhung the lower harbour and rather than waste time waiting for a pilot Captain Koenig decided to navigate himself.

As the Deutschland arrived at a point half way between the entrance to the harbour and her pier, the tug Efco, which had been steaming up and down outside the three mile line for almost two months, came alongside. The Efco and was not needed and the Deutschland moved slowly to the end of her pier. The tug was used to pull her stern around and prevent collision with the bulkhead.

The Deutschland completed her voyage of a little more than 4,000 miles without a single mishap. According to her commander, the powerful Diesel oil engines never once failed to perform up to the standard they set on the first trip. In the oil tanks when the submersible left her home port were 150 tons of oil. Only one-half of the supply was burned on the trip across.

OIL TANKS REFILLED QUICKLY.

From the haste with which the empty tanks were refilled as soon as the vessel was in her pier, men in touch with the activities of the Eastern Forwarding Company and the German Ocean Navigation Company are of the opinion that the Deutschland will leave here as soon as possible. A tank car filled with internal combustion engine oil was run out on the pier alongside of which the submarine lies and pipe lines were connected. The tank car, according to men in the freight yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, has been on the siding for more than a week, in readiness for the arrival of the German merchantman.

Captain Koenig readily answered questions concerning the building of additional super-submarines. He denied the report that a submarine known as the Amerika had been constructed. The Bremen and his own vessel, he declared were the only submersibles of the merchant class. He admitted that it is possible that the contruction of similar craft may be now under construction by the Deutschland's owners. They are well satisfied with her performances, he said.

Captain Koenig did not appear to be enthusiastic over the prediction that merchantmen submarines may be one of the leading factors in rebuilding Germany's trade after the close of the war. He said they would be impracticable in that there is no reason why a vessel should move under the water when the surface of the sea is open to navigation.

"The submarine is essentially a vessel of war," he declared. "It is considered possible by shipbuilders that submarines even larger than the Deutschland—submarines of the cruiser class—may be successfully used. The time of the battleship of the super class has passed. It is the day of the super-submarine a far as war on sea is concerned."

During the Captain's talk of his former voyage to this country the subject of interference by small fishing vessels as he passed out of the Chesapeake Bay was brought into the conversation.

Captain Koenig declared that fishing vessels presumed to be under American register sought to aid the Allies' patrol by hindering the submarine's passage through the capes. He said that through the periscope of the Deutschland he and some of his crew saw small fishing smacks standing off the cape and apparently signaling to other steamships that he could not see. Enlarging on his charge of interference by American fishermen, he added that they were "probably well paid."

At Mr Hilken's suggestion Captain Koenig then told of his reception by Kaiser Wilhelm, "somewhere on the eastern front." He described the simple meal that was placed on the table detailing the dishes that were set before the Emperor and members of his personal staff.

Captain Koenig was honored on the occasion by six orders of knighthood. These included that of the Cross of Hohenzollern, the Order of St. Michael and the Crown of Honour of Saxe-Coburg. He said that Emperor Wilhelm thanked him in the name of the German people for successfully completing a transatlantic voyage in a submarine.

Captain Koenig brought no message addressed to President Wilson, he said. The possibility that such a message might be included in the official correspondence addressed to the German Embassy was suggested and he admitted it might be true.

When asked concerning the nature of the cargo that will be placed in the cunningly constructed compartments of the Deutschland, the German commander denied any knowledge of what is will be. He said it would be a cargo similar to that loaded on the submarine when she came here on her first voyage.

Learn New Trick in Loading.

As a matter of fact, the cargo for the Deutschland has been in New London for almost two months. Those who saw it unloaded from freight cars said to-day that it included among other things large quantities of rubber and nickel. From longshoremen it was learned that the forwarding company has taken advantage of the Baltimore experience in loading nickel ingots in the Deutschland's hold. The nickel to be carried to Germany on the return trip was cast in moulds shaped to the vessel's hull. This will give space to a larger amount of the metal and will insure it against shifting with the roll of the craft.

The value of the return cargo has not been made public by the agents. It is surmised that it probably will include other freight besides the nickel and rubber and will have a greater value than the cargo taken to Germany on the former trip.

Captain Koenig brought news of experiments being made by German pathologists to discover a serum with which to combat infantile paralysis.

"When I was here in July," he said, "I read in the newspapers of the great number of deaths of young children who fell victims of infantile paralysis. Upon my return to Germany I informed specialists on children's diseases of the plague that was then so virulent in America. They have experimented, but I do not think they have arrived at certain results.

"One reason for this is the scarcity of monkeys in Germany. Those we had in the experimental laboratories have become fewer in the last few years, and we have not been able to import others to take their place. Be assured, however, that the physicians in my country will do their best to aid in the suppression of the disease, and on my next voyage here I may bring with me a quantity of serum."

Captain Koenig's talk then drifted to a discussion of the feeling of the German people toward the United States. He denied that there ever existed a feeling of hatred toward this country. He flatly refused to discuss questions regarding the progress of the war.

Arrangements are being made for a reception to Captain Koenig, his officers and crew. The arrangements for the reception are in the hands of the Chamber of Commerce.

From end to end State street was brilliantly illuminated by the newly installed electric lighting system. Prussian sympathizers dressed their homes with red, white and black bunting.

EXCRUCIATING PAINS IN THE BACK

CAN BE CURED BY USING DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Many women suffer from excruciating pains in the back. They are not even able to look after the common duties of their household. The whole trouble is that the kidneys have become affected. On the first sign of a weak, lame, aching back you should not neglect it, for if you do some kidney trouble will follow.

What you want is a kidney remedy, not a "cure all" but a remedy for the kidneys only. This you will find in Doan's Kidney Pills. Mrs. Wm. L. Peck, Sardis, B.C., writes: "I have the greatest pleasure in telling you that I used three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I find that I am entirely cured after having suffered for two years. My back used to hurt me so that I would almost cry out with the pain. I would advise any one suffering from kidney trouble to go at once and get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Pills are the original kidney pill, they being on the market long before any other remedy of the kind was ever thought of.

They are put up in an oblong grey box.

The trade mark, a "Maple Leaf."

Price 50c a box, 3 for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MISSING WINDSOR GIRLS ARE LOCATED IN DETROIT.

Windsor, November 2. — Through the efforts of the probation officer W. H. Hackney, Helen and Eva Knapp, aged 11 and 14 respectively, of this city, have been located in Detroit. The youngest of the girls is willing to come home but the elder girl when she found that they were being traced skipped from the house where she had been staying to another part of Detroit.

Helen, the youngest, wrote a letter to her mother, asking forgiveness for stealing a sum of money. The broken hearted mother was eager to forgive them both and so one of the girls will be restored to her.

TRIBUTE TO FRENCH WOMEN.

Dr. Bois Calls Them the Valiant Sentinels of the Rear.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Dr. Jules Bois, the French poet and dramatist, who is delivering a series of six lectures at Columbia University under the auspices of the Institute of Arts and Sciences, devoted his third address to "The French Woman: Her Individual and Social Role."

"French civilization is integral; not only intellectual," he said. "It is also sentimental; not only masculine but feminine. It addresses the heart as much as the mind and comes from both. That is why it is human and shines in the strength of sympathy for other races and nations.

"French civilization is bi-lateral. It is the result of the understanding between the French man and the French woman, loving and working together. Also the feminist propaganda has not had a boisterous aspect with us. The woman has above all been preoccupied by persuading and convincing the man by example. Intellectuals or politicians are almost unanimously disposed to grant to the French woman her political rights; but it is she who is not flurried, who but asks her new rights progressively that she may be better prepared to exercise them.

"The heart and the mind of the French woman from pure treasures of modesty, scrupulousness, of disciplined discretion, not only in the family and schools, but in the chapels of our churches near the sepulchre and today in the van of the train of wounded, near ambulance beds. It is to defend this treasure, the wife, the daughter, or the mother—as well as to protect the sacred soil of ancestors, that to-day the Frenchman fights.

"It has been said with truth that the French women held back their tears at the departure for the front of their husbands, their brothers, their sons. They thus gave them more courage. They are still the valiant sentinels of the rear. Truly the French woman watches; she is the sentinel who, from afar, foretells; the sentinel whose cry announces danger, calls to arms, supports the attack.

"The war of trenches has altogether changed the order of battle. The sentry of to-day is no longer so much the little watch stationed in wind, rain, cold, darkness, gun in hand; often at the rear, frequently not far behind the firing line, it is the wife, the sweetheart, the sister, the mother, the daughter, the bride. In the home left empty by the man these labour for the fighters; in the hospitals they nurse the wounded, sometimes risking their lives, and as it has often happened, giving them; they pray for the dead and for the living; by their perpetual sacrifice, their militant virtue, collaborate in the victory which God and our arms will grant us."

GOOD ROADS AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Nov. 1.—The county of Frontenac, in co-operation with the City of Kingston, is establishing a suburban area to secure provincial aid for good roads.

SUGGESTION TO WOMEN

Who Are "Just Ready To Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help. You can get it just as Mrs. T. S Hunt of North Lethbridge, Alta., did. She says:

"I keep house for my family of five and became completely run-down. I had such weak spells I could hardly stand up. I had no appetite, had short breath, was languid and suffered from headaches. I tried different medicines and tonics without help. One day I read about Vinol and tried it. Before the second bottle was taken I noticed a great improvement. I continued its use and now feel much stronger, and find my household duties a pleasure." Mrs T. S Hunt, No. Lethbridge, Alta.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body-building and strength-creating tonics.

So many letters like the above are continually coming to our attention that we freely offer to return the money paid for Vinol in every case where it fails to give satisfaction.

THE BRITISH CAPTURE ANOTHER TOWN IN MACEDONIA FROM THE BULGARS

Another Success on the Left Bank of the Struma--British and French Also Advance on the Somme Front--Teutonic Advance Into Roumania Has Been Definitely Checked While Italians Score Fresh Successes and the Fall of Dunio is Reported To-day.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SALONIKA, November 3.—British troops on the left bank of the River Struma, in Greek Macedonia, have taken by assault the Village of Alitsa from the Bulgarians.

Capture of Dunio By Italians Rumoured

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME (Bulletin), November 3.—An unconfirmed report reached here to-day that Dunio had been captured by the Italians.

German Statement Reports Gain Made

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, November 3.—An official statement to-day claims that the Teutons made an advance southwest of Predeal, capturing 350 Roumanians.

Russian troops charged seven times yesterday in an unsuccessful attempt to recapture positions taken by the Germans on the Naryvuka southeast of Lemberg, says the Berlin War Office.

German Sweep Is Definitely Checked

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Eng., November 3.—In Transylvania the Roumanians are fighting with confidence, holding all the Teuton assaults, while in the Jiul Valley they are pursuing the routed Bavarians. The Austro-German sweep is now believed definitely to have been turned back.

British Capture Trench at Guedecourt

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, November 3.—British troops captured a German trench east of Gueudecourt in a resumption of fighting on the Somme front yesterday, General Haig reported to-day. The position was secured last night.

Germans Admit the Loss of Ground

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, November 3.—The Germans lost ground in the Village of Sailley on the Somme front yesterday, but repulsed hostile attacks elsewhere in the western theatre of war, it was officially announced to-day.

The fighting in the western war theatre was generally within moderate limits, said the official statement. There were small actions in the Somme district and strong artillery fire. The houses of Sailly that were captured by us were lost again yesterday morning in hand-to-hand fighting. A hostile advance east of Gueudecourt and against the northern part of St. Pierre Vaast Wood failed.

The French fire against Fort Vaux decreased toward evening.

In the eastern theatre of war, on Prince Leopold's front, the Russians suffered exceptionally severe losses during fruitless attempts repeated seven times, to recapture positions stormed by us on October 30, west of Foly Krasnolesie on the left bank of the Narayuvka.

Youngster Wandered Away While Family Was Busy Moving

Conductor Girven of the Street Railway Company discovered on one of his trips this afternoon that he had picked up a little boy of four or five years who was unaccompanied by an adult. At the end of the "run" the boy was the sole passenger left. He brought him to McDermaid and Jury's drug store, where the youngster enjoyed what was to him the wonderful and diverse attractions of the show cases. P. C. Pratt, who was called in, immediately identified the boy as Freddy Jubb, son of Mr. A. A. Jubb. The little chap held his hand up to him, and P. C. Pratt took him home on a street car. The family had moved to Edinburgh street only yesterday and in the consequent disturbed conditions of the household, had wandered away from home. When the constable arrived the mother almost fainted away. She had been greatly alarmed about her boy, and had vainly searched the neighborhood.

Funeral Services of the Late J. J. Turner, Sr.

The first part of the funeral of the late J. J. Turner took place at the family residence, Holly House, 476 Charlotte street, this morning at 10.30 o'clock. There was a large attendance, largely representative of our business and professional citizens. The Sons of England Society was represented by the President, Secretary and Treasurer. The religious services were conducted by Rev. W. H. White, followed by the usual service of the Masonic order. There was a most profuse contribution of floral tributes. The funeral party left by the 11.40 G.T.R. train for Port Hope, where interment took place. The pall bearers were all members of the Masonic fraternity: Messrs H. Rush, T. F. Matthews, Dr. Halliday, Wm. Butler, G. A. Gillespie, R. B. Rogers, Thos. Hooper and E. A. Peck. A considerable number of citizens went down to Port Hope.

"The Geisha" in Aid of Peterboro' Progressive Club

The forthcoming performances of "The Geisha" to be given by the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society will be staged at the end of November under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey.

The proceeds will be devoted to the funds of the Peterborough Progressive Club, whose splendid work includes "Aids for prisoners of war", "Red Cross" supplies and "Trench Comforts".

The performance of "San Toy" last winter realized $800 for the 93rd band instruments, and it is hoped that the present venture will be even more successful.

BRITISH SAILORS' RELIEF FUND TO ORGANIZE HERE

Branch of Splendid Association to Be Formed in Peterboro' to Carry on the Great Work of Caring For the Sailors and Their Families

A LECTURE ON NAVY

Active steps are being taken at the present time by a small committee formed for that purpose to organize a branch of the British Sailors' Relief Fund Association in the City of Peterborough, and it is expected that this movement will receive a strong and a hearty encouragement from all citizens.

The chief officers for Canada are:

Patron—H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught.

Honorary Presidents—Right Hon. Sir Robert L. Borden and Hon. J. D. Hazen.

President—Wm. G. Ross.

Vice-President—Jas. Carruthers.

Hon. Treasurer — Major David South.

Hon. Secretary—M. P. Fennell, Jr.

Among the prominent citizens of Montreal connected with this Fund are: Robert W. Reford, A. A. Allan, Archbishop Bruchesi, Hon. R. Dandurand, Bishop Farthing, Sir Herbert S. Holt, Howard G. Kelly, Sir H. V. Meredith, John Torrance, Commander J. T. Walsh, Royal Naval Reserve, and many other prominent citizens.

The funds raised will be used for assisting in the work of the Seamen's institutions and hospitals in Great Britain, thus rendering assistance to the men of the British Navy, the Mine Sweepers, who have manned the fishing crafts, and the seamen of the merchant ships, who have suffered at sea in the terrible conflict in which the world is now engaged, and their families.

The local committee have been very fortunately able to secure Lieut. Ellis of His Majesty's Royal Navy, to deliver an illustrated lecture on the British Navy for Thursday evening, November 9th, in the Assembly room of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. Lieutenant Ellis has a magnificent collection of naval pictures, and these pictures explained by a young and dashing officer of the naval service will undoubtedly be of great interest at the present time.

Posters will appear in the course of a few days, and in the meantime the public are advised to make no engagements for that evening that would interfere with their attendance.

NO MATINEE

"Hobson's Choice" Only Here For An Evening Engagement To-morrow

"Hobson's Choice," the comedy which appears at the Grand Opera House to-morrow (Saturday) night, promises to be the holiday event of the season. The public should understand that there is no matinee performance. The company does not arrive in the city until 12.10, and they carry such a mass of scenic effects that it is impossible to stage a matinee, so that the All-Star English Company will be here only for to-morrow night.

Sensational Charge Made

Hamilton Men Accused of Plugging Shells in Munition Factory So That They Would Explode When Handled

ARE GERMAN SWEDES

Special to The Examiner:

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 3.—Asserting that a mass of evidence will Eric H. Nylin, father and son, were employed by the German Government to plug and mutilate shells in the munition plant of Bawes, Jamieson & Co., Crown officials this morning told Magistrate Jelfs that a charge that would practically amount to high treason would be launched against the prisoners.

The Inspector's assertion was that the shells were so plugged that they would explode while being handled. Bail was refused.

"I wouldn't give bail at $20,000," said Magistrate Jelfs.

"You men are much safer under lock and key. If such a charge had been laid against you in the United States, the jail where you were kept would be mobbed and you would be lynched. It is the most dastardly attempt against the lives of Britain's soldiers, if it is true, that I have heard of."

The defendants are said to be German Swedes.

Rifle Exploded When Lifted Out Of Canoe On Shore

E. G. Barnes, of Toronto, conductor of the C.P.R. Toronto mixed train out of Peterborough, was the victim of the first hunting accident of the season. He and two other Toronto men were duck shooting at Quill Lake. Yesterday morning he was one alone and paddled about a mile up the lake. While lifting out his shot gun when he had reached shore it exploded, and part of the charge entered his leg. He stopped the flow of blood by winding his handkerchief as a tourniquet above the wound and hobbled back to Windover's. Arriving there he received first aid, and a little girl at the home set out and searched the woods until she found Mr. Barnes' friends, one of whom was a doctor. Later they motored to Peterborough, and the injured man was able to continue his home trip on the 5.30 p.m. G.T.R. train to Toronto.

It is not expected that there will be any serious consequences to Mr. Barnes' accident. His leg was pierced in several places.

Varied Odds On Result of The Elections

Special to Examiner:

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Reports on the Presidential election betting odds varied widely to-day. Republicans reported odds on Hughes were from 10 to 7, and 10 to 6 1-2, while the Democrats said the prevailing rate was 10 to 9 and 10 to 8 on Hughes.

Washingtonians are betting on Hughes at 10 to 9.

Hughes' Long Trip.

Hudson, N. Y., Nov. 3.—By the time Charles E. Hughes reaches New York City to-night, his tours for votes completed, he will have travelled close to 30,000 miles in a most comprehensive, nerve-racking oral effort for votes any presidential candidate has ever undergone. Save for about 12 days, the Republican nominee has been continuously travelling and stumping. Since August 5th he has made speeches in 33 of 48 states and passed through two or three more without walking. He has been from Atlantic to Pacific and from Maine to Tennessee. He finishes his campaigning in absolutely perfect physical trim.

Wilson's Warm Welcome.

New York, Nov. 3.—Thrilled and inspired by New York's wild welcome President Wilson sailed from here on his presidential yacht Mayflower to-day, enroute to Shadow Lawn. The President and his advisers believed the greeting of thousands here augured auspiciously for November 7. It was as he, himself, called it, "a royal welcome."

The city fought, screamed, bellowed, elbowed, stamped, roared, jammed and hip-hip-hoorahed its greeting. Two of the most enormous crowds that ever fought their way into Madison Square Garden and Cooper Union were on hand last night to hear the President on his first campaign visit here. It is estimated 75,000 persons welcomed the President here and heard his speeches.

MR. N. W. ROWELL BRINGS A MESSAGE FROM THE SOMME BATTLEFRONT

"Men and More Men is the Need of the Hour" Says the Liberal Leader During the Course of An Address Given Last Evening in George Street Methodist Church—A Question That All Eligible Young Men Must Answer.

WITH THE CANADIANS

Eloquent and forceful was the message that Mr. N. W. Rowell, leader of the Liberal party in Ontario brought home last evening to a large audience in George Street Methodist church in a quiet dignified, yet emphatic manner Mr. Rowell reviewed the outstanding events of his recent visit to the Somme battlefront, where he had every opportunity of witnessing a portion of the stupendous task as represented by the gigantic struggle on the western front. Men and more men is the need of the hour and Mr. Rowell unhesitatingly challenged all eligible young men to get out and assert their manhood in the defence of the Empire and the liberty which is involved in the issue.

MR. E. A. PECK PRESIDED

The meeting was held under the auspices of the 57th Chapter of the I.O.D.E., and other local bodies. Mr. E. A. Peck, ex-M.P.P., presided. Mr. Peck paid an eloquent tribute to Mr. Rowell's qualifications as a speaker and public spirited citizen. Miss Dorothy Allen sang the French national anthem and was loudly applauded.

MR. N. W. ROWELL.

Listening to the inspiring notes of the French battle song calls to unit the one million French soldiers who have laid down their lives to live inspiring music, said Mr. Rowell. During my visit this summer to the Somme front I crossed over to France on a transport carrying South African troops. No finer tribute could be paid to British institutions and traditions than the sight of those South African troops, who after a victorious campaign in Africa were going forward to reaffirm their loyalty to the British Empire. My first taste of warfare was experienced the morning after I arrived at the Canadian front. I was aroused by the sounds of rapid firing and upon investigation learned that an aerial attack was in progress. A few of our men were wounded and the enemy repulsed. At that time Canada had three divisions in the field comprising every branch excepting an aviation corps. Over three hundred Canadians are engaged in the Imperial aviation corps and I was informed that Canadians were preferred for this particular branch of the service as they showed unusual skill and daring. The divisions are made up of three brigades with four battalions to a brigade. Two brigades hold an assigned section of the trenches and the third brigade is held in reserve. There is a complete transition of all forces from one point to another every few days. The 19th and 21st Battalions were holding the front line trenches when I arrived on the scene.

THE MORNING AFTER

The morning of the second day of my visit to the front, I was permitted to witness a bombardment from a point located between the first line trenches and the batteries. Our side succeeded in completely silencing the enemy's machine guns and trench mortars. The cessation of the bombardment was followed by a significant silence broken only by the singing of the birds. It was a remarkable contrast.

Mr. Rowell described the nature of the trenches and the many devices used to facilitate the work of the soldier. The speaker was surprised to find so few men in the trenches. The General said there was no object in keeping large forces in such exposed positions. The men who were in the

Major Ackerman To Take Command of The 247th Battalion

Peterborough Officer Who Went Overseas With the 2nd Battalion to Lead the New Peterborough Unit With Capt. O'Flynn, Also a Veteran of the 2nd Battalion as Second in Command—Major W. D. Johnston Resigning From the Command—To-day's Military News.

Major Chas. Ackerman, of Peterborough, is to succeed Major W. D. Johnston in command of the 247th Battalion. This is the latest development in local military circles, and while not yet officially announced from Ottawa, has been settled. Major Johnston, who has been in command since the 247th was organized, is resigning from the position. Major Ackerman, who before the war was an officer in the 57th Regiment, went overseas with the 2nd Battalion and after seeing much hard fighting was severely wounded and invalided home. Since recovering from his injuries he has been on the headquarters staff at Ottawa. Associated with him as second in command of the 247th will be Capt. O'Flynn, of Belleville, another veteran of the 2nd Battalion, recently back from the front. It is felt that these two young energetic officers with an experience gained in the trenches of Flanders should appeal to the eligibles of Peterborough and district in the matter of joining the new battalion. Major Ackerman met the officers of the 247th this morning and went into recruiting plans with them.

PTE. GEO. HOWE.

In the Examiner last night there was a report of the wounding of Pte. Geo. Rowe of Lakefield, and through a strange similarity in names, the details given were incorrect. Two Lakefield soldiers by the name of Geo. Rowe, one born in Smith and the other in Lakefield, and not related in any way, went overseas with the 93rd. The Examiner said last that it was Pte. Geo. Henry Rowe, son of Mr. J. J. Rowe, of Douro, who was wounded. This was an error. The soldier who was hit was Pte. Geo. Rowe, son of Mr. Wm. Rowe, 355 Mark street, Peterborough, and formerly of Lakefield. Pte. Rowe was one of the first to enlist in the Lakefield platoon of the 93rd, joining in December of last year. He was born in Lakefield and is in his 26th year. His wife and two children live in Lakefield. Pte. Rowe went over with the 93rd and was transferred in a draft to the 52nd Battalion. His brother Howard also went overseas with the 93rd.

DAILY ORDERS.

By Major W. D. Johnston, Commanding the 247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Orders for Saturday, Nov. 4th

(1) Parade—

All officers, N.C.O's and men except those specially employed, will parade in the drill hall, Armouries, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

(2) Duties—

Orderly Officer for Saturday — Lieut. F. J. Hayes.

Next for duty—Lieut. Bourke.

(3) Strength Taken On—

Pte. A. W. Hives, was attested on the 2nd of November, assigned No. 1063829, and posted to A Company.

Pte. W. H. Thompson was attested on the 2nd of November, assigned No. 1063860, and posted to Band.

(4) Leave—

Lieut. R. G. Johnston is granted leave of absence from 12 noon Saturday, Nov. 4, to 12 noon Monday, Nov. 6, 1916.

(5) Notice—District Order 771—

Many members of dismounted units are in the habit of wearing breeches of drab cloth, which are only authorized to be worn by mounted units. It is possible that these soldiers obtain the clothing in question from members of mounted units, and as the value of these breeches is nearly twice those of trousers, drab serge, the department is at a considerable loss in this connection.

R. B. BROOKS, Lieut.
Acting Adjutant, 247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Pte. W. H. Sugden, of Stirling, a former member of the 21st Battalion, has returned to join the 247th Battalion. He is the first recruit from North Hastings.

HARD ON THE HUGHESES.

For some time the name of Hughes has been one to conjure with. But the self sufficiency that has contributed to its vogue and notoriety seems to have come to an end. Premier Hughes of Australia, visited England and gave that obsolete country considerable advice as to how to run the country in war time. He has come a grief in his own country and lost, not only his conscription enterprise, but a good slice of his cabinet, and something of his repute as a statesman. Our own Hughes, the gallant Sir Sam is also being cabinned, cribbed, confined. Instead of being it in his cabinet relations and supreme in his department, he has had a deputy-minister appointed. The large powers he exercised have been curtailed and the big space he has occupied is circumscribed. The Government has even appointed an overseas Minister of Militia for Canada, and without giving Sir Sam a chance to make the first incumbent an honourary colonel. Altogether from Sir Sam's point of view and reach, and in point of fact, the pomp and circumstance of a war law have deteriorated. There is another Hughes, across the border, who is a present in the melting pot of a presidential election and we have yet to see whether he will escape the hoodoo that has hoodooed the other prominent members of the Hughes clan. Can it be that in spite of Shakespear's poetical suggestion, there is something in a name after all?

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The decision of the Privy Council leaves no doubt that the Ontario government has the constitutional power to require and provide that in all the schools of the province, public and separate the English language is the official school language of the province, the language of instruction and communication between teachers and pupils, meaning that every school pupil shall be taught English from the time of entering in school. It also means that special provision may be made that, in the case of pupils entering school with speaking knowledge of no other language than French, that language may be used as the language of instruction and communication. The judgment of the Privy Council makes it clear that English is the official language of Ontario, and puts an end to the contention of Nationalist extremists, that French as well as English is an official language in Ontario. Now that a judgment, from which there is no appeal, has finally settled the dual language question in the matter of right, it is to be hoped that the controversy that has engendered so much bitterness will give place to an earnest desire for co-operation of contending claimants, and restore the harmony that has been so greatly disturbed by the bilingual question. Legitimately, the only controversy now possible will be as to the best means to provide that every child in Ontario shall be furnished with a sound English education, such as will equip it for taking its place successfully in the ranks of citizenship, with the greatest promise of good.

MESSAGES FROM THE FIRING LINE.

The splendid and informing address of Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., at the George Street church last night should have a stimulating effect upon recruiting and upon the interest taken in caring for the consequences of the work of Canadians on the firing line.

In the first place it was addressed to an audience representing every kinds of religious association and every social condition. There was noticed a large representation of the wives, mothers, and other relatives of the four hundred Peterborough soldiers, whose boys made sacrifices and endurance suffering in this war. To these Mr. Rowell's message was one of comfort. He detailed the wonderful completeness of the arrangement for caring for the wounded from the firing line to the hospitals in England. He was able to tell the anxious friends of the wounded that for skillful surgical and medical treatment, tender care by the nursing sisters, they could be assured that the Canadian wounded would get the best attention, humanly possible to give. But the idea was impressed that in this case much would depend upon the continuous supply from Canada of hospital supplies and comforts, a work that will not be neglected if as, doubtless is the case, the 57th Chapter I. O. D. E. is a type of the other local organizations. We owe it to those who are fighting our battles, assuring us the permanency of our liberties, and the integrity of our rights and privileges under British institutions, to stand by them and support them in the splendid work they are doing and in whose performance they are, by their courage, resourcefulness and splendid efficiency covering the name of Canada with credit.

The burden of Mr. Rowell's message from the men on the firing line can be condensed in a few words, that will force home pointedly a national duty upon home-stayers "Take good care of the wounded when they come home" should stimulate us to a popular attitude of reverence, of sympathy and helpfulness to those who have, while we have been living peacefully, happily and safely at home, suffered wounds and incurred partial disability for us. When we see a wounded soldier on our streets, our hearts should go out to him, our thoughts should be busy in his interest and our hands should not be idle. The problem of fitting the returning soldier into the home berth, in industrial and social life should be an obsessing interest to all of us.

The main part of the message of Mr. Rowell from the Canadian firing line should put our eligible fighting population upon the firing line—"Send us more men; and still more men". Mr. Rowell tells us the Canadian soldier on the firing line are cheerful, hopeful and confident of ultimate victory—on conditions. These conditions consist in maintaining the superiority in men, in munitions, in morale, which now obtains.

While Canadians are cheerful and hopeful, they are only human, and there is a limit to their physical endurances if there is none to their courage and optimism. As they tell us more men are needed, to supply the wastage of war, to keep the ranks up to numeral strength, and to keep the men physically fit and heartened. Trench warfare, amidst the aerial hell of thunderous bombardment and the deadly hail of shells, is both physically and morally exhausting. Men are needed to give the soldiers a sore needed rest. Some of them are in the trenches for months without a chance to rest, because they are none from Canada to take their places. The lines must be held and advanced and there can not be a chance to rest unless men and still more men are supplied from Canada.

The appeal for more men does not come to a country destitute of men physically fit. There are thousands and thousands of stalwart young men who do not stop to think of these things; they are not cowardly, nor without enterprise or ambition, but they simply do not think. As Mr. Rowell believes they will respond if they are brought to realize the seriousness of the situation; if they can be made to see their duty to stand by the soldiers who are fighting their battles, fighting for continuance of their peaceful and comfortable and easy conditions of living, our young men fit to fight, in thousands, selfishly, and thoughtlessly and indifferently enjoy.

Mr. Rowell's message from the Canadian soldiers should make our men and our women think, and, especially the young men physically fit to share the gallant struggles, and splendid achievements of the Canadian soldiers on the firing line, who send across a thousand leagues of sea the echo of the Macedonian cry of twenty centuries ago—"Come over and help us."

CONSIDERATIONS CONCERNING GOVERNMENT RAILWAY OWNERSHIP

In the current issue of the Journal of the Canadian Bankers' Association there appears an interesting article on "Why the Intercolonial Does Not Pay" by Mr. J. L. Payne of the Department of Railways and Canals, in reply to an article by Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age Gazette, of Chicago. Mr. Dunn's article appeared in the Journal of Political Economy and dealt with "The Failure of Government Ownership in Canada."

Mr Dunn spoke in Toronto along the same lines, as recently as this present week, and to illustrate his point that government owned railroads had not been a success in Canada, quoted the Intercolonial.

Mr. Payne, in his article, points out that, in the first place, Mr. Dunn

"is entirely wrong in assuming that the experiences of the Intercolonial can properly be taken as demonstrating either the success or the failure of government ownership in Canada. It is quite true that the government owns and operates the Intercolonial; but the Intercolonial was built to serve a peculiar and specific purpose, wholly apart from the question of whether or not government ownership was preferable to corporate ownership."

Mr. Payne explains the object of building the Intercolonial. It was, he says, a definite bargain made between the Maritime Provinces and the Upper Provinces of Ontario and Quebec at the time of Federation. The people of the Maritime Provinces pointed out that the market most accessible to them was that of the Eastern States, open the year round, while Ontario and Quebec could only be reached during the season of navigation This offered a barrier to further negotiations but the western delegates found a way out by guaranteeing that the proposed Federal Parliament would provide for the construction of a railroad from Halifax to the River St. Lawrence. This proposition was accepted and made a part of the British North America Act of 1867, and the Intercolonial was built.

The Intercolonial was therefore an integral part of the Confederation pact, and has remained until the present, in the strictest sense of the word, as the seal of union. There was no whisper of the road being built or operated by a corporation and it was known that there was no possibility of profit being returned on capital outlay. The Intercolonial was unavoidably and necessarily a public project and unless the public of Canada are prepared to break faith with the Maritime Provinces, it must remain in that position.

"The only reason why the Intercolonial has not had large net earnings year by year," says Mr. Payne, "is that its transportation charges are too low." To make good the assertion the writer points to the operating results of the Canadian Pacific for the statistical year 1913, the best year the C.P.R. had, and contrasts them with the Intercolonial for 1912.

In 1913 the Canadian Pacific had net earnings of $46,049,764, while the Intercolonial "merely made one hand wash the other." The Canadian Pacific Railway earned, from carrying passengers, $34,986,156 on a per passenger per mile rate of 2.563 cents. The Intercolonial, from the same source, received $3,439,447 on a rate of 1.617 cents. The Canadian Pacific rate was considerably higher than the Intercolonial, and under an exchange of rates the Intercolonial would have earned $777,-069 more and the Canadian Pacific, $6,474,104 less.

The freight earnings were: Canadian Pacific $48,101,523; Intercolonial $8,928,760. The Canadian Pacific rate was .734 cent per ton per mile, and the Intecolnial .570. An interchange of rates would have meant $34,051,716 less for the Canadian Pacific, while the Intercolonial would have earned $3,040,784 more.

On those figures, Mr. Payne states, the Intercolonial, instead of balancing income and outgo, would have had a surplus of $3,787,673; the Canadian Pacific, instead of net earnings amounting to $53,049,764, would have had a credit balance of only $12,523,944. The Canadian Pacific, on a cost of $475,370,064, would have earned precisely 2 6 per cent., while the Intercolonial on a cost of $97,127,-091 would have earned within a shade of 4 per cent. Viewed in still another light the Intercolonial net earnings would have been $2,540 per mile, and the Canadian Pacific $269 per mile. The operating mileage was in one case 1,491 and in the other 12,917.

"The Canadian Pacific, net," Mr. Payne concludes, "would have been barely sufficient to meet fixed charges, and a dividend payment on stocks would have been impossible. If the Canadian Pacific had been tied down to Intercolonial freight and passenger rates in 1881 it would inevitably have been in the hands of a receiver long ago."

"In the matter of aggregate profits, it must not be forgotten that the Canadian Pacific treasury has been fed with very large returns from land sales and the operation of subsidiary enterprises. If the application of these tests results so favorably to the Intercolonial it is not worth while following Mr Dunn through a maze of minor calculations, seeing that the difference in transportation charges answers them nearly all. Despite the alleged waste, mismanagement and political interference, to which Mr. Dunn has given emphasis, it still remains irrefutably true that if the Intercolonial had the rates of the Canadian Pacific it would yield even better financial results than does that prosperous road.

"To increase rates would seem the natural course, if the troubles of the road are due to low charges, but such a thing is not as easy as it appears. Whether or not they are justified in their view, the people of the maritime provinces hold that it was an essential part of the bargain that the road should be operated at cost, disregarding interest charges, and the practice of nearly half a century has given support to that contention.

"In the final analysis, the question as to whether or not the Intercolonial has paid cannot fairly be answered by statements. The value of confederation rises above monetary considerations, and we could not have had confederation without the Intercolonial."—Ottawa Free Press.

GERMANY USING CRIMINALS.

Put Into Most Dangerous Service at the Front.

D Thomas Curtin, writing in the London Times, says: Throughout the war Germany has used every scrap of material in the Empire to help to win. To one who knows Germany, therefore, it does not come wholly as a surprise to learn that she has heeded the demands from some quarters to put criminals in the most dangerous service at the front, where they are driven to their work. I have heard it stated on excellent authority that some of them have actually been chained to the machine guns and been given this terrible chance to fight for their lives. This is a radical departure from former German boasts that no man with a criminal record was allowed to serve.

OAK HALL

409-11 George Street M. J. Maher, Mgr. Peterboro

Mr. N. W. Rowell Brings a Message From The Somme Battlefront

trenches were made up of snipers, machine gun men and sentries. Mr. Rowell told of one sniper who had seventy-six nicks on the stock of his gun, indicating that he had accounted for that many Germans. The Canadians are credited with being excellent bombers, due it is said to their practical knowledge of the science of baseball. The speaker did not meet a single Canadian but what was cheerful, despite the fact that death lurks on every hand. The engineers represent a wonderful branch of the service. They are responsible for the construction of narrow guage railways, bridges, trenches and innumerables other things, common to present day warfare. The motor transport service also represents a gigantic task.

MEDICAL CORPS.

Mr. Rowell referred to the excellent work accompanied by the Army Medical Corps. He said people should not be disturbed over the controversy that has arisen in connection with this branch of the service but should leave that in the hands of the proper authorities to straighten out.

"I can assure you", said Mr. Rowell, that all that Medical skill can do is being done. Slight cases where a man may recover within three weeks and return to duty are treated in France likewise; serious cases where a man is too seriously wounded to be moved. All other cases are treated in England. The nurses are also playing a conspicious part in the war and are doing a noble work at considerable self sacrifice. "I visited some of the last resting places of our Canadian soldiers," said the speaker and I could not help but think that—'Greater love hath no man than this that he lay down his life for his friends'.

"When I asked some of the men if there was anything I could do for them upon my return, they replied—'Take care of the wounded that go home'. We must fulfill that commission, said the speaker. They also said —'Send us men and more men'. They are under no delusion as to the ultimate issue but they realise that a great many more men are required. I wish I could think the war will be over in a couple of months, but that would not be true to anything I saw. We can maintain our superiority so long as we can make up for the fearful wastage. Think of the Princess Pats which has been wiped out a great many times. We must not underestimate the magnitude of the task and the urgency of the need for more men. Every young man should ask himself the question—'Why should I not go', and answer it in a way satisfactory to his conscience and his God. At this crucial, when on the battlefields of Europe is being decided future civilization, every eligible young man should go. We have only one life and what better way could we enter a more glorious life than by laying it down on the field of honour in the defence of liberty, justice and truth.

His Worship Mayor Duffus in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker made a few remarks, expressing appreciation of Mr. Rowell's visit to Peterborough and the stirring message which he brought with him. This was seconded by Rev. Canon Cornish and heartily endorsed by the audience.

Threshing Not Half Done in the West Say Returned Men

Four Peterborough men home from the West last night stated that the threshing in the Western Provinces is not half completed. For the most part the grain is still stooked in the fields, exposed to intermittent storms of snow and rain. One of the men stated that the Ontario harvesters had offered to pile the stooks for the protection of the grain, but their employers had stated that it was unnecessary. But the fine weather that then prevailed has changed to the varying quality that precedes winter.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL "LIT" HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the Normal School Literary Society was held in the Assembly Hall on Monday afternoon, October 30th.

A splendid programme had been prepared consisting of speeches from the President, Mr. Love, the Honourary President, Mr. Walker, the first vice President, Miss Nelson, the second vice President, Miss Barry, the treasurer, Mr O'Keefe and the critic, Mr. Gullett.

Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Johnson, who was accompanied by Miss Honey and Miss McBride accompanied by Miss Lake. A reading was given by Miss Lawrence. The meeting closed with the national anthem.

Trustees Erred In Dismissing Teachers

A case of interest to school teachers and trustees was decided to Judge Wiseman at Midland recently. It appears that at Easter last, two teachers closed school at three o'clock in order to catch trains to get home for their Easter holidays. The trustees objected to this and the teachers were dismissed. They appealed to the Teachers' Alliance and action followed. One teacher in a primary grade followed a long establishment custom in the school in closing at three o'clock and the other had left a qualified teacher in charge of her classes for the last hour of school, and the court ruled that the regulations had not been contravened, that the teachers had left the school with the full knowledge of the principal and that the trustees had erred grievously in dismissing them. He allowed the teachers the full two month's salary and expenses, the school board to pay the costs.

To the Editor of Daily Examiner:

Dear Sir,— There has been something said in the Examiner lately about the excessive cost of living. I wish to say something about two articles which every house uses, milk and bread. Milk is delivered at the stations in Montreal at four cents a quart. It is retailed from house to house at 8, 9 and 10 cents a quart, allowing a cent of this for sterilizing the milk and putting it in the bottle. We get a cost of four cents a quart for delivery. Much of this milk is delivered in pints instead of quarts and the change is only half as much for delivering a pint as delivering a quart, so thats taking the pints with the quarts one may say that the cost of delivery is about three cents a package. We may therefore set down about three cents on every loaf of bread as the cost of delivery. Now Bolivar street is only a short street, but I think there was five or six milk rigs come on this street, perhaps more, perhaps less, and a good many rigs with bread. Horse feed is very high, all but hay, oats retailing at 70 cents per bushel. I think men's wages were never so high. By the adoption of the system of organized delivery whereby only one milk waggon would have to pass along each street of a morning, and only one baker's waggon, each of these waggons delivering one of the principal brands of bread or milk that might be called for the cost of delivery would be greatly reduced. And more than that I think most of the milk rigs take the milk from where it is produced. Now I do not wish to find fault, but I must see some of this business how it is done, and while I do not pretend to know much about how business is done in the city, I did think that I did know something about farming, having followed it upwards of 30 years.

I think there has been no farmer in the county of Peterborough could have run his business in that way and not have failed. I, of course, would like to see some change made, as there must be some room.

Respectfully yours,

J. H. TAYLOR,
589 Bolivar street,

"Meat Prices Will Not Come Down" is the cheerful news from the Department of Agriculture. Meat prices will not worry the man or woman who knows that a Shredded Wheat Biscuit will supply more real body-building nutriment than beefsteak or eggs and at much less cost. Shredded Wheat remains the same price, the same high quality, supplying all the nutriment a man needs for a half-day's work. Two shredded wheat biscuits with peaches and cream or other fruits make a complete, nourishing meal at a cost of not over five cents.

HYDRO COMMISSION WILL PAY TAXES

Municipalities in the Trent Valley District Will be Protected This Year—Peterboro's Share

CANADIAN NIAGARA CO. MUST SUPPLY BALANCE OF 50,000 BEFORE DECEMBER.

The municipalities who saw a large share of their taxes vanish when the Ontario government took over the Seymour power interests, will not suffer this year at least. Sir Adam Beck has announced that the Hydro-Electric Commission had decided to recommend to the government that the commission be authorized to pay the taxes accruing in the municipalities interested for the ten months in which the properties have been vested in the province.

"The reason we have taken this step is that the tax rate in these municipalities was based upon the receips of these taxes. The sum involved is between $40,000 and $50,000. It will be paid out of the earnings of the companies. If the earnings this year are not sufficient we will spread it over another year," stated Sir Adam.

Another important matter dealt with by the commission was the question of securing further power. The agreement made some months ago by which the Canadian Niagara Power Company, was to put 50,000 horse-power at the disposal of the commission will tide the Hydro system over for another month or two. The commision up to the first of the month was using 25,000 horse-power of the new supply, another 12,500 was called for on Wednesday, and the company has been notified that the remaining 12,500 horse-power must be ready before the first of December.

"We will have to insist upon getting more power, wherever it is available," stated Sir Adam, when asked what the commision proposed to do when the present agreement is exhausted. The demands of the municipalities in the Niagara zone are: Out of taxes will amount to between seven and eight thousand dollars. Peterboro's share in the distribu- necessary at such a rate that more

New Phonograph Will Be Shown In Peterboro'

Aeolian Vocalion Will Be on Exhibition To-morrow Evening in the Warerooms of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, 118 Hunter Street—A Wonderful Instrument

CONTROL OF EXPRESSION

An instrument that will reproduce tones hitherto unthought of on any ordinary record will be on exhibition to-morrow evening in the warerooms of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, Crown Building, 118 Hunter street. This new phonograph is known as the Aeolian Vocalion. Its many superior qualities can best be appreciated by a personal inspection. Mr. Whitehouse is the local representative of the Nordheimer Piano Company, sole importers for Canada of the Aeolian Vocalion. Lovers of good music should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this wonderful instrument. One of its many superior features is a device by a well known Australian that enables the listener to have absolute control of the expression and sentiments of the music. It entirely removes the idea of mechanism and the dependence of mechanical operation such as obtains in a number of phonographs. This new phonograph has a tone that is richer, truer than anything ever before achieved and in addition is susceptible of being played by a human performer. Call to-morrow evening at the warerooms of Mr. Whitehouse and hear this instrument played.

RUSSIAN FOOD CRISIS

Workers Cannot Get Necessaries Without Standing in Line For Hours.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—"The food crisis daily assumes more formidable proportions," says The Times Petrograd correspondent. "The discussion at Wednesday's sitting of the Budget Committee left little doubt as to the gravity of the situation. The speakers emphasized the imperative necessity of adopting ameliorative measures on behalf of the working classes if most unfortunate consequences are to be averted. The situation of the lower classes is at present intolerable owing to the impossibility of obtaining the necessaries of life without standing for hours daily outside provision shops.

"The committee agreed that it was necessary to transfer the control of the whole food question to a single Government department. It also voted in favour of fixing prices for grain, footwear, textiles, kerosene, soap and other things. The committee was also in favor of enlisting the Zemstvos and other publi corganisations in the work of purchasing, distributing and transporting food.

P. C. Dickson Makes Spectacular Stop of Runaway On George St.

Caught Tail Board and Climbed All the Way Out Over Shafts to the Reins and Brought Delivery Horse to Standstill.

The regulars who keep the home fires burning nightly on George street, were provided with an unusual thrill last night when Police Constable Dickson stopped one of Spenceley's express delivery horses in full flight up George street. Apparently it had toed the scratch at the C.P.R. station, for it came all the way up George street, hoofs clattering on the pavement with all the runaway realism affected by a versatile traps man in a movie orchestra.

P. C. Dickson was passing the Peterborough Hardware store about nine o'clock when the Spenceley steed rattled past the Simcoe street corner. He immediately chased into the street and grabbed the rear board of the waggon as it was rolling noisily by. The horse continued on high speed, and the crowd drew excitedly to the sidewalk's edge. In a moment P. C. Dickson had heaved himself into the waggon, climbed out over the seat, and with a foot on either side of the shafts, stepped out over the horse's loins, grasped the reins and just as the animal was about to fall, jerked it to its feet and to a sudden standstill. It was so easily accomplished that it looked commonplace, and yet many a hundred feet of film has been wasted on less spectacular "stuff." It was a real circus stunt, and the crowd that witnessed it gave P. C. Dickson full recognition of the celarity and skill with which he staged his stop-gap. In all his experience with horses back on the family farm near Otonabee, P. C. Dickson never imagined that he would be called upon to assume the stellar role in a nervy feat such as this one appeared. The horse was brought to a standstill almost in front of the Examiner office, and as before mentioned, had stumbled and was about to fall, with the policeman on top of it, when it was jerked back to its feet.

George Yeotes Gets His First Deer North of Burleigh

Mr. George Yeotes shot his first deer on Thursday morning, eight miles north of Burleigh, and experienced hunters complimented him on its size, stating that it was one of the biggest they had seen. George trained his eye along the barrels of rifles in the shooting gallery he helped to operate in Peterborough, and evidently was immune against "buck fever," to which freshmen hunters often fall victims. He telephoned to his brother, Mr. Louis Yeotes, stating that he had shipped the deer, which is due to reach the city tomorrow. Louis feels that if his brother can get a deer it should be easy for him for the reason that in the shooting gallery he used to hang up the bigger score. However, if he doesn't get out into the wilds this year it will be a thrilling prospect for him when the next hunting season swings round.

THE PUBLIC IS HELPING OUT THE COAL SITUATION

By Their Action in Ordering Only as Required It is Keeping Down the Price of Coal Here

The stampede for coal that took place last week, the coal men state, has practically abated, and the situation is such that if coal is ordered in such quantities as to meet immediate requirements only by the residents of the city, very little difficulty is expected in keeping everybody supplied. This the coal dealers hope will be carried out by the citizens, although it will add considerably to the cost of delivery which the coal dealer will have to stand. What was feared was an exorbitant demand that would force the dealer to make purchases of coal from the Independent Coal Companies, which would cost the local dealer, with freight added, more than he is now charging.

It is said there is enough coal in the city at present to last until after the first of the year, if judiciously bought and distributed, and sufficient contracted for and in sight after that time to carry everybody through the winter. It just means that the distribution by the dealers will have to be done in a business-like way. They know the situation better than the consumer and if a householder desires to store in a stock of coal at present to last him the whole winter he need not be offended if the coal dealer takes a stand that he orders only as he needs it.

GYMNASIUM WORK AT THE Y. M. C. A.

A large and enthusiastic audience witnessed the demonstration of gymnasium work by the members of the boys gymnasium classes last night in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium.

The programme consisted of calisthenics, apparatus work, groupe games, high jump, volley ball, and basket ball.

A special feature of the programme was the marching and calisthenics drill by a hundred and twelve boys, this is the largest number ever seen at one time in any drill that has ever been put on the local gymnasium floor.

Mr. G. H. Roper deserves great credit for the manner in which he handled the boys in this number.

The high jump proved very interesting, Gerald Thorndyke who has only one leg took the audience by storm by his great exhibition of high jumping. Gerald made the pole stay on the standards till it reached 4 feet eight inches.

During intermission Mr. C. N. Meserve, General Secretary made a few remarks, impressing on those present the necessity of taking a greater interest in the boys while in their youth, physically, mentally and spiritually.

The great war is killing off the very best of our young manhood, and the object of the Y.M.C.A. now is to develop a high type of strong healthy and clean boys who will be called upon to fill the places of those who are now falling on the battlefield for their fair young country, Canada.

The programme closed with a basket ball game between the senior employed and the Collegiate boys.

Sunday afternoon at 4:15 Mr. C. G. Smith will speak to men and older boys. These Sunday afternoon meetings are proving very instructive and helpful and an interesting meeting is promised for the coming Sunday.

Fort Vaux Bloodless Victory For French

PARIS (French Official Communique), November 3. — French troops reoccupied Fort Vaux without losing a single man. The Germans evacuated the position under pressure of heavy French bombardment and the gradual encircling movement of the French infantry. Before quitting Vaux, the Germans caused several explosions aiming to damage the fort. The French waited until these explosions had ceased and then entered the position without any fighting. All Verdun forts are now firmly held by the French.

WILL ASSIST FLAVELLES LTD.

Town Council Wish to Keep Firm in Lindsay

LINDSAY, No. 3.—A special meeting of the Town Council was held for the purpose of a conference with the heads of the firm of Flavelles Ltd., in regard to rebuilding a cold storage in Lindsay to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Mr. W. Flavelle, who was present, was asked to outline what the firm had in view, and said in part that the firm should hesitate and consider the present time, but if the firm finally decide to rebuild they would like to start at the earliest possible moment. "There are reasons why the firm should hesitate and consider seriously the building of a cold storage plant in town, but if the citizens of Lindsay show a proper spirit and the council, the firm might commence to get matters under way."

The firm, he said, would ask the town if they definitely considered remaining here to do business, ask a guarantee of the firm's bonds for $25,000, and a fixed assessment on probably $5,000 for ten years. The firm will pay all expenses in connection with submitting a by-law and advertising, and will pay school and local improvement tax. With this support behind the firm they would know better what to do and could get their money at a lower rate of interest.

On the motion being moved by Dep. Reeve Babcock, and seconded by Reeve McLean, it was carried unanimously, that the above request be granted the Flavelles Ltd.

Boston Cafe Boy to Have Restaurant In Lindsay Dec. 1

Charlie Janos, late of the Boston Cafe force, will open a quick lunch counter in Lindsay about December 1st. He has formed a partnership with a Toronto boy and they have purchased the counter and kitchen equipment of the Empress Cafe. Charlie was a hustler with the Boston, and will likely provide the Lindsay people with an up-to-the-minute lunch.

C. P. R. TRAIN WRECKED

WHITBY, Nov. 3.—A C.P.R. freight train loaded with mules for overseas was derailed here at 4.30 this morning, and eight cars were piled up. None of the crew were injured, for though the under of the engine was turned completely over the forepart remained upright. Probably twenty mules were killed. Three of the cars were completely swung around at right angles, others were overturned, and another swung up at a sharp angle. A gang of men set to work and freed all the mules that were living, herding them into nearby fields. A wrecking crew cleared the line.

One-third to one-half as much butter as sugar for all butter cakes.

Bruin Had No Respect For Chief of Police If This Story Is True

The story is told, but of course it can't be true, that Chief Thompson was recently chased by a big black bear through the rocky scrub north of Burleigh. How the report filtered through from the upper section of the county is not definitely known, but the Chief naturally maintains a line of communication with the city and possibly he casually mentioned having seen or shot a bear, and the report, like a snow ball rolling down hill, gathered volume and weight in its passage. It may be that Chief Thompson chased the bear for miles before he managed to get a shot at it and brought it down with a bullet through the head. This is a more reasonable estimation of the occurrence if indeed there is any truth in it. Charley White, Geo. Yeates and P. C. Wigg complete the party.

PINNED BENEATH OVERTURNED HACK

Mr. Stephen Callaghan of Ops Township, was the victim of a severe accident this week. He was driving through the yard at his home when the cattle rack on which he was seated, overturned, pinning him to the ground. Upon being released he was taken to the house and a doctor summoned, when it was found that one of his lungs had been crushed in by the rack.

SHACKLETON TO FIGHT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—Capt. Sir [illegible] Shackleton, the Antarctic explorer, arrived [illegible] yesterday at the [illegible] station he has [illegible] civilization two years ago and set out in a futile effort to cross the South Polar continent and reach the South Pole.

The explorer arrived from Colon on the United Fruit Company's steamer Permana. Shackleton left for San Francisco, whence he will sail to Wellington, N.Z., and thence to Dunedin, to join the Aurora, and attempt to effect the rescue of ten companions, marooned on the ice-covered Antarctic continent in the Ross Sea. He will sail from San Francisco Nov. 5. Shackleton hopes to reach his stranded comrades and rescue them, if they are still alive, late in January. After effecting the rescue, Sir Ernest says, he will return to England and join the English navy.

"If the war is not ended when I get back," he said, "I propose to enlist and fight with the British until the end. After the war, if I survive, I may then embark again upon exploration tours. I may try once more to cross the South Polar continent."

NORWOOD GAVE $1.75 PER CAPITA TO RED CROSS.

Norwood has given $1412.67 to the British Red Cross, or about $1.75 per head of the village population. Peterborough has less than $5,000 as a total gift thus far, or about 40 cents per head.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE NEWS ITEMS

Customs Revenue in October.

Ottawa.—The Customs revenue for October amounted to $11,980,930, an increase of about $3,750,000 over the same month of last year. For the seven months of the first year the total customs revenue was $82,850,477, an increase of 20 1-2 millions.

Will Refuse Orders.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 2.—Local millers, it was announced to-day, will refuse orders for longer than sixty days delivery during the present high price of wheat.

Fear of a sudden break in the market as a result of possible peace negotiations, an embargo on wheat and other causes, was given as the reason.

Foodstuffs at Liverpool.

Liverpool, Nov. 1.—Following are the stocks of provisions in Liverpool: Bacon, 16,900 boxes; hams, 5,300 boxes; shoulders, 3,500 boxes; butter, 1,600 cwt.; cheese, 56,800 boxes; lard, 2,300 tierces of prime western steam and 1,160 tons of other kinds.

United States Exports.

Washington.—Exports from the United States during September were 18,150,000 bushels for wheat and flour, against 26,000,000 bushels last year: corn, 3,701,000 bushels, against 880,000 bushels last year; oats, 6,176,000 bushels, against 7,040,000 last year.

Low Price Canadian Wheat.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 2.—Over one million bushels of Canadian wheat were bought to-day and yesterday at the Chambers of Commerce on a lower price basis, freight and duty paid, than the American-raised wheat of like reputed quality on the way to Minneapolis.

GENERAL HUGHES ON A HOLIDAY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—General Sir Sam Hughes, who was in Montreal last night will be absent from Ottawa for ten days or a fortnight, as he is taking a holiday and will visit his constituency and probably go out on a hunting trip.

F. B. McCurdy is now receiving deputations to the militia offices and generally running the department.

It is now stated that at the conclusion of his holiday trip General Hughes will make a coast to coast trip of inspection.

Change of Curates In East City Church

Rev. Father Scott, who has been curate to Rev. RIDDER'S ACCUSATION

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 3.—Charges that the British government was using the Canadian supply of white paper as a leverage to influence American newspapers against Germany were made last night by Bernard Ridder, editor of the New York Staats Zeitung at a Clan Na Gael meeting.

BISURATED MAGNESIA

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion

THE FIRST GUN OF A NEW CAMPAIGN

AND THIS IS THE THIRD TIME. On Monday night the organization of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund comes together for a Third time. Gather to enter on the duty that is becoming an annual one, to raise a further fund to carry on the work of the Patriotic institution in our midst.

This time the procedure is changed. Conditions have become different to what they were on and at the two first campaigns. These conditions need not be referred to here, but will be so stated further on.

It has been decided by the organization to make the effort to raise a sum of $60,000 and have it placed on the taxes of the city for the next twenty years. Facts in relation will be given in detail during the next few days. This announcement is only the first gun in the campaign. It is to announce the meeting of the workers and a call to arms.

It is a municipal canvass, for signatures to a petition to the City Council, praying that the grant be made. Signed, as it is expected it will be signed, then the Council will have its warranty for acting. It is the direct duty of the citizens to support and to authorize the Council to act.

On Monday night general organization will be perfected. The Old Guard will be to the fore. Personal request has been sent to each man who worked before, with the thought that his experience will be valuable. New men will be drafted into the ranks, for many are needed.

The days of the canvass will be announced.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE,
PETERBOROUGH BRANCH, C. P. F.

U. S. CONSUL LOST 30 LBS. IN GERMANY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—George E. Eager, for eleven years the United States consul at Barmen, near Elberfeld, Germany, who has come here with his daughter, Miss Clarice Spalding Eager, on a short leave of absence, said he had lost nearly thirty pounds of flesh as a result of the food shortage in Germany. "But that's no calamity," he added, "as I think I was a bit too heavy before. In fact, a great many of my friends have been telling me that they feel better now than before; and physicians all through Germany say that stomach troubles have almost entirely disappeared owing to the enforced frugality.

"One can't get any food without a ticket, and often it is necessary to stand in line for hours. As it would be very undignified for an American Consul to stand in the bread line, I send a servant to perform that task.

"The production of beer has been limited by the government to forty per cent. of the normal. A half litre (about a pint), which used to cost ten pfennig (about three cents), now comes to thirty pfennig and you are scarcely able to get any Pilsener at all, even at its current price of sixty pfennig. And, besides, the beer is considerably thinner than it used to be."

THE BARNYARD SLOGAN.

They do tell now that the farmers are killing off the chickens because it costs too much to feed them. "An egg a day or your neck," will be the barnyard slogan from now on.—Guelph Mercury.

A RECORD AIR VOYAGE

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. — Victor Carlstrom swooped down from the sky to-day, landed on Governor's Island, and closed his lightning journey from Chicago. He made his journey at an average speed of more than 110 miles an hour.

PRUSSIAN PRISONERS WELL CARED FOR

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Prussian prisoners who have reached England recently from the Somme, appear to prefer captivity, they are all so happy and contented with their lot. At Southampton, where they arrive unkempt and in tattered uniforms, they undergo a wonderful transformation.

A prisoner's first duty is to clean himself, according to English ways, and to wash and dry his clothes. This done, Hans looks a different man and begins to think of his meal, the spectacle of half a dozen of his comrades bearing pails of potatoes across the yard, all wearing smiles, whetting his appetite and cheering him up.

He speedily discovers a notice in his own language stating that soldiers are "verbotten" to enter the cookhouse. Inside the cookhouse are rows of coppers where white-aproned Prussians turned cooks are at work ladling out steaming stew. The chief cook has now been in this camp four months, and is stated to have developed surprising benevolence.

Each day they are marched round the adjoining grounds and their merry spirits find vent in whistling and singing the "Wacht am Rhine," and other patriotic songs of the Fatherland.

Another relaxation is a game of cards which usually attracts a good-sized audience. Newspapers are also allowed, and the prisoners find the English pictorial journals especially interesting. Those with a smattering of English learn what they must have surmised after their experience on the Somme, that all is far from well with their comrades who are trying in vain to stem the British tide.

The stop in Southampton clearing camp is for a short time only. The wounded are, of course, at once passed to a convalescent camp, while within a few days those who are fit are distributed to various places of interment throughout the country.

Bilingual Litigation Cost $150,000

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—It is estimated that the entire cost of the bilingual litigation through the Ontario courts and the Privy Council will exceed $150,000, of which $100,000 will be borne by the Province. These figures cover the court costs, legal fees, travelling and other expenses incidental to the trials. The costs assessed by the courts will total $25,000.

NOTHING OFFICIAL REGARDING REPORTED DEATH OF J. O'BRIEN.

The Norwood Register of this week contained an item to the effect that Sergt. James O'Brien of the Norwood platoon of the 93rd, had been killed in action, according to a letter to a Norwood man. Local inquiry showed that no official or unofficial news had reached the relatives of Sergt. O'Brien, who is a son of Separate School Inspector Michael O'Brien, who recently moved to Toronto. One brother Dick was recently wounded, and another brother, Will, was confined to a base hospital for a few days.

GIFT OF WOMEN OF $53,229 FOR DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT

Ontario Second to Quebec With About $18,000—Goes to Aid Prisoners of War.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. — Archibald Parker, central treasurer of the fund raised by the women of Canada for a farewell gift to the Duchess of Connaught, announced to-day that the total was $53,229.29.

After deducting the cost of the illuminated address to the Duchess, the silver box containing it, and other expenses, $52,995.55 was cabled to London yesterday for the Duchess of Connaught's Prisoner of War Fund, to which she had asked that the gift be applied.

The contributions by provinces are: Ontario, $17,933.44; Quebec, $30,878.15; Nova Scotia, $1,500; New Brunswick, $1,525; Manitoba, $2,033.68; British Columbia, $5,407.41; Prince Edward Island, $371.50; Alberta, $967.40; Saskatchewan, $2,637.36. Total, $53,229.29.

BUYING UNITED STATES CANNED GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The feature of the canned goods market yesterday was the active buying of tomatoes by Canadian interests. Canada in fact has been in the market for several days and is anxious to get the goods. As high as $1.35 has been paid, and it was said yesterday that $1.40 was being paid. This is the price the canners are now asking F. O. B. factory for standard No. 3's and it is also said that they are obtaining $1.10 for No. 2's. There is considerable dispute as to the market value of gallons, the canners' price remaining at $5, although it is said they can be purchased at resale on the local market at $4.75 and even lower.

Suspects Arrested

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Six men said by the police to be former subway guards were arrested to-day in connection with the 110th street, Bronx subway explosion, October 24, when several people were hurt. Michael Harlihy said to be financial secretary of one of the striking unions confessed, the police say that there was a plot to place bombs in the subway at Times Square and elsewhere.

France To Give Bounty To Farmers Of Sixteen Cents a Bushel On Wheat

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Chamber of Deputies recently adopted a bill presented by the government authorising a bounty on wheat harvested in France next year. The bill provides for a bounty equivalent to sixteen cents a bushel of such wheat, and an allowance of 20f. (about $4) for each additional hectare (about 2 1-2 acres) devoted to wheat growing.

The Minister of Commerce, Etienne Clementel, said that the government now had in service seventy-five grain carrying ships for purchases made directly from foreign governments.

The Chamber also adopted resolutions in behalf of agricultural improvement, notably for the creation of experimental fields in schools of agriculture and the appointment of a commission whose duty it will be to draw up a general programme.

The Cabinet made the proposal in order to encourage planting in France without raising the price of bread, as would be the case if the farmer got his return in higher selling prices. The price of wheat has gone up because of the scarcity of farm labour, the large requisitions by the government and the increased taxes on fertiliser.

It is estimated the government would have to pay 200,000,000f. (about $40,000,000) in bounties should the bill, as now seems probable, become law.

The Senate passed a measure last night authorizing the Minister of the Interior to set the limits of retail selling prices of butter and cheese. These products are now bringing fifty per cent to 150 per cent more than they did before the war.

Grüyere cheese has gone up 400 per cent. while the Roquefort brand in some cases has reached nearly 1,000 per cent. at wholesale. Swiss cheese selling in Switzerland at a price equivalent to twenty eight cents a pound has been selling in France for sixty cents.

The Minister of the Interior is now authorised to decree to fix the maximum price at which these provisions may be sold to the public and, if necessary requisition them for distribution by the government.

Sir George Perley Is Sworn In

Examiner Special:

Price Inflation To Be Prohibited

PROCEDURE TO BE ESTABLISHED WHEREBY RELIEF CAN BE SECURED.

Ottawa, November 3.—The proviaspect to the increased cost of living, will be announced before the end of the week. The matter has been before the order-in-council dealing with the government's action with reference the Cabinet and the main features of the plan proposed by the Ministerial sub-committee are understood to have been approved.

The action to be taken has already been outlined. It involves an investigation [illegible] Government Board, and the establishment of a procedure under which any municipality can take steps to combat an unjust inflation of price or prices.

For the purpose of this procedure there will be a clear definition of what shall constitute an offence and the municipality will be given the means of securing quick relief.

The order-in-Council will become law immediately.

HORSE KILLED

Belleville, Nov. 2.—A dead horse, a wrecked automobile, a disabled dray and two men injured, are the result of a mad Hallowe'en ride, in which it is alleged, Percy Johnson and Joseph Connelly, two local young men, were the principals. Lt.-Colonel L. W. Marsh had left his automobile outside the Quinte Hotel, while he went to meet a traveller.

Returning three-quarters of an hour later he found the car gone. It had been taken by Johnson, it is alleged, who is a chauffeur, and with him was Connelly. On Front street they struck a horse attached to a dray load of scenery belonging to the theatrical company, and injured the horse so that it had to be destroyed. The dray, the scenery, and the auto were damaged, the latter to the extent of some $300.

Johnson was badly cut and bruised, his nose being cut open and smashed. Edward Stearns, the property manager of the theatrical company, who was on the waggon, was shocked and bruised, so that he required the attention of a physician.

The affair will be ventilated in the Police Court, when Johnson is able to attend.

Evaporator Burned

CARLOADS OF VEGETABLES ARE WAITING—LARGE QUANTITY DESTROYED.

Belleville, Nov. 2. — The Graham Company's evaporator at Frankford, was completley gutted by fire, which broke out between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The blaze originated in the kiln-room from a stove pipe. Four men were on the premises all night and this is the only explanation they can offer.

The loss is estimated at $8,000, partly covered by insurance. The building which was erected only one year ago, was of concrete, and was supposed to be fireproof. Building and plant were insured. In the building was a large quantity of vegetables not insured.

The loss is a serious one in view of the evaporating season now on. Carloads of vegetables were stored outside the building, and these will have to be dried within two weeks. It is expected that drying will be resumed within a few days inside of the concrete walls, the haste being so great that evaporating cannot be delayed until the roof is on.

YOUNG GIRL ADMITS BIGAMY

YOUNG LADY PLEADED MINORITY AT FIRST MARRIAGE IN EXTENUATION.

London, Ont., Nov. 2.—Although she gave her age as 18 years when she married in 1911, and accepted money from her husband, Alfred Tennyson Brill, after she had been separated from him, Gertrude Brill claimed in the police court that she thought she was under age, and the marriage 'll legal, in extenuation of her having taken a second husband. The latter is Raphael Antonnucio, aged 25. The young woman's maiden name was Gertrude Evans. At the time of her first marriage to Brill, in Lambeth, she claimed to be a Baptist, and her birthplace as London. Rev. J. Garbutt conducted the ceremony. When married this year she claimed to be of the same faith, Roman Catholic, as her new husband, and her birthplace as Saskatoon. The second marriage was conducted by Rev. Father Kennedy, of this city. She was arrested in Windsor, and when she appeared in court here this morning pleaded guilty. She was remanded until Friday.

BRUNETTES ARE BEST WORKERS IN FACTORIES

"Give me the dark haired ones for work," declared the manager of a munition factory as he looked over the ranks of women who were busy on the big job.

"What ever for?" the visitor asked.

"They can keep on when the fair ones give in," the manager explained. 'When we had that heat wave a month or so back it was the fair girls who went under and were prostrated whereas the brunettes stuck to their work with only a little less than their ordinary vigour."

One may feel inclined to argue with that manager's opinion, but he was quite right, in human beings, as in animals, the darker haired variety are more virile and are hardier and stronger, although it should not be forgotten that, as a rule, they have correspondingly stronger tempers.

Dark hair, especially if it is inclined to be somewhat coarse, denotes a vigorous, intense nature, with quick impulses, a temperament that is often obstinate and unruly, but which has big powers of ability to conquer in athletic sports.

The fine thin hair, so often found among fair-haired women, is a sign of a more delicate constitution, of greater sensitiveness to both climate and to people, and its owners usually lack of spice of push and go that brings their darker sisters to the fore. The survival of the fittest is slowly but gradually lessening the blonde among us. Just as in the south the brunette, with her greater powers of resistance against the heat and her more deeply pigmented skin, always has had the best of the fray, so the brunettes of the north are coming into their own.

Gradually the blonde is being eliminated from among us. Even now her fair head strikes a race note among the darker heads that surround her. It is a pity, for the fair-haired girls of England have formed charming contrasts to their darker-tinted sisters. But the true blondes have the consolation—they are rarities.

LITTLE PROFIT IN TRAPPING.

Hunters of Beavers Must Pay One-Third to Government.

After to-day the trapping of beaver will become lawful in Ontario for the first time in twenty years. It is improbable trapping of the castor will prove a very portiable occupation. The trapper must pay a $6 license and purchase coupons at 50 cents each for every beaver caught up to ten, the limit of the catch. Thus, if he gets the full number $10 goes to the Government and the balance is his profit. With beaver skins valued around $3, the trap pelt receipts cannot exceed $30, leaving but $20 to him after his license and coupons are purchased.

The Congo river and its tributaries provide more than 9,000 miles of waterways that are navigable for flat-bottomed steamboats.

Both an electric range and a refrigerator are included in a new kitchen cabinet, but are hidden from view by doors when not in use.

Cost of War.

New York.—Debts of the seven largest nations in the war are in excess of 75 billions, compared with 27 billion at the war's beginning, according to statistics compiled by a New York bank. The daily cost of the war is estimated to be 105 millions, as compared with 60 million a day in April last. If the war ends next year the annual interest on the debt, it is estimated, will be $3,810,000,000 year-

A Summary of The Present War Situation

Military Expert of The New York Times Questions Von Hindenburg's Statement as to the Wastage in the French Armies---Germany Claims to be Outnumbered Two or Three to One on the Western Front---Enemy's Growing Weakness is Becoming More Apparent.

GERMAN LOSS HAS BEEN HEAVY

NEW YORK, November 4.—(By the Military Expert of the New York Times)—One of the most interesting statements in regard to the war that has recently been made by any one in authority is the statement by Field Marshal von Hindenburg to an Austrian press representative.

This statement is deserving of the deepest attention. In the first place, it may be noted that it was made to an Austrian representative. This at once gives to the statement a political tinge. We know the condition of Austria. We have seen the reports of the meetings of the Austrian Reichsrath, undiluted and uncut by the censor, showing the dissatisfaction that exists at the constant drain on Austria's reserves. We have seen Austria beaten, her lines shattered, the Russians pouring through, capturing them by the thousands, until German troops came to their rescue.

We have seen also the Germans ousting Austria from anything resembling control even of her own forces. Germany is and has been in the saddle for months, retaining undisputed control of the situation. With this knowledge it is but natural that we should suspect that perhaps politics dictated in part at least, the optimistic statements of general conditions.

GERMANS SUFFERED SEVERE LOSSES.

Von Hindenburg's statement of the condition of affairs in France is one which Germany has been making in one form or another since the beginning of the battle of Verdun last February. It is one which Germany devoutly wishes were true. But nothing that has yet happened gives the slightest indication that it is true. France was bled white on the hills of Verdun. Yet before the glow of the Verdun fire died out, we saw the French take the lead in the terrible fighting on the Somme. And while the Somme fighting was at its height, we saw enough reserve force left to strike a blow at Verdun which snatched from the Germans in a short fight of a few hours all that they had taken in two months of fighting.

It is undeniably true that the French have lost heavily during the last year, both at Verdun and on the Somme. But is it possible that the Germans have not, too, suffered heavy casualties? As a matter of fact, what has so far happened on the Somme indicates that the relative, if not the absolute, loss of the Germans has been greater than that of the Allies.

The fair implication of von Hindenburg is that the British are not fighting, but are throwing the burden on the French, while the British sit back and endeavour to direct the fighting. It has become habitual to attack British for their failure to do what has been considered their part in the war. There can be but one opinion as to the fact that at a certain period of the war, this seemed justifiable. But to-day Great Britain is doing her part. The French are fighting, yes, but the British are fighting just as hard, and putting their best into the struggle. It is but necessary to see the British casualty lists of the fighting on the Somme to realize this. Their latest report shows that 400,000 men have been either temporarily or permanently incapacitated since July 1. In order to understand the real facts of the fighting in the west since the middle of last February, we can pretty nearly arrive at the truth of the respective losses and see which side has the advantage as a result.

COMPARISON WITH KNOWN LOSSES.

The advantages of terrian which the French had at Verdun are well recognized, and have been exhaustively discussed. The German losses in this fighting unquestionably exceed those of the French, by how much we do not know. The probabilities are that this fighting cost the Germans at least 500,000 and the French about 350,000. A comparison with the known losses on the Somme, where the fighting has been over a territory which gave neither side any dominant advantage, and where the fighting has been in progress a much shorter time, makes this a reasonable figure. On the Somme the British have lost about 400,000 men. The French loss has not been so great for several reasons. The British have been more desperately resisted, there is better cooperation between the artillery and infantry in the French Army. It is doubtful, indeed, if the French loss exceeds 250,000 men.

The German loss has been extremely heavy. The Allies report the capture of about 78,000 prisoners since the first of July. Taking the German ratio between prisoners and casualties, the German loss could not have been less than seven times the number of prisoners, or about 550,600 men in other words, the French loss has been 600,000 men, and the German loss over a million men in both battles.

WITH THE PASSING OF TIME

Germany has asserted that on the western front she is outnumbered two to one or three to one. She probably is. Who, then, will be exhausted first? Von Hindenburg may have no idea at present of shortening his western front. But as time passes the disproportion between his numerical strength and that of his opponents will become greater, and then he will have to shorten up somewhere. It may not be in the west. It is not apparent, however, where else it could be.

Several indications have been given us that the theory of Germany's growing weakness in the west is correct. Take the case of Thiepval. It will be remembered that the British did their utmost for months to take this small village, but without result. Then, while they were fighting in a major attack in some other field, they turned on Thiepval and captured it in a few hours. The French did exactly the same thing at Verdun. It is obvious that the attacking force must, if they hope for success, effect a greater concentration of men than is necessary for the defence of the same place. The French in the case of Verdun and the British in the case of Thiepval, therefore, probably had greater forces fighting the major battles than the Germans had against them. And yet they still had enough reserve strength to stike at points far removed from the scene of the major effort, and achieve a signal success. And these successes were made possible only because the Germans, in order to defend themselves from the major attacks, were forced to weaken their lines at other points to a degree which proved dangerous in the extreme.

RATIO OF RESPECTIVE POPULATIONS.

There is still another point in the relative rate of decline in man power of France and Germany. France has, it is true, a contingent before Saloniki. But this contingent is almost insignificant compared to the forces which Germany is forced to maintain on other sections of the eastern front. Germany's losses on the east, or, to put it another way, on fronts other than the western front, are naturally much larger than those of the French. Combined, the ratio of losses between the two is somewhat near 3 for the Germans and 2 for the French, which is just the ratio of the respective populations of the two countries. It is impossible to conceive, therefore, of any combination of circumstances which can destroy the Frenchman power which will not at the same time destroy the German man power. Between, the two therefore, it is a stand off. But the great numbers which England has recruited have not been ignored. These will weigh heavily in the balance against Germany when the final summing up is made.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad, and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I can now assist my housework and have a family of ten.

$105,000,000 a Day Is Cost Of The War

France Spending Largest Sum Per Capita, $371.25, Says a Mechanics Bank Statement---On a Per Diem Basis it Will Cost British and French Subjects 42 Cents Each, German 22, Austrian 16 and Russian 6 Cents For the Entire Period.

DEBT IS INCREASING

An estimate that the countries now at war are spending an average of $105,000,000 a day, and that if the struggle goes on to August 1 next it will have cost by that time a grand total of $75,000,000,000 is made in a study of war financing issued by the Mechanics and Metals National Bank.

The total military expenditures in the first year were approximately $17,800,000,000. In the second year, ended July 31 last, they were $28,000,000,000 For the current year it is estimated that they will exceed $30,000,000,000. A summary of the probable approximate expenditures each day of all the nations actively engaged follows:

Great Britain	$25,000,000
France	10,000,000
Russia	16,000,000
Italy	7,000,000
Roumania	2,000,000
Belgium and Serbia	2,000,000
Entente Allies	$70,000,000
Germany	$21,000,000
Austria-Hungary	11,000,000
Turkey and Bulgaria	3,000,000
Central Allies	$35,000,000
All belligerents	$105,000,000

It is figured that if the war is still going on at the end of the third year it will have entailed a per capita cost of $351 for the population of Great Britain, $350 for France, $67 for Russia, $242 for Germany, and $174 for Austria. Or on a per diem basis it will have cost British and French subjects 32 cents each, German 22, Austria 16, and Russia 6 cents for the entire period.

If the war goes through the third year there will be an average debt per person of $308 incurred by the belligerents. The growth of indebtedness per capita is shown below:

	Aug. 1. 1917.	Aug. 1. 1916.	Aug. 1. 1914.
Great Britain	$422.60	$306.40	$ 74.50
France	475.00	371.25	182.50
Russia	76.85	60.00	26.25
Italy	140.80	119.80	77.75
Entente nations	$192.45	$147.45	$ 56.40
Germany	277.95	211.00	76.45
Austria-Hungary	175.50	140.60	70.75
Turkey	44.20	40.00	30.00
Central Allies	$304.55	$159.40	$ 87.40
Grand total	$196.60	$151.60	$ 61.85

All of the above figures contrast with a present per capita indebtedness for the people of the United States of $10.92.

Germans Renew Attacks on The Dobrudja Line

Latest Activity of Mackensen's Forces Believed to a Feint to Conceal the Shifting of German Troops to The Transylvanian Front—Germans Have Lost Heavily

PROGRESS HALTED

BUCHAREST, Nov. 4.— Following the Roumanians' successful resistance on their north-western frontier, the Germans attacked on the whole Dobrudja line after several days' lull in Mackensen's operations.

On the right wing, resting on the Danube, the Roumanians repulsed all attacks. The Roumanian left wing first drove back the enemy, but was later compelled to yield ground slightly.

The renewal of the attack in Dobrudja, however, is believed here only a feint to conceal shifting of German troops to the Transylvanian front.

It is estimated that the Germans must send five fresh divisions into Transylvania to fill the gaps made in their lines in their last offensive and to add enough strength to enable Falkenhayn to make further progress.

The Germans have lost heavily in the recent fighting around Vulkan pass and south of the Red Tower pass.

Wheat Market Continues Strong

Yesterday's Market Developed Weakness But Rallied Towards The Close—Corn and Oats Steady

Wheat markets developed weakness yesterday, but rallied a little later. The break of the drought in Argentine, and the reported purchase of Manitoba wheat in large quantity for Minneapolis at lower price than equal quality American wheat, tended to depress the Chicago market. On the other hand, Winnipeg was strong particularly for cash wheat. Cash wheat at bay ports, 1 1-2c higher. Corn and oats, steady, but firm.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying, and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

THE LITTLE FORTUNE

BY ARNOLD FREDERICKS

He remained unobtrusively in the background as though he did not wish to be seen, while the captain greeted the new arrivals. His eyes were fixed, however, on a shrewd looking individual with a fiercely upturned mustache, who had come on board with the health officers and who was now exchanging a few words with Captain Bonnot.

The captain excused himself and went toward his cabin, accompanied by the health officers. The man to whom he had just been speaking glanced expectantly over the surrounding passengers as they turned away, then calmly lit a cigar, and strolled off along the deck.

The sad looking individual with the spectacles followed, maintaining a respectful distance, until the man who was ahead of him paused, and leaned against the rail. Then he approached him.

The other turned. Their eyes met. The man with the spectacles made a peculiar movement with his hand, as though to offer it, then withdrew it and fumbled with his watchchain.

The gentleman with the up-turned mustache smiled. "Ah, I thought it might be you," he remarked under his breath.

The other man nodded. "I must speak quickly," he said. "It is best that we should not be seen together."

The two men had a rapid conversation for perhaps ten minutes. From the smiles which covered the faces of both it was evident that they found the interview highly amusing. Presently they parted. The man with the spectacles went below and was not seen again. The other sought out Captain Bonnot in his cabin.

The latter had just completed his business with the health officer. He rose as the newcomer approached. "M. Vernet," he said. "You come, I understand from the police?"

The other bowed. "What can I do for you, monsieur," he said.

"I have a dangerous fellow on board, M. Vernet; I can't quite make him out. He took passage in disguise, pretending to be no other than your estimable chief, M. Lefevre, who I happen to know is at present in New York."

The man addressed as Vernet permitted an expression of amazement to cross his features.

"Indeed?" he exclaimed. "And what was his purpose in doing this?"

"I do not know. He pretends to be investigating the mystery connected with the supposed murder of our purser, M. Vernon. But Vernon is on board, alive and well. Yet in spite of this fact, this man, whom I personally believe to be slightly mad, insists that Vernon is not Vernon at all, but an impostor, and only last night tried to murder him. I consider him a dangerous character, and wish to place him in your hands."

"And where is the fellow now?"

"I have him locked in the stateroom. Come, we will interview him at once."

In a few moments they had reached Duvall's door. The man on guard saluted.

"Has the prisoner given you any trouble?" the captain asked.

"None, monsieur. His breakfast was served to him an hour ago. Since then I have heard nothing from him."

"Open the door," said the captain.

The man produced a key from his pocket and did as he was told. Bonnot and Vernet at once entered.

Duvall was standing near the centre of the room quietly smoking a cigar. He had resumed his disguise of M. Lefevre, and as Vernet and the captain entered he smiled slightly.

"Here is the fellow," cried the latter angrily. "He has had the audacity to again assume the character of M. Lefevre." He turned and saw that Vernet was making a military salute.

"Captain," exclaimed Vernet, pretending to be vastly puzzled, "I do not understand what you mean. This is M. Lefevre."

The captain staggered back, quite speechless. "Lefevre?" he gasped. "Impossible."

"Not at all, monsieur. He wired me to meet him here to-day, and I have done so. Why is he shut up in this room, may I ask?"

"I have already told you," protested Bonnot weakly, "that he persisted in making absurd charges against M. Vernon, our purser—"

He got no further. Vernet eyed him with grave disfavor. "Whom monsieur, the prefect, makes charges against any one," he remarked pointedly, "they are extremely unlikely to be absurd."

"Are you satisfied, monsieur?" asked Duvall coldly, "that I am not an impostor?"

"I am forced to believe what this gentleman"—he indicated Vernet—tells me, although I confess I am quite unable to understand it."

"The methods of my office, Captain Bonnot, are not usually understood by the public. Come, Vernet"—he turned to his companion—"let us be about our business. We have much to do. I trust that we may not be too late."

"I trust not." Vernet fixed the captain with a chilly look. "I presume, monsieur," he said, "that monsieur, the prefect of police of Paris is no longer to be considered a prisoner?"

"A thousand pardons, gentleman!" cried the captain bowing. "I am indeed sorry to have inconvenienced you. But still I do not understand—"

"You will later, my friend," remarked Duvall as he and Vernet left the stateroom.

The vessel was just being made fast at her pier and the passengers were crowding to the gangway, each apparently anxious to be the first to get ashore.

Vernet glanced toward the crowd on the dock, and presently caught the eye of a man who stood a little to one side, smoking a cigarette. He looked like a well-to-do clerk, alert, yet unobtrusive.

The man approached. Vernet scribbled a few words on a card and threw it down to him. The man picked it up, read it, then put it into his pocket. After that he disappeared in the crowd.

The first person to leave the vessel was George Vernon. The man to whom Vernet had thrown a note was now standing near the foot of the gangplank. He looked up expectantly. Vernet threw away his cigar. As Vernon started up the pier the man who had been waiting strolled after him.

In a short time the woman who had been Vernon's companion also went ashore. Grace but but a few steps behind her.

Presently Duvall and Vernet also descended the pier. A few moments later they were seated in a smoking compartment of the train for Paris. They had already assured themselves that Vernon was on board, closely watched by Vernet's assistant.

"What does all this mean, mon ami?" asked Vernet.

With a laugh Duvall told him the whole story. "Captain Bonnot is an ass," he said. "I had to get out of that room in order to see you and be sure that Vernon was kept under observation, so I put on a disguise that I happened to have with me and simply went out through my wife's stateroom. Of course the man on guard at my own door did not suspect me. After I saw you I went back."

"And why were you so anxious to retain the character of M. Lefevre? He also wired to me from New York that you would be impersonating him. What was it—a joke?"

"Yes—in a way. I'll tell you all about it later. Just now I'm concerned about this fellow Vernon. He is clearly an impostor. No more George Vernon than I am."

"But, my dear Duvall, how could he possibly have deceived all the many people on board who knew him, some of them intimately? Surely you must be mistaken."

"It is not possible, Vernet, for me to be mistaken." He proceeded to acquaint his companion with the several reasons which had led up to the fight between Vernon and himself in the woman's stateroom. "The fellow had the franc-piece belonging to Mlle. Mercier in his possession. He tried to murder me. I want him placed under arrest as soon as he reaches Paris."

"We cannot do that, as you know, until we can prove that he is not Vernon, but Hartmann. We have no charges against George Vernon on the grounds whatever for his arrest."

"I reckon that. But this man has this coin in his possession. That will be sufficient to convict him—at least of having robbed the Richelieu's safe."

"One franc-piece is very like another, mon ami. The mere possession of a coin of the period of the first Napoleon could convict nobody."

"This coin, I think you will find, possesses characteristics of a most unusual nature."

"Do you know, then, what they are?"

"Not entirely. But I have been thinking over the matter a good deal, in connection with the half burned letter I mentioned a few moments ago and I believe that I have at last hit upon the solution of the mystery."

"What is it?"

"I prefer not to say until I have satisfied myself that it is the correct solution. Meanwhile I have every reason to believe that Grace will very soon bring us news from Havre that will simplify the whole affair."

"Let us hope so," remarked Vernet as he drew a newspaper from his pocket and settled back in his seat. "Just at present it seems to me anything but simple."

CHAPTER XIX.

GEORGETTE.

The woman that Grace Duvall followed down the gang plank of the Richelieu was an American but she spoke French without any difficulty.

A short distance from the pier she stopped a passing gend'arme, and inquired the way to an address which she had, written down on a slip of paper. Grace, as she passed them, was unable to overhear the address, and was obliged to content herself with following the woman as she proceeded up the street.

She did so at a considerable distance so as to avoid any chance of creating suspicion in the woman's mind. After a walk of some ten or more minutes she saw her ascend the steps of a small white house in a quiet side street, and rap on the door.

A few minutes later she was admitted. Grace could do nothing but wait until she reappeared. She then walked carelessly up the street to a point some two hundred or more feet away, where there was a small wooden bench surrounding an old chestnut tree, and sitting down, waited with as much patience as she could.

She had already ascertained that there was no through train for Paris for nearly three hours so, assuming that the woman would take that train she realized that she had a long wait before her.

The woman, however, remained in the house a surprisingly short time. Almost before Grace realized it she hastily descended the steps, and started briskly down the street.

Grace hurried after her, fearful lest she might lose track of her, at so great a distance, when once she had turned into the more thickly travelled streets.

Just as she passed the door of the house she looked up. A young girl stood in the doorway looking after the woman who had just left. Grace saw at once that she was weeping. But it was not this alone that immediately attracted her attention but the fact that the girl's face was in some way vaguely familiar to her.

At first she could not place her then all at once she realized where she had before seen her features. The girl was Georgette, and the locket containing her photograph was at that moment reposing in Grace's pocketbook.

She hesitated a moment, paused, then turned back, and called to the girl as she was about to close the door.

"Mademoiselle," she cried softly,—"may I speak to you for a moment?"

"Certainly." The girl stood with one hand upon the knob of the door. "What is it?"

"I am afraid," replied Grace, "that I shall be obliged to ask you to let me come inside for a few moments. I have a matter of some importance concerning which I should like to ask you a few questions."

She looked after the woman she had been following but the latter had already turned the corner and passed out of view. It did not matter very greatly, Grace argued. She would surely be able to find her again at the train. And here were developments which promised results of the very greatest importance.

The girl had already invited her to enter, and now stood, holding open the door. Grace passed in and found herself in a poorly furnished but neat little parlor, spotlessly clean, and made lovely by many flowers blooming in boxes upon the window ledges.

"Won't you sit down, madame?" asked the girl in French, as she drew forward a chair. She was still weeping in a pitiful, almost unconscious way, that went straight to Grace's heart.

The latter went up to her. "My dear child," she said, "you have had bad news."

"Yes." The girl nodded, but said no more. Instead she glanced curiously at her visitor as though wondering what business she could have with her.

Grace opened her purse and took out the little gold locket. "I have brought you this," she said, and then placed the locket in the girl's hand.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Sooth and Heal Inflamed Kidneys

The great danger with Kidney trouble is that so many people try to cure the symptoms instead of getting at the root of the trouble. In backache, pains in the side, lumbago, swollen joints and ankles, and rheumatism, local applications are of little use—such as plasters, embrocations and liniments. Gin Pills go right to the Kidneys, healing and soothing these organs so that the functions are restored to normal and the pain stops.

So many thousands have been relieved of Kidney and Bladder trouble that you cannot afford to neglect the remedy for your trouble.

All dealers sell Gin Pills. 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. Sample free upon request to Custard With Fruit.

Make a custard of one quart of milk, yolk of five eggs, six tablespoonfuls of sugar, three of cornstarch.

Beat the yolks until very light and foamy, add sugar and beat until smooth. Mix corn-starch with a little cold milk and then add to eggs. When the milk is at a boiling heat, stir in the egg mixture gradually and stir until thick. Add teaspoonfuls of flavouring. Pour the custard into a dish in which it will be served; spread over this a thick layer of fruit.

Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, then add to them eight tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Spread this icing over the fruit and put in a slow oven until a light brown. Serve as cold as possible. If canned peaches are used, slice and drain off all liquid. This is delicious made with blueberries.

To Reduce Your Weight Easily and Quickly

If you are overstout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get oil of orilena, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal, and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orilena in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and is perfectly safe.—E. J. T.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Big Lessons.—The greatest lessons ever placed before humanity, so far as our future physical being is concerned are now being taught through the actual living experiences of the people now at war in Europe. It is claimed, and not for the purpose of bluffing the enemies, that the physical condition of the people has not been so good in many generations. Especially is this true in Germany, where the diet has been cut down to an actual living and efficiency basis. The growing of food from every available foot of land has also demonstrated what can be done, but the principal gain is in the improved physical health from two principal causes, restricted diet and forced activity. Every man, woman and child must work, produce food, clothing and equipment. There is no room, no place for idlers. There is no surplus food for gormandising. Surgeons say that the disease known as appendicitis has almost entirely disappeared, so also has the usual epidemic diseases. Constipation seldom if ever troubles the people, and there is no demand for anti-fat remedies.

I think that I would be safe in saying that the complexion of most of the people is vastly improved and that clear pink is the prevailing color of most of the cheeks one would see.

I have often told you that vastly more people die of plethoria, over eating, than of starvation. The experience of the people living in nearly all of the war zones confirms this statement. It is claimed that there are no children left alive that are under 7 years of age in portions of Poland. I am very much inclined to doubt the statement. While infants very many of them, may have starved to death. I believe that children between the ages of 3 to 7 years would stand the starvation process longer than many of the grown-ups would.

I would much prefer that we never be forced to make a practical demonstration of forced restriction of diet, but if the present increase of prices continues, many of the residents of crowded cities will be forced to learn the lesson of economy and efficiency in buying, preparing and using food. I believe that the prices of food will still continue to advance and that the farmers will in time be the most prosperous of the people.

The reason is a simple and a fundamental fact: One hundred years ago over 75 per cent. of the population were farmers, producers of food, consequently there was but little sale of surplus. To-day only 25 per cent. are farmers or producers of food, but the other 75 per cent require vastly more, and waste vastly more, than any other set of people that can be found—so long as the cities grow faster than the urban population and city workers continue to strike for more pay and shorter hours of labor, food prices must advance. You ask what strikes and city hours of labor have to do with the farmers. The farmer pays the bill. If the factory producing farm machinery must pay more wages the farmer must pay more for machinery and must charge more for his products. When each non-producer demands more pay and less work with lower prices his demand is equal to lifting himself by his own boot straps.

The New York strike in which the Unions thought that they could call out 900,000 workers, would have been the greatest fiasco ever staged if the union heads had succeeded in calling out that many strikers. They would have destroyed their one weapon and injured themselves and their own families more than anything else. Raising prices all around benefits nobody. Produce more, waste less, and don't gormandize, and the people will be happy and healthy.

WHAT BOYS THINK THEY SHOULD LEARN.

According to the idea of many of the rising generation a young man should learn to lie, to flirt, to cheat, to swear, to drink, to play billiards, to swagger in the streets, to live without work, to ogle every pretty girl he meets, to treat his elders with disrespect, to talk loud in the presence of others, to put on style whether he can afford it or not, to boast of the feminine conquests he has made, to have every slang term on his tongue's end, to gossip with his chums about his lady acquaintances, to attract all the attention to himself that he possibly can, to talk like a loafer and a fop instead of a quiet, sensible man, to call his father "the old man" and his mother "the old lady," to think ill of every woman he sees, and to speak ill of her every chance he gets, to turn up his nose at those quiet, sober, industrious young men who do not train in his crowd, to treat his sister without any sort of regard, to treat her like an ill-bred loafer instead of like a gentleman.

Here is your picture, fast young man, true to life. Look at it! How do you like it? What have these characteristics made of you? What will they do for you? What has the future in store for you? unless you change your course most radically—Ruin.

SPOILING CHILDREN.

The president of the Chicago Board of Education is severe in his criticism of parents, of whom there seems to be a legion in that city who manifest no discretion in the training of their sons. The High Schools are full, according to this official, of pampered boys who wear wrist watches, think only of society life, its ills and pleasures, and are carried to and from their home in limousines with liveried chauffeurs at the wheel.

Only boys of exceptional qualities can survive much of this sort of thing, as myriads of parents have realized bitterly and too late. Over indulgence spoils many a man and woman in the making, who might if thrown entirely on their own resources, have made worthy human products of themselves.

The fact is not generally realized, but it requires the co-operation of two wise and loving parents to train a child up and bring out his latent possibilities. Now and then, an unusual father and mother can do it, if the child is somewhat above the average. But ordinarily if the father is too occupied with business or away most of the time, or if the mother is too busy with her woman's interests or too neglectful, or if either one of them is defective in head or heart, the vain and silly girl, the selfish and vicious boy, the wild son or the wayward daughter is the result. It is commonly possible to estimate with some approach to accuracy the mental and moral development and discretion of parents by the appearance and behaviour of their children on the streets.

• • • • •

THE BOY AND HIS MOTHER.

One of our young men asks us the following question:

"What do you think of a young lady while in the company of a dude masher, remarking of an old schoolmate of hers, that 'he is a good boy but tied to his mother's apron strings, and is of no good on earth.' Will not the boy come out ahead if he supports his cares for the mother?' Come out ahead? Well, of course he will. A girl who would make such a remark is not worthy to blacken the shoes of a boy who is kind to his old mother. Such a girl has no more heart in her than a turnip, and is only fit—oh, she isn't fit for anything. She ought to be taken across the knee of her own mother until she thanks it is about the middle of August. The most heartless thing in the world is for a person to make such a remark as that quoted above about a young man who is proud of his mother, and loves her so that a tear in her eye is like a drop of melted lead on his heart. The young man who heard of such a remark being made about his relations with his mother no doubt felt that he had rather not have heard of the remark, but it is lucky that he did, if he thought he had any affection for that girl. She would not have said it in his hearing, which shows that she is a hypocrite and a two-sided person. If he married that girl he would have a little hell of his own. Such a girl would make a man wish he had never seen any woman except his own mother.

RHEUMATISM IN THE BLOOD

It Can Only Be Cured By Thoroughly Enriching the Blood Supply

Not so long ago rheumatism was looked upon as a pain in the muscles or joints brought on by exposure to dampness or bad weather. Now doctors know that it is rooted in the blood, and while exposure may start the pain, nothing but the removal of the poisonous acid from the blood will cure the trouble. It is a waste of both time and money to try to cure rheumatism with liniments, poultices or anything that only goes skin deep. Rubbing lotions into the skin may give temporary relief but it only helps to circulate the poisonous acid more freely and thus in the end increases the trouble and perhaps leaves the sufferer permanently crippled. The one cure, the only cure, for rheumatism is to drive the acid which causes the trouble out of the blood. To do this no other remedy can equal Dr Williams Pink Pills which actually make new blood, sweeps out the poisonous acid, loosens the stiffened, aching joints and brings good health and comfort. Here is the proof. Mr. Jos Crouse, of Ninevah, N.S., says: "For several years I was severely afflicted with rheumatism. The trouble seemed to locate in all the joints of my body, and my sufferings at times was most intense, and the disease greatly interfered with my activity. I doctored steadily for a long time but the trouble was obstinate and did not yield in the least to the doctors' treatment. One day a friend told me of some cures of rheumatism by the use of Dr. William's Pink Pills and very strongly advised me to try them. I did so and to my great surprise eight boxes completely cured me of the trouble, and I was as supple, active and free from pain as ever I had been in my life. Better still I have never felt a symptom of the trouble since."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. A. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

TYPHOID FEVER.

IN THE FALL OF THE YEAR Typhoid Fever is more prevalent. There are usually fewer cases of this disease within the area of well-kept cities than outside. The smaller towns and country places furnish the greatest number of cases. The reason why well-kept cities furnish less typhoid than elsewhere is because they usually have safer water supplies and proper disposal of sewage. The smaller towns and the country are dependent for their water supplies chiefly upon wells, and their sewage is taken care of in privy pits to which flies have free access. Flies during late September and October, when it is warmer indoors than outdoors, flock from the privy pit to the comfortable kitchen with its abundant food supplies. They frequently carry typhoid germs to the food, thence to the members of the household. Country wells are frequently unprotected. They are shallow and placed too close to the privy pit, while the top and sides are not protected against the entrance of filth. Excreta from a typhoid case without being disinfected may be thrown in the privy pit or on the surface of the ground, and drain to the well. What is more likely than that the users of this contaminated water will come down with the disease?

What are the means of protection?

Privies must be made secure against the entrance of flies. Doors and windows should be screened. The building must be securely banked about so that the flies cannot enter the pit from outside. The seat lids must be made to close automatically, after use. This can be effected by having a block of wood fastened to the wall behind the open lid and placed in such a position that the lid falls in place as the occupant leaves.

A box containing equal parts of sand and salt should be kept in the privy and the excreta covered after each using.

Wells should be placed at a safe distance from the privy pit and away from the natural drainage of the soil. The sides and top of the well must be made secure against the entrance of surface pollution.

If these simple measures were carefully carried out there would be less typhoid in rural communities.

Finally, if a case of typhoid fever occurs in a household experience in the use of typhoid vaccine among our soldiers indicates that it is wisdom to at once inoculate all the other members of the family. The vaccine is provided free of cost by the Provincial Board of Health.

CONSUMPTION AND SPITTING BLOOD.

John Brown had noticed for some time that he was not up to the mark. In the morning he felt very well, but through the day he became tired, sleepy, and a little feverish. He had had a slight tickling cough for a month or two, but did not cough up anything. One afternoon he felt a warmth behind his breastbone and at the same time he had a salty taste in his mouth. Following a tickling in his throat he coughed and brought up a few teaspoonfuls of bright, red blood.

This alarmed his friends very much and he turned pale, his hands were cold and perspiration broke out on his forehead. His mother sent for the doctor who examined his nose, throat, and chest and finally told him the blood came from his chest.

He was placed in bed and told to keep quiet and that he need not have any fear for the bleeding. The physician took a sample of the material that John coughed up and found, as he suspected, that he was suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs. Consumption is the cause of spitting of blood in nine cases out of ten. Other causes are pneumonia, congestion, bronchitis, heart disease, aneurism, menstrual trouble, and scurvy. One out of every twenty-five cases of consumption starts with a slight hemorrhage. In one out of every six cases there is no other symptom. In two out of every three cases there is nothing to bring on hemorrhage. The patient when quiet notices a salty taste, has a little tickling, coughs, and up comes the blood.

These early hemorrhages are never fatal. But the appearance of blood frightens most people, and perhaps it is a good thing to have the hemorrhage, because it is a reliable danger signal.

A case of this kind should be kept quiet in bed for a few days. He usually needs no medicine, except in cases where he is very much frightened or shocked, when the doctor may give him some sedative. He must not get stimulants such as whiskey, aromatic spirits of ammonia, etc. If the side from which he is bleeding can be distinguished he should lie on that side.

If there is no return of hemorrhage after a few days he may get out in the open air. Horseback riding will be good exercise for him, and he may do a little outdoor work. Outdoor air and good food are the requisites for cure.

THINGS PERHAPS YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Side frills on blouses have returned.

• • •

Tailored roses appear on many of the new sailor hats.

• • •

Flying ribbons fro mhats, waists or skirts are feminine and smart.

• • •

There are charming mixtures of color in tulle frocks, for instance dahlia and blue, old rose and dahlia, the only objection being the quantity of tulle required.

• • •

The wine colors of France are prominent this year, chartreuse, burgundy, benedictine, champagne, cherry gold and several others being featured in the new garments.

• • •

The arm bag, a gorgeous thing of silk metal braid, laces and bead embroideries, is an absolute necessity to brighten up the sober tailored costumes of broadcloth and velvet. These arm bags are all sizes and shapes.

• • •

Betwixt and between girls are wearing very strong shades of tan stockings and shoes for every day, with blue serge one piece or Russian blouse frocks.

Belts inset into the garment are noted in a great many of the high coats and jackets. They are a change from the loose kind which have encircled the waist for several seasons.

• • •

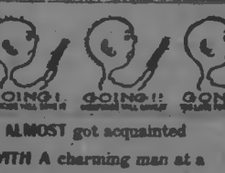
Felt hats with embroideries of wool or with cut out flowers from velvet or cretonne are stitched to the hat by loop spaced buttonhole stitches, spaced an eighth to a quarter of an inch apart. These stitches are of different lengths and form star like shapes about the flower motif. Wreaths of grapes and autumn flowers also are seen encircling the crown of these hats.

• • •

A good many of the new bodies in evening dresses are one sided in appearance. That is to say the skirt material of satin or brocade passes over the shoulder at one side and crosses obliquely down to the waist at the other, leaving the waist of tulle or lace exposed. There is only one sleeve in such waists—some sort of a drapery of tulle caught at the shoulder and then again at the elbow. The side the lace is on has no sleeve.

WHEN PREPARING FISH.

A few drops of ammonia in the water in which you wash your hands will remove all fishy odor from the hands.



GOING! GOING!! GONE!!!

I ALMOST got acquainted WITH A charming man at a DINNER PARTY last evening but THE WOMAN who sat between US HAD spent too much MONEY FOR hair that had BELONGED TO others. EVERY PLEASANTRY of mine WAS EITHER hooked by A CURL or deflected by A FALSE puff. Then, too, I FANCIED THAT all of the ORIGINAL OWNERS of that ASSORTMENT OF hair were listening TO OUR conversation and it EMBARRASSED ME. Why is THE WORLD more women don't LEARN OF HERPICIDE and TRY FOR the home grown VARIETY OF hair is a MYSTERY to me.

Yours for beautiful hair,

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' AND SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Thoroughly up to date is this design in smart, simple and very youthful lines. It is a back buttoned model; the blouse is pulled at the waist line, finished at the neck with a point collar developed in contrasting goods and has full length sleeves neatly cuffed. The banding used to ornament below the bust is a style feature that is being widely accepted.

The skirt with a straight gathered flounce is joined to the waist under a belt of material and the banding is used to advantage at about knee depth. In view of the predominance of braid this season, soutache braiding to simulate the banding will be both stylish and attractive on this model. Wool embroidery is also a new and novel decoration, so that one has ample choice.

There are a number of desirable fabrics to be considered for a dress of this design; Georgette crepe and silk and fine serge or serge and white broadcloth for the collar and sleeves; of course velvet is well in the lead, too.

The dress pattern No. 8,691, is cut in sizes 14 to 20 years. To make in size 16 will require 4¾ yards of 36 inch silk and ¾ yard of 40 inch crepe with 3⅞ yards of banding. Or, in all one material, 5¼ yards.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Thanks, old man, for telling me about
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It has given me back my old time vigor and made me strong and well

This is the way people feel about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It arouses the enthusiasm of those who use it because of its remarkable restorative and up-building influence.

It lifts them out of the tired, nervous and helpless condition resulting from exhausted nerves, restores health and vigor and makes life worth living.

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervous headache, indigestion, and all the warning symptoms of nervous collapse disappear when this great food cure is used to nourish the nerve cells back to health.

Nervous Collapse

Mr. Victor Higgs, Windham Hill, Cumberland Co., N.S., writes:

"My case was a peculiar one. It was one of those strange nervous diseases which are so difficult to describe. The doctor said that my nervous system was all run down. I experienced that uncertainty in walking which indicates the approach of paralysis and locomotor ataxia, and I now realize that I am greatly indebted to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the great good it has done me.

"I could not work, read or write, or do anything requiring energy or the concentration of mind. Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could not get an hour's sleep all night. My brain and nerves seemed to be all unsettled. I sleep well now, and believe that my nervous system has been fully built up by this splendid medicine."

Sciatic Rheumatism

Mr. W. J. Talbot, Edenwold, Sask., writes: "It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a cure for sciatic rheumatism. The pain I have suffered from sciatica has been well nigh unbearable. It would start in the hips and run down the legs to the toes, gradually getting worse. The nerves contract until one is practically useless. My doctor tried many different treatments, but could only afford relief for a time.

"For about five years I was subject to this trouble, with severe attacks which would last about two months. The last attack I had was shortened to two weeks by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills used in conjunction with it. This treatment was continued until I was satisfied that the cure was lasting."

This statement is endorsed by Mr. H. E. Wooley, J.P.

It rests entirely with you as to whether you benefit by these experiences of others. If you could talk with persons who have used this treatment and note their enthusiasm you would not be long in putting it to the test in your own case.

Depression Is Spreading Over The Kaiser's Empire

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Evidence accumulates that the process of disillusionment of the German people has set in. Efforts are still put forth in the German press to belittle the effect of the Roumanian entry into the war, to explain away the progress of the conflict on the Somme and to prevent the internal condition of the empire in the most favourable light, but it becomes easier week by week to read between the lines an to discern increasing signs of the depression that is settling upon the nation. That depression is accompanied by a political restlessness that has found vent in attacks on the government, on the Imperial Chancellor and on the "Food Dictator" and a general demand for more "business management".

Reports of strikes and riots are still frequent. A barrister recently returned from Germany talks of the spread of revolutionary tendencies He says there has been rioting in Berlin and Cologne, that Berlin is under martial law and that in certain garrison towns troops are retained for the purpose of quelling riots. From an absolutely reliable source it is learned that a formidable riot occurred in Hamburg on August 25 and 26, and the editor of an important socialist organ has received trustworthy information that Dresden was the scene during the last week of August of a big riot, in which 280 persons were killed and 100 wounded.

A neutral minister who has been in Germany twice in the last six months found on the occasion of his second trip, at the end of July, that the situation had undergone a great change for the worse.

BERLIN SHORT OF FOOD

He was especially surprised to discover how bad and scanty food was in Berlin; but it was not so much the exorbitant prices as the actual shortage of everything that struck him most. Another neutral minister says the Berlin government is much preoccupied with the internal situation and has to weigh carefully the probable effect on public opinion of any contemplated action. A Dane who has lived in Berlin for six or seven years declared that "the spirit of the people is sinking rapidly and the public begin to loose faith in final victory."

With respect to trade and industry, the intensity of the preparations being made in Germany to hasten the delivery of raw materials after the war is regarded as the best proof of how severely the present lack of those materials must be felt in many branches of industry. While substitutes are said to be probably in most cases a little practical value some of the inventions may prove of real use. In the case of artificial production of nitrates for use as manure and for the production of explosives it is reported on the best expert authority that the German process is a really valuable commercial proposition, which might with advantage be imitated in other countries

Conditions in the textile and leather trades go from bad to worse. The supplies of cotton for public use are practically exhausted, wool is commandeered, raw silk is no longer so easily obtained, and the flax crop cannot provide more than twenty per cent of the requirements of the nation in the coming year. The stricter control established over every kind of raw hide and tanned leather indicates a growing shortage and augurs ill for the supply of boots for the civilian population. The entry of Roumania into the war deprives Germany of her principal source of supply of mineral oils and none of the food difficulties appear to have been permanently and satisfactory solved.

HARVEST A GOOD AVERAGE

With regard to the harvest, the yield in general is a good average one. The prospects of the potato crop are not so good as last year, and they have been farther depreciated by the serious miscalculations of the authorities in regard to the distributing of the early potatoes. In order to secure the highest prices the producers dug up their potatoes as fast as they were able, whether mature or not They were piled into railway waggons still covered with wet earth, and delivered in enormous consignments to the various towns. At first there were paeans of rejoicing at the bountiful news of the crop, the rationing principle was suspended, and the local authorities vied with one another in placing orders far beyond their need. The result was the potatoes began to rot, and in a few days the situation underwent a complete transformation and an inadequate ration of one and a half pounds a day had to be reintroduced for the rest of the year.

There is no adequate reason to believe that German home supplies of food, taken altogether, will show any improvement in the present harvest year as compared with last. On the other hand, there is good evidence that the strong hold of the British on the throat of Germany is far more effective than it was a year ago in preventing supplies of food from coming in from the outside. There is every prospect, therefore, of an intenser food crisis next spring than has been witnessed during the last few months. The enthusiasm and confidence which supported the people through earlier privations have disappeared and given way to wide spread depression.

TO TRIFLE WITH CATARRH IS TO RISK CONSUMPTION

Usually it comes with a cold. Being slight it is neglected—but the seed is sown for a dangerous harvest, perhaps consumption. To cure at once, inhale Catarrhozone. It destroys the germs of catarrh, clears away mucous, cleanses the passage of the nose and throat. The hacking cough and sneezing cold soon disappear, and health is yours again. Nothing known for colds, catarrh and throat trouble, that is so curative as Catarrhozone. It cures by a new method that never yet failed. The one dollar outfit includes the inhaler and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c, sold everywhere.

More Than Plowing Match at "R.J.'s."

Whitby, Nov. 2. The heavy rain and the raw wind of yesterday reduced the attendance at the opening of the provincial plowing match on Mr R. J. Fleming's Pickering farm, considerably below the figure counted on. Those in attendance were, however, well repaid for enduring the discomforts of a raw wind in the open.

The affair is a good deal more than a plowing match: it is a display of almost all sorts of farm machinery, from potato planters to thrashing machines, and from disc harrows to silo fillers. The "power method" is everywhere in evidence, gasoline and kerosene supplying the energy, and with traction plows as the chief feature. It was not until the afternoon that the traction plows got to work, the little Ford being the first on the ground, and being followed shortly afterwards by the Massey-Harris, the Bawden Massey and other tractors the put-put-sounding like a machine gun battery in action, and all the tractors doing good work.

Dodging Shrapnel No Fun For Airmen

Machine Guns the Worst— Canadian Describes the Thrill He Got When His Engine Balked Over the German Lines.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—"It's all right so long as you can't see 'em, or hear 'em," said Tommy Brennan of the Royal Flying Corps; "but any man who tells you he can fly over an 'Archie' and get a 'flaming onion' right ahead of him without ducking and wishing they wouldn't come so close or make so much noise, has never been up in an aeroplane. Take it from me."

"Yes," put in Gilray, "and every time you duck your old winger ducks with you. As 'Brem' over there says, it wouldn't be so bad if you couldn't see and hear 'em. Generally speaking, you don't hear them unless one happens to break within thirty yards of you. It's when you get down close to them and look right down at them spitting fire at you, that's when you have got to have every nerve in your body turned up."

"I'll never forget the first time they got close to me," declared Boy Tylie. "My only thought was that I would never shoot a pheasant again. I knew exactly how a bird must feel when a hunter opens fire."

Brennan wore upon his left sleeve the gold stripe of the wounded. 'Gill' had been on the official list of the killed in action some weeks ago, but somehow or other came back to life. When Brennan was "hit" and finally came down safely within his own lines, it was found there were no less than eighty perforations in his wings.

"I was so interested in looking over their trenches, I guess I got a little too low," he explained.

There is nothing more interesting in all London than to sit through a long Autumn evening talking to the youngsters of the wonderful aviation service. Great Britain has built up since the war began.

"We've got to the Germans now where they have to fire blindly or shoot by the map," these intrepid men of the air will tell you. "Of what use are their wonderful guns if they don't know what they are shooting at? They don't dare send a plane over our lines. The minute they show themselves we have an overwhelming number of machines to send after them, and they beat it for home again as fast as they can go. They can't take a photograph of our new positions. Their batteries have been driven from the heights and they can't observe. It is a big difference from the first days of the war."

The gasoline consumed in the United States this year has been estimated as equivalent to a stream six feet wide and a foot deep flowing at a speed of a mile an hour.

NEW TYPE OF JOINT ON STREET RAILWAY

The Street Railway Company recently improved the Jackson Park line by putting in a new type of rail joint which has given immediate and splendid results. The road is smooth and free from jolts. This form of joint evidently means the passing of the old fish plates, and is a promise of practically permanent satisfactory conditions on any line on which they are used.

Silver Securities

From now forward silver stocks will command greater interest among securities buyers.

The absorption of the white metal by Europe is proving a material factor in keeping the price of the metal close to the 70c mark, but the prospective buying promises to establish materially higher figures.

A country-wide boom in silver securities seems inevitable. It should parallel the interest in copper during the past two years.

And, pursuing the policy that enabled our clients to take full advantage of the sensational movement in coppers, namely, directing attention to these issues before the great investing and trading public fully appreciated their possibilities, we recommend the silver situation be closely studied.

More, we suggest the immediate purchase of Tomopah and Cobalt securities.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Puzzling Case

Setting a Detective to Catch a Detective.

By ETHEL HOLMES

They say a woman can't keep a secret. I can testify to the fact that one woman I have known could keep a secret so well that she guided me, a detective with a reputation for shrewdness, to the detection of the real criminal, I having been set upon her to expose her. And this she did without revealing to me the fact that she knew him to be the man I should have been after.

One day I was directed by my chief to call upon the president of the Third National bank. I did so, and he said to me:

"Mr. Williams, we have a woman in our employ whom we suspect of embezzling our funds. The case is a singular one, and I must give it to you so far as it has already developed. There is a mystery connected with it which is very puzzling.

"We had in our employ a man whom we esteemed very highly. One day he failed to turn up at the usual time for the day's work. His wife was telephoned to know if he was ill. She replied that she was about to telephone the bank for information concerning him. He had not come home the day before nor during the night. She was terribly worried for fear that something had happened to him.

"The person among our employees who had last seen the man—Walter Pixley—said that Pixley had told him that he was going to see a man who owed him a hundred dollars. He had hurried away from the bank to catch his creditor at his office before the close of business hours. We learned from Mrs. Pixley the name of the debtor and sent a man to him for information concerning her husband.

In TRAINING
Thousands of men suddenly called to undergo the hardships of winter training find the sustaining power of Oxo Cubes invaluable for supporting health and strength.

Oxo Cubes have a body-building power out of all proportion to their bulk. Many a young soldier, wet through, and physically exhausted by hours of marching or other duties, has had cause to bless the invention of Oxo Cubes

Oxo Cubes are so convenient and handy that they can be carried on the person without adding to the weight of one's equipment. A cup of Oxo or an Oxo Cube sandwich enables one to go for long hours.

OXO CUBES

The party said that Pixley had visited his office in company with a veiled woman, who had waited for him without. The money had been paid him, and he had been seen to go away with the woman.

"This information communicated to Mrs. Pixley threw her into hysterics.

"The next phase of the case was the report of one of our bookkeepers that funds were missing from the bank. My informant, Mr. Carter, told me that he had suspected Pixley for some time, and as soon as Pixley disappeared Carter had made an examination of certain books kept by Pixley and had fallen upon proof that he was a defaulter. Carter is an expert accountant. I have always had great faith in him. He brought me his proofs of Pixley's guilt, which I examined, and, although Pixley had been doing all he could to render the accounts confusing, Carter convinced me that he was a defaulter.

"Now I come to the third act of the drama. Mrs. Pixley, who had undoubtedly been deserted by her husband for another woman, came to me and begged for some employment in the bank. She claimed that as a girl she had attended a commercial college and had studied bookkeeping. I pitied her and gave her the position made vacant by her husband.

"The end of my story and the point at which I wish you to take it up is a report this morning from Carter that more funds are being taken from the bank and that he suspects Mrs. Pixley of being the thief. You see from what I have told you that the case is a very complicated one. While I do not propose to lay out a course of action for you, I would suggest that you watch Mrs. Pixley. This of course you cannot do in the bank. You can only do it outside of the bank."

I confessed to the president that the matter did look rather puzzling. Had Pixley not deserted his wife for another woman I would have suspected that Mr. and Mrs. Pixley were in league to rob the bank. And yet, Pixley having done so, it did not seem likely that Mrs. Pixley would work on the same ground as he. I told the president that I would first find out something about Mrs. Pixley. When I had done that I would proceed to the next step in the premises.

I sent a party to Mrs. Pixley's home to sell her something, to draw her into conversation and to ask her at what institution she had studied bookkeeping. My emissary returned to me with the information that Mrs. Pixley had looked at the questioner concerned, but had given the Merton Business college as the place where she had received instruction. I at once went to the Merton college and asked to see a record of the students. The maiden name of Mrs. Pixley did not appear as having been a pupil there, and Mr. Merton declared that at the time Mrs. Pixley claimed to have been there he did not receive women students.

So far so good. I had nailed Mrs. Pixley in a lie. This tended to confirm me in considering her as guilty. But why she should steal from the same bank as her husband was a puzzle. The only reason I could think of was that she was enabled through sympathy to secure a place there, which she could not do elsewhere.

Another complication bothered me. Mrs. Pixley was reported by her fellow employees to be a pretty good bookkeeper. She must have received some training in this respect, but why should she have lied as to the school where she had studied?

I made no progress after nailing the lie upon Mrs. Pixley and at last determined to make her acquaintance and by pretending as a friend, or to be smitten with her, to get the secret from her. Under pretense of being a bank examiner I became familiar with the employees, she among the number. I treated her with deference and sympathy. One day when she was leaving the bank after business hours I joined her and walked with her. Passing a restaurant, I told her that I was going in to take a lonely dinner. Would she help me out with her company? She consented, and, selecting a table in a corner where we could converse without being overheard by others, we dined together.

I commiserated with her at having such a husband, expressing wonder that any man should desert so charming a woman. She seemed to feel very bitterly toward him, but, of course, if she were a thief as well as he, it might be a part of her game to feign this. I asked her if she suspected who was the woman with whom her husband had gone away, and she said she felt sure of the person. I got nothing out of her, but was impressed with the belief that there was a good deal in her, whether for good or for evil, though I did not feel that it was for evil. After dinner I escorted her to her home and left her at the door, at the same time receiving an invitation to call upon her.

Despite all my efforts I found nothing to implicate Mrs. Pixley, and there was no evidence at the bank to prove that she was purloining its funds, though the president had put Carter on the watch for this. After a time Carter said that, whatever was her way of taking money, it was so subtle that it was beyond his penetration. However, the cash on hand was constantly deficient, and Carter suggested that Mrs. Pixley be simply discharged without any reason being given her. The president communicated this to me, and I suggested that he put the matter off. I had become convinced that Mrs. Pixley had a secret. I was steadily gaining her confidence, and I hoped in time she would let out something. To this he assented.

A couple of days after this I received a note from Mrs. Pixley, as follows:

Dear Mr. Detective—You are on the wrong track in shadowing me. Conceal yourself under the steps leading up to the bank tomorrow night (or, rather, the next morning) at 1 o'clock and wait till I come. M. D. P.

I cannot tell why, but I was not so much astonished at this as might be expected. I was certainly rejoiced, because I knew important developments were to come. At the appointed time I went to the bank and waited in the shadow of the steps. Ten minutes later Mrs. Pixley went up the steps. I joined her. She tapped at the door, and it was opened by the watchman. We went in behind the counters. Mrs. Pixley opened a safe, took out some heavy account book, which I laid on a high desk for her.

"How is it that you can come here at such a time and open this safe?" I asked her.

"The watchman is in my secret. I am allowed the combination of this safe, which contains only books."

And here began the revelation. I am something of an accountant, this being one reason why I was put on the job. Mrs. Pixley spent two hours with me over a set of books, showing me that Carter had manipulated them to conceal certain peculations. And the entries bearing upon them were so dovetailed into certain entries in a set of books that had been kept by her husband as to make it appear that Pixley was the defaulter. And I could not see how Pixley could have shown that he was innocent in the matter. I looked aside at Mrs. Pixley and asked:

"How about the woman with whom your husband decamped?"

"I was the veiled woman who went with him to collect the money owed him, but I didn't go away with him. One day he discovered how Mr. Carter, to conceal his peculations, had manipulated these books. He came home so broken down that I, fearing he would make a poor showing under an investigation, concocted this plan whereby I might have an opportunity to study out the problem for him. The watchman, Callahan, has always been my husband's friend and at the risk of losing his job has admitted me here at head of night. I have had an expert accountant with me at times, and together we have unraveled this conspiracy and can make a showing such as I have given you."

"Where did you get your knowledge of bookkeeping?"

"I studied it after my husband left. The person you sent to find out about that caught me unawares. But at the time I did not know she came from you."

"Mrs. Pixley," I said admiringly, taking from under my coat my books of office and handing it to her, "I resign in your favor. If I am worth $10 a day as a detective you are worth a hundred."

As we left the bank I handed a twenty dollar bill to Callahan, but he declined to accept it. The next morning I called on the bank's president and was obliged to confess that my work had been done by the woman he had sent me to watch. Carter's books were examined without his knowledge. Pixley was summoned home by his wife and put in Carter's place. Mrs. Pixley was given five shares of the stock of the bank, worth $8,500, and her husband is as chipper as before he was lugubrious.

No, sir, I don't believe that a woman is any more liable to divulge a secret than a man, especially when it becomes her interest to keep it. At any rate, such is my experience.

THROW AWAY RUBBISH

Wisdom of Cleaning Out Accumulations of Gowns and Mustiness

In some houses the first thing that greets one is a faint musty odor arising from carpets, which have grown old, but which, though probably swept frequently, have never been sent to the cleaner's, and, being down for years, have accumulated deposits of dust underneath them. In old houses, too, the flooring will have shrunk and provided receptacles for insects under the carpets. Constant traffic and the soil of the street brought in on dirty boots also get into both carpet and flooring.

It is cheaper to do away with rubbish of all kinds than to suffer the results in ill health. Bedrooms are often used as receptacles for stores or old clothes, and trunks and other things, the occupants forgetting that these things are but so much cubic capacity cut off from the air space of the room and that they harbour germs and cause infection.

If household furnishings are worn out and there is difficulty in renewing them, better eliminate them than retain them to the detriment of health. The bare room is a healthy room. If rooms require repapering, have them distempered instead. Paperhangers are at a discount just now, and the cleanly distemper which many women who are handy can manage by themselves is healthier and cleaner than a cheap and soiled paper.

Nervous Dyspepsia

The Modern Scourge
and How to Meet it.

The speed at which we live, the hustle now so necessary for success have unfortunately a very adverse effect on the nervous and digestive systems of Canadians. The baneful results, increased lately to an alarming degree, often lay the seeds of more deadly trouble, but it will be satisfactory to learn of the ever-increasing popularity in the Dominion, of the Great British Remedy, Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Dr. Ramsay Colles, J.P. of the City of Dublin, a man of high eminence in the scientific world, says:—"I have great pleasure in expressing my satisfaction as to the curative effect of Dr. Cassell's Tablets in cases of nerve troubles. From several cases which have lately come under my notice I am able to form the opinion that Dr. Cassell's Tablets constitute a safe and reliable family remedy, and appear to be specially effective for nerve and bodily weakness."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are Nutritive, Restorative, Alterative, and Anti-Spasmodic, and of great therapeutic value in all derangements of the Nerve, Digestive, and Functional Systems in old or young. They are the recognised modern home remedy for Dyspepsia, Nervous Breakdown, Stomach Catarrh, Kidney Disease, Nerve and Spinal Paralysis, Infantile Paralysis, Rickets, St. Vitus' Dance, Anæmia, Sleeplessness, Brain Fag, Headache, Palpitation, Wasting Diseases, Vital Exhaustion, Loss of Flesh, and Premature Decay. Had Bronchitis
FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Chas. Breen, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF CATTLE MARKET

Cattle Market Receipts Heaviest of the year—Large Receipts of Cattle, Sheep and Hogs Continue to Pour into the Market

Heavy shipments of cattle, sheep, and hogs continue to pour into the Toronto markets. This week's receipts on the two markets combined again constituted a new high record. Over 10,000 head of cattle were received during the week at the Union Stock Yards alone, the total receipts for the Stock Yards and the City Market reaching over 12,000 head, calves included. There were over 20,000 hogs and over 13,000 sheep and lambs on the two markets. Notwithstanding the increasing heavy receipts for the past two weeks prices on the whole have held good and steady, to a little firmer for the best quality cattle. The great demand for cattle of the canners and cutters class has readily absorbed the heavy runs of these cattle coming in, consequent upon a general clearing-up process of superfluous rough cattle and cows off the farms before winter sets in. Price for good canners were quite firm at the close of this week's markets. Receipts of choice, well-finished butcher cattle have been proportionately small and prices consequently firm, with a tendency higher. The demand for good feeders has continued active at steady prices though some of the largest buyers are now pretty nearly supplied for the winter's requirements. Demand for light stockers was not active the latter part of this week, and prices in this class went off fully a quarter.

There is a fairly active and steady demand for choice milch cows, springers, and good veal calves.

Sheep and lambs steady to firm for best quality.

Hogs were lowered about 25 cents early in the week, and held practically steady at that level to the close with unusually heavy receipts the latter part of the week.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts this week were 913 cars, with 10,179 cattle, 939 calves, 17,859 hogs, 10,099 sheep and lambs, and 3,370 horses.

City Cattle Market—115 cars, with 1,527 cattle, 1916 sheep and lambs, 2,728 hogs, 36 calves and 40 horses.

Baby's Own Tablets Used Ten Years

Mrs. C. E. Stilwell, Winthrope Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and have found them so good for my little ones that I always keep a box in the house." Mrs. Stilwell is one of thousands of mothers who always keep the Tablets on hand. Once a mother has used them for her little ones she would use nothing else. They are absolutely free from opiates and injurious drugs and cannot possibly do harm to the youngest child. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANCIENT BAGDAD

Bits About the Enchanted City of the Arabian Nights.

Immortalised by Haroun-al-Raschid, in the story of the Arabian Nights, Bagdad, which has a population of about 150,000 was built on the ruins of an ancient Babylonian city dating back to 2000 B.C. Records have been found on ancient bricks establishing its early date.

Ever since the days of Haroun-al-Raschid the Jews have been the leading figures in the commercial world of Bagdad. There are 50,000 of them, with about 8,000 Chaldron (or heretical) Christians. The remainnder of the population is made up of Persians, Turks, Armenians, Arabs and Kurds.

Sindbab the Sailor was born in Bagdad, and all his marvelous adventures begin by his going down the Tigris to Bussorah (the modern Busra).

The city stands on both sides of the Tigris, the two parts being connected by the famous bridge of boats, 220 yards long. A brick wall, five miles in circumference and forty feet high, surrounds Bagdad.

The city contains upward of 100 mosques, though barely twenty of them are in use. The houses generally are old, dirty and ugly outside, but the vaulted ceilings, rich mouldings, inlaid mirrors and massive gildings bring back to the recollection of the traveller "the golden prime of the good Haroun-al-Raschid."

The streets are narrow, crooked, unpaved and dirty, full of ruts and strewed with garbage, which, however, is for the most part removed by dogs, the public scavengers of the east.

PRICES STILL ARE SOARING

And The End is Not Yet in Sight Says The Canadian Grocer Reviewing The Market Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week under the heading, "Grocery Markets for the Week".

Prices of many lines are still soaring skyward and the end is not yet in sight. A large number of price changes, mostly all in an upward direction, have taken place this week. Flour is firm at the high price reached by the last two advances, first patents being quoted at $10.90 Toronto, in car lots. Cereals in bulk and package are firm and advancing in price. Produce and provisions are showing advances all along the line and much higher prices are looked for on eggs, butter, and other products. On account of the high prices of cheese, some factories which usually close in September will operate right up to December.

Following the further advances in the price of flour, Toronto bakers have again advanced their prices of bread to the consumer, and are now charging 9c for a 1½-lb. loaf. Soda biscuits are decidedly firm in price, but no changes have been recorded since the advance of 1c per pound early in October.

Indian and Ceylon teas have advanced in London to the extent of ½c to 1c lb. This advance is in agreement with the opinion expressed by tea authorities last week. In the primary markets coffee is also firmer, with coarser grades up 1c pound. The demand, however, is not heavy at present and stocks are fairly good.

Carraway seed, in accordance with recent predictions, has advanced 5c per pound during the week, in keeping with firmness in the primary markets. The export duty put on by the Dutch Government has also helped to boost prices here. There is a good demand for spices of all kinds. Prices on raisins, withdrawn some time ago, are expected to be named in the immediate future. Candied peels are all firmer and in some cases have advanced in price. A sharp advance in the primary market in tapioca has been reflected in local markets in the form of a ½c lb. advance. Rice is one of the few foodstuffs that has not advanced.

The sugar market at present is unsettled. Statistically the market is strong and representatives of some of the refiners look for even higher prices. However, one guess seems to be as good as another these days. Quotations of various refiners now show difference of only 15c per 100 lbs., instead of 25c as last week.

Potatoes are now moving upwards and an advance of 15c bag has taken place, with further advances in sight.

Considerable quantities of United States canned goods are being imported into the Montreal market following the announcement of the shortage and high price of the Canadian pack. The market is in a chaotic state at present and a wide range of prices is being quoted, particularly on canned tomatoes.

RUSSIAN FOOD CRISIS.

It is Daily Assuming More Formidable Proportions.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—"The food crisis daily assumes more formidable proportions," says the Times Petrograd correspondent. "The discussion at Wednesday's sitting of the Budget Committee left little doubt as to the gravity of the situation. The speakers emphasized the imperative necessity of adopting ameliorative measures on behalf of the working classes if most unfortunate consequences are to be averted. The situation of the lower classes is at present intolerable, owing to the impossibility of obtaining the necessaries of life without standing for hours daily outside provision shops.

"The committee agreed that it was necessary to transfer the control of the whole food question to a single Government department. It also voted in favour of fixing prices for grain, footwear, textiles, kerosene, soap and other things. The committee was also in favour of enlisting the Zemstvos and other public organizations in the work of purchasing, distributing and transporting food."

An Army of Internal Bathers

Over half a million bright, keen, up-to-date Canadians and Americans have found that Internal Bathing is more essential to their well being than External Baths.

Have found that taken occasionally at night, they feel like different people the next morning. No more of that billious, tired and nervous condition—but having by Nature's own cleanser, antiseptic warm water, removed all the poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, they awake thoroughly refreshed by normal sleep with all their functions acting in healthy accord, bright, happy, clear-headed, and confident, eager and capable for the duties of the day.

SEVEN YEARS TORTURE

Nothing Helped Him Until He Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

ALBERT VARNER

Buckingham, Que., May 3rd, 1915.

For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well".

TEST CASE AT WELLAND.

WELLAND, Nov. 3.—A test case is being made here in the prosecution of G. A. Toyne on the charge of taking orders for liquor for a Montreal firm, in violation of the Ontario temperance act. The charge was laid by T. F. Corry, Provincial Inspector, and the evidence offered was that sales were made to J. B. Stephens. The defence admitted taking the orders, but pleaded not guilty, contending that the act was not violated. By mutual consent, judgment was reserved by Magistrate Burgar to permit of the case being laid before the Attorney-General for his opinion.

FALL OF TRIESTE EXPECTED SHORTLY

Austrian Troops Are Terribly Decimated

Italian Long Range Guns Bombarding Defences of Trieste

Italian Fleet Has Completed The Blockade of Approaches to the Harbour and Austria's Principal Adriatic Seaport is Practically Under Siege---Italians Now Control Most of the Passes and Railway Lines North and North west of Trieste and Fall of City Which Has a Population of 130,000, Is Expected Within a Week or Two.

EVERYTHING IS QUIET ON FRENCH FRONT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME (Special Cable) Saturday Noon, November 4.—Long range Italian guns have been shelling the inner defences of the Austrian seaport of Trieste to-day, and the Italian fleet has practically completed the blockade of the approaches to Trieste Harbour. Austria's principal Adriatic seaport is practically under siege.

The Italians now control most of the passes and railway lines north and northwest of Trieste. The city is almost encircled. Austrian troops valiantly defending the position have been terribly decimated, in some cases whole battalions being destroyed. Estimates of Austrian killed, wounded and captured during the new sweep by General Cadorna's army in this direction vary from twenty to thirty thousand Austrians killed and wounded or captured. The Italian loss is also very severe, but the gains are considered proportionately great.

Expectations here are that Trieste, which has a population of 130,000, three-fourths of whom are Italians, will be under the flag of Italy within a week or two. There is great rejoicing here.

BITTER FIGHTING.

No offensive on the Austro-Italian front since the beginning of the war has been marked by such fierce fighting. Battling in the Carso mountain lands, the Italians and Austrians have met in hand-to-hand struggles that have continued at some places all night. An especially furious combat preceded the capture of Veliki Hill by the Italians. The summit was crowned by heavy Austrian artillery that drew a semi-circle of fire against the base of Veliki and prevented Cadorna's men from advancing in frontal attacks. Several small Italian detachments under cover of darkness reached the slopes on the sides of Veliki outside this fire zone. Without waiting for reinforcements they scaled the sides, surprised the enemy, and after a brief encounter with bayonets and daggers, captured the Austrian battery.

The victors signalled the news to their waiting comrades below and then turned the captured guns on the Austrian trenches to the east.

It is estimated here that 100,000 Austrian troops are defending the Isonzo lines now under attack by Cadorna. Several Austrian battalions have been, practically wiped out of existence.

A Falling Off Of 358 Compared to September Figures

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—The total recruiting for the fortnight ending October 31, amounted to 2,836 as compared with 3,160 for the preceding fortnight. This makes a total for the month of 5,999 as against 6,357 for September.

The Toronto district enlisted 408, Kingston 284, and London 185.

Public Meeting on Tuesday Night at May's School House

A large attendance is called for the public meeting in May's schoolhouse, North Monaghan, on Tuesday, November 7th, in aid of the British Red Cross. Reeve McIntosh will preside and several speakers from the city, probably Mr. R. B. Hall and Col. J. W. Miller will give addresses.

Speaking of The Theatre

Expensive Popular Plays Featured at The Royal—Next Weeks Big Attractions

A nice little old lady says she likes the Royal Theatre because the service is so good and smart, and the house is so different and city-like.

She doesn't believe in having to abstain from dancing or theatre-going, or to observe certain other foolish codes of morality. Those rules, she thinks are direct descendants of the Puritans. They forbade all pleasures, because, she supposes, they couldn't play without thinking wrong thoughts.

This little old lady says she likes the Royal because it generally provides clean amusement. It is quite select and careful about the photoplays it presents on the screen. The films are carefully scanned and anything that won't stand inspection is "censored." The men and women "stars" are of good repute, and every thing objectionable is cut out of the reels.

Many of the serials and dramas have proved to be moving picture hits that cost a whole lot of money—a million dollars, and more, in some instances.

All next week the Royal will feature big film attractions, procured at heavy expense by Mr. Pappas, to be supported by all-star casts. For particulars see large four-column advertisement.

Smoker By East City Men Tuesday Night

A "smoker" will be held on Tuesday night in the Immaculate Conception parish hall. Euchre and a short programme will be provided with a pipefull for those who smoke. The men of the parish have arranged this social affair and expect a good attendance.

OPPOSITION FROM THE IRISH RESIDENTS BEAT CONSCRIPTION

Open Secret That The Solid Hostility of The People of Irish Descent Living in Australia Caused Negative Majority in Recent Vote

THE GENERAL SITUATION

by T. P. O'Connor

London, November 4.—There was a certain lull this week both at home and abroad with the satisfactory feature that the war news, especially from the eastern front, was much more cheerful. The unbroken equanimity of the Roumanian colony in London, even during the events of last week, was more than justified by the stubborn resistance offered to the German generals, von Falkenhayn and von Mackensen. The London Roumanians still insist that given a little more time, the situation will unquestionably develop favorably for them.

There has been little opinion expressed concerning Ireland, at least publicly, especially as Redmond, Dillon and Devlin are absent, but nevertheless Ireland is at the back of every politician's mind and some event or the other is always bringing it forward. It is an open secret that conscription was beaten in Australia owing largely to the solid Irish hostility against it and that this hostility is due to the resentment over the Dublin executions and the breakdown of the Home Rule settlement.

Though strong appeals were made to the Irish leaders here to help Premier Hughes, they were not in a position to intervene.

Another indication of how the wind is blowing, is to be found in John Redmond's visit to Sligo and his triumphant reception at every station en route. In Sligo itself it marked the ebbing of the anti-party and anti-Redmond tide which ran so strongly two months ago. Ireland may now be regarded as recovering completely from the insane heady storm, as Redmond characterized the rebellion, and its sequels.

It is also significant that Redmond repeated his demand of last week that Home Rule be immediately put into operation and that the ministry itself should assume the responsibility of any measures regarding Ulster, or other difficulties which stand in the way. Redmond speaks for an overwhelming English as well as Irish opinion, making an incessant demand for a renewal of the attempt to settle the Home

CANADIAN DOLLAR IS NOW WORTH ONLY 67c

TORONTO, November 4.—The Canadian dollar has shrunk to sixty-seven cents during the present war. This is the finding of an expert in Toronto who has figured out the purchasing power of money to-day and compared it with two years ago, just after war started. The increases in many cases are absolutely staggering. For instance potatoes have gone up one hundred and seventy-one per cent. when bought by the peck. Other increases are bread eighty per cent., milk twenty, butter fifty, flour sixty-four, canned stuff from forty to fifty per cent., bread from fifty to eighty per cent. The percentages in each case vary with the locality. On the whole the above is a summary of the Canadian cost of living. The expert's deduction is from actual and authentic figures.

RETURNED SOLDIERS TO MEET AT ARMOURIES TO FORM ASSOCIATION

All Peterboro Officers and Men Who Have Been Overseas Are Asked to Be on Hand Monday Night---More 93rd Men Returned This Morning From England---Belgians Called to The Colours---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

All the returned soldiers in Peterborough, officers, non-commissioned officers and men, are requested to attend a meeting in the Armouries on Monday night at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing an association for their own mutual benefit and advantage, and for the purpose of co-operating in looking after the men who practically each month from now on will be returning from overseas. There is much work that such an organization can do, work that will be of great benefit to themselves and others, and it is expected that every man in Peterborough who has been overseas, whether in England or in France, will be on hand Monday night. All the men of the 93rd and other battalions who have been sent home from England, as well as those who have reached the firing line, are asked to be present at this most important meeting. It will be held in the officers' lounge room in the Armouries, the old stores' room of the 57th, and afterwards used as a canteen by the 93rd Battalion. It is up to every returned soldier in Peterborough to come to this meeting.

COBOURG, Nov. 4.—Dr. John R. Irwin, a well-known Cobourg physician, who has served for a year with the Imperial Medical Corps and was decorated by the King at Buckingham Palace for conspicuous bravery and attention to duty in going down into a mine shaft to give treatment to some men who had been buried by the explosion of a mine, returned from the front. He was met at the depot by Mayor Duncan, the members of the Town Council, and prominent citizens, Major McKinnon, O.C., Lieut. Davidson, and the overseas draft from Cobourg Heavy Battery and escorted to the Town Hall, where a formal welcome was given.

There will be no church parade tomorrow, but it is expected that the majority of the officers and men of the 247th Battalion will attend Trinity Methodist Church in the evening, when a memorial service will be held for Lance Corp. Horace Stanley of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, recently killed in action.

Notice to the Belgians.

The Consulate-General of Belgium at Ottawa has just addressed the following communication to the editor:

A Ministerial order, dated the 15th of October, 1916, extends to the Belgians living in Canada the provisions of the decree of the 21st of July last.

As a consequence, all Belgians born after the 30th of June, 1876, and before the 1st of July, 1898, shall before the 1st of December, 1916, duly fill registration forms and address same either to said Consulate General or to the nearest Belgian Consul.

Registration forms will be supplied by the nearest Belgian Consul on either verbal or written application.

Married men born after 1894 and single men born after the 30th of June, 1889, will be summoned to the nearest Belgian Consulate, where their obligations will be explained to them. If fit for service, they will be transported to the Belgian Recruiting Commission of Folkestone, England.

Married men born before 1886 and single men born before the 1st of July, 1886, may apply for a delay, provided since any date prior to the 21st of June they have been in the employ either of concerns engaged in the production of war material or of any service of general utility. Such application shall be made in the registration form. Those who have not applied for a delay or who have been refused same will be summoned to the nearest Belgian Consulate, on a date to be determined by future provisions, to be medically examined and, if found fit, transported to the Belgian Recruiting Commission of Folkestone, England.

Daily Orders.

By Major W. D. Johnston, commanding the 247th Battalion, C.E.F.:

Orders for Sunday and Monday, Nov. 5th and 6th, 1916:

1. Parade. There will be no parade on Sunday.

Monday—All officers, N.C.O.'s and men except those specially employed, will parade in the Drill Hall, Armouries, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

2. Duties. Orderly Officer for Sunday, Lieut. Bosdet

Next for duty, Lieuts. R. G. Johnston and Strickland.

3. Strength. Pte. William Henry Sugden was attested on the 2nd of Nov., assigned No. 1063031, and posted to A Company.

4. Leave. Lieut. Shaw is hereby granted leave of absence from reveille, Nov 4th, to tattoo, Nov. 6, 1916

R. S. Brooks, Lieut.,
Actmg Adjutant.

A party of 93rd men rejected at the final medical examination in England as being too old or physically unfit to stand the hardships of the trenches arrived in town early this morning, having received their discharge. Among those who arrived this morning were: Pte. Ben Jinks, 344 Simcoe Street; Pte. W. McIlmoyle, King Street; Pte. Thos. Quinlan, Water Street North, and Pte. Copperthwaite, of Chemong Indian Village. Several other members had to report to the Convalescent Home at Kingston.

A RAY OF WARMTH; NO COAL FAMINE

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 3.—F. M. Chase, Vice-President and General Manager of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, and C. F. Huber, Vice-President and General Manager of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company, yesterday declared that there is no danger of an anthracite coal famine.

They say that "812 coal is a false situation, created through the frenzy of people, and offers an opportunity for speculators and independent operations to reap a financial harvest."

Both declared that there will be plenty of coal throughout the winter, and that the big companies will not increase their circular prices or sell to dealers who advance prices above the regular winter

NO EVIDENCE OF NEAR END OF WAR

No Chance of its Termination Within Next Two Years Says President of United Press After Four Months of Studying Conditions in Britain, France and Germany.

MAY LAST MUCH LONGER

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Nowhere, either in Britain, France, or Germany is there the slightest evidence of the approaching end of the war. There is no chance of the termination of the war within the next two years at least, but there are innumerable signs that it may last much longer. This is the opinion of Roy W. Howard, President of the United Press, who has returned to-day after four months in Britain, France, and Germany with broad credentials and special facilities for observation in all warring countries. He says Germany wants peace, and admittedly wants it badly, not because she believes herself defeated, but because she thinks she is nearer victory now than any of the belligerents will ever come. Germany just now will accept peace only dictated by Germany. France is not nearly exhausted, and the British nation, says Mr. Howard, after two years of stumbling, is finally in the war clear up to John Bull's eyebrows.

Speaking of the changes eighteen months have made in belligerent capitals, Howard says Paris has changed least of all. Even though war is all engrossing there, Paris is indomitable and a shade better her normal gayety. Berlin has become almost sombre. Rather noisy and exaggerated confidence has given place to a determination truly grim. The food question is having its effect on the nerves. Everywhere the question is asked, "When is peace coming?" But nowhere is any evidence of fear or voiced dissatisfaction with government or army.

The greatest transformation, Howard says, is in London. There is no business of routine in England now, except the business and routine of making war. Peace talk is tabood. Although pushing their Somme offensive with great vigour, Howard says the full force of Britain's land forces will not be felt till next summer. In the meantime the British public demand that politicians keep their hands off Sir Douglas Haig.

CORPORAL R. A. BOLIN ANOTHER KEENE BOY KILLED IN ACTION

His Father, Mr. Patrick Bolin, is well Known in Peterboro—Corp. Bolin Was Captain of Norwood High School Cadets

ENLISTED WITH THE 80TH

Mr. Patrick Bolin of Keene has been officially notified of the death of his son, Corporal Richard Alphonsus Bolin, killed in action on October 21st. Corp. Bolin, who was born in Keene, enlisted with the 80th Battalion of Belleville, when it was recruiting in this district. As a student at the Norwood High School he had displayed a natural inclination and aptitude for military affairs. He attained the rank of Captain of the High School cadets and won a prize for signalling efficiency. He was a chum of Max Breckenridge, another Norwood High School boy who enlisted with the 39th Battalion here, and who also obtained his first military training with the N. H. S. cadets, whose graduates have been splendidly represented with the Canadian forces.

Corporal Bolin, who was in his nineteenth year, enlisted from a strong sense of duty. He was of fine physique and in every respect was a promising young man. Before enlisting he had been teaching school for some time, but his ambition was to take the engineer course at the Royal Military College, Kingston. His brother, Mr. Leo Bolin, formerly of the Test Department of the C.G.E., was well known in Peterborough. Bolin was also a cousin of Miss M. J. Hefferman, Reid street. It is scarcely more than a week ago since news was received of the loss of another of Keene's brightest boys in the death in action of Pte. Ormie Weir.

Betting However Is Mainly In Favour of Hughes

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—In nominating his personal campaign for re-election in a speech from his verandah at Shadow Lawn to-day, President Wilson expressed the opinion that the electors of the United States would not change his peace and prosperity government for an administration whose procedure for foreign powers might lead to war. The Democrat campaign directors say Wilson will be returned with a close majority. Chas. Evans Hughes, Republican candidate, and his friends, were equally sure of success and betting was again heavily in his favour. Hughes wound up his campaign with several big meetings in New York city to-day.

Russel Renwick, son of Mr. Walter Renwick, 8th concession of Otonabee, met with a very severe accident yesterday afternoon at the home of Robert Adamson, near Keene, where he was operating a threshing machine for Mr. Bert McIntyre. Owing to a loose belt his arm got caught in the machine and was torn off at the elbow. He was taken to Bradley-ford Hospital, Keene, and operated on last night and is doing as well as can be expected.

HELPING THE SOLDIERS.

The 37th Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, are always in need of money—the equivalent of their chief need, wool for knitting socks for the soldiers. They combine business with profit. They brought Mr. Rowell here to speak, in a way to wake us up to a sense of duty. He would not consent to an admission fee to hear his address, but the Daughters decided to incidentally profit besides in the interests of their work. At the meeting they saw scores of women knitting during the long wait for the orator, delayed by a late train. That suggested consumption of wool, and that meant money, hence the happy thought of a "silver collection," which amounted to $113. This will buy a good deal of the wool and mean much to the Daughters, whose chief activity is knitting for the soldiers. They have a large and busy corps of knitters, and the silver collection, which included several five dollar bills, was a welcome source of strength to the sinews of war. If the sons of the Empire would do their bit by enlisting, as well as the Daughters of the Empire do by knitting, the soldiers in the trenches would be fed with needed fellow fighters as well as provided with socks. If we men did as well and as much in our way in helping end the war, as our women do, we should have Fritz in a corner a great deal sooner.

MEN, NOT MAJORS.

We have in Canada an overflowing crop of honourary colonels, and it seems the fad that led to their creation has had imitation otherwise. A despatch received this morning from England states that there are about two hundred lieutenant-colonels major and other senior officers at Shorncliffe and other military centres in England drawing full pay of their respective ranks—from $8 to $6 per day—but kicking their heels in idleness not attached to any unit, and with no prospect of going to the front.

Rowell told us on Thursday night that the need on the fighting line was "men, and more men." When our battalions reach England they are drawn upon for reinforcements, and the reinforcements they want in the trenches are not lieutenant-colonels, but fighting men. These latter feel the situation so keenly, are so anxious to get into the firing line, that they drop their rank in order to get to the front. No fewer than twenty lieut.-colonels have waived their rank and gone to the front as lieutenants in order to see service.

In view of these facts, we can see the importance of stimulating recruiting so that we can meet the demand for "men and still more men." It is an appeal direct to hundreds of young men in Peterborough. It is an appeal direct to the government to end its deliberate dawdling with the recruiting situation. If the National Service Commission idea is ever to be developed in practice, now is the time to get it at work. We are told that the Minister of Militia is to take a rest—go fishing in the Seugog or deer-hunting in the wilds of Victoria county. Nero fiddling while Rome flamed, is child's play compared with a Minister of Militia, as a type of government slow action, taking a day off when every hours is precious, when every day lost is pregnant with disastrous influence upon the fighting the Canadian soldiers are doing in France. They need more men to keep up the strength of the forces, they need more men to give to Canadians, months on end in the trenches, a day or two's rest, which they need more than a Minister of Militia does a deer-hunting vacation.

If we win this war we must be in earnest—must throw our red tape, our deliberate and procrastinating government habits to the winds; must throw also our whole souls, our whole efforts and our bodies into the work. Young men must enlist and the appropriate and military authorities must take measures to generate enlistment, by giving it organization, system and

STREET TREES.

While our street trees are mere bundles of bare, brown branches—harp strings for the winter winds to make weird music with—what should we do for shelter and comfort, if by some miracle the heat of summer should come and we should have to use our broiling streets unprotected by the leaf-clad boughs of our street trees?

This idea helps us to realize the tremendous boon in the way of comfort our street trees represent, not to speak of the stately beauty they give to our otherwise bare and ugly streets, and the beauty, home-liness, and sense of shelter they give our homes.

We should not fully appreciate our liberties and our happy home conditions unless the Huns came upon us and robbed us of them all; and that is why we are striving to our utmost to avert such an unspeakable calamity as German domination. We cannot, either, fully appreciate the aesthetic value and comfort-giving function of our street trees unless some calamity should rob us of them. If our liberty, and what it means, are worth fighting for so are our street trees as important in their place, in relation to civic interests as is recruiting in relation to national and imperial interests.

We cannot meet the demand of the best interests of either without prompt action.

There are some of us who do not realise either concerned aspect of this fact. We stay at home and let others do our fighting. The city council has for years sat back at their ease, gabbling garbage and other momentous things while they have allowed others to do the street tree planting they should do. In this view the city fathers of now and of the past are not one whit better than the "slackers," who allow others to do the fighting they should do or help to do.

In the past half century of the important part of the city's history, the city has not planted a single street tree; but it would take a long roll to contain the number of stately street trees the city has laid low.

The life of a city is virtually endless. The needs and the happiness of its citizens will be objects of solicitude long after we and the present city fathers are dust. We must act not only for the present, but the future. If the city plants a hundred street trees this year and a hundred next year, and so on, they are planting for future citizens and establishing monuments to their public spirit and enterprise to thrive and wave long after they shall have passed beyond. We are, in the matter of street trees, enjoying the benefit of the work of public-spirited citizens of the past, who have, most of them, gone to their long homes, but their works do follow them and the generation of to-day blesses their memory.

Why should not our city fathers do something that will be a benefit to posterity, that will be as much a benefit to the city as an outfall sewer, and won't cost one thousandth part of the money?

No home is made a home by the provision of bare utilities alone—chairs and tables, furnaces and cooking ranges. We must have decorations—pictures, cushions, and other things that give comfort and combined beauty. Sewers, sidewalks, and incinerators are not all that a city needs. We need tree beauty and shelter; we need parks and lawns and flowers. Why not make Peterborough more than it is—a beautiful city—a worthy setting of its beautiful homes?

If the city fathers should add a fraction of a mill to the taxation rate to plant a few hundred street trees every year, the ratepayers would not rebel. They would be saved from individual expense, themselves, and would have the benefit of the right kind of street trees, planted at suitable distances and in uniform lines.

A NATION'S SOUL.

Literally, a nation cannot have a soul, but in a very real sense a nation or country, composed of individuals with souls, consists of the united moral centres of the individual population. In this way national duty, national moral sense or conscience, becomes a concrete individuality, a concrete soul.

In modern times the material part of the nation, its material interests becomes very largely its obsessing interest. A great preacher in the United States has been denouncing the materialistic trend of the nation. It is in mad pursuit of its material interest. This is the paramount issue in the pending presidential election—how to keep trade, increase material wealth and promote material interests. The nation has little thought of the tremendous moral interests at issue in the great war. While one half the world is struggling for liberty, the condition alone that makes a nation free and happy, the United States, the greatest neutral nation, stands indifferent and aloof. Not even a moral sympathy, to say nothing of

"In this hour of the world's emergency we have, perhaps, been neutral; we have not been great," declared the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, New York, in his address to-day in St. Paul's Chapel, Trinity Parish, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the opening of the church where George Washington worshipped.

In the presence of assembled bishops, nearly 200 clergy, an array of civil dignitaries and a congregation composed largely of patriotic societies dedicated to the "Spirit of '76," the Rector of Trinity assailed the record of this country in the present world crisis. His text was "What shall it profit a nation if it gain the whole world and lose its own soul," a slight adaptation of the text of St. Mark, viii., 26.

He attacked "peace at any price," pacifism as a symptom of national decay and expressed the fear that America had already diminished in moral power.

"War may hurt and kill the soul," he said, "but there are other things that hurt and kill the soul. Every true American would rather see this land face war than see her flag lowered in dishonour. Every true American would rather see this land involved in war than false to those principles of right, freedom and humanity upon which the hope of the world depends."

If a Nation "Lose Its Own Soul."

Dr. Manning said in part:

"This nation is not one people as it was when Washington sat in that pew yonder. We are not one in birth or tradition, or even in speech. In the block in which I live in this city the newspapers sold along the street are none of them in the English tongue.

"We depend for our unity upon the highest bond of all, the bond of a great and common ideal, the American ideal of democracy, equality, justice and freedom. Far more than in the case of any other nation our life is based on loyalty to our national ideal. Upon this our strength and unity are staked. Whatever hurts or weakens this strikes at our very life as a people.

"And we are living at an hour in the world's history when the souls of nations, our own among the others, are being tested and tried as they have never been tried before. These two years past have been years of moral and spiritual opportunity without precedent. In this day of trial the nations of the earth, our own among them, have been, and are, showing their real attitude toward, the greatest issues for which man can live or die. By her course in the face of this situation our country is being judged. This is a time of crisis in our national life, and there are certain things which I feel bound to say on this occasion, basing them on the text which I have chosen, which without any strain upon the meaning of the words, may be rendered, 'What shall it profit a nation if it shall gain the whole world and lose its own soul?'

Short of U.S. Ideals.

"As I look back over these two fateful years, viewing them not at all from the political standpoint but simply as an American citizen who loves his country and reverences her ideals, I cannot feel that we have risen to the measure of our opportunity and of our just responsibility. This matter far transcends all merely political considerations. It is a question of our spiritual life as a people.

"The pulpit may speak on such a question as this with a detachment which might not belong to the utterances of those engaged in the field of commerce or of politics. I simply declare what I believe to be the fact, that we have fallen short of that which, in the light of our ideal was rightly to be expected of us as the greatest of the neutral nations. In this hour of the world's emergency we have, perhaps, been neutral, but we have not been great.

"Other nations have suffered untold sorrows and losses and are showing marvellous spiritual development. We have prospered materially, but I fear we have suffered grave spiritual losses. It is right that we should be neutral, so far as this is consistent with loyalty to our principles and our ideal.

Cold, Callous Selfishness.

"But this does not mean that we are to have no convictions upon such issues as these at stake in this war, and that we are to feel little concern in a life and death struggle for those eternal principles of right upon which our own life as a nation depends. A neutrality which involves this is only a name for cold and callous selfishness. The Statue of Liberty stands by our shores with uplifted torch, but in this hour in which law and liberty have been threatened as never before can we say that it has been our one concern to stand at all cost for the fundamental rights of mankind, or are we as a people disposed to ask only that our peace shall not be disturbed?

"It has not in the past been the way of America to sit indifferent to the struggle for justice and freedom anywhere. Our indifference to the principles at stake in this world crisis, our failure as a people to be moved by deep moral indignation at some of the deeds which have been committed may well cause grave misgivings to those who love this land. For a nation, as for an individual, there are situations in which to sit in silence, to refrain from bearing witness or to stop short of using every means to make that witness effective means grievous hurt and peril to the soul.

Weakened National Spirit.

"I fear that partly as a result of our coldness to the great issues involved in this world struggle we have suffered some real weakening and loss of our national spirit. I fear that there is to-day among us a perceptible lowering of our national tone and lessening of our moral power."

Assailing what he called a mistaken pacifism and pleading for a reawakening of the spirit of true Americanism and a reconsecration to our national ideals, Dr. Manning continued:

"Our Lord Jesus Christ does not stand for peace at any price, but for righteousness and truth first and at all cost.

"No one in this country wants war. As never before we see its cruelty and its horror. By every means that may be we want to see its likelihood lessened and its causes removed. But, evil as war is, there are still deeper evils. Bodily comfort, physical safety, material prosperity, are not the greatest things. War may hurt and kill the body. Every true American would rather see this land face war than see her flag lowered in dishonour or her name touched with disgrace. There are things that hurt and kill the soul. Every true American would rather see this land involved in war than see her false to those principles of right, of freedom and humanity upon which our life is built and upon which the hope of the world depends." — American Metal Market.

national interest, is given to the cause that is as vitally the cause of the people of the United States as of the countries directly involved. The preacher referred to, used as his text a variant of a familiar scripture — "What shall it profit a nation if it gain the whole world and lose its own soul?"

While this question appeals specially to the people of the United States, it has a point for us. Do we, in Canada, keep the soul of our country in the first place of consideration. We go our ways, seek our pleasures, pursue the race of wealth as industriously as if our highest interests were not at stake, as if winning the war was of no interest to us. Of course, a considerable part of our people is striving in various ways to save its soul by gaining this war—a large part is working day and night in a modestly subordinate way, to help this war. Three hundred thousand Canadian soldiers are in the ranks, working to the same end.

But there is a large body of our citizenship that seems absolutely indifferent to the call of duty, to the appeal of necessity. We have hundreds of thousands of young men physically fit to a point, who are not emulating their souls, are not in the right relation to their duty. They go on from day to day unthinkingly, while others no more bound by duty to do the work are fighting and suffering to save Canada for the very young men who can be seen at night in shoals—the loose fish of our city nship—pouring into pool rooms, as entertainment upon the pursuit of trivial pleasures as if there were no war stabbing the earth to its centre; as if their fellow young men were not agonizing in the struggle of Europe and doing their duty to the hilt. The one class is throwing its whole soul into ugli- ing for the benefit of the other class that is losing its own soul in the muddy pools of selfish dissipation, they call pleasure.

We want some loud call to waken the soul of these young men of the country. To them the question comes with double force. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world—of pleasure and material profit— and lose his own soul?" Collectively the soul of the nation, is composed of those of its citizens, and if our citizens do not unitedly combine in action to help win this war, Canada stands disgraced in the eyes of the world. Even the gallant deeds of our soldiers at the front, who are glorifying the name of Canada, and helping save its liberties and all that makes it worthy of being a home, cannot lighten the humiliation that comes from a large part of our people failing to respond to the call of duty, and, as our soldiers at the front — save their souls by throwing their whole souls into the work of winning the war and saving Canada from the menace and fact of what would come if Germany is permitted to win—to realize her damnable ambition, of world domination.

Says Bourassa's Speeches Should Not Be Tolerated

CORNWALL, Ont., Nov. 3.—Capt Dancey and Lieut. O'Brien of the 207th Battalion of Ottawa, addressed a recruiting meeting here last night. His Honour Judge O'Reilly presiding.

Lieut. O'Brien characterized the utterances as Messrs. Lavergne and Bourassa as those of traitors, and said such statement as those men make should not be tolerated in any country. Sir Sam Hughes was warmly complimented for the great work he had accomplished.

Capt. Dancey who was in the fights at Mons and the Marne, told of the cruel treatment meted out to the women and children of Northern France and Belgium, and urged the men of Cornwall who are physically fit to see to it that such atrocities shall never be perpetrated in Canada.

PREMIER HUGHES SILENT.

Declines to Discuss Referendum — Parliament to Meet Soon.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 2. — The political pot is boiling furiously in many parts of Australia as a result of the defeat of the conscription measure in the recent popular referendum. Premier Hughes, upon his return from New South Wales, declined to discuss the political situation, but intimated that Parliament would meet shortly.

At Sydney, Mr. Durack, leader of the new party formed by a score of the labour members of the State Parliament who withdrew their support from Premier Holman, of New South Wales, announced that he will move at the next sitting of Parliament that the Government no longer has the confidence of the country.

The local leader of the state labour party at Hobart has been deposed because he supported conscription.

SUNDAY READING

What is your life? Most people take life as they find it. Few ever find time and inclination to study the value or meaning of life. Life is neither the end, nor the goal of existence.

One does not start out in youth with a ready made philosophy of life, and refer all puzzling questions to this key for solution. But as the years multiply, and the perplexities of life confuse and arrest thought, one does, consciously, or unconsciously, form some theory of life.

The poet Whittier expressed his working hypothesis of life, in these words:

"The riddle of the world is understood,
Only by him who feels that God is good.
As only he can feel who makes his love,
The ladder of his faith."

"Human things must be known to be loved, but divine things, must be loved, to be known".

"What is life". We ask it as lives are passing, like crimson leaves before the autumn gales, and the world is convulsed with agony and sorrow, art's treasures destroyed and man's work in ruin. "The world sits as it were, upon the sand hills of the desert, and wonders upon what point on the horizon the journey began and to what opening in the distance it is likely to lead."

We turn to the greatest teacher and thinker of the ages—and we find His theory of life so workable, and so all embracing, God is our Father, life is a mission—love to God and the brotherhood of service. "Faint not for sorrow, falter not for sin. But onward, upward, till the goal you win"

Then our thoughts go across the seas to Canada's best loved and most heroic manhood dying somewhere in France, somewhere in Flanders, "with the glory of faith in the eye, and the glory of love in the heart".

And we know there is a theory of life great enough to explain such unparalleled, self sacrifice, and we whisper from our grief stricken hearts, "Life sometimes makes faith hard, Lord teach us how to live, that we may doubt no longer! "That the highest is the widest and the best, let not all that saddens nature, blight thy hope, and break thy rest. "Quail not at the fiery mountain, at the shipwreck or the rending earth. Neither mourn, if human creed be lower than the hearts' desire—through the gates that bar the distance, comes a gleam of what is higher." And so we thank God for life—sometimes joyous, some times sad, but it is life—it is opportunity and we sing with our soldiers.

It is great to be out where the fight is strong,
To be where the heaviest troops belong,
And to fight for man and God.
Oh, it seams the face and it dries the brain,
It strains the arm till one's friend is pain,
In the fight for man and God!
But it's great to be out where the fight is strong,
To be where the heaviest troops belong,
And to fight for man and God!

Yes, the Great Teacher has given us the most satisfactory theory of life, not only in word, but by His matchless living, and we may follow Him in His ministry of loving service for others. There is much need for the comforting word, the friendly hand, the loving smile.

"Just little things, not any size,
But oh, the sweetness they impart."
"Strive and desire and watch and trust and pray.
Grasp every sweet assurance grace will give.
The more we hope, the more we suffer, yes,
But so the more we live".

THE RULER OF ALL THE ARMIES

The Master of all earth's armies, who rules this war-torn world, hath knowledge of every legion that is into the conflict hurled. He judgeth our fallen soldiers when up to His court they press; He knoweth the cause of their warfare, and the wrongs they would fain redress. Though some of them answer crowned with the laurels of earthly fame, and others have heard His summons ere their season of conflict came, yet, thinking upon His judgment, we surely may hold it true that the Ruler will praise or blame them for the deeds in their hearts to do, for the lives that they left behind them when their duty they clearly saw—He will test them on this wise rather than by measure of rule and law. Through the dust and the smoke of conflict He seeth how each one dies; He trieth each soul with mercy, and His judgments are just and wise. He knoweth though life is sweet, how, hearing the call of duty, they gathered with flying feet; He seeth the sin and folly, for which they made few amends, yet He seeth the young lives offered for the safeguard of home and friends. And over the noise of battle comes His message to those distressed that safe in His righteous keeping do the souls of such soldiers rest.—Christian Guardian.

CARE FOR GRAVES THROUGH ALL TIME

NATIONAL COMMITTEE FORMED IN BRITAIN WITH PRINCE OF WALES AS PRESIDENT

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—The government has received from the war office a memorandum relating to the registration and the care of soldiers' graves. The memorandum says in part:

"During the present war a branch of the Adjutant-General's Department has been created to care for and preserve the identity of the graves of British officers and men. Units were established for this purpose in France and Belgium shortly after the battle of the Marne, in Egypt and Salonica recently, and an officer has now been despatched to Mesopotamia.

"The director of graves registration and enquiries is the officer directly responsible for this work. The duty of the grave registration units is to register the position of graves and to see that they are marked with durable wooden crosses bearing a metal inscription giving the name, number, rank, regiment and the date of death.

"While these units have been successful in registering and marking a large number of graves at the front, and many in advanced positions where they might otherwise have been lost, it is not possible, and never will be possible, to obtain a record of all graves. If, as it is to be feared, the enemy have in many instances not marked the graves of British officers and men buried within their lines, a number of graves will be irretrievably lost. In some cases, even within our own lines, though graves have been marked the position is too exposed for a correct plan and survey to be made. In others every trace of a burial ground having been obliterated by the enemy's shellfire, there is no hope of reconstructing the cemetery so that individual graves may be reconstituted. Again, during heavy fighting burials are often carried out under circumstances which make it impossible to take, or at any rate to transmit an accurate record of the positions of the graves.

FRENCH PROVIDE LAND

Early in 1915 it became necessary to make definite arrangements with regard to the provision of land in France for the burial of British officers and men. Up till then, and particularly during the retreat and the subsequent advance to the Aisne, burials had often taken place in isolated graves which were, wherever it was practicable, cared for with reverence and respect, by the French peasants and owners of land, and in a few cases permanent concessions of land were offered. By this time, however, French civil cemeteries were being more regularly used, and it was also possible to arrange for special burial grounds. The director of graves registration and enquiries approached the French government, through the French military authorities, on the matter. The French Government immediately expressed the desire to provide land for permanent resting places for British officers and men at the cost of the French nation, and a law was passed which gave effect to this generous impulse on Dec. 29, 1915. Since then in co-operation with the French army, the directorate has established authorized burial grounds immediately behind the British front, and near the field ambulances, the casualty clearing stations and the hospitals further back. Soldiers are employed, under the officers of the graves registration units, to look after these burial grounds. In the case, however, of a battle or severe fighting, isolated burials necessarily still take place.

"The French Government further offered to 'maintain these cemeteries. The British government has, however, in agreement with the French government, undertaken to provide for their maintenance in perpetuity and has appointed a national committee to care for the graves of our officers and men after the war. With the King's consent, the Prince of Wales has accepted the presidency of the committee.

"Communications on the subject should be addressed to the Director of Graves Registration, War Office, St. James' Square, London. Relatives are asked to bear in mind that some time may elapse before graves are properly recorded; that it is not possible to arrange for the distribution of flowers for individuals; that circumstances not infrequently arise which make it undesirable in the interests of the military situation to disclose the position of a grave, and that exhumation of bodies during the war is prohibited. Photographs of graves that are accessible to the photographers will be furnished to relatives on application, free of cost, as soon as possible.

Recently Mr. Brown permitted a clever problem to his customers. It is one that will give much amusement and entertainment to every puzzle lover. Look at the picture of Mr. Brown above, and you will see his store. He carefully covered the labels of the boxes, bottles, and tins containing fourteen of the staple lines of his stock. Then he engaged a clever cartoonist and had him draw a series of puzzle pictures to be used as labels to represent the names of the hidden goods. The Artist caught the spirit of the idea, and at once drew picture No. 1 to represent currants (currants). Then he drew picture No. 4 as a label for tomatoes (Tom-eight-O's). With these two names to start you and the grocery list at the left of the picture by way of suggestion, can you name the other twelve represented?

A FEW HINTS—To aid you a little a suggested list of groceries kept in Brown's Store is alongside the picture. A good plan is to study the list and write down the name which in your opinion best fits each picture. All the names represent articles in everyday use and which are to be found in any grocery store. No trademark names or special manufacturers' names are used, so with these few hints and a little thinking you should be able to solve all the pictures. Now that 10 points toward the prizes are given for each correct answer and that if your answers gain only 200 points you win first prize. (See Rules).

THE OBJECT OF THE CONTEST—Frankly this great event is intended to advertise and introduce Everywoman's World, Canada's Greatest Magazine, to hundreds of new homes, who, if they knew that a magazine of such excellence and real worth is being published right here in Canada by Canadians for Canadians. You can easily help us to do this when you enter the contest, but you do not have to be a subscriber nor are you asked or expected to take the magazine or spend a single penny in order to compete and win the touring car or one of the other magnificent prizes.

Follow These Simple Rules When Sending Your Entry

1. Write your answers in pen and ink, using one side of the paper only. Write your name and address on the upper right hand corner. Anything other than your name and address and your answers to the puzzles must not be on a separate sheet. Do not send letters, draws nor typewritten matter.
2. Boys and Girls under 14 years of age are not allowed to compete. Nor are the members and employees of the Continental Publishing Co. Limited, Everywoman's World, nor any of their relatives or friends.
3. Contestants will be permitted to submit as many as three sets of answers to the puzzle, but only one can be awarded a prize.
4. If different members of a family compete, only one prize will be awarded to one family or household. The final awards will be made by Judges of Ca-
5. ...mittee of three Toronto gentlemen who have no connection with this firm, and contestants agree to abide by the decisions of the Judges. The names of the Judges and the manner of the judging will be made known to all contestants. The prizes will be awarded according to the number of points gained by each entry. 100 Points, which is the maximum, will take first prize. 90 Points will be awarded for each correct answer, 80 for the second highest and so on for following the ... of the points. The contest will close ... 30th, 1916, and the prizes will be awarded ... days after which the judges will report ... awarded.
6. ... copy of Everywoman's World ... which we shall send, in time for the friends or neighbours who will help in the examination. The Company guarantees to reward you with cash as stated for a value of prize. But it would be foolish in addition to any prize your answers may win in the contest.
7. Contestants are not debarred but we advise them to get the ... of Everywoman's World and use their ... as guides as to the correct answers. In awarding the prizes, the Judges will have regard to the knowledge of whether the entry comes from a subscriber or not.

BRITISH FIRE "IRRESISTIBLY HELLISH" IN SOMME BATTLE, SAYS F. R. COUDERT

New York, November 3.—Frederic R. Coudert, international lawyer, who returned yesterday on board of the steamship Noordam, of the Holland-America line, said he had witnessed the last part of the battle of Thiepval on the Somme, as the guest of General Haig.

"When the British guns were through with that place and Contalmaison," said Mr. Coudert, "they were level with the ground. There was not a single house left standing. The towns were actually deleted, and the German prisoners with whom I spoke told me that the British fire had been irresistibly hellish. The cure of Contalmaison told me that he had in vain sought for some traces of his church. And before that the Germans had fortified the places so strongly that it was admitted that Thiepval was one of the strongest fortifications in Europe.

"What the British have accomplished within two years is simply miraculous. They afford a splendid lesson to the United States as to what can be done in organization within so short a time. Never in the history of the world has there been such speedy and marvellously complete organization as theirs. That is especially true of their aeroplanes, artillery and ammunition, and of the numbers of men handled. They have a million and a half soldiers in France and three millions more under training in England.

SOLDIERS ARE WELL FED

"The soldiers are well fed and as well taken care of as if they were at home. I saw Canadian soldiers at the front chewing gum during the engagement. They have everything they desire.

"The German prisoners expressed themselves as highly pleased with their lot. They told me that at first they were afraid to surrender to the British because the report had been spread among them that they were only to be slaughtered if they surrendered. But when letters began arriving home from the prisoners, telling of the splendid treatment the English were according them, they became less reluctant to surrender, and now they appear to be even anxious for a 'consummation so devoutly to be wished.' They certainly are better fed by their British captors than they are while fighting for the Kaiser."

Mr. Coudert said he met Frank A. Munsey at the front. He too was a guest of General Haig.

Franklin W. M. Cutcheon, of the law firm of Byrne & Cutcheon, No. 29 Broad street, who returned on board of the Noordam, said he had passed considerable time in Paris and other cities in France.

"I am a fairly good observer," said Mr. Cutcheon, "and I must say I could not find anything in France which could even remotely bear out General von Hindenburg's statement that France is approaching her ruin.

"Paris is more normal than London."

EDISON'S New Invention is a Human Instrument

EDISON has made possible the absolute Re-Creation of Arthur Middleton's magnificent voice

SO faithful, so startlingly identical with the original is Edison's Re-Creation of the human voice that audiences of musicians and music-lovers in every corner of the United States have expressed their astonishment at the human qualities of Edison's new invention, the Diamond Disc Phonograph.

It is a wonderful thing to realize that you are listening to the actual Re-Creation of a voice instead of only an approximate reproduction as given by talking machines.

Hear Middleton's Great Voice

Arthur Middleton, basso, belongs to that group of peerless artists known to the world as the Metropolitan Opera Company. For more than two years his voice has won him distinction with this company. Middleton has freshness and youth. He imparts both of the qualities to his singing. For purposes of Re-Creation Edison has made it a point to seek "fresh" voices—voices still vibrant with youth.

The very humanness of Edison's invention has astounded thousands. It is a human instrument. It gives you the human tone, perfectly recorded, absolutely Re-Created. In Edison's Re-Creation of Middleton's voice every tone is intact.

Edison simply asks you to HEAR his Re-Creation of the Human Voice

Be convinced in Edison himself of the truenss of his Re-Creation that he asks you simply to hear it. Words cannot convince you. Music's Re-Creation fulfils description. Come in and hear it.

THE FIRST GUN
OF A NEW CAMPAIGN

AND THIS IS THE THIRD TIME. On Monday night the organization of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund comes together for a Third time. Gather to enter on the duty that is becoming an annual one, to raise a further fund to carry on the work of the Patriotic institution in our midst.

This time the procedure is changed. Conditions have become different to what they were on and at the two first campaigns. These conditions need not be referred to here, but will be so stated further on.

It has been decided by the organization to make the effort to raise a sum of $60,000 and have it placed on the taxes of the city for the next twenty years. Facts in relation will be given in detail during the next few days. This announcement is only the first gun in the campaign. It is to announce the meeting of the workers and a call to arms.

It is a municiapl canvass, for signatures to a petition to the City Council, praying that the grant be made. Signed, as it is expected it will be signed, then the Council will have its warranty for acting. It is the direct duty of the citizens to support and to authorize the Council to act.

On Monday night general organization will be perfected. The Old Guard will be to the fore. Personal request has been sent to each man who worked before, with the thought that his experience will be valuable. New men will be drafted into the ranks, for many art needed.

The days of the canvass will be announced.

THIRTEEN AND A HALF MILLIONS NEXT YEAR FOR PATRIOTIC FUND

Executive Committee are Preparing to Start The Greatest Series of Campaigns the Fund Has Yet Set in Motion—The Work Grows With the Growth of Canadian Army and Ontario Alone Will Have to Have Six Million Dollars for Next Year

OTTAWA, Nov. 3, 1916.—The report that the Dominion Government will be asked to make good any deficit resulting from the operations of the Canadian Patriotic Fund in 1917 is wholly without foundation. On the contrary, preparations are under way for the greatest series of campaigns that the Fund has yet set in motion, it being the desire of the Executive Committee that in the latter days of January local campaigns be held in all parts of the country where provision has not already been made. Through these campaigns it is hoped to place the Fund in a position to meet all claims upon it in 1917. In order to second the efforts of the supporters of the Fund in each district, by educating the public to the claims upon it, liberal use will be made of newspaper space.

The work of the Fund grows with the growth of our armies. There is no escaping from this result, and in consequence the Fund has to call upon the people of Canada to supply, through one channel or another, the sum of thirteen and a half million dollars in 1917.

It is an immense sum, yet every cent of it must be raised if Canada is to keep her pledge to the families of the men who are fighting her battles—the pledge that these families will be looked after, will be kept from want, will be maintained in a position of comfort at least equal to that which they enjoy when the breadwinners were at home.

That pledge must be kept. By one means or another, the thirteen and a half million must me forthcoming. There may be differences of opinion as to what sources of revenue should be tapped, but not a whisper is to be heard, the Dominion over; against the maintenance of the Fund until its work is accomplished—until the war is ended, and the soldier lays down his rifle to take his place again at the head of his family.

The proportion which Ontario is to be asked to contribute is six million dollars, being practically the amount which it is estimated will be paid out to the dependents of Ontario's soldiers. This means that there can be no decrease in subscriptions from any source, but that, on the contrary, from certain districts and classes there should be substantial increase. It is pointed out by the officials of the Fund that the argument that the whole sum required should be raised by Federal taxation is unsound in several particulars. For one thing, the Dominion would have to treat every person on the same basis, whereas the Fund discriminates between those who need and those who do not need. Non-discrimination would cause an increase in cost of about seven million dollars. For another thing, the burden, if the Fund were supported by the proceeds of debentures, would fall largely on the soldiers when they return, instead of wholly on those who stay at home.

The Honorary Secretary, Sir Herbert Ames, has spent the past month in the Canadian West, in the interests of the Fund, and he reports an extraordinarily keen determination to support the Fund at the cost of any necessary financial sacrifices.

Heavy Gain in October Clearings

Peterboro Made a Net Gain for The Month of $698,903

Bank clearings from different Canadian cities throughout the West for the month of October are well in line with the high record established in Montreal, figures to hand this morning showing advances in every banking centre in the West.

Peterborough made a gain of $698,903 for the month over a corresponding period for last year.

Vancouver leads the list with an advance of about seven million dollars, Calgary clearings advanced about five million, Regina four, and Halifax and Edmonton two each.

One of the chief factors in the unusually large gains of the past month has been the payments of subscriptions to the last domestic war loan.

Figures published yesterday from the majority of the eastern cities and including Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg, gave a total of $891,990,273, as compared with $697,966,367 for the corresponding month last year. Additional figures to hand total $119,432,334, as compared with $92,894,028 last year, an increase of $26,608,306, which makes a total increase over last year of $220,632,192.

The following table shows the western clearings, as well as a couple of belated eastern returns for October, compared with those of the same month last year:

	1916.	1915.
Vancouver	$31,475,214	$24,596,929
Calgary	22,309,898	17,185,475
Regina	14,509,998	10,347,775

TAKE PATTERN OF ENGLISH SAYS NEW GERMAN WAR LORD

Von Stein at Least Finds Something in "Contemptible Little Nation."

AMSTERDAM, via London, Nov. 4.—Lieut.-Gen. von Stein, who has just been appointed Minister of War, made the following statement to the Reichstag, according to a despatch from Berlin:

"The Emperor has ordered me to come here. I come direct from the battlefields of the Somme, where I have learned much that will be important in my new office.

"Our enemies, and above all the English, are introducing into the fight, with the assistance of the entire world, ever new and heavier expedients, in order quickly to attain their end. All Englishmen's letters nowadays conclude with the view that everything must be borne because that state and nation demand it. Should we not recognize this also, and think likewise, even more keenly? Should we not equally employ all means to surpass our enemies? The future will demand much work from me in this direction. I beg your whole-hearted support in this important work for the fatherland."

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

Through the generosity of the management the proceeds from the Strand Theatre, on Monday, November 6th, will be devoted to the Red Cross Society. Mr. J. M. Greene has most kindly consented to loan the "New Edison," and a most excellent programme is promised. It is to be hoped that a large crowd will be present both afternoon and evening that the funds of the local society may be substantially increased.

The following is the report of the Packing Committee of the local Red Cross for the months of September and October:

The Peterborough Red Cross: Your Packing Committee report the following cases and contents for September and October:

September—65 sheets, 126 Turkish towels, 338 pillow cases, 140 pairs socks, 40 Hospital night shirts, 100 lbs. cotton; 6 cases regulation size; also 9 cases of gauze and absorbent cotton.

October: 65 sheets, 35 sets pyjamas, 39 night shirts, 140 pairs socks; 40 285 many-tailed bandages, 66 sheets, day shirts, 100 comfort bags, each containing the following articles: Paper, envelopes, pencils, pipe, tobacco, cigarettes, brush and comb, tooth brush and paste, playing cards, shoe laces, gum, towel, wash cloth, soap, 39 sets pyjamas, 67 sheets, 70 sheets, 285 towels; 16 cases and 2 parcels.

Flora H. Davidson, Convener.

The following clipping from the Toronto Daily News, we commend to the serious consideration of our readers. It seems to come most opportunely; to warn those of us who are inclined to become lax in our work, and, as the days pass, to forget the increasing seriousness of the obligation placed upon us.

"Could you try to open the eyes of some women who seem to be entirely blind to the needs of the men at the front?"

So writes a correspondent on the subject of knitting. As the writer said in her letter, with more and more men leaving Canada, the need for socks is more imperative than ever before. Let me quote from her letter:

"Yet there are so many girls and women who either do not knit at all, or else do a little knitting and a great deal of fancy work.

"I have heard girls say 'Mother knitted for so and so (the speaker's brother probably), but he has all the socks he needs just now,' leaving one to infer that 'mother' has stopped knitting, regardless of the sad fact that there are Canadians, to say nothing of Belgian and French soldiers, who have no one to knit for them."

"One has been regretfully conscious this autumn, of fewer busy knitting needles. For instance a year ago, scores of women knitted constantly when they were at meetings. Now, one sees few of them.

Our correspondent says with indignation that she has heard girls say they "simply must begin their fancy work for Christmas."

It does seem almost a crime that men in the trenches should need socks, while girls at home spend their afternoons embroidering flowers on a piece of linen. By what possible right should time be frittered away here, while men are giving their lives over in France to save the Empire.

A certain amount of recreation and relief from knitting or any constant work is absolutely essential, but to see an ablebodied girl spend day after day working on a piece of embroidery is enough to make any patriotic person indignant.

I think that there are a good many grown-up girls of twenty or a little more or less, who have still to grasp the fact that they should be taking any part in this war. It is quite time the facts were laid before them very plainly. Canada has no room for parasites, even though they be young, rosy-cheeked and altogether attractive.

What do we think of young men who fail to answer the call?

Then we think precisely the same of young women who idle their time when the Empire needs their time for work.

Waits 39 Years To Wed Girl

MARION, Ind., Nov. 1.—Charles M. Gear and Miss Rose Henley of Carthage, Ind., are married after a wait of thirty-nine years, a record equaling that of Jacob of biblical fame.

Mr. and Mrs. Gear became acquainted while she was employed with a number of young women in a sugar camp east of Carthage.

She, in common with the other young women, wore a white apron, while at her work, and the occasion arose for Mr. Gear gallantly to offer to carry Miss Henley's apron.

MODERN SIR WALTER RALEIGH

As Sir Walter Raleigh spread his cloak out for Queen Elizabeth to walk over when a muddy spot was reached and received a title, so Mr. Gear was given the love of the fair maiden for assisting with the apron.

With them both it was a case of love at first sight, but although Mr. Gear pressed his suit persistently, circumstances intervened to prevent her acceptance of his proposal of marriage.

TIME PROVES HIS DEVOTION

She was satisfied that if he really loved her he would wait and remain steadfast. Time proved his devotion and he remained true to his only love.

And so, after a great many whiles, they were married.

TO BOYCOTT HIGH-PRICED EGGS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—A national boycott on the high-priced eggs may be ordered by the National Housewives' League. President Julian Heath has called a special meeting to consider it, and she plans to have the inflation of egg prices probed throughout the country.

NELLIE McCLUNG HONORED.

Guest of American Women's Suffrage Association at Luncheon

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Nellie McClung, credited with having been foremost in winning votes for the women of four Canadian Provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia, was the guest of honour at a luncheon given by the National American Woman's Suffrage Association at the Hotel McAlpine. The Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, past president, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the association, were the other speakers.

Mrs. McClung is making a suffrage speaking tour of fourteen States under the auspices of the National Association.

Heart Fluttering Easily Corrected

GOOD ADVICE TO FOLKS BOTHERED WITH PALPITATION, WEAKNESS, ETC.

If your heart flutters, be careful.

An attack is liable to come on at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it.

If blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy try Ferrozone. We recommend Ferrozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A. F. Beattie, who lives at Allen Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resemble these:

Some Symtoms of Weak Heart.
Nervousness, Palpitation,
Trembling, Dizziness,
Sinking Feeling, Heart Pain,
Short Breath, Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says:

"I was weak and miserable.

"I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness.

"As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations.

"Ferrozone strengthened my heart, gave vigor to my nerves, soon made me well. It's a great rebuilder."

By strengthening the muscles of the heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrozone is bound to do grand work in heart trouble; try it, 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Decline of Spiritual Life in the Churches

Peterborough, No. 2, 1916

In the last letter I said Whitfield had a voice of rich compass and to this tuneful voice he added a most expressive and eloquent action. Improved by action and with an earnest nature gained the hearts of his audiences, he said what he felt, his hearers understood because they saw Garrick, the famous actor, run to weep and tremble at his bursts of passion, even the soldier critics of the Walpole school were surprised into sympathy and wonder. Lord Chesterfield was listening in Lady Huntingdon's pew when Whitfield was comparing the benighted sinner to a blind beggar on a dangerous road—the beggar's little dog gets away from him when skirting the edge of a precipice and he is left to explore the path with his iron shod staff, on the very verge of the cliff this blind guide (the staff) slips through his fingers and skims away down the abyss. All unconscious, its owner stoops down to regain it, and stumbling forward. Good God, shouted Chesterfield, he is gone he had been watching with breathless alarm the blind man's movements, and jumped from his seat to save the catastrophe. But the glory of Whitefield's preaching was its heart-kindled and heart-melting gospel—his pleadings with the unsaved were sympathetic, loving and kind, just like a mother pleading with her wayward boy, he would say, I beseech you in love and compassion, come to Jesus. On his return from Georgia in 1739 the clergy received him coldly and pamphlets were published and sermons preached against the doctrine of regeneration, etc., but he continued preaching and holding prayer meetings and hundreds were soundly converted, but large numbers were unable to gain access to the churches, large crowds being turned away, so he consulted his friends and asked God to direct him, so he came to Bristol and held open air meetings, the colliers in the vicinity numerous rude and ignorant, when provoked they were the terror of the city, and at all times it was considered dangerous to go amongst them. Whitefield went one day to Hannam Mount and preached to about 100 of them. The news spread rapidly among the colliers and his audience soon increased to twenty thousands. The gospel was indeed good news to them, for they had never heard preaching before. They were glad to hear of Jesus, who was a friend to Publicans and sinners and came to call them to repentance; it was affecting to see the tears running down their black, grimy faces; hundreds of them were soon brought under deep conviction and ended in sound conversion. He made two excursions into Wales; he then went to London, where he preached to thousands in Islington church yard, being refused the use of the churches. He now decided to give himself to work in the open air, recording his first engagement of this kind in his diary of Sabbath evening, April 29th, 1739. Began to be yet more vile, for I preached at Moorfields to an exceedingly great multitude and at five in the evening at Kenning Common, where upwards of twenty thousand were present, the singing and preaching could be heard a great way off. When he went into this service the people said that he would never come out of it alive, but instead of hurting him they formed a guard for him. A cheaply constructed tabernacle was built for him in Moorfields and at the close of one day's preaching he says, we then retired to the tabernacle with my pockets full of notes from persons under concern about their souls. Three hundred and fifty awakened souls were received in one day and the number of notes exceeded one thousand. He was then solicited to hold services in Lemghere chapel, he was met by an unruly rabble who endeavoured to drive the preacher from his post by a running fire of brickbats, broken glass, bells, drums and clappers, but this neither hindred nor frightened him. He went steadily on like his Master when the Gadereans besought him to depart out of their coasts. It will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon on the day of judgment than for those Gadereans. Determined not to be beaten from his ground he resolved to build a chapel of his own, hence arose Tottenham court-road chapel, which they nicknamed Whitefield's soul-trap. I pray, said he that the friend of sinners may make it a soul trap to many a poor wandering one. My constant work is preaching fifteen times a week conviction and conversion go on here, for God hath met us in our new building. It was dedicated November, 1756, and within two years of its opening they built a parsonage for their minister and twelve almshouses for as many poor widows. He had his orphanage in Georgia, which was under the care of some of his helpers, to which he was anxious to return, so he transferred his work to John Wesley and induced him to commence field preaching, and on August 14th, 1739 he embarked for Philadelphia on his way to Georgia. On his arrival at Philadelphia the multitudes that attended his services were enormous. Dr. Franklin says it was wonderful to see the change so soon made in the manners of the inhabitants. It seemed that the world was going religious—walking around the town in the evening you would hear psalms sung in the different families as you went along the streets. I computed that he might well be heard by more than thirty thousand people. I refused to contribute to his "orphan house in Georgia, thinking it badly located. Soon after I happened to attend one of his services, in the course of which I perceived he intended to finish up with a collection, so I silently resolved that he should get nothing from me. I had in my pocket a handful of copper money, three or four silver dollars and five pistoles in gold. As he proceeded I began to soften and was willing to give the coppers; another stroke of his oratory made me ashamed of that, and now I was willing to give the silver also, and he finished so admirably that I emptied my pocket wholly into the collector's dish, gold and all. In New York occurred the well known illustration of his dramatic power. When preaching to a large number of sailors he introduced a description of a storm carrying away their imaginations so irresistibly that in the climax of the catastrophe they sprang to their feet exclaiming, "Take to the long boat." It would take volumes to record the work and labours of this prince of evangelists. He was a faithful labourer in his Master's vineyard, and the words of the sacred writer may be applied to him. 'Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. The next sketch will cover the state of religion in Wesley's and our own times.

Yours truly,
James Sutherland.

Agony of Leg Sore Stopped by D.D.D.

Woman Tells Pitiful Story

"I am the mother of 12 children. I took a vericose ulcer on my leg at the birth of last child, five years ago. I used every ointment that is made. I was laid up for nearly five weeks with a doctor attending me who did nothing but treat those kind of things.

Doctors told me to lie in bed, but where there is a big family one cannot do that. Then I heard about D. D.D. and as I used to tear my leg at night until it was a bleeding mass, I determined to try a bottle. I can't tell you the ease it gave me. I never used to sleep for the pain. Many a time I nearly fell with the dizziness in my head from want of sleep.

Now my leg is healed up thanks to the blessed D.D.D. I never expected it to cure. I only got it to take away the terrible itch. By degrees I saw the big sore getting smaller."

Peeling the Skin Is Better Than Bleaching

Ever since the discovery that mercolised wax would absorb and remove a discolored complexion, its use by ladies as a substitute for bleaching creams has grown rapidly. A perfect complexion can be maintained indefinitely if this remarkable substance is used. Its beneficent cleansing, clearing and preservative action is quickly apparent, and ladies who have been paying high prices for 'special bleach' from beauty specialists, soon recognize that mercolised wax outranks them all. It has become so popular that it can be obtained at all druggists, who have it in original one-ounce packages. The favorite way of using it is to apply it like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off in the morning.

The saxolite lotion for wrinkles and the facial contour has also become extremely popular. One ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in one-half pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in this has a splendid effect in erasing the wrinkles and improving contour.

DEAD BONE IN LIVE MAN

Drove Him Half Mad After the Operation.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The replacement of a soldier's occipital bone by Dr. Voronof, head surgeon of the Bordeaux Hospital, by an operation in which a sheep's shoulder blade was grafted into the skull is reported by him. The sheep's bone filled in the gap left by the loss of the original bone until the natural structure had formed beneath.

Dr. Voronof, however, warns surgeons against the use in grafting operations of this kind of bones taken from dead bodies, because of the violent revulsion caused in the patient.

He cites the case of a soldier who, after a successful graft of this kind became half crazed with repugnance. The limb had to be amputated to rid him of the grafted bone and save his reason.

UNDERGARMENTS

"For Milady" in Great Variety

Daintiness is dear to the heart of womankind, how she will revel in the vistas of lace, billowy crepe de chenes and soft pliable silks that have recently been assembled on our second floor. Never before were we so justified in laying such stress on the word daintiness when applied to Undergarments.

CREPE-DE-CHENE SET
$22.00

For genuine charm that owes much to delicacy you will find this set hard to rival. Comprises negligee, petticoat and boudoir cap. All in pink and all-possessing in loveliness. Charming fillet lace down the front and encircling the sleeves of negligee. Boudoir cap is touched with gold lace and French knots of blue and pink. Skirt shows flounce of lace and ribbon arrangements.
Price for set 22.00

CAMISOLES
$2.75 to $4.00

With the transparent blouse so much in vogue, much depends on the comeliness of the corset cover. Crepe-de-Chene and wash satin, slip-over and open-front styles; yokes and sleeves in fillet, valenciences, cluny and renaissance laces; many precise little knots of ribbon lend distinctiveness to the general allurement of these garments.

THINGS ARE BOOMING IN LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Mr. J. E. Smith Will Give an Address on "Three Ideals of Living" To-morrow—Y. M. C. A. High School Club Met Last Night—Delegates to Older Boys' Conference.

"Three Ideals of Living" will be the subject of an address by Mr. J. E. Smith, of the Farm and Dairy, at the Y.M.C.A. Men's Meeting Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock. This is sure to be a very interesting service, to which every man and older boy is invited.

The third weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Senior High School Club was held last night, with an attendance of thirty members. Mr. Hone led a very interesting discussion on the subject, "Custom and Habit." The sessions of this club are open to all Collegiate members of sixteen years or over, whether members of the Y.M.C.A. or not; so it is hoped that the club will soon have a very large enrollment.

Boys' Secretary Galley has sent to Toronto registration fees of twenty-five fellows who are to attend the Older Boys' Conference there November 10-13. It is expected that at least fifteen other young men will register for this conference the fore part of next week. Every Bible Club in the Y.M.C.A. is represented by delegates, and the Boys' Work Cabinet will go in a body to this conference.

The new equipment for the bowling alleys has arrived, and will no doubt increase the interest in this popular pastime.

The showers and plunge are shut down for a few days that necessary painting and other repairs may be done.

FARMERS TO DEMAND INVESTIGATION INTO CAUSE OF THIS FIRE

TILLSONBURG, Nov. 4.—Another mysterious fire took place in this locality when the large building of George A. Rounds, one mile east of Brownsville, was consumed. With the aid of neighbouring farmers, the cattle, auto and a gasoline engine were removed, but some pigs were burned, together with the entire season's crops and implements.

Mr. Rounds was feeding the horses when he noticed a fire in the straw mow on the east side of the barn, and after a stubborn fight succeeded in saving his silo. He was to have had a sale next week. The farm is owned by Edward Tolhurst of this town.

The farmers of the district will demand a rigid investigation, as some emphatically declare that combustion is not the cause of the local fires. The loss will be heavy, partially covered by insurance.

Edward Lundy Injured.

FAMOUS SCOTTISH BORDER RAIDER

Name of Hazeldean Still Survives in Legends

"Laird's Jock" Famed For Deeds of Daring

Small of Stature, But of Gigantic Strength.

One of the most famous Scottish families in the "good old days" was that of Hazeldean, whose ancestral domain was a district near Harwick, writes John W. Emslie, M.A., Edinburgh, in the Scottish American. The most notable of its members was undoubtedly one who lived during the reign of James IV., and was known by the name of the Laird's Jock. He was famed for his deeds of daring and over the two kingdoms. He fought valiantly at Flodden, and though severely wounded in the fight round the dead monarch on that ill-fated field, managed to escape, and resumed in redoubled measure his former exploits in love and raiding. His name still survives in legend and song, and many a border hamlet and tower hold memories of the Laird's Jock.

He knew every track and path in the borders, and often, when pursued from the English side, he owed his life to the familiarity with the secret mountain paths and trails across the marasses, so common a feature of the borders at that time. He was a splendid horseman and a master in the use of lance and "Jedart axe" a weapon which, owing to his long reach, he excelled in. Of small stature, but of enormous breath, he could with ease grind to pieces a stout ash spear-shaft by breaking it against a wall or stout oak door, and yet his touch on the lute was the lightest. As light as his touch on the lute was his step in the dance, when the great hall of the manor was cleared for the "festive foot." In those days men enjoyed themselves, for one did not know when one might have the span of life cut short by an axe, spear or the more deadly dirk. We are sometimes tempted to ask in these days of dangers by land and sea if we have not returned to a similar cycle of circumstances, or at least something very like it.

In addition to being able to play and sing, the Laird's Jock was an accomplished courtier, though his presence at Holyrood at the court of James was not usually expedient, and not popular with the nobles of Scotland, who had been repeatedly robbed by him and his roving band of kindred spirits. He was no respecter of persons or of property, and hunted over the domains of the border nobles and feudal families, as freely as if they were his own. We are reminded in this connection of Scott's lines about a personage somewhat similar in habits and nature to our hero.

"The Baron of Ravensworth prances in pride,
And he views his domains upon Arkindale side,
The men for his net, and the land for his game,
The chase for the wild and the park for the tame.
Yet the fish of the lake and the deer of the dale,
Are less free to Lord Dacre than Allen-a-Dale."

The chroniclers delight to give us descriptions of Jock's English raids and daring exploits. He was not particular whether he made forays for English or Scottish booty, but he much preferred the English side for his deeds of spoliation, for was not England the ancient inveterate enemy of his own country, and after all blood has always been thicker than water? Another reason was that England then, as now, was a far richer country than Scotland, and a far better cultivated country from an agricultural point of view. There were rich farms and fine flocks in Cumberland, and well filled steadings in Northumberland, as our hero knew full well. He even made journeys into the rich sheltered vales to the south of these countries, and many a prosperous daleaman has been roused from sleep on a dark winter's night, to see his steading "a' in a lowe," and to find his stock driven off by the dauntless and interpid freebooter and his merry men. And a merry and a mixed band they were. Outlaws and outcasts were they, for the most part, with some needy members of the feudal families, and some of Jock's own ancestral henchmen among the number. Deloraines, Douglasses, Armstrongs, Elliots all found a refuge and means of livelihood under his banner; "broken" men they were in the sense of having no lord or lands, but great names in Scottish history—men whose ancestors stemmed the flood of English invasion for generations, and men who still live and move in the fancy of every lover of our dear old romantic border land. We cannot traverse the borders, especially in the soft light of the typical border gloaming, without feeling that we are back in the past. The spirits of the heroes are with us and around us, while Esk, Liddel and Tweed flow still the same as they did in those distant days. Could but our borderers speak, what a wealth of story they could unfold, what a sea of faces they could reveal to us. Let us cherish this noble heritage of romance, for it is a noble heritage; and let each one of us pay tribute as best he can to the shades and memories of the noble dead. The shadows were deeper and the lights brighter in those days than in the prosaic present, and in conclusion to this somewhat irrelevant inclusion, let us remember that there is nothing so charmful to the present as this retrospect of the pages of our romantic country's history.

NEW ACT IN MANITOBA.

Aimed at Liquor Commission Men—No Risk for Temperance Law.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3—That the Government will not place the Macdonald Act in jeopardy by attempting to amend it to put liquor commission houses out of business was the statement of Attorney-General Hudson today.

Intend of an amendment, which would make the commission business illegal, as originally planned, a separate measure will be introduced.

"Then, if there are any attacks on the measure by commission men, the Macdonald Act will not be endangered," said Mr. Hudson.

"We will take no chances of losing the prohibition law from the statute books."

WIFE IS SEARCHING FOR MISSING SPOUSE

James Egan, of Lyons, Missing Since Tuesday Night.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 4. — James Egan, 32 years of age, a married man with a wife and three small children, employed with the Dominion Express Company at this point as a driver, has been missing since Tuesday night when he drew his pay.

Egan's family resides near Lyons, South Dorchester Township, and he boarded with Mrs. J. E. Stover, 21 Jesse street.

Mrs. Stover states he was home for the evening meal and seemed in a rather despondent mood Tuesday night. She has not seen him since. His wife arrived in the city on Wednesday to search for the lost husband, but has not been able to get any trace of him. It is feared the young man may have met with foul play.

THE ONE CERTAIN THING

Out of every thousand men of the age of thirty-five, TEN will be dead A YEAR FROM TO-DAY.

If you knew that you were going to be ONE of the TEN, it would not take ten minutes for you to decide to put on all the Life Insurance you could stand.

But, you do not know that you are NOT GOING TO BE ONE OF THEM. Therefore you should insure NOW.

REMEMBER THIS: There is ONE DAY in your lifetime when you pass from a HEALTHY MAN to an UNHEALTHY MAN.

One day you can get Insurance and the next day, you cannot. Therefore you should insure NOW.

Even a Life Insurance Company cannot afford to insure one life ALONE, it can only afford to give Insurance when there is a group of policy-holders.

If a Life Insurance Company cannot AFFORD to insure one life, HOW MUCH LESS CAN YOU DO SO.

Should you neglect this important matter until it is too late, the ones to suffer will be those dependent upon you, (those of your own flesh).

TAKE IRON FOR YOUR BLOOD AND PHOSPHOROUS FOR THE NERVES

Iron makes pale faces rosy, and phosphorus restores nerves, making you 100 per cent stronger in a few days.

It is the desire of every man, woman and child to feel well, eat well, digest well, look well; but you must have plenty of iron in your blood to attain this glow of happiness and youth. The moment that the blood gets thin or impure, your stomach is unable to digest your food and it passes into the bowels undigested, then your bowels are unable to take any nutriment from the undigested food and the food begins to ferment, causing indigestion, the impurities run into your blood, pays soon follows liver trouble, constipation, rheumatism, etc., and your skin becomes sallow, your nerves shake, you feel tired and all worn out, you take all sorts of medicines and you find nothing does you any good. Now, what you need is iron to build up your blood and phosphorus to restore your nerves. First see how much you weigh, then go to your druggist and get some Bonized Phosphorus with Iron, and in ten days you will find you will be 100 per cent. stronger. The moment that Bonized Phosphorus with Iron is taken it is absorbed by the blood and nerves and you will notice a difference almost immediately. By uniting the iron with the phosphorus you form an entirely new form of iron that will not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach nor cause constipation.

Bonized Phosphorus with iron as spoken of here does not contain an atom of arsenic strychnine, nor any poison which has been found so harmful in almost every tonic. This is not a stimulant which makes you feel fine for a while, but instead it goes to the root of your trouble, builds up your blood, strengthens your nerves, giving power to digest your food and drives away all stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Bonized Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed in this city only at F. C. Weber's Drug Store, Charlotte street.

On the dressing table of most Canadian women you will discover one of these three Talcums. Alike in their smooth fineness, their purity and scrupulous cleanness—they differ only as the perfume appeals. Which do you prefer?

LAJOIE'S $9,000 A YEAR SALARY IS AT AN END

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Harry Lajoie's baseball career probably ended with the last season. The big Frenchman has been drawing $9,000 a season for the last three years, but with the close of the 1916 season that agreement expired. Connie Mack paid only half of the amount mentioned, the Cleveland Club standing for the other half.

It is certain that Mack will not retain Lajoie, for he intends to build up a team with youngsters.

It is not likely that Lajoie will be picked up by any other major league club, now that he is a free agent, and he is apt to go to any minor league, for his salary demands would be too high.

Lajoie is a man of wealth and is reported to have a lot of his money well invested.

Russell Darling Presents Rifle to Mr. Isaac Archer

The feud between Isaac Archer and Russell Darling of Smith Township, which culminated in a criminal trial for theft last week, was amicably settled between the parties this week, and the two men are friends once more. The case has been full of mystery and Sherlock Holmes himself would have difficulty explaining the whole situation. A number of years ago Isaac Archer and Russell Darling's brother Stuart each bought a Winchester rifle, alike in every respect except the number. Archer wrote the number of his rifle on the panel of the door of his bedroom, but Darling paid no attention to the number of his. These rifles were frequently together and Archer filed the sight of both. In Sept. 1915, Stuart Darling went west, and before leaving sold his rifle to his brother Russell. Two months afterwards Archer's rifle disappeared and later on he discovered that the rifle which Darling possessed had the number which he had written on the panel of his bedroom door. To complicate matters Archer had sustained a severe injury through a fall in Darling's barn some time before, which he attributed to Darling's negligence, and while still suffering from the injury made threats to shoot the one whom he supposed to be the cause of the accident. After discovering that the number of the rifle in Darling's possession corresponded with the number on his door, Archer laid an information against Darling for theft and the case came up before Magistrate Langley last week, with Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuting, assisted by G. N. Gordon, and Mr. Joseph Wearing acting for the defence. After two days' hearing the case was dismissed and the rifle, which had been confiscated by the Crown, handed back to Darling. This week Mr. Darling decided that friendship between neighbours, who live on opposite sides of the road, is of much greater value than any rifle, so he walked over to Archer's one evening and made him a present of the rifle. The case has aroused considerable interest in Smith where both parties are highly respected and those who live in the immediate district praise Mr. Darling most highly for taking the step that he did to close the feud.

Thos. Collins Died Suddenly

Wife and Two Daughters Reside in Peterboro County

LINDSAY, Nov. 4. — The death took place at the Ross Hospital on Thursday of Thos. Collins, well known in town and district. The deceased was injured by an automobile on Thursday last and was taken to the hospital on Saturday. An hour before his death he was in excellent spirits, and it is thought that his demise was due to the shock following the accident. He lived at the King Edward Hotel, and his wife and two daughters reside in Peterborough County.

COMPROMISING LETTERS OF GREEK KING TAKEN

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Special despatches from Athens give sensational details of the alleged arrest at Larissa of a German officer who was proceeding in a motor car with the German Legation mail-pouch, bound for the Bulgarian line. "It is said the pouch contained important messages to the military attaches at Sofia and Constantinople, and also detailed plans of the Suez Canal defences. In addition, the despatches say it contained "compromising letters" from the Greek King and Queen to the German Emperor.

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Opposition From The Irish Residents Beat Conscription

Rule question before the end of the war.

A WAY OUT.

Is there a way out of the Irish embroglio? The question naturally suggests itself at this moment, for we have reached a point when all sane opinion in both the one country and the other is very much exercised by the present impossible position. For the position is impossible. On the one side Ireland is under martial law. The martial law does not exhibit itself always in the most brutal forms; executions of course are at an end; arrests are at an end; the prisoners are being released gradually. But the military authorities have the right to stop public meetings—a right very little exercised but all the same galling to any high spirited people. But there is another and even more sinister feature in the present system in Ireland.

With the rebellion that came, of course a revival of all the old terrors of the Unionist minority in the south—terrors, I think, quite unjustified by anything in the policy or even in the acts of the rebels. And with the terror there came also the opportunity of calling to the assistance of the military authorities—who always take a panicky view of such situations—the old forces which had always stood behind Dublin Castle. For a period—and up to the present moment—there was a sort of political atavism in Ireland, that is to say the records of five and twenty years of gradual and apparently final victory over the anti-popular forces were torn up, and the old Ascendancy party once more rose to the top. In many parts of the country, old mouldering soldiers who had lain supine and beaten for a generation, came to life again; and after the manner of triumphant reaction, they began to restore the old methods of bullying the population. Such an ex-soldier would enter for instance the shop of an Irish member (to whom he was willing to crawl a few months ago) and demand the names of all his employees on the pretence that some of them were Sinn Feinera. The intruder was shown the door; but still it was a symptom of the return of the old regime which we owe, among other things, to the Rebellion.

CHANGED SITUATION.

In Dublin, however, the changed situation of the triumphant democracy and the beaten Ascendancy has taken its worst form; and as an epitome of that change I need only cite the name of Major Price. For Major Price sums up and embodies a whole system and the old regime. He was employed immediately after the Rebellion as head of the Intelligence Department. This was a restoration to him of work which he had given up since the war in connection with the police service of Ireland. He is from all I hear (I have never seen him) a regular type of the policeman of the old system. It will be news to your readers that Dublin Castle represented in its practices all the time honored methods of tyranny in all parts of the world—the well-paid spy, the informer, the agent provocateur, were there to be found. And of such a system Major Price was the heir.

The statement has been made over and over again (I understand it has been made on the authority of John McNeil, the leader of the Sinn Fein Volunteers) that Major Price came into his cell at the very moment when his life was trembling in the balance. What right had he to go into a prisoner's cell at all at the moment when the prisoner was awaiting trial? It is, I understand, entirely against the legal practice in England. When Mr. Duke was pressed upon this point his answer was that Major Price went to the prisoner's cell to get information with regard to the rebellion; but what right had he to ask any information from an untried man with his life in the balance? The version which comes I understand and (I repeat again from John McNeill himself) is that Major Price suggested to him that the Irish leaders (and especially John Dillon and Joseph Devlin) were in sympathy if not privity with the Sein Fein rebellion. It seems too ridiculous for credence; but then one wants to know the official of Dublin Castle of the ancient regime to realise all the wicked folly of which he is capable.

A SORRY ENDING.

Thus, then, you have this extraordinary state of things, that on the very morrow of an offer of Home Rule for 26 counties of Ireland had been made by the Ministry and accepted by the Irish leaders, Ireland is thrown back into all the follies and all the brutalities of the ancient regime of Coercion and Ascendancy. It is a very sorry ending to the attempt to bring final reconciliation between the two countries.

Now, there comes on top of this the cry of Conscription for Ireland. This cry is of course swelled daily not merely by political partisans anxious to strike a blow at Home Rule, but by the many exasperating incidents which are inevitable in the application of Conscription to England and Scotland. One does not hear anything about this; but it requires little imagination to discover what a feeling of widespread disturbance must be created when everybody in a nation, up to a certain age, has to abandon wife, children, and a business, with or without his will, to enter the fighting forces. The spirit of patriotism burns very brightly and very strongly in England at the moment. I see no sign whatever of any abatement of the iron resolution of the nation to see it through; but all the same there must, under any system of Conscription the world has ever seen, be many cases of individual hardship.

This of course makes English opinion more impatient with the exemption of Ireland from Conscription. The result has been a growth or a rebirth of the ill feeling between the two nations, which had practically disappeared when the war began, and especially when the splendid gallantry of the Irish soldiers had found a glowing though tardy recognition. This irritation would of course subsist after the war, especially as I hope and feel confident, a victorious war. We should in all probability have a khaki House of Commons, and such a house is capable of any folly; though I do not think anyone may contemplate even the possibility of even the maddest khaki man trying to remove the Home Rule Act from the Statute Boo. But what is more likely is that the Amending Bill would contain quite as bad, if not worse terms, than those which appeared in the Lloyd-George agreement.

AFTER THE WAR.

This is not a pleasant prospect for Ireland; but on the other hand, the prospect for England is not pleasant either. I have pointed out certain supreme facts to several of the most important representatives of English thought on this side of the question. After the war England and her allies will go into a peace congress, the demands of the allies must be for the rights of small nations, and for the recognition of the principles of Nationality. France must liberate the Frenchmen of Alsace-Lorraine; Italy, the Italians of the Trentino; Serbia must not only have her own integrity and freedom restored, but must also have added to her dominion the oppressed Serbs and Croats who now groan under the tyranny of the Magyars; the Poles must be given some form of autonomy, the Roumanians must have the Roumanians of Transylvania; and so on. Assuredly it will place the representatives of England in a fatally false pose if, when defending these principles for other nations they can be reproached with having ignored them with regard to the little nation and its principles of nationality within a few hours of her own shores.

There is no British statesman to whom I have mentioned these views who has not expressed his entire agreement with them. They are I believe, every one of them, in favor of settling the Irish question, not after the war, but before the end of the war. But the difficulty is largely Irish now. In the present exasperation of that country—intelligible for the reasons I have set forth—it seems difficult to suggest any scheme which Ireland would look. On the other hand there are certain conditions which it would be difficult for any British Ministry—and above all for a Coalition Ministry—not to insist upon. This, then, is the impasse on the two sides a very strong interest to settle the Irish question; in all ranks of politicians outside insane Die Hards and extremists—a very strong and even burning desire to settle it, and yet apparently no prospect of any successful attempt to settle it.

HOPEFUL FACTORS.

It may be that conditions will change—for politics are a kaleidoscope in every country, and perhaps more in Ireland than in any country. The first thing I hope the new Chief Secretary will see to is the removal of General Maxwell, who symbolises the horrors of the executions and the disappearance of such figures as that of Major Price from any share in the government of Ireland. The difficult conditions which followed the rebellion and the executions are passing away. Ireland is steadying herself; the tremendous reaction in favor of the Irish Party and the meeting and speech of John Redmond at Waterford, are also factors which encourage hopefulness of spirit. But it will be one big addition to the many tragically lost opportunities of reconciling England and Ireland if the present period is allowed to pass away without bringing the quarrel of the two people to a final end.

Mr. Joshua Smithson Was a Judge at Big Plowing Match

Peterborough was largely represented at the Provincial plowing match at the country estate near Pickering of Mr. R. J. Fleming, of Toronto. Mr. Joshua Smithson was on the board of judges, and among the others present from this district were Messrs. J. H. Garbutt, Harry Garbutt, Arthur Franks, John Gillespie, J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., R. N. Scott, John Chittick, James Thompson of Otonabee, Duncan Drummond, James Hamilton of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Co., Edward Archer and son, Wm. Fowler, T. Millburn, Wilbert Robinson, and others. "Farm and Dairy" was represented by Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor-in-chief, and Messrs. Colquette, Smith and Orvis.

The plowing match was a great success, attracting thousands of farmers and business men from all parts of the province. It was estimated that 16,000 witnessed the Thursday contests. One of the most interesting features was the exhibitions of the work of the tractor plows, and of other motor-driven implements.

VERSES FROM THE TRENCHES

The following verses are by Corp. A. E. (Teddy) Skillman, a Peterborough boy with the 4th C. M. R. "Somewhere in France."

The house had no doors, and windows none,
But within a fire brightly gleamed,
And scattered around were forms of men
Who slept, and some, perhaps dreamed
Of the home they left, long, long ago
Back where the bright lights beamed.

Still some stayed awake and for comfort sake
Crouched round where the bright embers burned,
And listened with glee to the tale of he
Who from England had just returned.

A week in England he had been
And a good time he had spent,
Now he told of the things he had seen,
How he dined, to places he went.

A form showed up where the door should have been
But none of the men seemed to hear,
Till the voice of the sergeant, broke in on the tale
Of a girl he had met, such a dear.

Wake up those fellows, will you boys,
And the Sergt. near to the ling,
Hullo, Brown! back again, how's blighty?
Hope you have had a good time?

A call and a shake, and the sleeping men woke,
Some yawning, some rubbing their eyes,
Demanding to know, why it was so
And the reason they had to rise.

But the reason they knew only too well
And the thought stifled many a yawn,
For before they slept, they all had been told
They were to "go over" at dawn.

They hastily pack and sling on their back
Their equipment, then rifle in hand
Stand round the fire, and wait for the word
To "fall in" or other command.

At last the word comes, and they move to the door
With a last longing look of regret
As they think of how cheery the embers look
Compared to outside in the wet.

At a second call, into line they fall
And "number off" from the right.
Yawn and curse, the people who are
The cause of all this blight.

True, "theirs to obey," as someone did say,
So with officers going ahead
They march to where, the flare lights glare
All colours, white, green and red.

In the trench they stand, rifle in hand
Awaiting the dawn of day,
And as it comes, 'midst the roar of guns
A calm voice is heard to say,

"All right boys." Over we go,
And a dark form leaps ahead,
Followed by men, who up to then
Had been as quiet as the dead.

They scramble up on to the ground
By machine gun fire now swept,
And with a cheer, rush forward to
The enemy's parapet.

Leaping shell holes, stumbling on
Bayonet on each gun
Till they reach the other side
And face the hated Hun.
Some have fallen as they ran
Never to rise again,
Every one has played the man,
All have "played the game."

Bayonet, bomb and shot are busy
Dealing death on every hand.
Why is this? Why all this bloodshed?
'Tis for the honour of our land.

You who read the daily papers
On some safe, far country's shore
Say! how brave, "Oh! how splendid
"We" have gained one trench more

Yes, we gained, but it cost many
Brave lives to make that gain,
If your able, why come over
Here, uphold your Empire's fame.

If unable, why do something,
There are many things you can,
Then when peace comes you may tell them
I did my bit like a man.

Says Allies Expect Two Years More of War Big Effort To Be Made Through Serbia

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Providence Journal published the following from London.

"A careful estimate of the probable duration of the war from sources which include the best brains of the military organizations of France, Great Britain, and Russia, and which also reflects the personal belief of General Joffre in supreme command on the western front in Europe, has established the belief among the allied Governments that there can be no possible cessation of hostilities during the next two years. It is also the belief of the military authorities among the Allies that the only contingency which will shorten this period is the possible disintegration of the Austrian Empire.

"While conditions on the western front are more than satisfactory to the Allies, they do not believe that they can force the German lines back over the conquered territory under any circumstances. The remarkable growth of aircraft observation among the allied forces has put them in possession of every fact concerning the condition and strength of the German defences now confronting them.

"These defenses, of a most massive character, extend back from the present line over a distance of fully eight miles, encompassing a network of parallel trenches, of which there must be fully sixty between the front line of the Germans and the rear fortifications.

"It is rapidly becoming understood that the losses of the British in their recent victories, which have put them in possession of about five miles of the enemy's trenches, have been very great. The conclusion has been reached that it is not worth while to sacrifice men in this fashion again, and that there is really no necessity to do so in order to bring about final victory.

PLAN TO DRIVE IN WEDGES

"The plan of campaign as outlined by General Joffre will be steadily adhered to from this time forth. It is to hold the present lines along the entire front, and by pounding operations toward points like Thiepval and Douaumont to drive triangular wedges into the front lines wherever possible. The purpose of these movements is not to secure any temporary strategic advantage, but while holding the German lines within their present limitations to increase the actual trench area which must be defended by the Germans. In other words, the entire plan is to substitute the zigzag and irregular line wherever it runs straight across.

"The allied Generals realize that every additional mile of ground to be defended by the Germans under the present circumstances imposes a much greater strain on the enemy and compels the constant presence of great numbers of troops which the Germans would otherwise utilize along the Balkan front.

"General Joffre within the last week has expressed the belief that if the Germans were to retreat now to a straight line running 165 miles from Antwerp down through Namur and Montmedy to Etain, fifteen miles north-east of Verdun, such a movement would be worth twenty-five divisions of infantry to the Teuton forces. It is known, however, that the Germans will never voluntarily begin a retreat of this magnitude, because the mobile allied force ready and waiting for such a movement, particularly the cavalry divisions, would overwhelm them and cut them to pieces during the progress of such a retreat over flat and unfortified territory in the approaching difficult season for transportation.

"In addition, it is well known to the Allies that in the present state of public sentiment among the German people the Teutonic governments would not dare order such a wholesale retreat. It was General von Falkenhayn's insistence on a retreat of this kind, as a military necessity, that cost him his command.

"The immense quantities of ammunition stored by the Allies back of their lines are being added to constantly, and to such an extent has this condition been improved that it is becoming common knowledge that before the new year the necessity for securing completed munitions from the United States will be over. The Allies will continue to need sheet copper and empty brass cases from the United States and other countries but orders for ammunition ready for use will undoubtedly fall off greatly in the near future.

"In the meantime every possible weakness in the German lines is being utilized in wedge driving actions in order to complicate and break up straight lines wherever possible. It is the belief of the allied commanders that by this method they will be able while maintaining practically the same front as at present, to increase the length of the line to be held by 40 to 50 miles.

PREDICTS REAL DRIVE AT AUSTRIA

"The real movements of troops is to come through Greece and Serbia into Austria, and the French officers in command at Saloniki have never doubted their ability at any time during the last two months to move forward, occupying Serbia whenever they are prepared to begin the campaign. But they have been held back by the knowledge that the facilities at Saloniki for dockage of transports and arrival of supplies, guns and ammunition have been entirely inadequate for the continued support of an advancing victorious army, gradually getting further from its base.

"In order to change these conditions the leading dockage engineers of Great Britain and France have been for months working with thousands of laborers on plans which will when completed create at Saloniki the greatest and the most complete system of wharves and receiving sheds in existence. Two wharves, each over a mile and a half long, are already under construction, and when these plans are completed it is estimated that fully 50 transports can discharge side by side without difficulty or confusion.

"The Allies, however, are facing the fact that the completion of these plans will take at least another eight months and it is declared that until that time no real advance into Serbia will be made, but that when it is made the invasion of Austria will become a certainty a few weeks after the word is given to move forward.

"Another complication, of course, is the uncertainty which still exists as to the attitude of the German party in Greece. The delay in creating the necessary dockage facilities is for many reasons considered not at all disadvantageous under the present circumstances, because at this time, even if transport service could be amply cared for, the French officers in command of the troops at Saloniki could not contemplate a forward movement with the possibility of being compelled to hold large masses of troops at the base to take care of counter-demonstrations in their rear.

RETIRES FROM BANK TO JOIN THE NAVY

Mr. V. J. Corkery Expected Home To-Night For Few Days Before Going Overseas

Mr. Vincent J. Corkery, son of Mr. John Corkery, deputy postmaster, Peterborough, has enlisted for service in the British Navy, and reports at Halifax on November 14. Mr. Corkery is expected home to-night from Parry Sound, where he has been accountant in the Bank of Ottawa. He entered the bank in the Peterborough branch and worked his way to the position of teller. In his business relations he formed a wide friendship, and at the same time established an enviable record as an efficient and trustworthy employee. In donning the blue of the Imperial Navy, Mr. Corkery bears the best wishes of his Peterborough friends in his new and patriotic service.

COL. WIGLE WANTED TO RETURN TO WAR; WAS NOT PERMITTED

Was Slated to Command a Brigade in This District for Winter.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Lieut.-Col. F. S. Wigle, organizer and first commander of the famous "Fighting 18th" Battalion is retiring from the Canadian Expeditionary Force. When he reported at local militia headquarters on Wednesday, he informed Col. Shannon that he had tendered his resignation to Ottawa and expected to be relieved from his duties in the near future.

Lieut.-Col. Wigle, whose home is in Windsor, was for many years prominent in militia circles and since 1912 was commanding officer of the 21st Essex Regiment. He was one of the first officers to volunteer his services for the second contingent and was at once accepted and asked to command the 18th Battalion which was to be recruited in No. 1 Military District. The 18th was up to strength shortly after Christmas, 1914, and in April, 1915, was sent to England to complete its training.

One of the Ablest.

While in Canada, Lieut.-Col. Wigle was recognized as one of the ablest officers in the army and maintained his reputation in England and in France. The 18th was made a unit of the 4th Brigade of the 2nd Canadian Division and was sent into the trenches early in September, 1915, relieving the 1st Canadian Division.

In the trench and crater fighting north of Plugstreet, the 18th, under Wigle, soon became known as the "Fighting 18th." For eight months he remained with his unit, sharing with it all its vicissitudes and dangers until he had endeared himself to the hearts of all his men. Early in April his wife became very ill at his home in Windsor and the colonel was given leave to return to Canada to see her.

He arrived in Canada in May, leaving what he described as "a very able officer," in the person of Major Harry Milligan, of this city in command of the 18th.

Kept in Canada.

The need of experienced officers in Canada for training purposes led to Lieut.-Col Wigle being retained in Canada and when Camp Borden was opened in July he was given command of the 8th Training Brigade. While there he quickly acquired the respect and admiration of his brother officers and was commonly reported to be the ablest training officer in the camp.

It has been understood for some time that he would come to No. 1 Military District for the winter months, where he was to have been given command of a brigade to be formed out of the battalions training here. His own wish was to return to the front to his old battalion, but for some reason best known to the powers at Ottawa, this privilege has been denied him and he decided to quit the army and return to practice law in Windsor.

He has given his best abilities to his country for almost two years when they were most needed and military men are very much of the opinion that he has "done his bit."

Draw For The Stratton Trophy

Following is the draw for the next round of the Stratton trophy: Bond vs. Stratton; Holland vs. Langley; Dela Fosse, a bye. The game must be played on or before Thursday next.

The Liberal Attitude Is Uncertain Yet

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—It is entirely too early to predict what the Liberals will say to the further extension of Parliament proposal by the Government. Anything may occur before the session opens, and it would be impossible to predict the policy of a party at present.

It will be recalled that nobody could definitely say what Sir Wilfrid's attitude was to be last session until he made his speech in the House.

In fact the trend of the Prime Minister's utterances indicated that he himself anticipated some opposition to the proposal. Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not usually divulge his policies beforehand.

The question of the 16 vacancies now existing in the House is beginning to press for solution.

Because of the difficulty of securing bottles in Lancashire and Yorkshire a machine has been created for American made bottles and containers in Belfast, Ireland.

Steamers Collide in Irish Channel And All 300 Went Down

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Nov. 4.—It is reported here that the steamer Connamara of the London and North-Western line collided with the steamship Retriever" in the Irish Channel, last night, and that both vessels were lost with three hundred passengers and crew. One report says there is only one survivor from both ships, Both ships were travelling between Holyhead and Greenore.

The two vessels collided in the darkness. The first reports indicated that the vessels went down within a very few minutes before the boats could be gotten over.

The bodies were washed ashore on the Down County Coast, North of the scene of collision. A man named Boyle, a member of the Retriever's crew is the only known survivor.

A hurricane was blowing and made it impossible to launch the boats, Boyle reported.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Revised losses of life in Irish channel disaster, say casualties not more than one hundred lives.

To-night at The Empire Theatre

WORK OF WIVES AND MOTHERS CLUB IS APPRECIATED

Mrs. Francis, 498 Bolivar Street, is in receipt of the following letter:

West Sandling, Oct. 15.

My Dear Mrs. Francis,—There was handed to me to-day two pairs of socks with the compliments of the Wives and Mothers Club of Peterborough. Your name was attached to them so I am taking this opportunity of thanking them, through you. As you know, we get very little for nothing in the Army and we appreciate any little kindness that comes from the Wives and Mothers who are doing so much for our liberty and country at the present time. You cannot measure the amount of good you are doing by remembering us when we are far away from those we love and from things we hold most dear. I sincerely hope that every success will attend the Soldiers' Wives and Mothers Club of Peterborough. May He who said "If it is only a cup of water given in My name" bless you abundantly.

Hoping this ill find you and family well, and again thanking you, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
J. W. Edwards.

Pioneer Sergeant 38th. Battalion.

P.S.—My home address is 485 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough.

BIG ARMY FOR VENIZELOS.

Will Total 100,000 and Co-operate With the French, It is Said.

The Greek National Herald, published in New York, received a cablegram from its Salonika correspondent, which in a review of the situation in Greece, says:

"The Provisional Government will proceed to completely organize the volunteers daily pouring in from everywhere. It is certain that an army of 100,000 men will be formed under Greek officers in collaboration with their French comrades, many of whom are already in the service of the Provisional Government. The allied powers have amply provided for this national army, which is to be armed and fed by them.

"The Venizelos Government will pay war indemnities to the officers and soldiers, and will provide their families, in the same way as France is paying these indemnities. At the same time, the Provisional Government undertakes to secure the rights of the officers serving in the army of old Greece.

"For all these reasons, the Venizelos Government is indifferent to the falsehoods printed by the pro-German Athens press."

PHOTOGRAPH GALLIPOLI GRAVES.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, received a letter from the Vatican informing him that in response to a request by Pope Benedict that the graves of French and English soldiers who fell on Gallipoli Peninsula could be cared for plously, the Turkish Minister of War has had photographs taken of all burial places of such soldiers and has sent them to the Pope. The photographs, the letter adds, will be placed on view at the Vatican for inspection by relatives and friends of those who fell in the Dardanelles campaign.

German Counter Attacks a Failure

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Nov. 4.—German detachments counter-attacked north of the Somme yesterday in an attack east of Guedecourt, General Haig reported to-day. One hundred German dead were counted and thirty prisoners and four machine guns were taken.

MORE ADVICE TO WOMEN THAT THEY REMAIN IN CANADA

Mrs. F. J. Hall, 694 Union Street, who has just returned from England, remarked this morning that at last she could sleep soundly without the fear of being awakened by a raiding Zeppelin, the destruction of one of which she recently witnessed. Remain in Canada, is Mrs. Hall's advice to those contemplating a visit to the Old Country. For many reasons persons are urged to stay in Canada, but previous admonitions in this respect apparently had but slight effect, for six women are reported to have left for England during the past month.

ARE UNANIMOUS FOR CITY DAIRY SYSTEM

Ottawa day Would From Producers and Pasteurize and Deliver Milk Supply

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—A report unanimously in favour of the city establishing a municipal dairy system will be made to the City Council Monday night by the special committee of which Ald. James Muir is chairman. It is recommended that instead of the municipality purchasing and operating a dairy farm itself, the city purchase milk from producers, pasteurize, bottle and deliver it.

The committee believe that if only pasteurized milk were sold in the city the rate of infantile mortality would be reduced. It is shown that the infant death rate and cases of typhoid fever have been reduced in British and American cities when the milk supply was improved.

Extend Supply Area.

The extension and inspection of the area in which the milk supply of Ottawa is secured, is favoured by the committee which believes that milk can be secured at a cheaper rate a considerable distance from the Capital than from dairies located near the urban community. In order to facilitate and cheapen the shipment of milk into the city it is proposed that the municipal plant should be located near a railway. Plans have been prepared for a civic dairy plant on the unit system, so that it could be enlarged from time to time as business increased. The committee believes that such a system as proposed would result in Ottawa getting its milk supply at a cheaper rate than at present in vogue.

Cheaper Transportation.

Dealing with the cost of milk transportation, the committee reports that in the United States the expenditure in shipping is much lower than in Canada. Action to secure a reduction in Canadian rates is proposed. It costs to carry a 5 gallon can 25 miles or less in Canada, 20 cents; 8 gallon can, 25 cents; 10 gallon can, 30 cents. To carry similar cans 50 to 75 miles it costs respectively 27, 28 and 41 cents.

During the last five years, the committee reports, there has been an increase of four to five cents a gallon in vered at the cheese factories within a vered at the cheese factories within a radius of 75 miles of Ottawa. The committee believes that the allowance of 31 cents for transportation, manufacture and delivery is excessive and that an allowance of 10.5 cents per gallon would be sufficient.

FAILED TO APPEAR.

Youth Remanded a Week Ago is Now Liable to Arrest.

The three youths recently arrested while sleeping in a livery barn were up for a hearing this morning. A week ago they were remanded and given a chance to consider enlistment. One of them offered himself but was rejected, and discharged by the magistrate this morning. Another was missing and will likely be arrested, while the third was remanded for further considering.

AUTOMOBILES DINGED IN MINOR ACCIDENT.

Two automobiles were dented on Water street, this morning, attracting quite a gathering for the time being. Mrs. McKone, in bringing her car to a stop, bumped Mr. Andrew Brown's car, which was standing at the curb, dinging the mud guard. Then when a man was backing up Mrs. McKone's car he bumped it into a post, and its rear carried a dent somewhat similar to the Brown car.

Senior Officers Remain Behind

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—That approximately two hundred or more Lieutenant Colonels, Majors, and other senior officers are at Shorncliffe and other military centres of England, drawing full pay of their respective ranks, but not attached to any unit and with no prospect whatever of getting to France, is the statement of a recently returned wounded officer.

"It is utterly useless sending any more infantry officers of ranks higher than Captain, to England," said our informant.

As soon as battalions arrive they are broken up for reinforcements, and the reinforcements they want in the trenches are not colonels but lieutenants and non-commissioned officers and men. All these senior officers of course are keen to get to the front, and many of them make immense sacrifices to do so. It is said that at least twenty Lieut.-Colonels and Majors have reverted to the rank of Lieutenant in order to see real service.

London, Nov. 3.—Gen. Steele has presided over a board with the purpose of utilizing more fully the senior surplus of officers coming over with battalions which on arrival here are broken up and used as reinforcements. The result will be that every officer coming from Canada will have at least some service at the front. Many will remain there and others will return to Canada for instructional duty.

War Submarine Is to Escort The Deutschland to Bremen

Captain Practically Admits

The U-57, Sister to the U-53, is Believed to Be Near Here Now Having Left the Kiel Canal Three or Four Days After the Merchantman Started on Trip to New London—War Submarine Will Make a Search For the Bremen Which is Supposed to Have Been Lost at Sea—Trouble With the Crew.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 6. — When the merchant submarine Deutschland starts her with valuable cargo on her return voyage to Bremerhaven she will be convoyed probably from the three-mile limit to her home port by a Prussian war submarine, the U-57, it was reported.

The U-57, according to information in the possession of persons in this city, left the German naval base at the entrance to the Kiel Canal three or four days after the merchantman left Bremerhaven and is now on her way to American waters.

When confronted with this report and questioned concerning its truth, Captain Paul Koenig declared he would not deny the possibility of the presence of another submarine in American waters within a short time. He added:—"I would not be surprised to find a war submersible convoy awaiting us off Nantucket Shoals."

Throughout the day the rumour of the probable arrival of another submarine spread in the City of New London and along the water front of East New London. Men connected with the Eastern Forwarding Company treated it in the same manner that they have treated other reports concerning the homeward voyage of the Deutschland. They laughed when asked concerning it.

At six o'clock in the evening a rumour was spread that the U-57 was expected any minute. Again the men connected with the agent company laughed and said such a thing was not impossible but improbable.

Every effort was made to obtain a statement from Captain Koenig as to his expected convoy. He steadfastly refused to discuss the matter.

"I was not told to expect a convoy," he said, "but I certainly would not be at all surprised if a U boat should appear here soon."

Captain Koenig declared that the U-53's purpose in coming to American waters was to search for the merchant super-submarine Bremen, which left Bremerhaven on August 25 and disappeared at sea.

"Of course the sole purpose of the U53 in coming into these waters was to make a search for the Bremen," Captain Koenig said. "It was not until the failure of the Bremen to report at any known post caused anxiety in German shipping circles that the U-53 was sent from Kiel to American territory."

The U-57, which is reported to have been assigned as the Deutschland's convoy, is a sister vessel of the U-53, according to Captain Koenig. She is capable of crossing the Atlantic and returning to her home port without the necessity of taking on either fuel oil or supplies.

A FOUR FUNNELLED VESSEL.

Among fishermen who entered New London it was said a four funnelled vessel is patrolling the area off Nantucket. The report, which it is impossible to verify, substantiates Captain Koenig's declaration that he sighted a vessel of that general description "somewhere near the shoals."

To the suggestion that the strange vessel might be placing nets in his lane the German commander laughed.

"That would be interesting work for them, perhaps, but not for me," he said.

"Do you know what I'd do if I saw net bobs ahead?"

His interviewers confessed absolute ignorance on submarine navigation, and the captain continued: —

"We'd open the sea cocks, so—(twisting a button of his coat)—and, with the talking machine making music, we'd drop under the surface, maybe fifty feet, may be one hundred feet, who knows?"

Whether or not a war submarine does arrive to protect the Deutschland, it appears that the merchantman is not going to delay her departure. Stevelores completed the task of unloading the cargo, and later in the afternoon and early evening under the glare of arc lights the ballast was removed from the hold.

The manifest of the Deptschland's cargo has not been made public. It is known and admitted by the Collector of the Port, James L. McGovern, that the list of the merchandise included in the cargo has been filed at the Custom House in New London. One copy of the manifest, in accordance with the law, has been mailed to the Customs Department in Washington. Two other copies are in the hands of Mr. McGovern.

Lieutenant Theodore Downing, commanding the Connecticut Skate Police at Hartford, arrived in the city to investigate the stabbing affray in which it is alleged a sailor of the Deutschland's crew took part.

Lloyd Blanchard, the waiter, who at first said he was stabbed by one of the merchantman's crew when he attempted to protect a young woman from the German's advances, later decided to drop the charge. He went to the office of the Eastern Forwarding Company and, after seeing officials of the company, declared that the "whole matter was settled."

German Strength Is Diminishing

Enemy is Beginning to Feel the Effects of Numerical superiority

The military expert of the Scientific American, New York, in the current issue discusses the question of attrition. He says:

The consensus of opinion of foreign observers and actuaries is that each force afield loses about 6 per cent. per month, about equally divided between (1) wounded and (2) killed and captured. At least 60 per cent. of the wounded, probably more, are later returnable for duty. To roughly estimate the permanent losses, therefore, let us assume the percentage of total incapacitation at .04 per month; 48 per cent., a year, 96 per cent for two years of war. Each side, with 8,226,000 men afield, would in that time have lost nearly eight million men, permanently. There is a slow growth of youth to manhood which can be utilised partially to fill the gaps, a military coming of age which, in the case of Teutonia, should be conferred by an alarming strength on the line—as full as ever—but by the same inexorability of cold mathematics, Teutonia now should bt confronted by an alarming scarcity of all important reserves; eight million men now available, six and a half months of war deducted from a potential military population of fourteen millions, fifteen—sixteen, say, leave but a trifle more than eight million men now available, even including the addition of growing young men.

POSITION OF ALLIES.

On the other hand, assuming that losses have been equal—as approximately they have been—the loss of eight million men to the Entente leaves twenty millions available now, and if the proportion is carried farther, theoretically in another twenty-six months of war Teutonia will have but a quarter of a million men in the field, while the Entente, having lost an additional eight million, sixteen million in all, will have eight million more on the line, with a reserve of four million untouched.

The reason why the Entente preponderance of numbers over Teutonia's numbers has had no effect so far seems to be found in the fact that until now Germany (Teutonia) has had all the men she could use on the line, on the principle that only a given number of men can occupy a given space, the extent of the lines; the lines on every front have burrowed into the earth, in successive trenchments, where it is well-nigh impossible for an attacker to oust a defender; and for the last few months the supply of materiele has been of about equal magnitude and efficiency.

WANING STRENGTH.

But if the actuaries have been humanly correct, Teutonia seems slated from about now on to waning strength, with one of the two above mentioned situations to meet—to hold her lines in lessened strength, or to shorten her lines. The first courts imminent defeat; the second promises continued bloodshed.

Canadians Threatened to Wreck Shop of London Barber.

Four Canadians went into a barber shop, says a recent issue of the London Mirror. It was a small barber's shop. They had various operations performed, such as shaving, hair cuts, massage, etc. But there wasn't much more.

When the bill was handed over it came to £1 15s. Then the Canadians, with great calmness, said that they would wreck the shop. The barber ran out into the road with a great fear upon him. A policeman came in and told the extortionate barber that the charge was excessive. At the finish things ended happily with a reduction of prices.

It is said that the step will be followed by the release of untried rebel prisoners, and that a new commission for voluntary enlistment in the British armies will follow.

FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE ON THE VERDUN FRONT

Battle Line is Now Relieved of Dangerous Bends and Salients — British Victories on the Antre Bank Have Made German Positions at Grandcourt and Pys Dangerous to Hold Much Longer

DAMLOUP OCCUPIED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, Nov. 6.—French troops made further progress in the vicinity of Vaux, northeast of Verdun, an advance of several hundred metres, made south east of the Fort. The French forces occupied the Village of Damloup, a mile east of Vaux Fort, with a number of prisoners. The French front in the Verdun region is now relieved of dangerous bends and salients north and northeast of the great fortress by smashing victories at Vaux and Dam Loup Villages. French armies set out to-day for further advances against the troops of the Crown Prince. Advances north of the Somme likewise have made possible flanking operations against Bouchavenes and Biachos. Expectation of such a movement is strong ance, if successful, it would straighten the French front from Saillisel to Peronne and give General Foch positions that would endanger Peronne itself. British victories on the Antre bank have made German positions at Grandcourt and Pys dangerous to hold much longer.

I can heartily endorse this Ointment myself."

Enemy Encounters Many Difficulties in Roumania

Military Expert of the New York "Times" Reviews the Situation in Roumania

The problem which the Germans are facing in Roumania still shows no sign of solution. Mackensen continues to report that the situation in Dobrudja remains unchanged. This is due probably to the fact that he is preparing for another stroke in an effort to clean out this province entirely. The rapidity of his advance would naturally cause a temporary confusion in his command, especially when it is considered that he moved practically without railroad communications. Artillery must be brought up, as well as the shell to feed it. This, in a country lacking in anything like adequate communications, consumes a great deal of time.

On the other hand, the change in the character of the country makes his task considerably more difficult. From his present position, somewhere about a line east from Hirsova, the ground rises rapidly, falling away again only at the valley of the lower Danube. It is unlikely that his halt has been due to any large extent to the increased resisting power of the Roumanians and Russians. As was stated a few days ago, the only thing in Dobrudja that possessed any strategical meaning was the Cernavoda Bridge. With this out of the way, the Roumanian problem consists only in the defense of the Danube.

LIMITED NUMBER OF MEN.

There is probably another reason why Mackensen is not anxious to make any further advance. He has, of course, a limited number of men at his command. We do not know what this number is, but we do know he needs what he has. At the same time, he is dependent for his supplies upon the single railroad which runs north and south through the centre of Dobrudja. If this should be cut, a rapid and difficult retreat would be absolutely necessary. Therefore this railroad must be guarded at all costs.

As he advances northwards, therefore, he must leave sufficient men behind to guard the river and prevent the Roumanians from effecting a crossing. This line along the eastern bank of the river must necessarily become longer as he advances, which means that a certain number must be deflected from his main command for the protection of his line of communications.

Take in connection with this the situation on the entire Roumanian front os a whole. The German plan of campaign, involving an offensive by von Falkenhayn all along the Transylvania front, the Bulgars guarding the southern frontier, and Mackensen carrying on his fight in Dobrudja, means that the entire Roumanian border is surrounded by a cordon of German and Bulgarian troops. What is more, this line can be shortened in but two ways —through effecting a juncture between the two forces, or by von Falkenhayn driving south through one of the northern passes and cutting off the Province of Wallachia. The latter, while it would shorten the line, of course, would really not bring a solution of the problem which Germany has before her. Such solution can only be reached when a juncture is made between the Transylvanian and the Dobrudja forces.

FALKENHAYN NOT EQUAL TO THE TASK.

There is no indication yet that this is a possibility of the near future. Von Falkenhayn is not equal to the task which has been assigned to him. The fighting on the Transylvania front, as a matter of fact, if anything, favours the Roumanians. Another thing that favours the Roumanians is the delay. Their troops entered the war unseasoned, never having known the smell of powder. They were opposed by veterans of the best fighting force in Europe. As time passes, this condition will change. The Roumanians will learn what war means, they will be in a way hardened and unable to be panic-stricken as they have been on both fronts during the short time they have been in the war. Again, winter weather coming on, will of itself retard the German efforts and give the Roumanians and the Russians as well an additional opportunity to accumulate new supply of shell and ammunition of all sorts.

The Germans and Bulgarians have undoubtedly made heavy captures of material. They do not seem, however, to have taken any large number of prisoners. During the month of October, for example, the number of prisoners taken on the Transylvanian front has been reported by the Germans to have been about 10,000. The Roumanian Army, therefore, has not been greatly impaired in strength. But large guns and ammunition are needed, and if the Germans can be held back until wintet these may be in action by spring. The greatest disadvantage of the Germans, however, is in the length of line which they are forced to hold. It would be a serious drain at any time. It is especially so now when the allied pressure on all fronts is the rule.

A NATURAL BARRIER.

The only advantage which the recent fighting has brought to the army on the Transylvanian border has been the advance through the Red Tower Pass south of Hermannstadt. This has not caused a great deal of damage to the Roumanian front. This pass is, it is true, one of the largest of the passes crossing the mountains into Roumania, and is well equipped for the movement of troops by reason of the railroad which runs through it. But this railroad runs north and south, without any east and west connection, for many miles to the south, where at Slatina, a branch runs eastward, connecting with one of the main systems centring at Bucharest.

The German commander in this section of the front was quoted the other day as having stated that Wallachia was of but little value to them in connection with their present plans. This statement was probably true. The Germans are hunting for much larger game than this. It is probable, therefore, that the advance through Red Tower Pass is not intended to accomplish much more than absolutely to secure this pass for use in future operations.

FIGHTING IS INDECISIVE.

While Germany's operation in every other field is purely defensive, in the case of Roumania it is avowedly offensive. Therefore, a consideration of the relative situation of the two forces must be made from an offensive viewpoint. Further to the east on the Roumanian border we find another pass of importance south of Kronstadt—Tomos Pass. Here there would be a direct threat against a vital point, Bucharest itself. The Germans do not seem to have made a very great effort at this point, although the railroad which crosses the mountains through Tomos Pass runs direct to Bucharest. An advance here, coupled with the advance which has already been made through the Red Tower, would bend the Roumanian line back dangerously between the two points and might cause a serious rift through which the Germans could break. This would bring the moment of co-operation between Mackensen and von Falkenhayn very near.

The Roumanian offensive, which has been driven against the line further west in the Jiul Valley, has succeeded in forcing the Germans back over the border toward Petroseny. The effect on the situation as a whole, however, is almost nil. The fighting of the last few days has been, on the whole, indecisive, except that each day that passes without a German success increases the prospect of a successful Roumanian defense.

THE LITTLE FORTUNE

BY ARNOLD FREDERICKS

The latter gazed at it for a moment, then pressed it to her face and kissed it, covering it meanwhile with her tears. "Oh, Henri, Henri!" she sobbed.

It was some time before she recovered control of herself. Grace turned and looked out into the hot, sunny street. The word "Henri" had somewhat startled her. Vernon's first name was George.

She had come here hoping to find that the locket she had just returned to the girl had been given by her to Vernon. If so it would have gone a long way toward establishing the identity of the man whose body was found in the forward hold of the Richelieu.

Presently she turned. The girl had dried her eyes and sat looking tenderly at the locket. "He—he gave you this to bring to me?" she asked.

"Who?" asked Grace, determined in spite of the brusk nature of her questions to get at the truth.

"Why Henri—Henri Musset." She paused and gazed at her visitor in wonder. "You—you must have known him?"

"No, I did not know him," said Grace kindly; "but I will tell you all I can. First, however, I want you to tell me what that woman who was just here said to you."

The girl's uneasiness increased. "I hope there is nothing wrong," she stammered. "She came to tell me that Henri was dead!" She seemed again on the verge of tears.

"Tell me all about it," said Grace quickly. "You see I know so little. I do not even know your name. This locket came into my possession purely by chance. But I shall be very glad if you will tell me its history."

The necessity of talking about the dead man stopped the girl's tears. She began to speak in an eager, excited voice. "I am Georgette Valmy," she said. "Henri was my sweetheart—my betrothed. We were to have been married this year. See, here are my initials, G.V., on the locket.

"In June he became very ill. It began with a cold. The doctor said it was the terrible consumption—that he might never again get well. It seemed to me impossible, for it came so suddenly, and he looked always big and strong and well. But he could not eat, and he coughed—ah, God, how he coughed!"

"One day, just three weeks ago this coming Sunday, Henri came and told me that he had just been introduced to a new doctor—a specialist from Paris. His name was Reinhardt. He was going, he said, to sail for America, the next day. He had taken a great fancy to Henri and said that if he would come to America with him he would cure him.

"He said he had a special method—a new cure which he had invented—and offered to treat him free of charge.

"Henri was very sick—very weak. He had a little money in the bank, enough for his passage. He drew it out and said that he would go. The doctor, it seems, arranged about the tickets and everything. When they went aboard that night Henri was very weak. He could hardly stand. I wanted to go to the dock to see him off, but he told me that I had better not, that the doctor did not wish it. So he said good-by to me here, and I gave him the locket, and then he went away. I have never seen him since; but to-day this woman came and told me that he was dead.

"She said that he died after he arrived in New York, and was buried there. That was all." The girl began to sob again as though her heart would break.

"What did he look like?" asked Grace suddenly.

Without replying, the girl rose, and taking a small photograph from the mantel shelf, handed it to her.

It represented a man of some thirty years of age, rather heavily built, with a dark moustache and beard. "He was a foreman in the shipyard," she said.

"Was he acquainted, so far as you know, with the purser of the steamship Richelieu?" asked Grace as she replaced the picture on the shelf. "His name was George Vernon."

"Yes. I have often heard Henri speak of him. In fact, it was he who introduced Henri to the doctor from Paris. He sent this woman to me just now to tell me of his death."

Grace rose. "I am glad to have heard about him," she said. "I did not meet him myself, but this locket was by some mistake lost at the time of the funeral and came into my possession. I felt it my duty to return it to you."

"But," exclaimed the girl, "how did you know to whom to bring it if you did not know Henri?"

"I assure you, mademoiselle, that when I arrived in Havre this morning I did not know in the least to whom this locket belonged. It was a miracle, almost, that you happened to be standing at the door as I passed by just now. I recognized you at once, from your picture."

The girl gazed at her, astonished.

"It is, indeed, a miracle," she cried, pressing the locket to her breast. "I thank you with all my heart."

"You are very welcome, indeed," Grace said. "I am obliged to go on to Paris, now; but I will come and see you again on my way back to America."

She went to the door. "Good-by! And be of a brave heart." There were tears in her eyes as she reached the street.

Two hours later, after a comfortable luncheon, she made her way to the railway station and seated herself to await until the woman she had been following should appear.

Before seeking the waiting-room she had sent a message to Richard at Paris. It contained, among other things, the following line: "I think that I now know what has become of Hammann."

It was just a few minutes before train time when the woman appeared. She walked in a leisurely and unconcerned fashion toward the train, looking for an unoccupied compartment.

Grace noted carefully the one she entered, and just as the train was about to start she herself entered the same compartment. There were no other occupants.

The journey to Paris was uneventful. Grace read a magazine which she had purchased in the station at Havre. Her companion read a book.

So far as Grace could tell, the woman opposite her did not favour her with a single glance during the entire journey.

She herself was busy with thoughts of Richard and of M. Lefevre and the mysterious crime which had so unexpectedly landed her husband and herself in France.

She wished with all her heart that they were both back at their country place in Maryland entertaining the prefect, as they had planned to do, instead of being obliged to waste all this time in the pursuit of this elusive coin of Mlle. Mercier's.

She rather resented the whole affair and wished it over. She felt that with what she had learned today it very soon would be.

It was not until she descended from the railway carriage at Paris that Grace began to suspect that her companion was watching her.

It had been her intention to let the woman leave the compartment first in order that she might follow, but this the latter refused to do.

She took a great while arranging her hat, her veil, gathering together her belongings, and Grace saw at once that she meant to be the last to leave. There was nothing to do but go ahead, and she did so, not without realizing that the woman left the compartment directly after her and followed her slowly along the platform.

Grace was undecided just what to do. It had been her original intention, in case the woman took a cab, as she doubtless would, to take another and follow. Now she realized that to deliberately wait until the other had called a taxi would attract attention and increase whatever suspicions the woman might already have concerning her.

She attempted a momentary delay, but the woman, who stood close beside her, regarded her with such a curious smile that Grace did not dare to procrastinate longer. She stepped at once into the taxi which had drawn up alongside the curb.

She had purposely failed to give the chauffeur any address; she did not wish to give him any as yet and wanted to create delay so that the other woman might make a start.

The latter, however, had other plans. No sooner had Grace entered the taxicab than the woman leaned over to the driver, spoke a few words to him in French, and stepped into the vehicle herself.

Grace drew back, alarmed. The woman smiled, but said nothing. Thus for a few moments they sped along at a rapidly increasing rate.

"Having followed me so far," remarked Grace's companion presently in a smooth voice, "it would be a pity for us not to travel the rest of the way together."

"What do you mean?" exclaimed Grace indignantly. "I did not ask you for your company."

"No? Then where would you like me to set you down?"

To this Grace dared not reply. No doubt it would suit the woman's purpose exactly to have Grace leave the cab while the latter sped off in safety beyond all hope of pursuit. "I will give my instructions to the driver," she said.

"Very well. Then we shall proceed to my destination first. I don't doubt that will suit you exactly, since you are so industrious in the matter of following me."

Again Grace did not reply. She only hoped that the woman meant what she said. It would, after all, be extremely easy for her companion to stop the cab at any point, descend to the sidewalk, and in perfect safety watch Grace drive off helpless.

They drove for what seemed to Grace an interminable time, and familiar as she was with Paris, she was unable to determine after a while just where she was.

At least she knew they had not crossed the river; as nearly as she could tell they were in that rather disreputable quarter of Paris which surrounds the Place de la Bastille. It had already begun to grow dark. She began to feel somewhat alarmed.

"You go a long distance, madame," she said at last, with an assumption of far greater assurance than she felt.

"Do not distress yourself. We are nearly there." As she spoke the vehicle entered a narrow and ill-kept street.

Grace turned to her companion now thoroughly alarmed. "I am in somewhat of a hurry," she said. "I must insist that either I leave the cab at once or that it proceed to my hotel."

The woman beside her drew from her pocket a cologne and poured a part of its contents upon her handkerchief. "We are at the end of our journey," she said, and before Grace realized what she was about, the woman had thrown one arm about her neck and with the other was pressing the wet handkerchief to her face.

She tried to scream, but the woman's arm effectually throttled her. she was conscious of a stinging, pungent odor from the perfume on the handkerchief and then everything about her suddenly became a blank.

Suffered From Severe Headaches

FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Petershen, Dnieper, Man writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

Peace— then what?

Reconstruction, of course! When the great war is over, shattered Europe must be rebuilt. Mediaeval architecture, crumbled by cannon, will be replaced by well-lighted, well-ventilated, convenient and sanitary buildings of the present day. In this tremendous rebuilding,

Certain-teed Roofing

will play a leading role; for CERTAIN-TEED is the twentieth century answer to the demand for roofing that is economical to buy, easy to lay and inexpensive to maintain.

CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roof, from the largest sky-scraper down to the smallest residence or out-building.

It makes a clean, sanitary, attractive roof, with a very low cost per year of life. It is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to ply (1, 2 or 3). Experience proves that it outlasts the period of guarantee.

If you are interested in roofs, investigate CERTAIN-TEED before you decide upon the type to buy. You will find CERTAIN-TEED for sale by responsible dealers all over the world.

The long life of CERTAIN-TEED is due to the quality of the roofing felt and the character of the asphalt saturation. This is a blend of soft asphalts prepared by the General's board of expert chemists. The highest quality roofing felt is thoroughly saturated with this soft blend, and is then coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which prevents the drying-out process so destructive to ordinary roofing.

MORNING COMETH A NIGHT ALSO

New Day Dawns After a Dark Night of Weeping.

The Night Was Long—Its Sorrows and Tears Were Many—God's Promises Alone Illuminated It—The Morning Here at Last — A Wonderful Dawning—The Day to Be Still More Wonderful — Proofs All About Us Considered —A Brief Night of Trouble Setting Down Already Begun in Europe — After It a Glorious Sunburst.

"Pastor Russell died Tuesday, Oct. 31, at 2.30 o'clock. The following sermon was read at a memorial service for Pastor Russell, in the New York City Temple, November 5th, at 8 o'clock, the same time and place where he was scheduled to deliver it.

Service will be discontinued.

Very truly yours,
Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau.

New York City, Nov. 5. — Pastor Russell spoke this evening at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway. His discourse was based upon Isaiah 21: 11, 12 —"Watchman, what of the night? . . . The Morning cometh, and a night also." He said in part:

The literature of the world shows that intelligent men have refused to believe that the Divine Purpose in the creation of our earth has yet been attained. Continually we find references to "the Morning of the New Day," to the "Golden Age," etc., etc. Yet not to the longings of men's hearts, but to the promises of our God, do we look for real instruction on this subject. The Bible most emphatically declares that the entire period of human history thus far has been a night time.

The Prophet David explains, "Weeping may endure for a Night, but joy cometh in the Morning." (Psalm 30:5.) Thus prophetically we are assured that there will be a Morning whose glory, brightness, and blessings will fully compensate for all the dark shadows of the Night time past. Our text is another prophecy along the same line. The message of the Lord is, "The Morning cometh!" St. Paul writes that up to his time the world had been under a reign of Sin and Death, not under a Reign of Righteousness and Life. (Romans 5:21.) He points out also that the Day of the Lord will come, and will come gradually, stealthily, taking the world unawares—"as a thief in the night."—1 Thessalonians 5: 1-6.

All of the Apostles assure us that it is not God's purpose to permit the reign of Sin and Death to continue forever. They tell us that the Divine Program is that Messiah, in the Father's appointed time, will take to Himself His great power and reign King of kings and Lord of lords—putting down sin and every evil thing, uplifting humanity and granting a Divine blessing where for six thousand years there has been a Divine curse. The Bible writers explain that this does not signify a change in the Divine Purpose, but that God had planned this thing in Himself from before the foundation of the world; and that although He had permitted Sin to enter and Death to reign, He had made fullest provision for the Redeemer to die for our sins and eventually to become the Restorer and Life-giver to Adam and his race—to as many of them as will accept everlasting life on the Divine terms.

The Apostles tell us that during the "night time," since Jesus' death, God has been doing a special work—selecting from mankind a special class, a saintly few—"the Church of the First-borns, whose names are written in Heaven." These are not taken from any one nation or denomination. This "little flock," to whom it is the Father's good pleasure to give the Kingdom (Luke 12: 32), is composed of all the saintly followers of Jesus, who walk in His steps in the narrow way during this Gospel Age. Their experiences are to qualify them for association with their Redeemer in his Messianic Kingdom. Their trials, their obedience, and their sufferings for righteousness' sake are to work out for them a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Suffering with the Master for the Truth's sake in the present life, they are to share His glory, honor, and immortality in the life to come. They are to be His joint-heirs in His Kingdom.—Galatians 3:29; 2 Timothy 2: 11, 12.

The Kingdom Sunrise Nearing.

Amongst the Lord's people even few yet understand that Jesus distinctly teaches that the "Sun of Righteousness," which will arise with healing in His beams and whose light will constitute the New Day, will be composed of the Church of Christ glorified—changed from human to Divine nature by participation in the First Resurrection. Our Lord Jesus tells this in the parable of the Wheat and the Tares. He declares that in the end of this Gospel Age all of the wheat class will be gathered into the Heavenly Garner, and that "then shall the righteous shine forth as the SUN in the Kingdom of their Father." (Matthew 13: 43.) We must not think, however, that this signifies the Church without the Redeemer, but must remember that Jesus is "the Head over the Church which is His Body."—Ephesians 1: 22, 23.

How wonderful, how beautiful, how appropriate are the word-pictures of the Bible! No one but the Lord knew of the great Divine Plan. No one but Him, therefore, could give these pictures of its development. In various terms and figures of speech the Bible attempts to give us a little glimpse of the glorious conditions of that Day. The New Day and the Kingdom will be "the desire of all peoples." In that Day the righteous will flourish, and evil-doers will be cut off from life. During that thousand-year Day of Messiah's Kingdom, Satan is to be bound, "that he may deceive the nations no more." (Revelation 20: 2, 3.) Landlordism will come to an end; for "they shall not build and another inhabit; they shall not plant and another eat the fruit thereof," but "shall long enjoy the work of their hands."—Isaiah 65: 22.

The earth is to yield her increase. (Psalm 67:6.) Streams are to come forth in the desert; the solitary places are to be made glad. The entire earth is to become like the Garden of Eden. It is God's footstool, and He declares that He will make it glorious. It is not to be burned up with literal fire, as once we supposed. It is to "abide forever." (Ecclesiastes 1:4; Psalm 104:5.) "He formed it not in vain; He formed it to be inhabited."—Isaiah 45: 18; 66: 1; 60: 13; 35: 1, 7.

Wonderful Foregleams of Light.

The most wonderful thing that the Bible tells us respecting that New Day is that it will bring great intelligence and enlightenment to every creature. "The light of the knowledge of the glory of God shall fill the whole earth as the waters cover the face of the great deep." (Isaiah 11:9; Habakkuk 2: 14.) "And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, 'Know the Lord: for they shall all know Me, from the least of them unto the greatest, saith the Lord." (Jeremiah 31: 34.) Ultimately every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess, to the glory of God.—Philippians 2:11; Isaiah 45: 23.

What an enthusing prospect the Bible holds out before the Church and before as many of the world as can exercise a measure of faith to believe! The world indeed sees to some extent that great blessings are coming; but just what these are and how they are to come mankind know not; for "the world by wisdom knows not God." (1 Corinthians 1:21.) The worldly wise have rejected the Bible, and do not trust it as a Revelation from God. Thus the wise are caught in their own craftiness. (1 Corinthians 3: 19.) Their boasted wisdom enamores them and blinds them to the Divine Revelation.

Nevertheless, some of our greatest thinkers—Mr. Edison and others—are rapidly seeing that the world is just on the verge of the most wonderful inventions and knowledge, which will transform the face of the earth and the people thereof. They are corroborating the Bible unwittingly; for they believe it not and know not of its messages.

The Dawning Begun in A.D. 1874.

Let us not stop now to discuss the darkness of the night and its weeping. Let us awake, and take note of the fact that the dawning of the New Age is already here. For the past forty-two years we have been in it and enjoying many of its blessings. But those blessings came so stealthily—"like a thief in the night"—that few recognize their import. Some few have been calling attention to the fact that we have been in the Millennial dawn ever since 1874.

Bible chronology quite clearly teaches that the six thousand years since Adam's creation have ended—six great Days of a thousand years each, mentioned by St. Peter—"a Day with the Lord is as a thousand years." (2 Peter 3:8.) Now the great Seventh Day, also a thousand years long, has commenced. We have been enjoying its dawning. It is to be a grand Day! What wonder if the dawning be remarkable!

It may surprise some to be told that the past forty-two years mean more to the world in increase of education, increase of wealth, increase of all manner of labor-saving inventions and conveniences, increase of safeguards and protections for human life, than did all the six thousand years which preceded them—many times over. The world has probably created a thousand times as much wealth during these forty-two years as during the entire six thousand years preceding. Yet these changes have come so gradually that few have noticed them.

Fulfilment of Prophecy Everywhere.

Forty-two years ago man labored from sun to sun; to-day we are rapidly approaching an eight-hour day. Forty-two years ago nearly all the labor of the world was performed by the sweat of face; to-day it is nearly all accomplished by machinery. Forty-two years ago the sewing-machine was just reaching perfection; to-day it is everywhere indispensable. So with the thousand household conveniences. So with nearly all of our sanitary and plumbing arrangements. So with farming implements. Reapers and binders, mowers, automobiles, gas engines, etc., etc., all belong to these forty-two years. In our cities the modern conveniences are wonderful. Solomon in all his glory never even dreamed of such things as the poorest human being in America may enjoy!

Prophecies respecting streams in the desert and the wilderness blossoming as the rose are having fulfilment—not miraculously, but in harmony with the Divine order of an increased intelligence amongst men. Artesian wells are being drilled, irrigating canals constructed, not only in the western part of the United States and Canada, but also in far-off Mesopotamia. The results are marvelous. Land previously not worth fencing is valued at $500 per acre to-day. The increase of knowledge has been supplemented by governmental arrangements for the distribution of that knowledge amongst the people. The soils of various localities are being analyzed at public expense; and the tillers of the soil are given knowledge as respects what kind of fertilizers are required to bring satisfactory results.

Under these conditions it does not surprise us to know that as much as 156 bushels of corn have been raised to one acre, and that 600 bushels of potatoes and over are not an uncommon record. Is not the Bible being fulfilled? Who can dispute these facts? What do they signify? We answer that they exactly corroborate the Divine declaration which describes our day: "Many shall run to and fro; knowledge shall be increased; the wise of God's people shall understand; and "there shall be a Time of Trouble such as never was since there was a nation."—Daniel 12: 4, 10, 1; Matthew 24: 21.

Increase of World-Wide Discontent.

We are in the Morning of our text. Ah, what a glorious Morning! How changed the human conditions from those of our grandfathers! How thankful the whole world should be! Paeans of praise should be rising from all the people of the favored lands of civilization; and helping hands should be outstretched to carry the same blessings to heathen lands. But is it so? Are the people happy and rejoicing? Are they appreciative of the New Day—of the gifts of Divine Providence?

Not! In proportion as the blessings of God have come, the discontent of humanity has increased, and unbelief, not only in respect to the Bible as the Divine Revelation, but in many instances in respect to the very existence of an intelligent Creator. Notwithstanding the great increase in the world's wealth, and the fact that there are some noble souls who are using their share of the wealth in a praiseworthy manner, nevertheless the general operation of the law of selfishness prevails; and all the legislation which has been enacted, or which can be enacted, fails to restrain the giant institutions — corporations — of our day, fails to hinder them from the exploiting of the masses in the interests of the comparatively few.

Did God know all these things? What will He do about them? Will He bring in the Millennial blessings, and risk that men shall take for granted that they have won the secrets of nature by their own wisdom and perseverance, and forget God entirely? Will they become more discontented? Would a Millennium of discontent be advantageous? What will God do about it?

The Dark Night Already Settling

According to the Bible, God foreknew of the conditions of our day as we are now reviewing them; and in our text He gives a key to the situation—elsewhere in the Scriptures made very plain. Through the Prophet, God tells of the dark Night coming—after the Morning Dawn had been well ushered in—a dark storm-cloud just at sunrise. This dark hour is described in the prophecy of Daniel, and also in that of our Lord Jesus, to be "a Time of Trouble, such as never was since there was a nation."

The next phase of the Trouble, according to the Bible, is to be the "great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great." (Revelation 16:18.) This is not a literal earthquake, but a symbolic one—revolution. Then the third phase of the calamity—the darkest of all—will be the symbolic fire of anarchy, which will utterly destroy our present civilization. Then, in the midst of that most awful Time of Trouble, Messiah, the great King, will take His great power and will exercise it, with the result that the raging waves of the sea of human passion will all be quieted, the fires of anarchy will all be extinguished, and the Reign of Righteousness and Peace will begin.

Cannot we see the wisdom of the great Creator's Program? He has determined to permit mankind to convince themselves of their own impotency, of their need of a God, and of the fact that there is a God, and that His glorious purposes for humanity are revealed in His Word. Ah, it is no wonder that the Bible speaks of that revelation of the Lord as the "still, small voice of God," speaking to mankind through Messiah's Kingdom. No wonder the Lord declares that "then He will turn to the people a pure Message, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord, to serve Him with one consent!"—Zephaniah 3: 8, 9.

Messiah Will "Make All Things New"

St. Peter gives us a vivid picture of the New Order of things in Messiah's Kingdom. He says, "The Day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works that are therein, shall be burned up . . . the heavens being on fire, shall be dissolved. . . . Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness."—2 Peter 3: 10, 12, 13.

The "new heavens" will be the glorified Church, consisting of Jesus the Head and His Bride class, selected from the world during the past eighteen centuries. The "new earth" will be the new social order under the control of the new heavens. There will be no patching of present institutions, but a clean sweep of them by the fire of Divine wrath preceding the establishment of the New Order, wherein only that which is righteous, just, equitable, true, will be recognized.

Equally symbolic is the statement that then "there will be no more sea." (Revelation 21:1.) In the symbolic language of the Bible "the sea" represents the restless masses of mankind; the "earth" the social structure; and the "mountains" represent the governments. When the New Order shall have come into power, those classes that are discontented with the present order will be no more; for the New Order of Messiah's Kingdom will even more than meet their desires and expectations. (Haggai 2:7.) In the symbolic language of the Bible, "every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low." (Isaiah 40: 3-5.) That is to say, general human equality will be established along the lines of righteousness.

HEAT FLASHES, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Mrs. Wynn Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her During Change of Life.

Richmond, Va. — "After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2812 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pain in the Back and Kidney Trouble

SINCE CHILDHOOD

When the kidneys get out of order the back is sure to become afflicted, and dull pains, sharp pains, quick twinges all point to the fact that the kidneys need attention.

Plasters and liniments will not cure the kidneys for they cannot get to the seat of the trouble, but Doan's Kidney Pills do, and the reason for this is that they are a remedy for all kidney and bladder troubles only.

Miss Mary M. Lanoup, St. Isidore, Que., writes: "Since my childhood I have suffered very much from pain in the back and kidney trouble. I have used several remedies but nothing did me any good. A friend advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills so I tried a box, and before I had finished it I felt relief. I took three more boxes and am completely cured. I advise all those who suffer from kidney trouble to use them and believe that they will do for others what they have done for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pills, they are put up in an oblong grey box, the trade mark a Maple Leaf.

Price 50c per box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SULTAN OF ZANZIBAR WARNS AGAINST KAISER

Britain the Best Friend Moslems Have, He Says—Germany He Calls Brutal and Uncivilized

The Tempo publishes a proclamation by the Sultan of Zanzibar From Sayet Khalifet Bin Harub, Sultan of Zanzibar, to the Sheik Salem, ibn Kalifan, Governor of Mombas. The proclamation begins: "We have thought good to write to you to command you to remain faithful to the great British Government, without allowing yourself to be influenced by the false promises of the Germans. The British Government has always been our true friend and the protector of our religion. It is the greatest Mussulman Power in the world, and its respect for the Mussulmans of Islam has never been found wanting. We therefore put you on your guard against the lies of the Germans, and we recall to your memory their misdeeds at the time of Seyd Mejed and Seyed Bargash, their atrocities, their profanations, their contempt for civil and religious laws, when they went so far as to enter our mosques without taking off their boots in order to humble the self-respect of the Mussulmans."

After reciting more German misdeeds the Sultan says: "All this proves that the German Government is brutal, uncivilized, and savage, and that it sneers at Mussulmans and despises them." A little lower down he says: "Be persuaded that the Germans are on the point of being crushed. Great Britain, France, Russia and Japan, with their millions of soldiers and their warships, will dissipate and drive forth the forces of wicked Germany. Be, then, firm in your friendship for Britain." The Sultan describes as "a diabolical machination invented by intriguers sold to Germany" the rumor that the German Emperor has been converted to Islam—for he is "Islam's greatest enemy."

SAGE TEA-DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

Its Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

TREASURE LAND

It is said that the battlefields of France and Flanders cover many hidden treasures. During the early months of the war villagers in the stricken areas often buried possessions which they could not take away with them, hoping to dig them up again when peace was restored. They did not realize how unrecognizable their fields and gardens would become, how utterly the old familiar landmarks would vanish!

A reader tells that his brother has made a lucky find. While filling sandbags for a gunpit he unearthed some gold coins of the sixteenth century. He sent a description of one of these coins, and was given the good news, which by now he has doubtless passed on to his brother at the front, that the value of the coin was from $7.20 to $10 if in fine condition. It was a double ducat of Albert and Elizabeth of Austria, Burgundy, and Brabant.

The coins may have been buried during the present war, of course; but they may have been hidden or lost during some former occasion. In any case, they were well worth digging up.

TOLD HE MUST SUICIDE.

When He Tried to Escape He Was Shot and Fatally Wounded.

STETTLER, Alta., Nov. 2.—The dying statement of Frank H. Whiteside, member of the Legislature for Coronation, dictated in the presence of witnesses, was produced in the trial of Thomas Helmbolt, charged with Whiteside's murder. Whiteside is alleged to have said he was called to the telephone office by Helmbolt on the night of the shooting and was confronted by the accused with a statement that he (the accused) knew all about his infamy, that Mrs Helmbolt had told him all and that Whiteside would be given the opportunity to make a signed confession and then blow his own brains out. Whiteside tried to get away, but three shots were fired at him. Letters between Mrs Helmbolt and Whiteside were admitted as evidence for the defence.

So important and common are gas engines becoming on the farms that it would pay most young farmers to take a winter course in their operation and maintenance.

LEST WE FORGET

The Graphic Story of How the Belgians Saved the Allies in the Battle of the Yser Two Years Ago

The anniversary of the glorious days of October, 1914, when the Belgians stopped the Germans on their way to Calais was celebrated at Havre, the present seat of the Belgian government, on the 29th of October. Lest the people of Peterborough forget the great service the heroic Belgians performed on that occasion the following description written by a Belgian officer, will of interest.

After the depressive and murderous onslaughts of the siege of Antwerp, the Belgian army, escaping from imminent destruction, had contrived by dint of skillfulness and of endurance to retire towards the coast in order to reach the lines of the Yser river, without abandoning into the enemy's hands a single gun or even one man, during the whole course of its most exciting retreat.

And yet, the hard battles fought during the last two and a half months by the Belgian troops, struggling unassisted against the invader, had seriously weakened and reduced them.

The field army, when it finally succeeded in establishing itself upon the Yser, was reduced to some 80,000 men with only 40,000 muskets, supported by 350 cannon of 75 m.m. and 24 howitzers of 150 mm. And, moreover the only ammunition supplies remaining were those which the army had been able to carry along with it, a supply barely sufficient to engage a final and hard battle, but with no available means of renewing it.

Reached the Limit.

Beredt of almost all their former equipment, clad in uniforms all worn and muddy, the men appeared to have reached the full limit of physical resistance and to be unable to stand any further effort which might be more or less protracted. The fall of Antwerp, immediately followed by the extenuating retreat, seemed to have affected every energy and crushed even the most steady wills and minds.

Then it was that the King addressed to the army an admirable order of the day. Making a direct appeal to its tenacity and to its bravery, he tells it how it must keep on fighting side by side with the allied armies it has just been joined to: "In the position I will hereafter place you," does his Majesty order his soldiers "let your eyes ever and solely look ahead and consider as a traitor to the country whosoever would utter the word of retreat before a formal order has been given to that effect!"

The King does not disguise to his troops the fact that a supreme and final match is on the point of being played. Hisorders shall be splendidly obeyed. Only to hear that all is not over that henceforth they will no more be fighting along, that it is still possible to free the country, then men have all recovered, as by a new miracle, their energy and their courage. The army in tatters" is again standing up to resist the foe and check its rush unto Calais.

A mass of 350,000 Germans, composed of entirely fresh troops supported by the fire of at least 500 cannons of every calibre, among which are to be counted the heavy guns that have just crushed the defences of Antwerp is hurled against, but broken to pieces by the Belgian army cornered upon the last shred of the nations' soil, physically run down, but still animated by the purest spirit of devotion and of self-sacrifice. This army had completed on the 15th of October, only its mustering along the Yser. Upon the very next day, the 16th, big battle started.

The Task of the Belgians.

The situation is the more critical, that the Belgian army is compelled, with the only support of 6,000 French marine fusileers, to defend at the very beginning, a front of 36 kilometres, from the sea down to Znydschoote. Its initial task, it is true, was to be limited to withhold the foe's first onset in order to allow the allied reinforcements the time they required to intervene; the French high commander requested at that date, the Belgian army "to hold for only 48 hours."

To cover this extended front, it was found necessary to deploy the Belgian forces almost entirely. From the coast down to the north of Dixmude, the 2nd, 1st and 4th army divisions are successively drawn up in echelons the advance posts of Lombaertsde, Mannekensvere, Schoore, Yeyem and Beerst, and upon the river two bridge heads, at Nieuport and Schoorbakke.

To their right, the bridge heads of Dixmude and its approaches are defended by the brigade of marine fusileers and two regiments of the 3rd Belgian division. A little further off, the 5th division occupies the Noordschoote district, while the 6th extends the line as far as the outskirts of Boesinghe, where it is joined by the French territorial troops.

And lastly, the cavalry division covers the army's right flank, operating in the direction of Boulers and of Houthulst with the French cavalry. And thus, there only remain in reserve, at the Belgian command's disposal, two brigades of the 3rd division, and the 2nd cavalry division is posted between Nieuport and Furnes.

Such is the order of battle when the foe's cannon thunders out for the first time, on October 16, upon the banks of the Yser. On this same day, the Germans send, towards St. Pierre-Cappelle and Dixmude offensive reconnaissances which are vigorously received and driven back.

On the 17th, the intelligence reports indicate most clearly that considerable hostile forces are advancing toward the front of Nieuport-Dixmude, which it becomes therefore imperative to reinforce. That is why the 5th division is brought back to Lampernisse, which a brigade of the 6th is sent to replace at Noordschoote-Drie Grachien.

German Effort Increased.

On October 18, the German effort is increased before the bridge-heads of Nieuport and Schoorbakke, where the enemy attacks the advanced posts. It fails in front of Lombaertsde, whose resistance is successfully supported by a French-British flotilla. The Germans, however, capture Mannekensvere and hold it in spite of a counter-attack. A little further south, Schoore also falls into their hands after a hard struggle; Keyem, which has been changing hands several times, is finally carried by the assailants; Beerst, in return, resists all the attacks.

From this very moment, the foe's pressure appears so powerful that it becomes necessary to further consolidate at any cost the front so seriously opposed. The importance of the French-British cavalry forces, operating in the vicinity of Roulers guarantees the return of the other divisions towards Lampernisse, and later to Pervyse, where it will support the centre.

The fighting which was kept up furiously all through the 18th becomes more general on the 19th. The advanced posts at Nieuport are attacked with renewed fury, but they resist firmly. Near the right centre, on the contrary, the defenders of Beerst were finally compelled to fall back before forces superior in numbers. Then, in order to relieve the centre and the left, the Belgian staff send out from Dixmude the marine fusileers and the 5th Division, which are thrust in a counter-attack towards Beerst-Vladsloo. Taken by surprise and dislodged by the vigorous attack, the enemy is at first driven back. But at the day's end, the victorious troops are forced to fall back under the threatening advance of a German army corps emerging from Roulers.

A Continuous Bombardment.

At day-break, on the 20th, the very front of the Yser, now accessible to the foe, is brought under a continuous bombardment, the intensity of which increases hourly. The trenches dug along the bank are literally hacked by grape-shot, behind them, the whole ground, extending as far as the railway tracks, is fired upon systematically by day and by night; all over it the ruins are ceaselessly accumulating: Nieuport and Dixmude are in flames. Against both these localities, the enemy make renewed attacks. They succeed in entering into Lombaertsyde, but they cannot emerge from it; at Dixmude, they are driven back with terrible and bloody losses.

The situation, for all that, is no less tragic. The six Belgian divisions, becoming more and more depleted, are always left alone to defend the kilometre front stretching from the sea to St. Jacques-Cappelle, south of Dixmude. They have already been fighting during five days, and the intensity of the action keeps on increasing incessantly. In front of these weak forces the enemy has gathered in compact masses ;the 4th division of Ersatz; the CCIIIrd and COIIIrd and IInd reserve corps, or, in all; seven complete divisions, and all its artillery. The Germans mean to break through the Yser line, at any cost before reinforcements have time to intervene. They therefore rush their attacks, against Nieuport and Dixmude particularly, for those two places are the buttresses of the line of defence and their fall would bring about simultaneously that of the Yser line and of the railroad line.

At Dixmude, especially, frightful battles are fought on the 21st. It is only by clinging to their positions until death that Belgians and marine fusileers have been able to break down the enemy's successive onslaughts. But almost everywhere, to maintain the incessant fighting, it was found necessary to cast into the burning furnace even the last reserves.

A Grave Situation.

It is then, during the night of the 21-22 October, that there occurred a fact of an extreme gravity; by the help of the obscurity, the enemy suddenly invaded, through the Tervaste bridge, the ring which the Yser dangerously projects at that point. The moment was one of terrible anguish, for if the foe extended their advantage it means the breaking of the front would become inevitable.

With a new start of splendid energy, all the Belgian troops available in the locality rush in a counter-attack, in spite of their exhaustion. Suffering terrible losses, they cannot drive back the enemy completely, but they remain in control of the bent line between the tow extremities of the loop and there lay down in the muddy ditches.

On October 22nd, while the Belgians are still continuing the first which has lasted a whole week, a French reinforcement comes up. It is the 42nd division. But it advances towards Nieuport to attempt an offensive move. In the centre, the exhausted Belgian troops are played out; the Schoorbakke bridge-head is taken from them. The curve toward the intermediate line of the Noordvaart and of the Beyerdyk must be organised, to afford a new position of resistance, before falling back upon the railway tracks.

The French troops.

The Belgian staff insist in having the French troops in operation in that direction. One brigade of the 42nd division is on its way, at the very moment the bridges of the Union and of St. Georges have to be in their turn abandoned, under the enemy's murderous fire and convergent attacks. And now, moreover, the Germans are making a supreme effort against Dixmude. Fifteen successive attacks that end in hand to hand struggles in the dark and which all fail against the valiant of the marine fusileers and of the Belgians, of whom certain units have already 72 consecutive hours of trench duty to their credit.

On the 25th, the entire 42nd French division is brought forward in the centre, where the situation is somewhat improved, the more so on account of the enemy giving evident signs of exhaustion. Not being able to depend upon the help of any other reinforcements, finding its troops worn out and its ammunition wagons almost empty, the Belgian staff now considers the plan of flooding the ground between the Yser and the railway line, the latter to be used as a last rampart. The preparatory works are now undertaken to that effect, the decision seems the wisest one, for the new German rush, on the 26th, compels the giving up of the Beverdyk. At night the Franco-British troops still occupy Nieuport and Dixmude, and between those two points they hold a line running along the railway almost as far as Pervyse and, through Stuyvekenskerke, joining again the Yser, at the post No. 16. They will not go back any further.

The 27th and 28th are both most powerful days, although the bombardment is continued, imperceptibly, the inundation has begun its work. The enemy, not yet suspecting the intervention of this novel kind of an adversary, is preparing a supreme effort. A bombardment of formidable violence, prelude, on the 29th, the attacks which are to be rushed the following day against the railway line; they are repelled everywhere, except at Ramscappelle, where the foe manages to get a footing. But, determined to die rather than to give up, the defenders collect their last forces for the counter attack. On the 31st the remains of five Belgian battalions and two French battalions, drive the Germans out of Ramscappelle. And the enemy's retreat is transformed into an actual rout when they suddenly see the innundation rising gradually around them, sullen and unsurmountable.

The Battle Over.

The battle of the Yser is over, having been instructed at the beginning to resist forty-eight hours, the Belgian army, reinforced by 6,000 army fusileers, has fought alone for a whole week at first, and later has continued its effort until October 31, with the support of a French division, fighting therefore, without interruption, during fifteen deadly days.

In the course of these 360 hours of fierce fighting, it has constantly given itself fully, without rest or respite. Crouched in their rough-cut trenches, or in the mud of the ditches, unsheltered, badly fed, exposed to all kinds of weather, the men hold out through it all. But in their tattered uniforms they almost look anything but human beings. The number of those wounded, during the last thirteen days of October exceeds 9,000; that of the killed or missing amounts to more than 11,000. The sick and suffering from mere exhaustion can be counted by hundreds. What is left of units seems to be in an embryonic state. The officers have notably suffered; in a certain regiment there are only six left.

Have Saved the Day.

Prodigies of real energy, maintained by a splendid mind, will permit, during the severe winter season, to reform the units on the very front they have so valiantly defended, and which remains immovable.

But, thanks to the sacrifices so stoically accepted, the Belgian army has barred the road to Dunkirk and to Calais; the allies' left wing has not been outflanked; the enemy has not taken possession of that coast whence they reckoned they could threaten the very heart of England. For the Germans, the battle has, therfore, ended in a total and bloody defeat. Contrariwise, it is a name of glorious victory which King Albert has caused to be embroidered on the banners of his heroic regiments: YSER!

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7397

Great diversity in styles of one piece dresses has increased the demand for them, and it is due to the perfection of the designers' handiwork that this will be the biggest season ever for one piece frocks.

In the illustration we show a garment made in one of the best of the fall styles. Because fashion favors the scheme the fronts of the plain blouse are gathered, and joined to a French yoke of the material. The collar, which overlays and almost covers the yoke, is formed of contrasting goods. The white collar on a plain frock is so effective that women seem loath to give it up. The sleeve is worthy of remark, very full, banded at the wrist and finished with a ruffle that falls over the hand.

Two cont shirrings at the top of a two gore and gathered skirt give the effect of the new twice around girdle, where the waist is joined. The width of the lower edge of the skirt in size 24 is 3 yards.

Foulard silk, figured voile, mbardine and like weaves are suitable for such design, and even though it be your first attempt with a pattern you can count upon success because the instructions make every detail clear as daylight.

The dress pattern, No. 7,397, is cut in sizes 34 to 42 bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 5 to 5¾ yards of 36 inch material and ⅝ yard 18 inch goods for the collar.

To obtain the pattern send 20 [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age if a child.

Price 10 cents, or 3 for 25 cents.

THE ONLY MEDICINE THAT HELPED HER

"Fruit-a-tives Again Proves Its Extraordinary Powers

Rocmos, Que., March 2nd, 1915.

"I have received the most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered for years from Rheumatism and change of life, and I took every remedy obtainable without results. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and it was the only medicine that really did me good. Now I am entirely well—the Rheumatism has disappeared, and the terrible pains in my body are all gone. I hope that others, who suffer from such distressing diseases, will try "Fruit-a-tives". MADAME ISAIE ROCHON.

BRITISH STRIKE AT BOOZE.

Save Our Man-Power by Banishing Liquor, is a Campaign Cry.

The problem of how to secure needed men for its reserve forces and to fill the gaps in its overseas armies, at the same time leaving sufficient able-bodied men at home to keep the workshops and munition factories going, is agitating the United Kingdom. The Government is considering raising the age limit of those eligible for military service to include men from 41 to 45 years old. This plan has aroused the opposition of members of the Strength of Britain Movement, an organization composed of one thousand of the most distinguished personages in the kingdom. The Strength of Britain Movement has called upon the Government instead to secure the required man-power through a suspension of the liquor traffic during the balance of the war and the period of demobilization.

In a full-page advertisement carried in the London Daily Telegraph under the heading, "The Acute Question of Man-power,' the Strength of Britain Movement asks this question:

"Will he Government raid the nation's greatest source of strength, or its greatest source of weakness?"

AGED WOMAN

Run Down and Feeble — Made Strong by Vinol.

So many people in Peterborough and vicinity are in Mrs. Wickersham's condition we ask you to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, and if it fails to benefit we will return your money.

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbour asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened run-down system and create strength.

Right here in Peterborough we have seen such excellent results from Vinol that it is a pleasure to know it is doing so much good for old people in other parts of the country.

ARTIFICIAL LEGS ARE SUPPLIED FREE

Public to Warned Against Those Who Try To Collect Money.

TORONTO, Nov 4.—In view of reports which have reached the police that a woman is going about the city wrongfully making collections, the Military Hospitals Commission last night made the following announcement:—

The Hospitals Commission Artificial Limb Institute at 37 Buchanan street just south of the Central Convalescent Hospital is now fully equipped to make the most approved artificial limbs for all members of the C.E.F. who unfortunately require them. It cannot be too clearly stated that the country furnishes these free. The public is warned against those who may be trying to collect money to pay for returning maimed soldiers.

FAVORS SHIPPING DICTATOR

Liverpool Paper Charges Waste in British Building Yards.

LONDON.—In a leading article on "The Tonnage Shortage and the Remedy" The Liverpool Journal of Commerce points out that the British mercantile marine has suffered a loss equivalent to 4,000,000 tons of shipping, detailed as follows: Hindrance of new construction, 1,000,000 tons; war losses, 1,500,000; excessive depreciation, 1,000,000 tons.

Quoting Lloyd's Register for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1916, in which vessels completed only totaled 71,000 tons gross, The Journal says: "Seventy thousand tons per quarter or one dreout ship a week, is a ridiculous output. In spite of admitted difficulties, it is hard for the outsider to believe that this cannot be improved, while every one claiming any general knowledge of the situation is well aware that many more ships could be turned out without as all interfering with the more urgent requirements of any other section of our shipping machinery."

The paper asserts that a constantly increasing multitude of officials is being employed to stifle the best efforts of shipbuilders and apparently to insure that what available labour and material there are shall be wasted, and urges the necessity of appointing one strong man to govern everything, to see that available supplies are not frittered away, to insure that the man who can best build big ships gets big ships to build, and in general to arrange things on a sensible basis.

"What is required," the paper says, "is the appointment of a dictator, an individual who is intimate with the shipbuilding industry and whose career is a guarantee of strength of character, soundness of judgment and outstanding ability. Such a man could be found if desired, and if such an appointment were immediately announced the relief to the shipbuilding world would be instantaneous."

HOLE IN RIVER BRINGS $800.

Kansas Sheriff Sells Land Long Since Washed Away.

Sheriff L. L. Kiene, of Topeka, Kan., is accused of selling a hole in the river for $809. The sale was made recently at a sheriff's sale on the court house steps, with Bennett I Wheeler. Out of the $800 the costs, amounting to $40, will come. Technically the rest will be paid into court by Fred Harwood, for whom Mr Wheeler was bidding, and then paid back to Mr. Harwood to satisfy his judgment. But the judgment will never be satisfied in actual dollars and cents, the sheriff says. When the land description, which placed a forty-acre tract along the Kaw on the west county line, was investigated, it was shown that the tax rolls showed it all washed away by the river. The judgment was on an old mortgage and was secured by default by r3l. Harwood.

HOW SHELL SHOCK AFFECTS THE MEN WHO ARE VICTIMS

Letter From Lieutenant of Machine Gun Section at Front.

How shell shock affects a soldier is told in the following letter from Lieut. A. J. E. Parkes, 8th Canadian Machine Gun Company. The letter reads:

"Still in the line, though we expect to be relieved this afternoon. The manner and time of getting out doesn't really matter much—the main thing is to get out. Most of the men would rather swim than go at all. While the line isn't such a bad place sometimes, a week of it is enough for one dose, especially in three parts.

"Lack of sleep and discomfort are the main drawbacks. The danger is a small item except to a few whose nerves are not under control. A shell-shocked man is a shocking (no pun meant) sight. They say that some of the best men may get it after being in many bombardments, or being wounded or nearly wounded by a close bursting shell. The symptoms are similar to, but really different from those of the commonly called coward who is afraid of a shell right from the start and never gets over the fear. Real shell-shock of course, as you probably know, is a pathological condition. The nerves are actually shattered. It takes an expert to tell the differences between a funk and a real shock. Although a man with shock is almost as much wounded as if he were hit, he gets little sympathy either here or in England, in most cases justly so. I think, for a man's manner of living, his self-control, must play some part in the disease. Also, shell-shock is undoubtedly simulated by out-and-out cowards.

FOUND IN DUGOUT.

"All I hope is I never get it. Every shell that goes over causes such a man to wince and cower, in seemingly abject fear. One case the other day was left standing in a trench and when I went to look for him he was found at the bottom of the deepest dugout. He shook all over like a palsied man and at every shell shriek he ducked as it hit. It really is a distressing sight. I suppose the poor fellow felt as if he were in a nightmare, or perhaps he had Baltrafather's 'sixteen-inch feeling.'

"While writing this I am at the bottom of a deep German dugout, not suffering from shell-shock, but keeping out of the rain and trying to be comfortable under very adverse circumstances. I am literally in a hole in the ground and fifteen to twenty feet below the surface. Unfortunately, though Fritz is an indefatigable worker, he was not left in occupation of this trench long enough to finish the dugout. He finished the stairs and the passage, but did not have time to make any bunks before he was driven out. He left a lot of junk lying around in the trench and dugout, some of which I have cooped for souvenirs. They are going to weigh heavy on the way out, I am afraid. Of the German dead lying around I will say nothing."

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Roumanians Successful At Several Points

GENERAL RETIREMENT OF THE FOE EXPECTED

ROUMANIANS WIN SEVERAL CLASHES FORCING RETIREMENT OF THE ENEMY

Teutonic Forces Fired Three Roumanian Villages in Dobrudja Before Retreating Indicating a General Retirement of Mackensen's Forces From That Secction ---German Counter-attacks in West Succeed in Taking Back Some of the Ground Lost to the French and British in Yesterday's Successful Advance.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

BUCHAREST, November 6.—Advanced Roumanian detachments, after sharp clashes with the enemy in the Dobrudja region, have won several successes and forced him to retire, the War Office stated to-day. Before their retirement the enemy fired the village of Daenigalicif, Rosman and Haidar. It is believed here this means a general retirement of Mackensen's forces in Dobrudja.

Allied Offensive Met By Counter-Attacks

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, November 6.—The renewal of the Allied offensive on the Somme front has been met by furious German counter attacks. Reports from General Haig and from Paris and Berlin agree that bitter fighting marked yesterday and last night. The German statement declared British and French attacks were made with great force and supported by almost unexampled artillery fire. General Haig reported the necessity of relinquishing positions near Butte De Warlencourt in the fact of strong German attacks last night. | Butte De Warlencourt is at the bend of the new British line toward Bapaume, and the position evacuated had just been wrestled from the Teutons. German reports declared the Allies' attacks was on a front of twenty kilametres between Lesers and Bouchavenes.

Violent Offensive By Germans in the East

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, November 6.—Violent offensive undertaken by the Germans with the object of capturing the commanding heights east of Lipitsadvinais and west of Silaventin, is continuing with unabated fury, with the issue still in doubt, the War Office announced this evening.

East of Lipitzadvinais and west of Silaventin the enemy several times took the offensive, the official statement reads. The object was to capture the commanding heights there about. All attacks were frustrated. With rifle fire and artillerying violent battle continues.

Vicious Fighting On the Italian Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, November 6.—Via Sayville Wireless—Vicious fighting in the Italian theatre in the past forty-eight hours has resulted in the capture of many prisoners and a gain of some ground by the Austrians, the War Office announced to-day. The some points the Italians suffered great losses.

Foe's Counter-Attacks Are Partially Successful

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official), November 6.—German counter attacks against the newly consolidated French positions between St. Pierre Vaast Wood and the village of Sailly Saillisel, following yesterday's advance by the French, were partially successful in the Wood and at Saillisel, the War Office announced to-day. The Teuton counter attacks took place last night and some ground was gained by them. Elsewhere the enemy was repulsed. Violent cannonading was reported about Dansloup, but no infantry action in that region.

Cannot Recognize Poland as State

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, November 6.—The United States cannot recognize Poland as an independent power before conclusion of peace, it was stated at the State Department to-day. Regardless of the reported action of the Central Powers in proclaiming Poland as an independent kingdom, her status from the standpoint of the United States is still "captured territory"; and her future position must be settled by peace negotiations.

LONDON, November 6.—Wireless despatches from Geneva to-day carried the announcement that Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign affairs, declared to the deputation of Poles who called on him that the autonomy of Poland would not become effective until after the war.

American Steamer Sunk By a Sub.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, November 6.—The American steamer Lanao, 692 tons, has been sunk by a submarine, a Lloyd's despatch stated to-day. The vessel was sunk October 20. Thirty members of the crew were landed at Barry, Wales, by the Norwegian steamer Tromp.

German Dreadnought Torpedoed By Sub

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, November 6.—A German Dreadnought was torpedoed yesterday off the Danish coast by an English submarine, the Admiralty announced to-day. The damage is not known it was stated. It is known, however, that the German warship was hit.

MUSIC PRODUCED BY AEOLION VOCALION IS ALMOST HUMAN

Wonderful Instrument Was Exhibited For The First Time in Peterboro on Saturday in the Piano Warerooms of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, 118 Hunter Street—Will Play Any Record

THE GRADNOLA

On Saturday afternoon and evening the Aeolion-Vocalion made its debut in the piano warerooms of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, Crown Building, 118 Hunter Street. A large number of people heard for the first time a crowning triumph in the development of the phonograph. In the words of some of those who were present, it is all but human. For one thing you enjoy the sensation of actually playing the Aeolian-Vocalion because you feel and hear the instrument under your complete control. It voices your musical desires and gives life, expression and beauty of tone to the music.

Play Any Record.

Any record can be played on the Aeolian-Vocalion. It is a true musical instrument.

By it are sounded the purest tones of voice and instrument—such tones as you never heard from a phonograph before. You will wonder at the mellow notes of the wood-winds, the militant peal of the brasses, the clear sweetness of soprano and tenor, the vibrant richness of barytone and basso.

But the revealtion comes when you find these beautiful tones answering to your mood—when you take the Graduola, the exclusive Vocalin expression device, and by delicate, instinctive pressure shade each tone to whispering sweetness, or swell it to vital brilliance. When you realise that you are playing—that you have gained the thrilling pleasure of musicianship—then you will understand the revolutionary significance of this remarkable new instrument — The Aeolian-Vocalion. Then you will begin to see the greater destiny of the phonograph.

The Nordheimer Piano and Music Company, Limited, are the Canadian distributors for the Aeolian-Vocalion, while Mr. Frank Whitehouse of this city will handle the Aeolian-Vocalion in Peterborough City and County.

DRIVER MONTGOMERY ON LIST OF WOUNDED GUNNER TEABEAU ILL

Two Peterboro' Names on Casualty List To-day--Returned Soldiers to Meet at the Armouries To-night--Battalion Sargeant-Major Appointed For the 247th Battalion ---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Two Peterborough names are added to the honour roll to-day. Gunner Jos. Teabeau is reported, while Driver Morris Montgomery has also been hit.

GUNNER JOS. N. TEBEAU.

Mrs. McCallum, 43 Smith street, received official word yesterday that her son, Gunner Joseph N. Tebeau, Canadian Field Artillery, is officially reported seriously ill in No. 20 General Hospital, Etaples, France; on Nov. 2. It is presumed that Gunner Teabeau has been wounded. He had only been in France a couple of weeks. Gunner Teabeau, who is only seventeen years of age, enlisted here last spring in the 32nd Battery and went over with a draft. His brother, Pte. Willie Teabeau, of the Mounted Rifles, was wounded some time ago. Both boys were born in Peterborough.

DRIVER M. MONTGOMERY.

A letter received by a member of the Examiner staff from Driver Morris Montgomery, Divisional Ammunition Column, 2nd Canadian Contingent, states that Driver Montgomery was wounded a short time ago. Driver Montgomery states that he was wounded in the leg, and although in a bad place, his injury was not serious. "I ought to think myself lucky," writes Driver Montgomery. I felt sorry for some of the boys up there that night, as the shelling was heavy. Old Fritz got sore at us and he sent a few shells, all landing in the road.

Driver Montgomery is one of four brothers who enlisted in the Canadian forces. He will be remembered by road race fans as a starter in the Examiner's Lakefield to Peterborough Thanksgiving Day event. Incidentally it might be pointed out that the contestants who used to participate in the Examiner races are well represented in the Canadian forces. One of them, Pte. Geo. Robinson, has been killed. Others, in addition to Driver Montgomery, who are overseas, are Sergt. Chas. Thorpe of the 52nd Battery, Pte. Hanlon Howard of the 21st Battalion, and Pte. Scott Montgomery of the 21st Battalion, while the junior racer is represented by a large number, including Pte. Walter Flowers, C.M.R., Pte. Henry Muskrat and Pte. Cecil Armstrong, 93rd Battalion.

RECRUITING FIGURES

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Canada's recruiting total for October was just one under six thousand, or 5,999. It is the lowest total for any month since the war began, and is 358 below the September mark, which was the next lowest. The total number of casualties for October was more than double the number of enlistments. The falling off in the number of recruits since the early months of the year is serious. In January there were 29,212; February, 26,658; March, 32,819; April, 23,289; May 15,000; June 10,796; July, 8,675, August, 7,207.

Since the war began the total enlistments have been 371,595. Ontario leads, with 152,095 men for the three military districts. The Manitoba and Saskatchewan military districts come second with 74,748; Quebec Province third, with 39,907; British Columbia fourth, with 30,580; the Maritime Provinces fifth, with 33,904 and Alberta sixth with 33,671.

During October the Montreal district, as in September, led all other districts in the number of recruits, its total being 1,166. Toronto district came second with 939, Manitoba and Saskatchewan third, with 853; Kingston district fourth, with 637; the Maritime Provinces fifth with 617; London district sixth, with 573; British Columbia seventh, with 500; Alberta eighth, with 349, and Quebec district ninth, with 246.

IMPORTANT GAINS MADE BY ALLIES

French Smash Forward on Somme Front in Their Greatest Advance For Weeks While British Made Progress to South of Bapaume

PERONNE TO FALL SOON

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The French attained important success on the Somme front to-day, crashing through the enemy's defences for their greatest advance in days. Simultaneously with their ally's stroke, the British struck forward north of the Somme and made progress in the region immediately south of Bapaume.

The French successes on the Somme front greatly strengthened their grip on the Transloy region.

The French also assailed the powerfully-fortified St. Pierre Vaast Wood from three sides at the same time and succeeded in seizing three trenches defending the northern part of the wood and sweeping the whole line of the enemy's defences on its south-western rim. The completed operation won for Foch's troops an advance of half a mile at nearly every point on a four-mile line.

Haig's forces tightened their grip on the important heights near the Butte de Warlencourt, in the centre of the front. The advance was made along a thousand-yard line in the sector nearest to Bapaume, thus directly increasing the threat to that position.

Flank Both Positions.

With the advance of the French here north of the Somme to a point to the east of Bouchavesnes and Rancheon the north there is little doubt that the next operation will have for its purpose the flanking of both these positions and the straightening of the French front from the Saillisel region south to the Peronne sector. With this carried through successfully Foch would be able to strike a decisive blow at Peronne from the north, west and south, an operation which would sweep the stronghold into the French lines.

The day's successes in the region west and south of Transloy bring the envelopment of that position nearer. Only the desperate resistance of the Germans on that stretch of the Bethune road lying to the south of Transloy has prevented its seizure before this. The activity of British troops on the east bank of the Ancre presages an attack on Bapaume from the south-west. Grandcourt and Pys cannot hold out much longer, so close have the British pushed their lines.

British Gain in Centre.

The British official communication dealing with the operations on Sunday on the Somme front says:

"We attacked at several points along the front, making some progress and taking a few prisoners. On our extreme right we cleared a pocket of Germans. In the centre we progressed on a front of over a thousand yards, securing the high ground in the neighborhood of the Butte de Warlencourt.

"The weather continues stormy."

Capture 522 Prisoners.

The following official communication was issued this evening:

"North of the Somme we made several successful attacks during the course of the day, accomplishing a series of appreciable advances between the region south of Le Transloy and the district south of the St. Pierre Vaast Wood. Between Les Boeufs and Sailly-Saillisel we pushed our lines several hundred metres in the direction of le Transloy. East of Sailly-Saillisel we captured a trench, and conquered the greater part of the village of Saillisel. South of this village we attacked from three sides at once the St. Pierre Vaast Wood, which is powerfully organized by the enemy, and made an important advance, capturing three trenches which defended the northern horn of the wood, and also taking the [illegible] of the enemy's positions on the [illegible] western outskirts.

This is a matter that must be attended to. These men deserve positions and should be assisted to be placed. Places now needed for several. Please be prompt.

WILSON STARTS IN RACE WITH NET LEAD OF 66 VOTES

Democrats Conceded Solid South With a Break of 136 Votes But Hughes is Granted Seven States With a Total of 70 Shares in the Electoral College.

BOTH ARE CONFIDENT

Special to Examiner:

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Viewing the situation to-day, twenty-four hours in advance of the battle of the ballots, and with claims from both Republicans and Democrats cocksure of victory, it appeared that the people of New York, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana would come the nearest to hold the balance of power. Both sides claim this "Big Four" of the United States. Their total in the electoral college is 113, nearly forty-three per cent of the votes necessary to a choice. The strictest neutral concedes the Democrats the "solid south" a block of 136 votes, in the Presidential race, therefore, Republican Candidate Hughes starts off with his opponent given a handicap of 136 votes, but he also has been granted by the Democrats' handicap from scratch, of 70 votes, the electoral total of seven States: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Iowa, all practically sure to go Republican. That leaves Wilson with a net start in the vote of 66 shares in the electoral college.

Wilson Confident.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Nov. 6.—President Wilson's official family today confidently predicted his election with 387 votes in the electoral college, out of 531. At no time since the campaign started have those intimate with the Autumn White House professed such unrestrained optimism over to-morrow's results as they did to-day.

Win or lose, the President expects to return to Washington for Winter Saturday. But beyond that he has not revealed his plans. To-morrow night, surrounded by his immediate family at Shadow Lawn, he will hear the returns over a private wire from the Executive Offices. Upon his return to the Capital the President will have before him the problems growing out of the German submarine attack on the British horse transport Marina, with a loss of five American lives. An answer to this nation's questions are expected from Germany this week.

So is Hughes.

New York, Nov. 6.—One week ago to-day Charles Evans Hughes began saying, publicly: "If I am elected, as I expect to be." That qualifying phrase of confidence stood to-day as the Republican candidate's single idea of the result to-morrow. He remained quietly at the hotel Astor, his only political activity of the day being a visit to the Republican National headquarters for a conference with Chairman Willcox.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Between nine and ten millions will change hands over the election if the estimates of betting experts here and in the larger cities to-day are correct. The prices to-day generally are about ten to eight on Hughes.

At the time of the death of Hon. J. R. Stratton, he was the owner of ninety-nine per cent of the stock of the Peterborough Examiner, Limited. This interest has been acquired by R. M. Glover, who has been the Managing Director of the Company for the past ten years, and been associated with the Examiner in various capacities for more than twenty-five years. The heads and staffs in the different departments are retained without change of personnel; and the general policy of the management of the publishing and printing business represented by the Examiner and its job printing and manufacturing business, will be maintained. The new organization hopes to merit the confidence of the public of this city and district and of the business and manufacturing interests to be served with, it is hoped and aimed, increasing efficiency.

WILL GET THEIR CHANCE.

On Saturday reference was made to the reported idleness of senior Canadian officers in England, on account of their commands being broken up to strengthen battalions at the front. A later despatch recived indicates the adoption of measures to provide that every officer coming from Canada will be able to see service at the front, and that many will remain there, and others will return to Canada for instructional services. This is no more gratifying to us than to the officers themselves. Their volunteering in Canada was for no mere parade purpose. Their desire, as well as that of the men, was to get into the thick of the fighting. Whatever are the reasons that contribute to the slow rate of recruiting at home, there is no doubt that the enlisted Canadian soldiers and the officers that go overseas are anxious to see active service. It is a pleasure to know that things have been so arranged, or will be so arranged, that everybody will get the chance to do real fighting; and it is a great pleasure to feel sure that, given the opportunity, they will do credit to the Canadian army and the Canadian nation, as well as effectively help in the victory that is in the making.

CANADIAN RED CROSS.

The Canadian Red Cross in its organization and in the direction of its activities is quite distinct from the British Red Cross. The Canadian Red Cross has for the object of its splendid benefactions, Canadian soldiers and Canadian prisoners of war. Its funds are used to provide means for the exercise of the tireless activities of Canadian women in the provision of material for and also, supplies to be used for the benefit of wounded or otherwise incapacitated Canadian soldiers and for Canadian prisoners of war.

The Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, through a committee will begin solicitations for a renewal of the pledges of contributions given so generously last year. The payments of the amounts pledged have been exceedingly satisfactory, indicating that there is general and good sympathy with the objects for which funds are needed and used. Our Canadian soldiers do not spare themselves in the work they have set themselves, or are set to do. Of course, they shed with wounds and disabling illness in their splendid discharge of duty and we who admire and love them deeply, feel for them and recognize the necessity of meeting their wants.

It is hoped that there will be continued appreciation of the importance and necessity of maintaining the Patriotic Fund, at, at least, its present, if not higher level and the pledges will be cheerfully renewal and their number added to.

Our soldiers are putting up a noble fight and if they are wounded or ill and [illegible] should go out to them—to the hospitals and convalescent homes—with every comfort and necessity, should do the best in the only way can do, to the limit of our ability.

REASON FOR SUSPICION.

British statesmen, alike in the Mother Country and in the Dominions, are slow to suspect and slow to punish. In our time only such outrages as were committed in Belgium and slow comprehension of the long and resolute conspiracy of German autocrats to destroy France and overcome the British Empire could have steeled the British people to the temper of war. Germans know how difficult it is for us to hate and how little we care for glory in comparison with human life. It is curious, however, that we should be so slow to believe that German agents and German money are active in Canada. If Sinn Fein was good material in Ireland surely Nationalism is as good material in Quebec.—Toronto News.

Canadians may have one characteristic of St. Paul's charity—slowness to think evil—but there are some who are not seriously affected that way. There are some newspapers, and the News might identify one of them, that are swift to impute and imagine evil tendencies, especially in public men. The News and a few of its journalistic party kin, find no trouble in thinking and saying evil of, for instance, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Whatever he says or does, and whatever he does not say, is turned against him. The greatest imperialist, in spirit and vision in the history of Canada, is a double-dyed traitor, intent, in some mysterious way, upon plotting against imperial interests. The man who laid at the feet of the British people the greatest evidence of practical loaylty to British interests, of affection for the imperial connection, in giving, without bargain or belittling quid pro quo, a tariff preference, is day after day denounced as an enemy of imperial connection. Though he is condemned by the head and front of Nationalism, Bourassa, as the "most nefarious man in Canada," the critics make him hand in glove with Bourassa to the extent that "a vote for Laurier is a vote for Bourassa," and declare, in spite of reason and reasoning that he is leagued with the Nationalist chief, and plotting some great evil, against the welfare of Canada and the Empire. The rather cryptic reference in the above extract to Sinn Fein in Ireland and Nationalism in Canada, may be taken to mean that Nationalism is an evil. a meaning with which there will be general and ready agreement. The evil of Nationalism in Canada, is fully appreciated by thinking men who cannot understand that the very newspaper organs that condemn it are the staunchest defenders of its presence and official recognition in the government— the cabinet of the country. Nationalism is the foundling —the protege of the party in power, that helped its beginnings, and gave material assistance to the election of its declared representatives, and purchased its parliamentary support by virtually destroying legislation, giving concrete form to the greatest conjoint national and imperial policy ever conceived in Canada—a Canadian navy built in Canada, manned by Canadians and organically a part of the Royal navy. If we could apply reason and patriotism, instead of passion and prejudice to the discussion of matters affecting the national interests, we should do less national harm and help engender the greatest need of our time, national harmony, vice, nationalist, discord.

IRELAND FEEDING BRITAIN.

Despite unfortunate conditions which have resulted in a falling off in Irish recruiting it is at least good to learn from British exchanges that Irish farmers are doing more than their share in supplying Great Britain with foodstuffs during the war. Mr. T. P. Gill, secretary of the Irish Department of Agriculture, addressing an agricultural meeting at Antrim, said that Ireland must be pronounced one of the most rapidly progressive agricultural countries in the world, and was the chief exporter of food to Great Britain. She supplied four-ninths of the cattle and beef which Great Britain imported from all countries in the world added together. She furnished one-fourth of the total pig products imported, more than one-half of the poultry, one-fourth of the eggs and one-seventh of the butter. The Irish farmer, in spite of the many difficulties he had to contend with including shortage of labour, made a spirited and special effort to do his part as a food producer during the war. He had increased the area of ploughed land this year by 6.1 per cent. over that of last year. He had preserved his breeding animals in spite of the temptation of high prices, to that although he exported greater numbers of fat cattle to feed the army and the British population on the 1st of June of this year he actually held at home as the basis of further production 127,000 more cattle, 104,000 more sheep, 85,000 more pigs, 394,000 more poultry, and 28,000 more horses than on the 1st of June last year. The area under flax this year has been increased by 66,000 acres. — Ottawa Journal.

BRAINS ALSO NEEDED.

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, says any attempt to fix food prices would result in innumerable complications. While administrative routine will manage itself, complications require ability. In other countries they have Ministries that can deal with complications.—The Globe.

The Provincial Government As "Lightning-Change Artists"

The members of the Hearst cabinet are sometimes designated The Seven Sleepers, but even while asleep they are able to change their colours so as to harmonize, as closely as possible, with every change in environment. A chameleon, as everybody knows, is a small animal whose colour changes with its surroundings. It has no colour of its very own, and the aptitude of the comparison lies in the fact that certain members of the Hearst cabinet keep changing colour so rapidly that one does not know whether they are blue or white or yellow or red. Mr. Hearst himself does not seem to change so much as he did a little while ago, but he set the fashion in his famous zigzag speech of last winter, when he declared that a "zigzag" course was often the best to follow. He has done a little zigzagging himself since then, especially in his endorsation of the wine-and-beer license candidate in Southwest Toronto, but the real exponents of the policy have been Messrs. Lucas, Ferguson and McGarry, and the government organ, The Toronto News.

Mr. Lucas gave away the whole policy publicly when during the Southwest Toronto election he said to the anti-Prohibition Conservatives, "If you pile up three, four or five thousand majority for Norris, do you think my friend Ferguson and I won't have our ears to the ground?" Now the Hon. Howard Ferguson declares that "The Temperance act is here to stay without varying one jot or tittle until the war ends." Even a kaleidoscope could hardly make a more rapid or startling change.

The day after the Southwest Toronto election The Toronto News said: "There is nothing in North Perth or Southwest Toronto to suggest that Ontario is ready for a general measure of prohibition. As the emotion over the war subsides the feeling for prohibition will be still less active." All through that campaign The News wobbled badly, with a distinct slant against prohibition. Now, only two months later, The News says: "Clearly North Perth and Southwest Toronto, which so strikingly condemned the prohibitory measure, did not express the feeling which now prevails throughout the province." "Whether wisely or unwisely," continues The News, "Mr. Hearst recognized the temper of the province, saw that a new spirit was in the people and was strong enough and resolute enough to give effect to the public temper in legislation."

The whole provincial situation on the government side has been insuch a whirl during the last two or three months that it makes one dizzy to look at it. At one moment members of the government are strong for Prohibition, the next week they are hinting at wine-and-beer licenses. Then Mr. Hearst is to go on the bench and Sir Adam Beck to go to the premiership. Now Prohibition seems to be in favour again and Mr. Hearst is slated to stay where he is. The quarreling and bickering in the Conservative ward associations add to the confusion. There is no indication that the whirl has stopped and it will be interesting to watch what the next turn of the wheel will be.

The once solid and steady Conservative party in Ontario, strong in its organization and supremely sure of itself, is now as steady and firm as a rickety, wobbly merry-go-round — without the merry! — Brantford Expositor.

Decline of Spiritual Life in the Churches

Peterborough, Nov. 4, 1916.

Dear Editor,—A new actor appears on the scene, in the person of the Rev. John Wesley, who took the place of Mr. Whitefield, who returned to Georgia to look after the interests of his orphanage. I cannot write Mr. Wesley's biography in a letter. This is not my purpose. My object is to try to show the state of religion in his time. John Wesley was admirably fitted for the work he undertook. After many years of painful labour and exercise of mind he had obtained clear and distinct views of the gospel. He had long been inured to fatigue and hardship, qualities necessary for a field preacher, so-called. Mr. Wesley says, 'I have seen the abundant reason to adore the wise providence of God herein in making a way for myriads of people who never troubled any church or were likely to do so to hear that word which they soon found to be the power of God unto salvation.' He continued his labours in London, Bristol and other places with wonderful success. Thousands were under deep conviction and large numbers were converted. His services were accompanied with great power, many falling down under a deep sense of their sins. Religion and even morals were at a very low ebb, vice and drunkenness were predominant. Mr. Wesley went through some awful scenes. The evil one seemed to have let loose his legions, and the preachers of the gospel were abused in every possible way by wild, unruly mobs, often hardly escaping with their lives, suffering all manner of hardship similar to what the apostles suffered. They were arrested, imprisoned, beaten and ordered to leave the city. They went on boldly preaching the word, and the power of God was manifest with them, saving them and delivering them. They were mighty men of faith. God wrought wonders by them, as he did with the apostles of old. Societies were now formed to teach and instruct those who professed conversion, leaders were appointed and the work increased and made wonderful progress. The labourers were few, but believing that they were engaged in the cause of God against ignorance and profanity, which overspread the land, they were indefatigable, scarcely giving themselves any rest day or night. He paid a visit to Wales. Of vital religion the people knew little or nothing about it. He came back to London Sunday, Nov. 11th. He preached to five or six thousand on the spirit of bondage and the spirit of adoption, and in the evening to seven or eight thousand in the place that had been the king's foundry for cannon. He says that the scene is now changed in Kingswood amongst the colliers. One year since this was a place of drunkenness and uncleanliness. It is no longer ful lof wars and fightings, clamour and bitterness of wrath and envy. Peace and love are there, which excited wonder and admiration, but trouble about minor parts of doctrine spring up and disputes and controversy over none essential forms of worship which spread and ultimately divided their ranks. Each held to their own opinions and to their own way, and the cause of God had to suffer while men and women were dying without God and without hope. In 1840 two eminent Christian ministers could not sit at the Lord's table together. When one of them came to partake of the sacred emblems he raised his eyes to heaven and said, 'Oh to be above (meaning heaven), where there are no misunderstandings.' The other said, It is hard when saints take pleasure in the sufferings of saints.' They disagreed on some point of doctrine. Paul the apostle, in recounting his trials, speaks of scourgings imprisonment, stoning, perils of the sea perils in the desert and other hardships and false brethren last and worst but even there God can use them for his glory, who cannot just see eye to eye, but who are striving to serve God in the way that they believe to be best. This is the last letter that I have written. I have avoided denominations, sectarianism or harsh and unkind words. It is a bad cause that needs unkind or harsh words to bolster up an argument. Many a kind word spoken in a loving way has turned an enemy into a true friend. A few tears dropped over Lazarus' grave brought out those words from those hard-hearted Jews, "Behold how he loved him." It has been a great pleasure to me and an inspiration to write these letters. I have to thank many friends for their kind words of encouragement and will try in my next and final letter on this subject to point out a few of the many reasons as I see it of the decline of spiritual power in the church, in the home and in society. I am sure if we would all set up to our knowledge of the truth, we could soon bring in a better state than there is at the presen time. In the midst of this wide-world trouble when men's hearts are failing them and they do not know which way to look, there is a Divine hand held out to all who are in trouble, and only by our own experience of trouble are we able to help others. Jesus was touched with a fellow feeling for our infirmities. I have to omit the particulars of a long and devoted life in the service of God and his fellow creatures, unselfish, giving all of his income to the service of God except what was necessary to supply his personal needs, and giving his time and talents to save the outcasts and poverty-stricken persons wherever he went, and ministering to their temporal needs. At last he fell sick, and after languishing a few days he at length finished his course and his life, together in the full assurance of the blessed hope, March 2 A.D. 1791, in the eighty-eighth year of his life. The memory of the just shall never perish. We know that the labourer going forth sowing precious seed shall come rejoicing bringing in the sheaves.

Yours sincerely,

James Sutherland.

ATTACKED THE SHIRKERS.

Hamilton Police Magistrate Lectures Young Men in Court.

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 4.—Police Magistrate Jelfs has placed the ban on shirkers. At court yesterday morning he glanced over the crowd of young men on the back benches and made this announcement:

"There appears to be number of stawary young men here this morning who look like they might easily be in khaki. They should be doing their duty for their country and not loafing here. They are shirkers and hereafter will be kept out of court unless subpoened as witnesses."

METHODISTS BOOM RECRUITING.

Deputation See Premier and Mr. Rowell To-day.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.— A deputation representing the army and navy board of the Methodist church, consisting of Rev. T. Albert Moore, Rev. John W. Aikens, and Capt. Oliver Hezlewood, waited upon Premier Hearst to-day, and invited him to participate in a big movement in aid of recruiting, to be inaugurated in behalf of the Methodist church in Canada, at a meeting in Metropolitan church Thursday evening next. Later the deputation waited upon N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, and asked his co-operation.

GETS BACK HIS VOICE.

Cobourg, November 3.—Pte. Bell, who was brought to the Cobourg Sanitarium about a month ago suffering from shell shock, received in France, and who has lost both his voice and his hearing, has had a remarkable recovery. Last Thursday night when he was asleep, he fell out of bed, and as shouted "Whoa!" Naturally the other patients in the ward were amazed, but on the doctor being called it was found that Bell had got back the use of his voice. He speaks scarcely above a whisper, but the medical men say that he will regain the full use of his voice. The authorities had been teaching him the deaf and dumb alphabet, and his wife had been teaching herself, but today both she and her uncle [illegible] were pleased that "Daddy" is on the road to recovery.

Has Secured a Large Order For Shells

Rumour has it that Mr. E. R. Wilson, manager of the Peterborough Machine Company, has secured the premises of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company for the extension of his munition plant. To-day Mr. Wilson stated that there was no truth in the rumour and that his present activities will be confined to the premises at present occupied by the firm on George street. Mr. Wilson, like a number of other local manufacturing establishments, has secured another large order for the manufacture of shells. This necessitates the employment of a large number of men together with the necessary equipment.

DESPERADO SMITH DRAWS YEAR TERM

BRANTFORD, Nov. 6.—One year in Central Prison was the sentence imposed on William Smith, desperado and jail-breaker, by Judge Hardy. He was sentenced on all charges, three months for stealing a bicycle, nine months for assault and jail-breaking. Smith asked for a chance to enlist, but this was refused. His counsel will likely make application to the minister of justice to have him released and sent directly to the trenches to be attached to one of the battalions there.

W. S. MIDDLEBORO WILL PROSECUTE

LINDSAY, Nov. 6. — The trial of Mrs. Davis, who is charged with having shot Fred Spenceley of Kinmount in the knee, from the effects of which he died will take place at the assizes on Nov. 14th. Mr. Justice Latchford will be the presiding judge, and W. S. Middleboro, M.P., of Owen Sound, will be Crown Prosecutor, while Mr. I. E. Weldon will defend the accused.

An attire dress of the new ring-spotted tulle which, to the uninitiated, looks just like point d-esprit, is in reality embroidered thickly with tiny pearl beads on a square mesh net.

CANADA NEEDS MORE POULTRY AND GREAT BRITAIN MORE EGGS

At no time in the history of the Dominion has the necessity for increased production of eggs and poultry been more apparent than at the present time. The demand is unprecedented. This is true whether for export or for home consumption. Consumers generally and even producers themselves are eating more and more eggs. The average per capita consumption of eggs in Canada this year will be greater than ever before.

The market for Canadian eggs and poultry is very firm. Prices to producers are extremely high, but even at these prices trade is increasingly active all over the country. The prospects for a continued demand are very bright. The country is facing a shortage, not only of current receipts, but of Canadian storage stocks as well. So great has been the export demand that we shall be obliged to import to meet our own requirements. Increased production has never rested upon a more secure foundation.

That poultry on the farm are profitable needs no argument. Eggs now rank as a staple article in the products of the farm. Poultry flocks can be increased materially without much additional outlay for buildings and equipment, and the increased labour involved is not such as will bear heavily upon the time of those charged with the care of the stock. Some object to the present price of feed, but when it is considered that the selling price of the product is from forty to sixty per cent. higher than it was two years ago, the margin of profit is such as will compare favourably with that obtainable elsewhere on the farm.

Heavy Shipments.

Canadian egg products have responded well to the call for increased production. The country as a whole which was importing eggs a few years ago has, in the aggregate, produced more than sufficient for its own requirements this year and last. Between seven and eight million dozen Canadian eggs were exported to Great Britain last year, and as an indication of what is going forward this year, nearly one million dozen were shipped during the first week of October. Yet the supply on the British market is still short, and there is a demand for many millions more. Increased production, more and better poultry, should be the motto of every Canadian farm and homestead.

Should Produce More.

Canada has all the requisites for the production of a quantity far in excess of her own requirements, and with her favourable climatic conditions can, with proper care and attention, produce quality equal to the best in the world. Only the fringe of production possibilities has been touched up to the present. The Western Provinces, with their volumes of cheap feed, are the natural home for the Canadian hen. The bulk of the surplus at the present time comes from the provinces of Ontario and Prince Edward Island. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Quebec do not produce sufficient for their own requirements. They must do more; and there is now an opportunity for the Western Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta to demonstrate to Canada and the Empire as a whole what they can do in this connection in this great hour of trade expansion. The first experimental shipments of eggs from Winnipeg to the British market are either now, or soon will be, on their way, and it is hoped that the increase in production in the Western Provinces in the ensuing year will be such as to warrant the opening up of a big trade in this direction.

Eggs are scarce in Canada at the present time. Current prices are high, and a sharp decline immediately following the conclusion of the war is not anticipated. When prices advance gradually, as has been the case in staple food products, they decline slowly. It will take some years to re-establish the normal meat supply upon the markets of the world, and while prices of meats are high, people will continue to use increasingly large quantities of eggs. This condition will naturally be reflected in the matter of price. This is the situation. Readers may draw their own conclusions.

DIET AND THE TEETH.

Points for Parents in the Selection of Food for Children.

The necessity of selecting a diet that will influence the development and health of the teeth is emphasized in an article by Dr. Jay I. Durand in The Journal of the American Medical Association, of which the New York Medical Journal prints this summary:

"Jay I Durand points out that there is a steadily increasing tendency of the teeth of civilized races to decay, which has been proved by extensive comparative observations. At the present time caries is to be found in from 90 to 95 per cent. of the school children, and is common even in very young children. That diet has much to do with this prevalence of caries is shown by comparative studies of children fed in different ways for the first six months of life.

"Those fed exclusively at the breast showed caries in about 40 per cent., fed upon cow's milk mixture in about the same proportion; while those fed on sweetened condensed milk showed caries in about 70 per cent. These facts show the importance of a properly balanced diet during infancy if the teeth are to be preserved. Such a diet should be a properly modified cow's milk with the early addition of vegetables, fruits, and meat if the infant cannot be nursed by the mother. The vegetables, fruits, and meats may be started as early as the sixth month if properly prepared and controlled.

"The next important point comes in providing a diet for the early years of life which will teach the proper function of the jaws and develop them. Children should be given strips of tough meat, from which to extract the juice by chewing, and such foods as bacon rind, tough crusts, hard dry bread, apples, celery, lettuce, etc., should be included in the dietary to develop the jaws and teeth. Later the prevention of decay should be practiced by the institution of proper sequence in the dietary.

"The last article in each meal should be one which will not leave a sticky carbohydrate residue to cause decay. Such a residue cannot be removed by the tooth brush. The meal should end with meat green salad, celery, radish, apple, orange, or fibrous food in general. Acid fruits are ideal for the close of a meal, as they provoke the secretion of a highly alkaline saliva with high ptyalin content."

ROLL OF HONOR

Several thousand officers and employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company enlisted for active military duty with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, and the majority of them are now in Europe, bravely battling for Canada and the Empire. As particulars of Army Reservists are not available, these lists of those who have given up their lives for their country or been wounded in action are necessarily incomplete, and do not therefore indicate fully the extent to which the Company's officers and employees have participated in the great struggle.

CAPTAIN IS ARRESTED.

WINDSOR Nov 3.—Capt William Hagerman, thirty-five years old, of a Canadian forestry battalion, is under arrest here charged with leaving a board bill unpaid at a local hotel. He was apprehended at London and brought back to Windsor this morning by Detective-Sergt. Broderick.

Capt. Hagerman had been in Windsor recruiting for his battalion. His home is at Markham, York county.

Letter 4,116 Years Old Opened With Mallet

New York, October 31.—A despatch from Philadelphia to the Times says:

A letter written 2,200 years before Christ and never delivered has just been opened and read here.

Dr. Stephen Langdon, formerly of Oxford University, just appointed Curator of the Babylonian section of the University Museum, opened the letter with a mallet, for it was sealed in a clay envelope, and written in archaic Sumerian. Translated with great difficulty, the letter proved to be a haughty order from the writer as a subordinate concerning a deal in flour.

Dr. Langdon is one of the few very great Sumerian scholars in the world. His appointment was the result of the war, which so lessened the number of students at Oxford as to eliminate his classes.

Text books used at the great college at the Temple of Nippur many many thousands of years ago, have recently been placed on exhibition at the museum. Dr. Langdon has just finished translating them.

Among the volumes is an interesting botanical treatise on the cultivation of the date palm. There are also law books written in Sumerian and in Babylonian, a legal lexicon.

Dr. Langdon will make a catalogue of Sumerian and Babylonian tablets in the museum.

LIFE AT THE FRONT AS THE BOYS WHO MAN THE GUNS SEE IT

Interesting Letter From Bombardier Hunter Lewis Who Tells of Some of the Scenes on the Somme Front For Miles Ground is Pitted With Shell Holes

Mrs. A. R. Campbell of Pontypool, recently received the following interesting letter from her grandson, Bombardier Hunter Lewis, of the 53rd Battery, son of Rev. J. G. Lewis of Pontypool, formerly of Peterborough:

France, Wed., Oct. 11, 1916

Dear Grandma,—It is quite a while since I've been able to send a letter home, for we have done considerable moving, and on the road, no matter how much we write there is no chance of getting rid of our letters until we reach our destination. It also works the other way, for we are unable to receive any mail when we are moving. I guess I'll be able to tell you that we have moved and that we are nowhere near our old positions, neither of them. There it is now. Here's hoping the censor doesn't disapprove.

We had along route march, and on it we slept in barns, garrets, and best of all, "Sky Palace." That, however, wasn't best of all most nights, for there was an awful lot of rain. I can tell you my high boots came just in time, for I was often almost up to my knees in mud. They are grand. I'd have been soaked time and again had it not been for them. As it was, though, my feet were always dry no matter how wet the rest of me was.

By the way, while I'm speaking of the boots, I came near having them spoiled yesterday, for a splinter (piece of shell) fell just an inch from them, which, needless to say, would have been unnecessary extravagance in war time.

Guess I haven't told you I am Orderly N.C.O. no longer, but am back in the game. Just now the shells are more than popping over both ways—so for me, I'm seated quite quite comfortably on a pile of shells in the pit, with my feet propped up on the wall, waiting for a "stand to" at any minute, but that's all in the day's work, and I'm mighty glad to get back I can tell you. Though it was harder and easy. I hate that kid's job I was on. The pits we have here are the horse affairs, not calculated to stop much more than a light hail storm, but I don't imagine we'll be here long.

No doubt you have heard of those wonderful British tanks. Well, I've seen them and they certainly are funny looking things. Thats not a very definite description I know, but it's about as much as I can tell you I guess. But they aren't the only wonderful things I'm seeing these days. If you could only see the shells that some of our big guns are shooting across to Fritz, I know you'd be surprised. But then the Huns can send their brothers for a' that, though not that he is short, for I'm sure he can't send any more than he's sending.

Sunday, Oct 15.—It is several days since I commenced this letter, but I've been so busy that I've had positively no chance to complete it. In fact I haven't even had time to sleep, and just now I'm almost too tired to write. However, I know that if you don't get word from me you'll worry, so I'm trying to finish this letter on.

Last Wednesday evening at about seven o'clock Stan and I were detailed to go up to a certain observation post to act as brigade look-out. To begin with we hadn't the slightest idea where the place was, for we had only been here a day and a night. We set out under the impression that it was very near, but what was going to be our home for 24 hours and what was supposed to be able to give us directions when we parted.

He led us through a regular maze of tracks, over, through and around shell-holes, along and across trenches, and, well it's hard to say exactly where we did go, for it was dark, but even the dark couldn't hide some of the gruesome sights that glared on us from all sides. Until we reached our present position I can truthfully say we didn't know what real war was. I think we do now, though. For miles in all directions the ground is pitted with shell holes almost as numerous as the pebbles on the beach, and cut and lined with trenches that have seen some awful sights. The ground is littered with clothing, equipment and deserted material of all kinds. Bottles, British and German, for the ground we are now on was, not long since, held by the hated Hun.

After we left our guide, who really had but slight idea of the position of our destination, we had considerable difficulty in reaching it, and wandered much closer to the front line than we knew at the time. We didn't like our trip very much, searching for a place of whose location we had no idea, and amongst sights not inclined to strengthen one's nerves, and (I don't believe Fritzy likes what I'm saying, for sixteen beauties just popped around this pit, missing it about as nearly as it's posible to do).

When at last we found our place, at about ten, we were told that we were to sit in a trench (second line), and watch our front for signals, from 12 to 6 a.m. In the meantime we crawled into a little excavation in the trench and tried to sleep, but what's the use. There is the most infernal din going on all the time; guns banging and shells screeching through the air, and it never stops, night or day. Besides that, our little dug-out was just quivering with the shells lighting around and the Boche seemed bound to knock it in. He only succeeded in burying our feet in about two inches of clay, though.

But, oh, that look-out — preserve me—for six hours. Stan and I practiced starts for the "Hundred," getting our take-off from the top of the trench and ending, squatting as low as we could get on the bottom. We fooled him though, for, although he shelled us steadily he didn't get us. I have a nice lump running around my head though, when he caved the top of a trench. We were squatting behind, down on us and jammed my Tin Lizzie (steel helmet) down over my eyes. Nevertheless, I had a very pleasant surprise after every shell, when I shook off the mud and found I had not received a "Blighty."

Of course we got no sleep that night, and the next we had two hard 'Stand Too's,' while last night I was firing steadily from one until six, and got no sleep before that because of the noise and the vibrations of the earth. You can see, maybe, why I'm tired, for we work all day, firing, carrying ammunition, and a hundred and one jobs that have to be done. To-night I expect I'll be on guard for six hours of the twelve. Oh, it's a great war.

If souvenirs were of any use I could load seven ships, but we can't send them home, nor have we any means of carrying them around, so I guess they're safe. I pulled a few buttons off German uniforms, but that's all, while there are hundreds of bayonets, rifles, ammunition, uniforms and almost everything that is connected with an army.

I'm afraid Grandma that you have a different idea of the reason that I enlisted to what I have. You say that you think army life doesn't look as attractive to me now as it once did. Let me tell you it never looked attractive to me. I didn't enlist because I wanted to, but because I had to. What else could I have done? And I have never been sorry, although the war can end just as soon as it likes, and I'll be happy.

Please don't worry if I ever miss writing. Just put it down to the fact that I'm very busy, for we don't have much time here.

Aside from being rather tired and sleepy, I am feeling fine, and have every prospect of continuing so.

Lots of love to every one.

Lovingly,

Hunter.

Lakefield Council Decide to Make an Appointment—$1000 For The British Red Cross Fund

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 4.—Messrs. Levi and Paul Payne are spending a two weeks' shooting expedition at Stony Lake.

Miss Edna Braden has returned to the village after visiting friends in Norwood, Hastings and Campbellford.

Signaller Percy Johnson of the Divisional Signal Company, Ottawa, is spending a few days leave at his home in Smith.

A number of local citizens have left for various hunting grounds with the prospect of securing some deer. The following are camped in the Parry Sound district—Messrs. P. Spence, Paul Payne, W. Nugent, W. Hamblin, R. H. Little, J. H. Payne, Albert Darling of Lakefield and Messrs. E. Hamblin, Cephas Payne, Nathan Payne and John Payne. The Big Cedar Lake party consists of Messrs. S. J. Charlton, D. H. Charlton, W. Bickwell, B. Q. Dench and W. W. Leonard.

A number of workmen are engaged in making extensive repairs to the government dam here. A new plank floor is being laid in the county bridge also.

A special meeting of the Village Council was held on Thursday evening, November 2, Councillors W. Madill, A. E. Kennedy and J. Hull were present with the Reeve in the chair.

Moved by Councillor Kennedy, seconded by Councillor Madill that the Council grant the sum of one thousand dollars to the British Red Cross Fund. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Kennedy, seconded by Councillor Madill that an officer be appointed to enforce the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act within the Corporation of the village of Lakefield.

Moved by Councillor Madill, seconded by Councillor Kennedy that a by-law to authorize the Reeve and Treasurer of the Corporation of the village of Lakefield to borrow the sum of one thousand dollars to be used as a donation to the British Red Cross Funds. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

Miss M. Northey of Peterborough spent the week end at the home in the village.

IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD IN TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH

Heroic Death of Lance-Corp. Horace Stanley of Canadian Mounted Rifles is Commemorated—Touching Addresses by Rev. J. P. Wilson and Judge Huycke.

HIGH TRIBUTES PAID

The Trinity Methodist Church was crowded last evening at the memorial service in honour and in memory of the late Lance-Corp. Horace Stanley, Canadian Mounted Rifles, who gave his life on the battlefield a short time ago. The pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson, and His Honour Judge Huycke delivered addresses, both speaking in high terms and with great earnestness of the life and the death of the late Horace Stanley, and of his brother Fred, who, it is feared, has also laid down his life at the front, having been missing since June 2nd. Judge Huycke, in the course of his observations, made an appeal for "men and still more men," that struck deep to the heart of every loyal person present.

Rev. Mr. Wilson, in opening, paid a high tribute to soldiers in the present war, as soldiers. He had a profound respect and admiration—almost adoration—for the men of the King's uniform as he saw them walking the streets of this and other cities. Among those of Canada's fighters who had fallen in action was Horace Stanley, of this city and of Trinity Church. Horace Stanley was born in London, England, in the latter months of the year 1896, and had he lived a few months longer would have reached his twentieth year. He was a splendid type of soldier, and all who saw his photograph in one of the local newspapers could not help discerning in his face the work of real true manhood. Seven or eight years ago, under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Henderson, he had joined the church, and before that he had been a member of the Sunday School class of Mrs. Wright. One characteristic of the deceased soldier was that he felt and showed always a marked reverence for sacred places, sacred things and sacred occasions. This, said the pastor, was one of the greatest signs of goodness in a young man. As a member of the Sunday School, he had always been a splendid pupil. Then, when the war came, at almost to the first call to the colours, he had joined them. Now he had given his life for his country, and greater love hath no man than this,—that he give his life for his friend and his country. No man could ever come to true greatness unless he feels that his life belongs to the race. Just such a noble spirit characterized those who gave their lives for their country. What do we call a hero? Is there a column standing to-day in the memory of anyone who did not give up his life for others? And how many men there are go to work every morning tired and weary, saying, "Our children shall never toil and struggle as we have. They shall have a better education and a better life." And the mother and father, toiling day in and day out, do provide a better home, a better education for their children than they ever had.

It is not necessary for a man to lay down his life, to give the uttermost of himself to his country. But he must be willing to give up his life. Two men enter a charge towards the German trenches, and the ground they traverse is literally swept with shot and shell. One man falls — the other escapes unscathed, but both men have laid down their lives on the altar of their country. That is what men had been doing for centuries. Moses laid down his life, and Israel reaped the enduring reward. St. Paul gave his life, and for twenty centuries the world has been enjoying the benefit of that one life. So it was with the missionaries who gave their lives in the foreign fields in his Master's service, and so it had been with Englishmen, great and small, and statesmen of other countries, in the past years.

If one word expressed the aim for which Great Britain and her Empire had struggled, and would struggle, it was liberty. The story of English statesmen is the story of a fight for liberty. The liberty and civilization of the world was now at stake, and, thank God, we have still men to defend it. This war was not a question of guns, or horses, or men,—it was a question of civilization or barbarism, of freedom or selfdom. The destruction of the Belgian people was only a sample of what would come to England and France, and Spain and Italy, if the Maine had been lost. And, just as mankind, nineteen hundred years ago, was saved by the greatest crime in history, so too the sacrifice of Belgium would go up to Heaven.

Surely, pleaded the pastor, what Horace Stanley and his brother Fred had given their lives for, and the country which their brother Albert was still fighting for, was worth living for? And he exhorted all at home to defend Canada from the enemies inside her borders, just as she was being manfully defended outside.

In closing, Mr. Wilson, in beautiful, touching, comforting phrases expressed the sympathy of the congregation, and of their pastor, and of this community to the bereaved parents, whose hearts, aching from the loss of two of their brave sons, were also throbbing with anxiety for the safety of a third son, now on duty somewhere in France.

Judge Huycke.

His Honour Judge Huycke confessed that it was with considerable trepidation that he entered the pulpit to speak, even at such a memorable service as this. He had a respect for the pulpit, which at times was almost too great for his own peace of mind, but when Mr. Wilson had told him that it was the wish of his valued friend, and father of Horace and Fred Stanley, then he at once and gladly accepted the invitation. He was glad to pay a tribute and do honour to the boys that had gone—to do honour to them and to the great loyal hearts of the father and family who had given them, not cheerfully perhaps, but still willingly. To those hearts, almost breaking with anxiety for the safety of a third son, he expressed and extended the warmest sympathy.

Horace Stanley had not thought his life dear to himself, that he should defend those great principles of all life that we have been taught to consider dearer than life. He was the style of man who would lay down the life his mother gave him for what she had taught him—but it was for us to see that he did not give up his life in vain. We must send men to pick up and push forward the standard that men like these have been forced to lay down.

We sometimes wonder what the sequel of this war would be. In this regard Judge Huycke drew two pictures—one of the ball-room of Canada and the other of the trenches at the front. In one we find bright, well set-up youths, arrayed in evening clothes, who have remained behind, and hold their ladies' hands in the dusk. In the other we find men, equally well set-up, equally good looking, but their attire is khaki, and it is mud-stained and battle scarred. Could it be possible that the future would deal equally by these two sets of young men? Surely it could not be that those who stay at home will receive the same honour and love and affection as those who go to the fight.

In his appeal to men, the speaker did not exclude the pulpit. He paid a glowing tribute to the many ministers of Methodism, and of other denominations, who have gone to the front. But if a pastor of military age and fitness, with no reason for going to the front, ever took charge of the church in which he worshipped, he would question that minister's manhood, doubt his Christianity, and despise his ministry.

His Honour asked that the women of the country (whom he knew had done even more than the men) do everything in their power to send other men to take the places of fallen heroes like Horace and Fred Stanley.

The music by the choir and the hymns sung by the congregation were appropriate to the occasion.

Collingwood Man Accused; Sending Money to Austria

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—A sensation was sprung in the civil assizes when Emmanuel Topp, defendant in a case, was arrested on a charge of aiding the enemies by sending $185 and $200 to Austria. This came out in the case in which Topp was a principal. His former stenographer, Mildred Fox, who was given judgment against him for $1,000, which she was induced to surrender to him, in her evidence stated that Topp sent $500 to her in St. Louis, of which the stated amounts were wired to Austria.

Whereupon Mr. Justice Latchford at once ordered the crown officials to make an investigation. Detective Maurer took the man over to the detective department and later Topp was placed under arrest.

Both Topp and the plaintiff come from Collingwood.

New York is Mecca of Hockey Players

Gotham Teams Expect to Have Services of Some New Arrivals.

New York, Oct. 31. — The annual meeting of the American Amateur Hockey League will be held in this city next Thursday. Delegates from all the hockey clubs represented in the organization will be present. George G. Hallock of the Crescent Athletic Club, President of the league, will preside. New officers will be chosen to serve one year, and the winter's playing schedule will be outlined.

The outlook for hockey this season appears promising, as all the clubs are exhibiting unusual interest in the sport. Many new players have come to New York from other cities, and these should serve to strengthen the clubs. Thus a high grade of hockey is expected in the coming contests.

Uses a Bible Torn By Bullet

London, Oct. 31.—Dean Starr of Ontario preached in Canterbury Cathedral a memorial service for the Buffs, parent regiment to the Queen's Own, Toronto. When here in the early part of the war he commanded the Buffs as a compliment for one week. His second in command was Major Bernard Furley, who has since been killed. Dean Starr during the cathedral service read Major Furley's Bible, with the pages torn by the bullet which killed him.

CANADIANS ARE ONCE MORE CALLED FINEST FIGHTERS

NATION NOW UNDERSTANDS WHAT WE HAVE DONE TO HELP WIN

PARIS, Oct. 6.—A significant result of the events of the last few months has been the change in the French appreciation of their Allies. The early part of the year, when the fierce attacks on Verdun were at their height, one heard many of the people who talk more than they reflect say ing: "But what are the British doing. Why do they not make a counter attack to draw off part of the German forces if they do not wish to come and help us?"

Mr. Bonar Law's statement in the French Press that the British were only too keen to help their French comrades at Verdun if Gen. Joffre, whose decision they were bound to obey, had not decided otherwise, put this matter right. The subsequent British successes on the Somme have not only changed the French public opinion as to the efficacy of the help given by their Allies, but with a curious sort of retrospective reasoning they are grasping the greatness of Britain's achievement in turning herself from a non-military into a military nation, without in any way weakening her naval power, in the short space of two years. Almost every day now one hears the most charming expression of French pleasure in what we are doing.

PRAISE FOR CANADIANS.

Of our own Canadian troops the opinion seems unanimous. A Canadian nurse in one of the French hospitals in Paris told me recently that a wounded officer, who has had an unique opportunity both before and since the war for studying the British character had said to her that the Canadians were the best fighting material that Great Britain possessed. He gave as a reason that the self-reliance and rapid grasp of the situation shown by the Canadians of all ranks made them capable of handling any difficulty that came their way in a manner not possible to men more lacking in initiative.

The French press has not been slow to reflect this statement. Joseph Reinach, "Polybe," has never ceased to express in the Figaro his realization of Britain's efforts. Hugues Le Roux in two brilliant articles in the Matin describing his visit to the British front speaks in glowing terms of the evolution of the British Army, and the Petit Journal, one of the French papers with an enormous circulation, has just made the following admission: "Let no Frenchman deceive himself on this matter. Events have proved that if this trouble had been localized between France and Russia on the one hand and Germany and her Allies on the other, a German victory would have b thev(x;5:2tanishrdl diedjl' have been the consequence. It is useless to cherish phantasms. The facts are there. Without Great Britain our ports were practically at the mercy of the enemy, our overseas communications practically cut off. Germany had made no mistake on that point and if she now hates the British, it is because she sees in them the principal cause of her approaching downfall. She declared war only because she counted upon the non-participation of Great Britain."

Old Iron In Box Supposed To Hold Imported Port Wine

Express Companies at St. Thomas Want Prompt Scrutiny Made.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 6.—The express companies are having "troubles of their own" in connection with the handling of liquor parcels under the new prohibition act. The agents are receiving many complaints. One lady recently desired to put in a claim, stating that a case of whisky which was delivered to her residence was short a quantity of liquor. All the bottles had been opened, and a good-sized "snort" taken from each.

A well-known citizen entertained a number of his gentlemen friends to a "stag party" a few nights back, and had anticipated the occasion by ordering from a point out of the province a quantity of port wine. During the evening he invited the boys up to the den for refreshments, and upon opening the box, which he presumed contained two dozen bottles, found a huge chunk of old iron.

Still another funny incident occurred a week or so ago. A case of whisky was stolen from one of the express waggons while delivery was being made. The express people are now trying to compel recipients of such shipments to open them before the driver leaves, or at the time of delivery.

What is Proper Boning?

THOUGH FLEXIBLE and comfortable, the season's Corset models are sufficiently boned to hygienically support the figure. The boning of each individual Corset, however, depends entirely upon the particular requirements of the definite figure for which the corset is designed, as it goes without saying that the slender, the medium and the well developedtypes each call for a different amount and a different kind of figure support.

Be assured that there is a Corset model, individually boned for you—a model which will give you the proper support—a model which, at the same time, will afford you grace and comfort. Prices range

DEDICATION FESTIVAL BEGINS AT ST. JOHN'S

Anniversary of the Restoration of Peterborough's Historic Church is Observed—History of the Dedication is Given by Canon Cornish.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS

The annual Dedication Festival was commenced in St. John's Church yesterday. Rev. Canon Cornish delivered two forceful sermons to large congregations. In the morning he dealt more particularly with the communion in relation to the Christian religion, and in the evening he referred more directly to the Dedication. Both discourses were listened to with marked attention and seemed to have a distinct effect on the congregation assembled.

In the morning the text was: "I let them build me a sanctuary that I may dwell among them." And God's presence in the church was brought out more fully when Christ instituted the Sacrament of Holy Communion. He had taught us to realize that He vouchsafed His presence particularly in that service. It was useless, said the speaker, for us to go to Church unless we have the idea of His presence uppermost in our mind, and kept constantly before us the fact that we go to Church to meet God. For we had His promise that wherever two or three gathered together in His name, He was present. Unless we attended Church with that in mind, for worship and instruction, we were losing the glorious opportunities that are afforded to us.

There never was a time when He did not dwell among His people. Here we are, living in a world who say Christ, the Son of the living God; and day by day we were treading the same earth as those glorious Apostles of olden times to whom Christ had said: "This is my body; this is my blood. This do in remembrance of Me."

Here Canon Cornish made a strong appeal for a great faith in Christianity and all its principles, and beliefs. He urged that Christians had many reasons to trust in their Saviour. The Church had surely not for 1900 years been doing something, in serving Christ, in which there was no reason. "I again appeal to you," he said, "to have faith and let Christ, with His Holy Spirit, come into your hearts. And let us not suffer the same condemnation as the Jesus who received the light, and yet who saw it not. He came unto His own people and they received Him not. There were some who said "if we could only see Christ," and who expressed dissatisfaction at not being permitted to get inspiration from actual contact with Him on this earth. But they had the Word of God, written by inspired writers, some of whom were from the school of the Master, Himself, and in His Word was contained all the imagination necessary for a true disciple of Jesus.

He called upon the congregation to have a great reverence for the House of God, and Christian places, and to have always a vision before them of the Master Himself. If there was one thing lacking in the world to-day it was that, and the sooner this was realized by all the better it would be for the world. For if we spiritually cannot see the union of Christ, then our religion would become barren, and it could not bring forth fruit. Those who attended Church in the right spirit would find themselves feeling that "Surely the Lord is in this place."

Evening Service.

In the evening the Rector went into the whole history of the Dedication of the Church. He dwelt at considerable length and emphasized the fact that our Lord had sanctioned this festival by His presence. It was not so much the building of the temple, but its restoration and its service at a later date, that the services commemorated. And the service was one of the most ancient, having been since the early times of the Christian Church right down to the present day. The speaker enlarged upon the idea of the effect and influence of a church building in any centre. The mere presence of a church itself was a power for good. It was not only a place of worship, a sanctuary and refuge for those who wished to take advantage of its open doors, but even to those who did not attend the Church of God, it stood as a monument to make them think of the most precious things of this life and of eternity. Those who believed in prayer realised that the countless prayers that had been offered up in the churches of the land, generation after generation, have exercised a great influence on the character of the life of the community and the people.

The more people realised that the Church was God's house, the wider their spiritual vision would become, until finally they could say from their hearts, like the patriarch, Jacob: "This is none other than the House of God, and this is the Gate of Heaven."

Canon Cornish brought home to the congregation that in the East, where we have our Churches so firmly established, they were taken too much as a matter of course, and the privilege of worshipping in finely appointed edifices was not appreciated to the extent that it should be. In contrast to the beautiful churches, as they exist in Eastern Canada, he referred to the struggle of the Church in the West. There the minister was forced to hold his religious meetings in private homes, or in schoolhouses, or in whatever building was available. No organ or choir assisted in these primitive but earnest services. Partly owing to the fact that there were none of the worldly distractions of the city, people drove ten or twelve miles, or even more, to service. Then the congregation gradually gained in strength and numbers, and after much sacrifice and struggle, erect their small churches. These were made possible by the generous help of the faithful of the old land, and in Eastern Canada. We should appreciate our great privileges along this line, treat the House of God with a reverence worthy of those who entered it to meet and worship Christ.

ROSEBERY DENOUNCES INCONCLUSIVE PEACE AS MENACE TO WHOLE WORLD

LONDON, Nov. 6.—"In some responsible quarters," said Lord Rosebery in a speech at Edinburgh last night, "I hear some babble of immediate peace."

Lord Rosebery's reference was presumed to refer to rumors which had been current in London recently of a move in favor of the consideration of proposals which, according to reports emanating from Germany, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg intended making public in the Reichstag.

The German Chancellor's expected statement has been foreshadowed as an appeal to reason and humanity on the ground that prolongation of the war could not materially alter the military position and would only increase useless carnage.

In England, according to the rumors to which Lord Rosebery referred, there is a tendency to look only at the present results and forget the primal reasons for which Great Britain went to war, reasons which Lord Grey emphasized in his recent speech to the foreign press.

PEACE NOW IMPOSSIBLE.

Lord Rosebery vehemently denounced "any sort of 'as you were' peace which would enable the Prussians to remain much as they are, ready and prepared with the experience they had gained and with resources not much impaired, to begin again at the earliest opportunity their fiendish antagonism against civilisation."

"It is really supposed," he asked "that we have shed our dearest blood by hundreds of thousands, that we have been paying over £5,000,000 a day and shall continue to do so as long as it is necessary in order to leave Prussia the devilish power she has been in the past?

"Why, I venture to say this—(I cannot, of course, speak on behalf of the Dominions)—if there was a Minister (and, thank God, there is not) so cowardly, short-sighted and imbecile as to conclude a peace of that kind I am afraid our Dominions and our Britons beyond the seas would say that 'a country, so governed, is not a country to adhere to, we had better find some better statesmen of our own.'

LOOK AT THE NEUTRALS.

"Look at Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium—five small kingdoms, every one of them outraged by the German power... We are fighting for them, for Norway, greatly outraged at this moment by the massacre of her merchant seamen on the high seas. We are fighting for Sweden, who at any moment may find herself in the same position. We are fighting for every neutral nation. We are fighting for one that is not weak—the United States—for, if we were vanquished, which heaven forbid, the United States would be the next to suffer from the aggressive and unscrupulous power of Prussia."

POTATOES BARRED FROM THE U. S. WILL LOWER PRICES

Shipment of Diseased Product Has Caused States to Take Action—Releases Huge Quantity For Home Consumption

Shippers Have Damaged the Potato Industry.

News has come from Washington that shipments of Canadian potatoes have been refused entry into the United States on account of disease.

This has served to bring to the public notice two important points. One is that while there is a serious shortage of potatoes in the Dominion and prices have risen tremendously shippers have been still further accelerated the shortage by sending the much needed tuber out of the country.

The second point is that by sending diseased potatoes to the United States certain shippers have done a serious injury to Canadian trade in this article.

Last winter, when United States regulations were in force prohibiting the entry into that country of Canadian potatoes because some had been found infected with "powdery scab" Hon. Martin Burrell took the matter up. He went himself to Washington and succeeded in getting the prohibitory order cancelled. Since then Canadian potatoes have been going into the United States under a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem. Now they are prohibited.

The Immediate Effect.

The immediate effect of this will probably be to reduce the price of potatoes in Canada. It will release a huge quantity for home consumption which would otherwise have been exported.

The later effect will be to strike a blow at the potato industry. In future years when quantities are great and there is no market across the border prices will be very low. The shippers have brought this on themselves.

The points from which diseased potatoes were shipped were: Yarmouth, N.S., Sackville, N.B., St. John, N.B., Brandon, Man., Canora, Sask., Weyburn, Sask., and Winnipeg.

MASKED BANDIT ROBS MEN PLAYING POKER

Saskatoon, Sask., Oct. 31.—At the point of a revolver a masked bandit held up and robbed six men who were playing poker in a shack at Alsask, Sask., according to word reaching the city to-day. A .45 bullet was left on the floor, and working on this clue, a Mounted Policeman arrested Charles Burrough, a farmer living some three miles away. He has been sent to the Prince Albert jail to await his trial before the Supreme Court.

Only fifty dollars was taken though it was known there were hundreds in currency in the room at the time.

Important Gains Made By Allies

"The fighting was particularly bitter on that section of the front. German counter-attacks were brilliantly repulsed with the hand grenade and bayonet.

"In the course of these actions we captured 522 prisoners, of whom fifteen were officers."

What Berlin Claims.

The German official statement reads:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—Artillery activity extended to the front north of the Ancre, and reached the region north of the same, where it assumed great violence.

"Hostile patrol attacks close to the east bank of the Ancre and north of Courcelette and near Gueudecourt and northwest of Sailly-Saillisel were repulsed.

"Army Group of the German Crown Prince—Towns which had not been evacuated by the population behind our Champagne front had been frequently shelled in the last artillery bombardment from Rheims. We answered this yesterday with a fire against Rheims."

Britain Already Gets Ready For Peace Coming

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Although peace is not yet in sight, England is already taking steps toward a slow and gradual demobilization of her great army.

An inkling of what would happen should any great number of fighting men be suddenly thrown ashore on England's coast has been gleaned from the pranks of restless convalescents. It is stated on good authority that arrangements have been made to house the new army in northern France for some time after peace has been declared, allowing only small bodies of men to cross the Channel at a time.

Card Index of Troops.

As the demobilized soldiers cross to England, they will be disposed most systematically. In one of the largest club buildings in London, commandeered for the express purpose, there is being prepared a card index of every soldier, showing his history, qualifications and business training. When the army disbands, England expects to know exactly what human resources she possesses and she is determined to use these toward rebuilding her world trade.

In conclusion with the card indexing of the soldiers, some of the Empire's greatest organizers are making a survey of factories, wholesale houses, shipyards and all businesses requiring labour. The number of men expected for work will be accurately chartered and when the time comes the ex-soldier will be offered immediate employment.

How well England is anticipating the future can only be conjectured, for very few persons know the extent of the plans. But a good indication of how determined the effort is was shown in the commandeering of the National Liberal Club Building. The announcement of this act on the part of the Government came like a bolt from a clear sky to the club members.

They protested indignantly until the president of the club explained the reason; that England wanted their premises to care for the future of the men who were facing death in France. The protestors left the building after a patriotic demonstration. The traditions of years were to be thrown overboard to make room for the salvaging of England's trade.

Not only London, but every city of the Empire, will become a great clearing-house for labour. The appalling cost of warfare is to be discussed, insofar as possible, by utilizing fully the virile and revitalized manhood which war produces. If Germany showed greater efficiency in preparing for war, Teutonic ingenuity will be taxed to the limit to outdo the Anglo-Saxon in preparing for peace.

MUST FORGIVE THOSE WHO TRESPASS AGAINST US IF WE EXPECT FORGIVENESS

Preaching on the Gospel for the twenty-first Sunday after Pentecost, St. Matthews 1-9th Chapt. verses 23 to 35, Revv. J. V. McAuley, at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday morning, chose as his text the concluding passage—"So also will my heavenly Father do to you, if ye do not forgive from your hearts every one his brother." Father McAuley pointed out the explicitness of this command and its comprehensiveness. In the parable the unjust steward was forgiven a large debt by his master, but in turn had a fellow-servant cast into prison for inability to repay a small debt of one hundred pence. "Shouldst not thou then have had compassion also on they fellowservant man as I had compasion on thee?" were the Master's words when he learned of the occurrence. Most persons suffer slights and injuries at the hands of others, and there seems to be a natural impulse to seek retaliation and revenge. There are so many ways in which we may receive injury and few persons escape them. Further, they are felt keenly, but if we would comply with God's law we must exercise forgiveness, and a forgiveness that comes from the heart.

How inconsistent of a man not to show forgiveness to his fellow creature and at the same time expect forgiveness from God. This then is a sacred duty; "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." And this forgiveness must be from the depth of the heart. There must be no mere recognition of a person who has injured us while in our hearts we retain ill-feeling towards him: Father McAuley referred to the text—"So also will my heavenly Father do to you, if ye do not forgive from your hearts every one his brother." If every person were permitted to seek revenge for injuries received the world would become a battle ground. Confusion would reign if every one sought retaliation. God had wisely reserved for Himself the punishment of offenders, but from those who receive offence he demands complete forgiveness. It matters not, also, Father McAuley stated, how many injuries have been received. Christ told St. Peter he must forgive his neighbour seventy times seven times conveying the idea of limitless forgiveness.

Our prayers, sacrifices and penances will not be acceptable in the sight of God unless we have forgiven from our hearts the insults, the injuries we have received. Thus do we proclaim ourselves His followers, and show ourselves to be Christians in the real sense of the word in that we have fulfilled the true law of charity. The Pharisees would forgive their friends, but Christ preached the Gospel of the forgiveness of our enemies too.

In the social order, Father McAuley pointed out the nobility of character that sprang from a forgiving heart. There was immediate recompense in an inward happiness that forgiveness enkindles. On the other hand ill will and the spirit of revenge seems to bring its own punishment in moroseness, unhappiness, and a frequency of meeting the persons who are the objects of our ill will seems to be inevitable.

Before approaching the altar, Father McAuley recalled, go first and reconcile thyself with they brother, and in conclusion he emphasized the seriousness of the injunction, concluding the parable of the unjust steward.

Wonderful War Machine
On Western Front Seems Irresistible To Ashmead-Bartlett

Writing from France soon after his recent return to the front, Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett says in a despatch published in the London papers:

When you enter the zone of war on the western front for the first time after a long period spent in other fields of strife, you realise at once the vast change that has come over everything. You see the difference in the attitude of the French soldier, in his surroundings and his equipment, and, above all, in the appearance and the spirits of the civilian population.

Turning to the machine of war itself, some mighty hand seems suddenly to have evolved order out of chaos, and collected all the conflicting elements that make up the ordinary life of a nation into one vast, homogeneous force directed towards the attainment of a single purpose. This terrible light blue wave is now moving in one direction from which nothing will ever divert it. It no longer streams east and west, south and north, to meet the fresh attacks of a remorseless foe, whose next blow may be delivered at any unexpected point. Now the initiative has passed, and this mighty current of a united nation bent on revenge is being directed by the best brains of the army towards the Rhine and the Meuse.

The current never stops rolling onward. It may be checked from time to time, its progress is often slow, and the rocks are difficult to submerge, but ever the blue waves sweep remorselessly on. There is only the back current of the transport trains, carrying food to the men and millions of shells to the guns. The wounded alone turn their backs to the giant conflict, but their minds are fixed on the distant frontier on their own beloved land, which all have sworn to free, and their thoughts are ever with those who still press onward to the common goal.

What an organization has been built up in the short space of two years to keep these vast armies supplied! What marvels have been accomplished by industry and inventive genius pressed by necessity, financed without thought of cost, and utilising all the markets of the neutral world! Hundreds of miles of fresh railways have been laid down; new roads have been cut and surfaced; old railways have been rebuilt, and countless number of bridges restored. Hundreds of thousands of motor lorries pour incessant streams toward the advanced depots to meet the requirements of this insatiable maw of war.

Petrol is the true king of this war. Without the motor lorry all these marvels would have been impossible. Petrol reigns supreme on the battered earth below as the reigns supreme amid the clouds above. The two instruments are the car and the aeroplane. Both have helped to revolutionise the science of war.

GUNS WITHOUT LIMIT.

What are the paramount impressions made on the mind as you approach the battlefield of the Somme and come within hearing of the thunder of the guns? Two were made on mine. The one the spectacle of an entire nation bent on the fulfilment at any sacrifice of a single fixed determination; the other the limitless resources of the world placed at the disposal of that nation. Unlimited everything:—that describes the scene the best.

First and foremost, take the guns; never before has there been brought together such a concentration of artillery of all calibres. There are guns everywhere. I am writing for the moment of those behind the lines, which have not yet been brought up, as there is no room for them on an already crowded battlefield. They lie in the fields in droves like cattle; you see them like huge, many colored snakes on the railway lines, or moving to the front on lorries. Some are returning for rest and repair; others are being pushed forward to take their places. Many are yet lying idle, with their huge mouths gaping hungrily toward the Rhine and the Meuse. There are 14-inch, 12-inch, 9-inch, and every conceivable inch, down to the still favorite 75s.

And the meals for these monsters. The fodder for these monsters fills acres of fields and comes from every corner of the earth. Yet they cannot be carried too quickly to the front. This monstrous Armageddon consumes millions a week. He cannot be fed too fast. Now as he hungers so he is fed, and hence the wail of the German general staff from Berlin.

Behind the battlefield the scene is rather that of the migration of an entire people to a new home than that of an army in the field. The amount of work entailed by an offensive on the present scale passes man's comprehension. Every man and woman, and many of the children of France are now working toward the common end. In the munition factories are the women and the indispensable of the men. In the supply area which extends for twenty or thirty kilometres behind the battlefield, are the territorials. Many of them are old but they work like youngsters on a holiday. They are making and repairing the roads, helping with the transport and guarding the convoys, depots, culverts, railways and bridges. Behind them you have the youth and the middle aged of France, who actually do the fighting, and who make good and turn to practical effect the work of the women, of the old men, and those of the young ones who are indispensable.

FRENCH ARMY ALL IN BLUE.

The atmosphere and the spirit of the French army has changed, as also have its clothes. You rarely see now the famous red trousers and the dark blue coats surmounted by the képi. The smart light blue juniforms has been served out to everyone. This is surmounted by the blue shrapnel-proof [illegible], which is now universal, not only for the men in the fighting line, but also for the cavalry, transport, medical services, and Territorials. It gives the men a very striking and warlike appearance. How we are reverting to the days of the Cesars! This new helmet might have been modelled on those of the legions. So also might many of the weapons and the methods employed by the infantry in the field.

To reach the front you must enter one of those ever moving streams of transport making their way toward the front. The motor vehicle and the horse are never allowed to intermingle. Each has its own road, where it can move at its own pace. The handling of these huge streams of traffic would be an eye opener to the oldest Piccadilly police sergeant. You get formidable blocks and hold ups in Piccadilly but I have yet to see one in the tortuous lanes of Picardy.

A long way from the front the booming of the guns, that incessant, never-ceasing rumbling, greets you. Finally you shake off the transport, turn down a lane and enter a green oasis, where dwell the controlling brains of one of the French armies on the Somme. What a quiet and peaceful spot it seems. Inside is a small room the chief of the staff works surrounded by maps. In another room is telegraphic communication with all the units on the battlefield. From this simple piece of machinery all the orders to the troops are conveyed.

But we linger not here, only in fact long enough to pick up a young officer who knows the battlefield and is to act as our guide.

WHERE DESTRUCTION IS KING.

Now, we cross to the north of the Somme, enter the war zone, and slowly the gigantic battle field unrolls itself before our wondering eyes.

Destruction is king everywhere now. It is the dominating factor in modern warfare, this destruction. Formerly men killed one another in the open, and incidentally houses and villages were sometimes damaged. This was regarded as the fortune of war.

Now you cannot destroy your enemy without destroying first every building, tree, village and trench in which he is ensconced. You must dig down 30 feet for him and tumble whole towns and forests about his head. You must then pound all this ruin into heaps of still finer rubbish, and then if anything is left of him, your infantry must do the rest. The villages through which we pass to reach the battlefield are all in ruins, and hardly a house seems to have escaped destruction. These once fair lands have been churned into shapeless heaps of earth and rubbish.

We climb the hills near Maricourt, where the French attack started on July 1st. From this vantage point You gaze to the north and south, from old battlefield and of the new. As you move slowly forward from position to position fresh acres of destruction unroll themselves before you.

What a terible scene meets the eye. This is no longer a battle; it is a man-forged earthquake on a gigantic scale. You gaze to the north and south, from the east to the west, on a scene of appalling desolation. You have just left the villages and the lines behind packed with men, horses, and vehicles all working as busy as bees—hundreds and thousands of them. Now you search the horizon almost in vain.

It is difficult to discern a single living soul until you descend to the valleys, where the guns lie hidden from view. Yet there are hundreds of thousands of blue coated French infantry in front of you, and in front of them lie hundreds of thousands more green-gray Germans. Occasionally you will see a figure emerge like a scared rabbit from the ground, take a peep around, and then disappear as mysteriously as it has come.

The ground to the north of the Somme was once rolling grasslands, broken everywhere by pretty villages of varying size. Woods often surround their outskirts, or else lie isolated. A well-defined, well-featured countryside in fact. Now the oldest inhabitant would have difficulty in recognising any landmark, and would seek in vain among the ruins of the villages for his former home or even the street in which he dwelt.

It is wonderful that science has been able to develop such destructive powers in such a short space of time. Up to two years ago it was only thought possible for world cataclysms such as earthquakes and volcanic eruptions to utterly destroy an entire countryside. Man armed with science has moved far ahead of nature in this respect. There is no green left on the battlefield. The very grass has been eaten away by bursting shells. The villages are mere heaps of earth, wood and bricks, which have been pounded into the soil, making a vast heap of sticky paste.

A SEA OF SHELL HOLES

There is not a leaf left on the trees, and where the skeleton trunks still remain upright they resemble the few remaining hairs bristling isolated from some old man's grey head. The surface of the ground is everywhere broken into a choppy channel sea of shell holes. There is not a square yard anywhere, that has escaped this pitiless hail of projectiles of all calibres. You cannot take a step without landing in one of them. The successive ridges on the rolling plains in front are seared white with endless trenches. You move from one ridge to another, the eye always being met by the same awful scene, following the successive waves of the French attack since the first days of July.

Here is what was once the first German line. Just a heap of holes filled with rubbish, without shape or direction. You move over ground littered with rusty barbed-wire cut to ribbons, shattered guns, and [illegible] countless unexploded grenades, cartridges, and huge fragments of uniforms, and human bones. Nothing stands erect save the countless little wooden crosses where some hero lies, or marking graves where friend and foe lie side by side. It is awful, the atmosphere of desolation and waste.

As far as the eye can reach, which is the long line of trees marking the Pewas attended by a large gathering of clergymen. A few days after one of them wrote to me and told of how he had started campaigns going in four cities in his district. From other people I heard of the activities in which they were engaged. I think success will come of them."

So complete is the French command of the air that there is no longer any real necessity to conceal the guns. The Germans are now fighting in almost total blindness except from the fact that they know the ground, which has long been in their possession. The battlefield itself is packed with guns. Never before on any battlefield was there such a concentration of heavy artillery. The famous 75's have, so to speak, been pushed out of prominence. The favorite positions have been usurped by the giants, and now the 75's, like humble guests at some great feast, must find a place where they can, which is not required by the mightier destroyers of mankind. Guns and yet more guns; that is what modern warfare has come to. The weakest positions can hardly be taken without an immense concentration of artillery fire. The infantry are merely the pawns who take over the ground these monsters have battered into shapeless heaps.

NORMAN HARVIE IS KILLED.

Well-Known Young Orillian Gave Life at the Front.

ORILLIA, Ont., Nov. 3.—Word was received this morning that Sergt.-Major Norman Harvie was killed in action on October 18. He was the son of Dr. A. R. Harvie, Orilla. Among all the more than 800 men Orillia has contributed to the great cause, there was none of finer ability, character, or disposition than Norman Marvie, and none who was more highly esteemed. He was a member of Orillia's famous hockey team. He might have had a commission, but declined to be parted from the other Orillians in the battery in which the Orillia hockey boys enlisted.

The Deutschland Found To Be Damaged
Removal of Submarine's Cargo Stopped

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 6.—Water discovered in one of the forward compartments of the submarine merchantman Deutschland when stevedores removed part of the cargo from the hold led to the discovery of fourteen small holes in the anchor bulkhead. The work of unloading the vessel's ten-million dollar cargo was stopped immediately at the order of Captain Paul Koenig, her commander, and a diver was sent down to investigate the damage.

The utmost secrecy surrounded the discovery of the damage. Paul G. L. Hilken, representing the American agents of the vessel's owners, declared that the damage was negligible and easily could be repaired. He denied that the holes might have been punched through the steel plates while the Deutschland still lay at her pier in Bremerhaven, and explained their presence by saying that probably the flukes of the collapsible anchor made them.

Throughout the day the vicinity of the State pier where the Deutchland is lying, was patrolled by two dozen armed guards and policemen. A few privileged persons were permitted to enter the pier and go on board the craft.

Captain Koenig to be Guest.

Early in the day members of the New London Chamber of Commerce called on Captain Koenig to greet him officially and invite him to a dinner and reception which is to be held on November 11.

From one person it was learned that the Deutschland narrowly escaped collision with a dredge as she steered up the Thames River. As a means of confusing the allied patrols in the Atlantic Captain Koenig declared he had changed the port and starboard lights of the merchantman. He stamped the red light where the green light should have been. The dredge captain, not knowing in which direction the craft was going steamed in a sizzag course and missed the Deutschland by a few feet.

Dr. George Ahrens, an attache of German Embassy, arrived in an automobile and took charge of the official correspondence.

Some of the Cargo.

Among the men to whom a part of the chemicals in the cargo is consigned is Herman A. Metz, formerly Representative in Congress, and the American agent for a German chemical company. There are also chemicals and dyestuffs consigned to the Bayer Company, the Cassella Colour Company, the Kalle Company and the Berliner Aniline Co.

The Deutschland's crew had shore leave. The men were the popular heroes of the city. One enterprising sailor had his picture taken, wrote his name across the face and stood on a street corner offering the photographs for sale. One was bought for $2 by a young woman of German extraction.

The Deutschland was inspected by officers from the United States submarine base in the harbour. In the party were Commander Yates Stirling, Jr., of the base, and Lieutenant Commander David Boyd, of the United States steamship Bushnell.

To unload the Deutschland ten negro stevedores, employed when the Deutschland was at Baltimore, were brought here. They will remain within the enclosure on the pier.

Captain Koenig was asked about the number of submarines sunk during the war.

"There have not been many of them," he answered. "When I left home it was known that only nineteen had gone to the bottom. The shipyards are working night and day on the construction of submarines. But the constructors have given up the idea of equalling England's navy. That is practically out of the question. I do not believe that the government ever intended to compete with England as far as battleship building is concerned."

When he was asked concerning the length of time it took to build the Deutschland he said that it was finished in six months.

Facial Burns Will Lay Up Foreman of Metal Products Co.

Robert Dudley, 980 Chamberlen street, one of the foremen in the Metal Products Co., was removed to his home on Sunday from the Nicholls Hospital, where he underwent treatment for severe facial burns received at work on Friday night. Boiling water splashed in his face, and it was thought that his eyes were affected, but it was found that the injuries were only superficial. Mr. Dudley is expected to be able to resume work in a week or two. His popularity with his fellow employees was indicated by the gifts of flowers from the girls and cigars from the men of the shop. Carelessness on the part of a workman is said to have been the cause of the accident.

GERMAN ADMIRALTY YARN.

"A Second Baralong Case" Reported That is More Than a Year Old.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The German Admiralty has furnished to the Associated Press correspondent an almost incredible story of what it characterized as "a second Baralong case," in which a British patrol ship flying American colours it is declared, after destroyng submarine U-41 deliberately ran down a rowboat with the only two survivors, Lieut. Cromston and Petty Officer Gedan of the undersea boat in an endeavour to remove the only witnesses and has since prevented the intended victims, who were almost miraculously saved, from communicating the news to their own Government.

The incident, according to the Admiralty, occurred on Sept. 24, 1915, and has only just been learned of through an invalided prisoner transferred to Switzerland.

JAIL, NOT ENLISTMENT.

BRANTFORD, Nov. 4.—A year in jail was given to William Smith, convicted jail-breaker, who escaped Governor Drury here recently in escaping and then stole a bicycle. He appealed to be allowed to enlist, but the military authorities had not come to any arrangement. Counsel requested he be sent direct to France to fight.

Weakened By Anaemia
Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails.

Since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its efficiency in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Port Hope, Ont., writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctored with the family physician and used other medicines for two years, I got very little relief and, in fact, continued to grow weaker. I was so weak I could not walk on myself or raise my hand to my head and decided to go to my daughter in Toronto. When examined by Toronto doctors they pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other ailments and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and am now well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments, I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Doing Your "Bit"
For the Nation

THREE YEARS have been entered on and passing of the War. Side by side with this is the third year of the Patriotic Fund. Two appeals have been well and nobly answered. What about the Third?

You who are at home by virtue of the sacrifice of the men in the field and the further sacrifice of dependents left in our hands must answer this question. Answer it individually and collectively. Each as to a sense of responsibility. The City as to its pledged assurances of help and support. But we know that in the past individual responsibility has been shifted, set aside, handed on, evaded thoughtlessly at times. Now we must measure up. Measure up as a city and community for it will be to our deserved censure if we are found lacking.

The Fund, if it is to continue as well as it has been doing, must have money. Sympathy is all very well. Money just counts. Generous subscriptions have gained the money in the past, but with the many and meritorious calls the benevolent hand slacks in the good work. The burden has not been distributed evenly, if, indeed, it ever may be so. And knowing the facts, and realizing the difficulties and hindrances the friends of the Fund come to the public of Peterborough to endorse a plan for further aid. In moving in this movement they are only acting for you. As a citizen and ratepayer, as a property owner or tenant, you are asked to consider the proposition and give it your approval, by your signature. That is all. Not much, but enough, for your City Council will pay attention to your expressed wish as testified to by your name written on the petition.

Twenty or twenty-five thoughtful men are behind the plan as proposed. Hundreds are distinctly in approval. And it is hoped that the mass of the citizens will also approve, for the money MUST be raised or we shirk our obligations. In the columns of the local press (and there is not a press in any city of Canada that has given more loyal help and unstintingly of publicity to all patriotic objects than the press of Peterborough), from day to day will be told of and reasoned for the need for the effort and to back up the plan. It will not all be told at once. That would weary. But if the conviction can be instilled—as it were by instalment—then a great and good end will have been achieved. For to convince is to have the petition signed. Once signed the City Council will have a warranty for acting.

The Council does well to await some assurance from the ratepayers. As Stewards for your expenditures it is quite within reason to await action. This taken, and successful, it may point to the expressed wish of the municipality as an endorsement for further financial action. So in signing you express approval of the object, approval that the Council may act and approval that you are heart and soul with the Empire in carrying on the war to its end. Canada is in the ring and must stay there until the Empire is victorious.

You will be waited on and asked to subscribe to the following manifesto. Its words speak its worth, and it is addressed to your municipal governing body:

> "We, the real estate owners in the City of Peterborough, respectfully petition that the Council do grant to the objects and sustenance of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund the sum of Sixty thousand dollars ($60,000), the same to be provided for by means of a by-law authorizing such grant, and the issuing of debentures for a term of twenty years to the above amount.
>
> "And in furtherance of which request we have affixed our signatures as evidence of our desire and intention."

The prayer of the petition is that the sum, named above, will be placed on the rates, from year to year, until paid. All will contribute. The individual cost is not serious. Community of effort makes for a lightening of burdens. All should make sacrifices, and this is only one.

If the wisdom of this plan be open to question on the part of some, it will be the function of these columns to reason the matter out. We do not all think alike, but we are open to conviction. No doubt a large number will sign in approval. But we want more. We need it to be practically unanimous. It should be so. Surely no one will maintain that he should not contribute to bear a war expense. That thought is not tenable in this year of the war.

Just as a keynote to the plan, it may be said, when all is said and done, that to the man who is assessed for $1,000, the cost will be about 42 cents per year for twenty years, if the whole amount is required. If the war stop, then the debentures will not be sold, relieving the obligation. What is your assessment? Figure it out, and congratulate yourself your share is to be so small.

Further comment will follow. Announcement of the days of canvass, names of workers, districts, etc., will be announced.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE, PETERBOROUGH BRANCH CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND.

Meeting To-night (Monday) at the Patriotic Fund Rooms.

WILL BEGIN PROMISED SEWER TO AUBURN THIS WEEK

The promised sewer for Auburn will likely be commenced this week on the conclusion of the section from the Bonner-Worth plant to the corner of Park and McDonnel streets. It is expected that this will be finished on Thursday and that the gang under the foremanship of Mr. John Meharry will go directly to Auburn. Mayor Duffus has shown himself specially interested in protection for Auburn and received the fullest co-operation from the Utilities Commission, when Mr. T. F. Matthews recently promised to undertake the Auburn work as soon as the West Ward main was completed.

The first work at Auburn will likely be undertaken in the yards of the Woollen Mills and will be carried south along the G.T.R. to Smith street. This utility has been promised the Auburn suburb for years and its early completion will be welcomed by the property owners in that district.

No Intention of Closing University

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, November 6.—Premier Hearst said today that the Government had not the slightest intention of closing up the Provincial University, as suggested by Lt.-Col. Lennox, M.P.P., to allow students to go to the front, although the Premier urged that every available young man should esteem it a privilege to go to the front.

Part of New Ground Has Been Evacuated

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, November 6.—A strong German attack during the night forced the British to evacuate a portion of the ground recently won in the neighbourhood of Butte De Warlencourt, General Haig reported to the War Office to-day.

East of Les Boeufs, the British consolidated the positions taken in their gains of yesterday, General Haig reported, and three times made successful raids on enemy trenches in the Armentieres and Ypres sectors.

Funeral of Lieut. Ackerman On Wednesday

Details Are Not Definitely Arranged But That is Probable Date

It is expected that the funeral of Lieut. Arthur Ackerman will take place on Wednesday afternoon, although the details will not be definitely known until to-night. The steamer Scandanavian, on which is the body of the gallant young officer, is due to arrive in Montreal this afternoon. Major S. T. Medd, brother-in-law of Lieut. Ackerman, is in charge. Major Chas. Ackerman left to-day for Montreal.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING TO-MORROW

The regular monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the Children's Aid Society will be held to-morrow afternoon in the board room of the Bank of Montreal.

The annual meeting is due and will probably be held within the course of the next few days.

NO HIGHER PRICES ON SATURDAY MARKET

Butter again touched 48c on Saturday morning on the market, but there was considerable sold at 45c, not to mention the fact that the grocers were quoting 45c for first quality butter. Eggs went at 40 and 43 cents, and potatoes around $2.00. Beef at 20 and 18c, and pork 18 and 18 cents were outside quotations. Poultry was again plentiful and prices favourable to the consumer, for which slight casement they should be truly thankful.

WILL PROSECUTE COAL PRICE BOOSTERS

NEW YORK Nov. 6.—United States District Attorney Marshall and District Attorney Swann are prepared to prosecute speculators who are guilty of illegally raising the price of coal. The Federal and county prosecutors have informed [illegible] upon which they contemplate [illegible] and proceeding against those who have increased the price in violation of the law.

The big producing companies have not raised the price of coal delivered to New York dealers on board barges, but a clique of speculators, taking advantage of the fact that deliveries will be slow this month, has manipulated the price.

There is no reason why coal should sell for $7 a ton on one side of the North River—in Jersey City and Hoboken, for example—and $12 a ton on the other side of the river, in New York, so far as Mr. Marshall's office knows.

TO STUDY RUSSIA

The first meeting of the class for the study of "Russia" will be held on Tuesday night, November 7 at 8 o'clock in the Green Room of the Y.M.C.A. A paper on the geography and natural resources of Russia as introductory to the country to be studied will be given by Mr. F. J. A. Morris. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to become members of the class.

In compliance with her wish the body of Mrs. Havelock Wilde, the writer, who died last month in London, was cremated and its ashes scattered [illegible] historic park about which [illegible] and artists have long sat enthralled.

MILITARY NEWS

talion (Canadian Scottish Borderers), a veteran of Mons and the battle of the Marne besides having thirteen years' honourable service in the British army to his credit, was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment by Magistrate Leggatt in the Police Court here Saturday.

Facing the Magistrate, O'Neil said he had nothing to say against sentence being passed, but tears came to his eyes when he was reminded of his honorable past.

O'Neil left Windsor a month ago with a Miss McLaren, whom he married at London. It is alleged he induced the young woman, the daughter of a Windsor war veteran, to part with more than $400, besides cashing four cheques which had been given to him by other soldiers to take to the bank for them.

W. C. Thornton, of the Peterborough Post Office staff, and son of Mr. J. F. Thornton, Auctioneer, enlisted on Friday with the Cobourg Heavy Battery, 0th Overseas Draft, and several other city men have also signified their intention of joining the 'Heavies'. The draft is rapidly filling up, eight men having enlisted since November first. Those who want a quick passage overseas with a bunch of good fellows, and in one of the most attractive branches of the service, should not delay in making application to join the Cobourg Heavy Battery.

From the Grove, school, Lakefield, there are one hundred "old boys" in the firing line. Eleven have already made the supreme sacrifice.

All returned soldiers are reminded of the meeting in the Armouries tonight for the purpose of organizing an Association. Every soldier in Peterborough who has been overseas is asked to be on hand at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the old canteen room of the 93rd Battalion.

MAYOR DUFFUS ON A HUNTING TRIP

His Worship Mayor Duffus has disappeared in the wilds of the north country, where for the next few days, Peterborough's Chief Magistrate will endeavour to forget the high tax rate and confine his activities to the pursuit of the elusive deer.

FORMER LOCAL MAN BEREAVED

TORONTO, Nov. 6. — The death occurred very suddenly yesterday morning of Mrs. Emily Mary Otter Stewart, widow of the late Mr. A. D. Stewart, formerly of Hamilton, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. F. W. Lane, 207 Macpherson avenue, Toronto. She had suffered from a weak heart. As late as Saturday evening she had shown motherly solicitude for her son, Capt. O. Stewart, who is now in England, and had arranged to write to him and to her son-in-law, Dr. J. A. Roberts, in charge of the University of Toronto Hospital. The was born in Toronto, and was about sixty years of age. Her brother is Sir William Otter, Ottawa. Besides Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Roberts there also survive Mr. D. E. Stewart, Chicago.

Captain Stewart was connected with the Lakefield Canoe Co., in Lakefield, and resided in Peterborough some time.

THE "SCARLET RUNNER" AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT

Don't miss the first portrayal of the two million dollar serial entitled "The Scarlet Runner" tonight at the Royal Theatre. The story is a gripping one and you should see the masterful dramatization, which has been a recurring sensation at large city theatres. The first episode is on to-night.

Red Cross Campaign Will Open To-morrow

Society Hopes to Raise at Least $12,000—Complete Canvass Will Be Made

NEED IS GREAT

To-morrow marks the opening of a three day campaign instituted by the Peterborough Red Cross Society to raise an amount equal to, if not exceeding, that which was raised last year. One year ago the Society set out to raise ten thousand dollars and before the subscription lists closed up wards of twelve thousand dollars was collected. There is little doubt but what most of the present subscribers will renew their subscriptions and a great many new ones may be secured. The money is necessary if the work of the Society is to continue and it is unnecessary to say that the need to-day is even greater than it was one year ago.

To-morrow the various teams will make a complete canvas of the city and in three days the full amount should be realised.

BRILLIANT FRENCH SOLDIER SUCCUMBS

Leader of Attack on Douaumont Dies of His Wounds.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Gen. Ancelin, commander of the brigade which led in the assault on Fort Douaumont in the Verdun region on October 24, has died of wounds. Gen. Neville, the commander at Verdun, in announcing the death to Mme. Ancelin, alluded to the fact that her husband had prepared for the victory and capture of Douaumont.

Gen. Ancelin was a brilliant officer, and had served as first assistant to three ministers of war, Berteaux, Etienne and Millerand, in the direction of the army administration.

A TORONTO STAR FOR THE "GEISHA"

Miss Clara Horne, Soprano, from the Hambourg (Russian) Conservatory of Music, Toronto, will appear as "O Mimosa San" in the forthcoming performances of the "Geisha." Miss Horne has studied with Maestro L. A. Caribou for Operatic Repertory, and made a great hit last June, in Toronto in the "Geisha" as "Mimosa 'O Mimosa San' in, the forthcoming excellent stage work being the result of special training by Mr. R. J. Dewey. At Loew's Theatre, Yonge street. Miss Horne captured the crowded audience with her lovely singing and acting, especially in "The Amorous Goldfish," and "A Geisha's Life."

Music & Drama

HOBSON'S CHOICE.

"Hobson's Choice" at the Grand on Saturday night proved as refreshing and quaint as its predecessor "Bunty Pulls the Strings," which indeed it resembles in many particulars. The scenes are laid in the English town of Salford in Lancashire, and are typical of the blunt self-assertion, rough colloquial speech and pride in the deliberate exercise of worldly wisdom of the people of the Midlands. Maggie Hobson directs the destinies of her father, her sisters and her husband with Bunty-like directness and confidence, and is a most likeable character, charmingly played by Miss Margaret Nibloe. "Willie Mossop," her husband, is made a real character, as cleverly presented by Edward Phelan, while A. P. Kaye gives a masterly portrayal of the role of Henry Horatio Hobson, of "Olsson's." The stage investiture is lavish, and the whole production a treat.

ROBERT KELLY KILLED ON LEVEL CROSSING

Wife Met Death From Similar Mishap at Same Place

PICTON, Nov. 6.—Robert Kelley passed away at his residence here at the age of ninety-two years. Mr. Kelley had been hale and hearty until very recently, when he fell and broke his hip, from which accident he did not recover. He was the father of twelve children, six boys and six girls, eight of whom are living. In his younger days he was an extensive farmer, having cultivated six hundred acres. He was active also in municipal politics, being a member of the County Council and Reeve of Athol township. For the past fifteen years he lived retired.

A remarkable coincidence is that five years ago his wife, in the same house, fell on the same doorstep and broke the same hip, from the effects of which she died at the age of eighty-four.

MIMICO BURSAR DEAD

Marcus Kielty Has Been in the Civil Service Over Twenty Years

Mr. Marcus Kielty, Bursar of the Mimico Hospital for the Insane, died yesterday at his home, 149 Geoffrey Street. Mr. Kielty, who was a brother of the late Rev. Father Kielty, of St. Joseph's Dowro, was in his seventy-fourth year, and had been in ill-health since the early summer.

The late Mr. Kielty was employed in the asylums branch of the civil service for the past twenty years, first as Storeskeeper at the Toronto Hospital and then as Bursar at the Mimico institution. Mr. E. R. Rogers, Superintendent of Asylums, and Dr. Beemer, Superintendent of the Mimico Hospital, refer to Mr. Kelky's death as a loss which removes a very valuable civil servant.

WOOD—DAVEY.

The wedding was quietly solemnized at St. Paul's Manse on Friday night of Mr. Joseph Nathan Wood to Miss May Davey, both of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Pogue. Mr. and Mrs. Wood were attended by Mr. Bruce Weeks and Miss L. Castle.

WAINWRIGHT—PEDLAR.

The marriage is announced of Mrs. George Henry Pedlar of Oshawa to Mr. Gilbert C. Wainwright of Ottawa, formerly manager of the Peterborough Branch of the Bank of Ottawa, on Wednesday, November 1st in Oshawa. During his Peterborough managership, Mr. Wainwright associated himself with numerous public affairs and his friends here will congratulate him upon the occasion of his wedding and extend their best wishes.

SIROIS—DESAUTEL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning in the Sacred Heart church, the very Rev. P. Lamarche officiating, when Hermina, third daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Desautel of Peterborough became the bride of Mr. Arthur Sirois of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Sirois of Brooklyn Ave. The bride was charmingly attired in a navy broadcloth tailor-made with hat to match, and Persian Lamb and Ermine furs. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid her sister, Miss Eva from New York also wore a tailor-made, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. The groom was attended by his brother Mr. Victor. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents for the immediate friends and relatives. Later the happy couple left for a trip to eastern points via Montreal. They will be at home to their friends after the 1st of December, in apartments at 1154 Queen,

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES PURSGLOVE.

The very sudden death of Mary Jane, beloved wife of James Pursglove of 107 Aylmer Street, occurred this morning at 5.30. Mrs. Pursglove was born in Coventry, England, and has always been a consistent member of All Saints' Church, where she will be much missed. She leaves behind her to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. C. H. Alcock, Miss Bessie and Miss Lillie, and four grandchildren.

The funeral will leave the house at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, for All Saints' Church, where there will be a short service, conducted by the Rev. R. B. Grobb, before proceeding to the Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN THROOP.

There passed away this morning, after a lingering illness of three years, an old and esteemed resident of this city in the person of Mr. John Throop.

The deceased was born in Cobourg in July, 1843, but spent most of his life in Peterborough and vicinity. The late Mr. Throop was, for ten years engaged in the grocery business in Ashburnham, and during that time took an active interest in religious and civic affairs, serving as councillor for a number of years. He was a man of sterling Christian qualities, always taking an active part in all social and moral questions. At the time of his death he was a member of Trinity Church.

He is survived by a sorrowing widow, five daughters, Mrs. John Nurse, Bewdley; Mrs. Jas. Bair, Banff, Alta.; Mrs. Samuel Taylor, East City; Mrs. Jas. Gray, Hiawatha, and Mina, at home; and one son Burton, who is overseas.

JOHN E. NELSON.

News of the death of John Ewing Nelson, senior partner in the firm of Willis Nelson Co., Glasgow, Scotland, has been received by a number of local friends. He died at his home "Verndean" Pollokshields, Glasgow on October 20th. Mr. Alex Gibson, and Mr. Robert Fair had been friends of the deceased for quite a number of years. It will be remembered that the late Mr. Nelson had taken ill on a trip here two years ago and was confined to the Nicholls Hospital for some time.

WILLIAM BRIDGER.

At the residence of his daughter, Mrs. William Goodwin, 288 Edinburg street, the death occurred on Sunday, November 5th, of William Bridger, late of Hampshire, England, in his seventy-fifth year. The deceased had lived in Peterborough six years and had been employed at the C.G.E. works, where he suffered a broken leg in an accident from the results of which he did not appear to completely recover. He is survived by his two daughters, Mrs. Goodwin and Mrs. Wm. Amory, Rubidge street, whose husband is at the front, and his son Sam, who is a crack gun layer in the navy. The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 2 pm. from Mrs. Goodwin's residence to the Little Lake Cemetery.

IRISH BEAT CONSCRIPTION

Australia, However, Determined to SEE WAR TO FINISH.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A despatch to the Times from Sydney says:

"Australia is astonished at the vote against conscription. It was chiefly due to the Irish vote against the policy in reprisal for England's failure to complete Home Rule negotiations. Also the omen flinched before the duty of sending men to the trenches.

"The voting does not affect Australia's determination to prosecute the war to a finish. Australia is merely divided regarding the method of raising men."

SYNDICATE CORNERS COLD STORAGE EGGS

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Chicago yesterday discovered that a syndicate of speculators had cornered the cold storage egg market. Eight men control all the 1,250,000 cases or $7,500,000 dozen. The eggs were bought last spring and summer at about 22 cents a dozen.

The price now is 45 cents a dozen and the syndicate can make it 50 cents when it desires. Among those said to control the market are J. E. Wetz, J. Loxley, of Oxley and Richert G. W. Martin, of Geo. W. Martin and Bros., S. G. Borden, of Borden and Co., Chas. B. Ford, M. H. Eichengreen, of Eichengern and Co. There is an ordinance against holding foodstuffs.

ITALIAN OFFENSIVE ON THE CARSO BATTLEFRONT

Military Expert of the New York "Times" Reviews the Situation—Italian Offensives Have Been Numerous and Sudden—Matters Are at a Standstill on the Roumanian Front.

BAD WEATHER ON THE WEST

Thursday last saw the beginning of a new Italian offensive. This move seems to be on a larger scale and more sustained than any others which the Italians have made since Gorizia fell. It is coming, too, at a time when the indications are the Austrians are none too well prepared to meet it. While in Transylvania there are a few German divisions under von Falkenhayn, the greater part of the forces are Austrian. The fighting of the Russians in Galicia also occupies the attention of a considerable number of Austrian troops.

Opposed to the Italians, who have been consistently inconsistent in their attacks, starting the most furious drives, which have lasted but a few days, before slackening and dying out, the Austrians have, as was shown in Trentina, shifted their troops back and forth as the Italian pressure has increased or lessened.

Now, apparently, the Italians, beginning a period of activity after long inaction, have by the suddenness of their attack caught the Austrians by surprise and are scoring important successes. From Gorizia to the Gulf of Panzaro, which is an arm of the Gulf of Trieste, a distance of about twelve miles, they have struck the Austrian lines with terrific force and have made notable gains.

THE MAIN STUMBLING BLOCK.

Before the attack was launched, the Italians were in possession of the western edge of the Carso plateau. They were facing, however, defenses which the Austrians had had plenty of time to prepare and which had stopped the attempt to advance a month ago. North of the Carso, the Italians had been held in place just east of Gorizia from the day Gorizia fell. The heights in this section, flanking as they did the Italian line to the south, were necessary to an Italian advance. The Italian Army therefore struck at these two points—against the heights east of Gorizia and on the Carso. In both cases they were successful. For nearly a mile along the railroad from Gorizia to Prehacina they moved forward, occupying the heights, overlooking the railroad from the north, as they advanced. Further south to the foothills of the Carso Plateau, their line kept pace with the advance.

On the Carso as well as at the southern foot of the plateau in the narrow neck of land between the Carso and the Gulf the offense was particularly severe. For nearly a mile here the Italians pushed ahead, establishing their lines almost as far south as Duino, the largest town on the Gulf north of Trieste.

Distances in the fighting here are by no means as great as in other areas. A small advance here is more important than a much larger one in Galicia, for example. The main stumbling block to an Italian threat against Vienna is the Carso, and this is but a small area, though filled with military difficulties. As it is, the Italians are only a little over fifteen miles from Trieste, and their offensive has just begun.

A QUESTION OF SHELLS.

The details of the fighting will make interesting reading, although they are slow coming in. The number of prisoners is significant. Nearly 5,000 men were taken in the first blow. This may prove another of the sudden spurts of the Italians which have often resulted in advances, but have just as often been allowed to die down within a short time.

The reason for the speedy ending of these spurts may well be a shortage of shells. The Italians have practically no native steel, and few, if any, manufacturing resources for the production of shells. Their supply came from Germany in former times. Now it must come from England, France or this country.

The battling in the Carso is, even in a greater degree than in the other battle grounds, a question of artillery and artillery for the most part of the heavier calibres. If the Italians now have a sufficient quantity of shell, they are attacking at a time when they can render effective aid to the Allies in other fields.

On the Roumanian front matters are very much at a standstill. Mackensen, in Dobrudja, is ominously quiet. No report of any activity has reached us from this quarter for more than ten days. This is hardly in keeping with the reports of his successes which were being sent out in his great sweep forward. Whether it means that he has reached the limit of his ability to advance or whether the Roumanians have vacated the greater part of Dobrudja and left him no opposition is not apparent.

The pressure on the Transylvanian front continues, and in the same place. The Germans are limiting their efforts to the passes south of Hermannstadt and south of Kronstadt. It is the only section of the line where they have a good lateral railway close to the mountain chain.

A MENACE TO THE GERMANS.

The Rumanians, on the other hand, are striking against the region of the Vulcan Pass. Their effort here is directed against the main railroad from Western Hungary, which comes in perpendicularly to the western frontier, paralleling the northern frontier and feeding the temporary field bases and the branch roads, which run up to the German front.

There is still a long distance to go, but the end to be attained justifies the effort. A success here will practically mean the end of von Falkenhayn's campaign, as it will cut his main line. Distribution of supplies is only effective as long as there are supplies to distribute. Once this line is cut the source of supply has been lopped off. This is probably the most effective answer the Rumanians could make to the German effort through Predeal Pass. The latter effort is a distinct effort to reach Bucharest and link up with the forces of Mackensen in Dobrudja. The Rumanian attacks in Vulcah Pass, however, constitute a distinct threat against this effort, and one which will only be removed when the Rumanian capital, with its excellent facilities for the concentration and distribution of supplies, is reached. On the western front matters are practically at a standstill. The French are been creeping forward steadily, capturing a section of trench here and there and constantly drawing nearer to Transloy. In the last few days they have taken over 1,000 prisoners, but the kind of work they are doing is expensive and slow.

Bad weather is still the rule here, and the chalky ground over which the men would have to pass makes any hurried infantry advance impossible. Even though the government is silent, it is still evident that the battle is going on and that when weather conditions permit we shall see again the major attack with its enormous artillery preparation. The statement of Berlin that the former allied gains were due in great measure to failure in the German artillery ammunition supply, which has since been corrected, will then be put to the test.

Colds or Coughs SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolson, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c and 50c.

Central Powers Re-establish the Polish Kingdom—Berlin News Agency Says Action is Taken After Request by a Delegation—Hereditary Monarchy is Proclaimed in Manifesto at Warsaw and Lublin.

THE OFFICIAL MANIFESTO

BERLIN, November 7.—"Polish provinces occupied by troops of the Central Powers," says the Overseas News Agency, "were the scene yesterday of a great and momentous historic event.' Germany and Austro-Hungary, by joint action, proclaimed Warsaw and Lublin the Kingdom of Poland and re-established the right of the Polish nation to control its own destinies, to live an independent national life and to govern itself by chosen representatives of the nation.

"A few days ago a Polish delegation called upon the Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg. Its members were representative Poles of all classes, all parties, all ranks of society and all creeds. They transmitted to the government the wishes of the Polish nation, which now have been granted to them.

"Thus the ancient Kingdom of Poland, from which in the past came famous rulers, like the Jagelloues (a dynasty founded by Jagello which reigned in Poland from 1386 to 1572), and glorious soldiers, like the great Sobieski (John III., King of Poland in 1674-1696), is now resurrected to new life. The Poles are free from Russian oppression, no more to be trodden under the heels of the Cossack. The liberty that has been destroyed a century ago on Russian instigation now is restored. The rule of the knout has been abolished. Poland has been given back to Western civilization."

FORMS HEREDITARY MONARCHY.

"His Majesty the German Emperor and His Majesty the Emperor of Austria and Apostolic King of Hungary, inspired by firm confidence in a final victory of their arms and prompted by a desire to lead the districts conquered by their armies under heavy sacrifices from Russian domination toward a happy future, have agreed to form of these districts a national State with a hereditary monarchy and a constitutional government. The exact frontiers of the Kingdom of Poland shall be outlined later.

"The new kingdom will receive the guarantees needed for the free development of its own forces by its intimate relations with both Powers. The glorious traditions of the ancient Polish armies and the memory of the brave comradeship in the great war of our days shall revive in a national army. The organization, instruction and command of this army shall be arranged by the common agreement.

"The allied monarchs express the confident hope that Polish wishes for the evolution of a Polish State and for the national development of a Polish kingdom shall now be fulfilled, taking due consideration of the general political conditions prevailing in Europe and of the welfare and the safety of their own countries and nations.

"The great realms which the western neighbours of the Kingdom of Poland shall have on their eastern frontier shall be a free and happy State enjoying its own national life, and they shall welcome with joy the birth and prosperous development of this State."

The semi-official Nordeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung prints a leading article entitled "Poland's Hour of Fate," stating that "a hundred years ago as the result of the Congress at Vienna Poland's fate went into the hands of Russia," but that now "Poland's freedom is inseparably linked with the victory of Germany and her allies," continuing, the newspaper says:

CENTRAL POWERS' INTEREST.

"Only the Central Powers have a vital interest in the existence of a free Poland. The Poles now are free from Russian domination and have an opportunity to form a national State to establish connections with the Central Powers, and, protected by these relations, to promote their political and economic life and develop their national civilization.

"For these purposes during the near future the Poles will need our help. Under Russian domination no Polish administration, no Polish schools and no Polish army were admitted, and the Russians in this way tried to hinder the development of special bodies for the working out of these tasks. The Russians neglected the construction of railroads and waterways. Everywhere a basis of public life and administration must be created out of nothing and the reconstruction of a Polish national life must proceed step by step."

"It was not the 'protectors of small nations' that restored Poland to its own national evolution, but those two Powers against which the enemy appealed to the hatred by small nations of the whole world. The Western Powers showed only their sympathy for Poland in words. Many times the cry 'Vive la Pologne' was shouted in the west but real obligations for Poland were carefully avoided. Every time the Poles entered into the struggle for independence and hoped for help from London and Paris it became evident they had built upon empty words. From that side liberty could not come for Poland.

"If today a different decision had been reached in the war—if Russian arms were victorious in the East—then for another hundred years the population of Poland would have to drag its chains from promise to promise without any pledge on the part of the Western Powers."

THE U. S. ELECTIONS

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The flood of ballots which will sweep either Wilson or Hughes into the Presidency March 4th, began rising early today. The polls opened at six a.m. and will close at 5 p.m. in most States. The weather is fine everywhere. While publicity sponsors for the Republican and Democratic organizations declared entire confidence in the vote, privately they are very much at sea. In no previous election has there been such a complete lack of indication of which way the straws blow. The "silent vote" has been more silent than ever before. Since the campaign opened about August 1 there have been half a dozen different "trends" to public sentiment. Overlapping at times. The most unusual eleventh hour development in connection with this election was in the betting.

Wall Street prides itself on having picked a winner. Up till midnight the odds have favoured Hughes. But today opened with less advantage to the Republican nominee almost at even money. More Republican cash was in evidence than Democratic. It was estimated that at least $7,000,000 will change hands on the verdict of the voters to-day. Probably the largest sum that has ever been wagered on a presidential election.

WILL PLAY GOLF

SHADOW LAWN, N. J., Nov. 7.—President Wilson was up at 5 o'clock this morning, had his breakfast, and by 7.15 was enroute to Princeton where he will vote. He made the journey to his home town by automobile with Mrs. Wilson and expected to be back at the summer White House by noon. The President and his entire official family were supremely confident to-day. He will play golf this afternoon.

The Republican.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Republican candidate Evans Hughes voted ballot number 18 at 7.07 this morning in a laundry voting booth. He arose at 5:45, took an hour to dress, and left the Astor Hotel with Carl D. Sheppard, his publicity agent, and two detectives at daybreak. He walked three blocks to the voting booth and returned. A flock of newspaper men and movie operators were on hand as he went into the dingy little voting booth.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—In addition to the President, thirty-three Senators and thirty-five governors are to be elected to-day; and six States will ballot on prohibition.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder Troubles You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

THE LITTLE FORTUNE

BY ARNOLD FREDERICKS

CHAPTER XX.

M. Dumas Reappears.

When Grace Duvall recovered her senses she found herself in a small but rather comfortably furnished room, which appeared to be a sort of living-room or library.

She was not bound or confined in any way, and, so far as she could see, she was quite alone. She glanced quickly about the room.

At the side, facing her, were two windows, the blinds of which were drawn. A third window occupied the centre of the wall to her left, flanked on either side by cases containing books.

In the centre of the room was a table with a kerosene lamp upon it, covered with a flowered shade. It cast a faint illumination about the room, leaving the corners in shadow.

In the right wall was a door. She rose and tried it. As she expected, it was locked. Behind her was another door, also locked.

She went over to the two windows at the front and looked out. A narrow, silent street confronted her, evidently the one into which the taxi cab had driven. It was quite dark, save for the faint illumination cast by one or two distant street lamps. So far as she could judge from the distance to the street below, the room she was in was on the third floor.

A hurried glance through the side window showed the roof of a two-story building adjoining. It seemed to be some eight or nine feet below where she stood. She was on the point of making an attempt to lower herself from the window-sill and jump to the roof below, when the door at the rear of the room opened and two persons came in.

They were the man who had represented himself as George Vernon, and the woman who had been with her in the cab.

"Come away from that window," the man called to her harshly.

She did so at once and started toward the other end of the room.

"Sit down," commanded the man. "I want to talk to you."

The woman had already seated herself in an easy chair and was comfortably smoking a cigarette.

Grace sat down in a chair which stood near her.

"What do you want with me?" she asked.

The man proceeded to light a cigar before replying. Then he, too, sat down.

Presently he turned and bent upon her a long and searching gaze.

"Who are you?" he asked.

"My name is Ellicott—Grace Ellicott," she answered, giving the name which had been hers before her marriage.

"Why have you been following my wife?" he asked.

"Why do you think that I have been following her?"

The man muttered an oath. "Do you think I do not recognize you?" he growled.

"Were, then, have you seen me before, Mr. Vernon?" she asked quietly. She wondered if he would dare mention the night she had followed him and this woman in New York. To do so she knew, would be equivalent to admitting that he was not Vernon at all.

"I saw you on the steamer," the man replied evasively. "You followed Wife here from Havre. I am tired of this espionage, and I intend that it shall be stopped."

"Of what then, are you afraid?" asked Grace coldly.

Her question seemed to anger the man. "I do not know whom you represent" he said, "but unless this persecution is stopped I shall at once hand you over to the authorities."

"That is exactly what I wish you would do" Grace replied, meeting his glance fearlessly.

Her reply seemed to trouble him. "I am George Vernon, former purser of the Richelieu," he said. "I have had an unfortunate experience, as you know. If there is anything that I can do to clear up the mystery surrounding the affair that led to my imprisonment I shall be only too glad to do it."

"Then do this," said Grace. "First, give me the franc-piece that you have, and which belongs to Mlle. Mercier. Second, tell me what became of Henri Musset."

Her words produced a far greater effect than she had bargained for. She spoke as she did to frighten the fellow, thinking that perhaps in this way she might cause him to lose his temper, and thus betray himself.

There was no other course, in fact, that she could pursue. To deny that she had followed him and the woman would have been useless. They knew quite well that she had. To agree to cease doing so in the future would have been equally futile, for they would not have believed her.

She knew quite well that the fellow's object in questioning her was to draw her out—to learn what she knew—and she determined to tell him enough to thoroughly frighten him.

She made one mistake, however. he did not entirely realize the desperate nature of the man with whom she was dealing. The question regarding Henri Musset had no sooner left her lips than Vernon sprang forward and, seizing her by the throat, forced her head against the back of her chair.

"Come here, Helene," he called to the woman, who threw down her cigarette and joined him at once.

"What do you mean to do?" she asked.

"Only one thing to do," he growled. "The game is up. We've got to get this woman out of the way, secure the money as early as possible to-morrow, and leave Paris at once."

"But how do you know that anything has been found out? They can prove nothing."

"Is it possible that you do not see she this woman waited in Havre?" he demanded, as he stopped Grace's efforts to scream by stuffing a handkerchief into her mouth. "She has seen Georgette. The girl has doubtless told her everything. We've got to get away, I tell you, before we have the police about her ears. That fellow, Duvall, is effectually disposed of for the time being. He is in the hands of the police. If we can keep this woman's mouth shut until we get the money, we are safe. Not, otherwise."

"Take that scarf from the shelf there and tie her wrists. Be quiet, damn you!" he muttered, subduing Grace's efforts to free her wrists by twisting them until she groaned with pain.

"What do you mean to do with her?" asked the woman, as she bound the scarf about the girl's arms.

"Fix her so that she can never bother us again, even after we leave Paris."

"How?"

"We'll take no chances this time. Get me a hat-pin, a sharp one."

"A hat-pin?" asked the woman in surprise.

"Certainly. Don't stand staring at me like an idiot. By pressing it into the spine, just at the base of the skull, death results instantly. There is no outward mark of violence, except a tiny red spot, no larger than the point of a pin, which is indistinguishable among the locks of the hair."

"And then—what?"

"I shall take the body to the street later, when all is quiet, and leave it several doors below. There will be nothing whatever to connect us with the affair. The woman will apparently have dropped dead from a cerebral hemorrhage."

Grace's heart almost stopped beating as she heard the man's words. Their cold-blooded brutality made her brain reel. It seemed impossible that such people could really exist.

None of the party had observed a shadowy form which for some moments past had been standing in a corner of the room, partly hidden by one of the heavy curtains which hung before the window.

As the woman turned to go for the hat-pin the figure near the window advanced. It was a man, wearing a rusty black frock coat. His eyes were covered by large spectacles, and a scraggy black mustache gave him, as he emerged from the darkness, a rather sinister appearance. His face was ghastly pale—so pale, indeed, as to seem unreal. It was M. Dumas.

He came forward so noiselessly over the carpet that no one heard him. Suddenly Vernon, glancing up, saw his face. With a scream of terror he fell back against the table, his teeth chattering, his eyes staring from their sockets.

The woman, turning at his cry, also saw the strange apparition, and, with a groan, fainted and pitched headlong to the floor.

Grace, confined as she was in the chair, did not at first realise the cause of their terror. By turning her head she, too, caught a glimpse of the intruder, and the sight filled her with a wonderful sense of relief and joy.

"Well, M. Hartmann," said Dumas agreeably, "we meet again and again you are about to commit a murder."

The man's face continued to clutter. He had supposed Dumas dead and buried. To have him suddenly appear out of space, as it were, and confront him, just at the moment when he was planning to take another human life, seemed almost supernatural. He was unable to speak.

"I have come," Dumas went on, in a quiet but determined voice, "to get the franc-piece you have stolen from Mlle. Mercier."

His words apparently convinced the other man that he was dealing with a human being and not an apparition.

His hand swept toward his hip-pocket. Before it got there, however, Dumas had drawn his own revolver, and levelled it at the man's head.

"Put the franc on the table, my friend," he commanded peremptorily, "and make up your mind that your little game is quite played out."

He moved as he spoke toward the door and, still keeping Hartmann covered with the revolver, turned the key. Then he took from his pocket a tiny whistle and blew upon it a long, shrill blast.

Almost immediately the door was pushed open and Vernet appeared followed by two gendarmes. "Search him," said Dumas quietly. "He must have the franc concealed somewhere about his person."

The search, under Vernet's skilled hands, soon revealed what this was the [illegible] and mysterious coin reposed in a small silver match safe, which was fixed to one end of the prisoner's watch chain.

Duvall took the one-franc piece and slipped it into his pocket. "This time my friend," he said grimly, "you will not get it back."

He turned to Vernet. "I will explain the whole affair to you to-morrow, Vernet. Such parts of it as I am not familiar with the prisoner will not doubt supply. He might just as well confess, and it may result in some slight mitigation of his punishment.

"Just now, I think, I had better take Mrs. Duvall home. She has been through a frightful ordeal, and must be worn out. I will see you at the prefecture in the morning."

Half an hour later, in their room at the Ritz, Duvall was explaining to Grace his movements since leaving her at Havre.

"We arrived safely in Paris nearly four hours before you did," he told her, "and had no difficulty whatever in tracing Vernon to the house to which you were taken later by the woman.

"I felt certain that this woman would join him there—in fact, that was the plan they had agreed upon when I overheard their conversation in the stateroom that night.

"Vernon was entirely unsuspicious. He knew nothing of you and foolishly supposed that I was safe in the hands of the police. He came here openly, and waited.

"I was across the street in a bake-shop, when you arrived with the woman. It was then nearly dark, but I saw that something had happened, for the woman waited until the man came down to her, and then they walked you between them up the stair, as if you had suddenly been taken ill.

"I at once sent word to join me, and went up the stairs. The man and woman, as I ascertained by looking through the keyhole, put you in a chair, and while waiting for you to recover consciousness — you had been chloroformed—went into the dining-room at the rear and ate their dinner.

"I tried to open the door, but was unable to do so without attracting the attention of the two in the dining-room, so I went down and managed to get around to the rear of the building.

"A shed at the back enabled me to get to the roof adjoining and by the means of a rainspout I managed to draw myself up to the window of the room in which you were confined.

"The window was open. You were still unconscious. I entered the room, hid behind the curtain in a dark corner and waited.

"Of course my first impulse was to get you free, but I wanted to see what these people meant to do. I hoped to get evidence against them which would enable me to hold them, and as you know, such evidence so far as the French authorities were concerned had been lacking.

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS
MARTYR TO PAINS IN THE BACK
Halifax, N.S., Jan. 18, 1916.
About eight months ago I read your advertisement in one of the Halifax papers offering a free sample of Gin Pills for the Kidneys. I had been a martyr for years to intense pains across the back and decided to try Gin Pills. Before I had finished the third box I found myself for the first time in years perfectly free from pain.
Yours sincerely,
Mrs. (Rev.) Rogers

KEEP HANDS ON WHEEL.

California Court Rules Against Simultaneous Hugging and Driving.

Driving a motor car with the right hand on the wheel and the left arm around the waist of a young woman, constitutes a negligence, according to the ruling of Justice of the Peace A. Barnett, of San Francisco. He gave judgment for $97.50 against G. W. Smith, jitney operator, in favour of May Goldsteiner, because he had only one hand on the steering wheel when his machine collided with a car belonging to H. Allinger.

Smith's other arm was around Miss Bessie Goldsteiner, sister of Miss May.

Miss May Goldsteiner, who was sitting in the back seat at the time of the accident, sued for $200 damages to her dress, eyes and nose as a result of the mishap.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS OVERCOME BY SAFE METHOD

INSOMNIA CAN BE SAFELY AND QUICKLY CURED.

Worry, overwork, overstudy and indigestion cause insomnia.

First, the blood circulation must be improved.

Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

For building blood and nerve, for instilling force and life into overworked organs, for establishing strength and vitality, where can you find anything so efficient as Ferrozone?

Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down, but if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep, you'll get well quickly.

Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozone.

Take it for a month, take it for a year — no harm, but immeasurable good will result.

To sleep well, look well, feel well, be free from depression, nervousness or blues—use Ferrozone. It's a food tonic, a healer to the weak and wretched, a boon to the sleepless — sold in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50; at all dealers, or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.
